Four Brothers Maul Police In Lindsay Brawl; All Nursing Fight Wounds

Bloody But Unbowed, Law Finally Triumphs Takes Rioters To Jail; Still Seeking One Man Who Fled Melee

LINDSAY, Feb. 2—(Special).—A Donnybrook comparable to those of the lumbering days of this district took place on Saturday in the beverage room of the Kent Hotel, Lindsay. As a result, three town policemen are nursing assorted wounds, and the Tracey family of four brothers, who allegedly engineered and carried out the free-for-all battle are also on the injured list. Three of the four brothers and a trucker, John Hopkins, are in jail, charged with taking part in the affray and resisting officers in discharged of their duties.

They appeared in court and were released from custody on bail of $1,000 each, and were remanded one week.

The brothers, Lionel, Jim, Earl and Gerald Tracey are charged with resisting arrest, while John Hopkins, Fred Bissette and Lorne McGee will face charges of obstructing police officers. Gerald Tracey gave himself up this morning.

Constable John Hunter has a broken rib, three broken fingers on the left hand, a badly bruised head and a number of cuts on the abdomen, where he claims he was kicked several times. Constable Tom Boulderstone has a sprained thumb. Sgt. Russell Hargreave was bitten n the wrist, had his clothes torn, and was bruised about the head and body. Constable Endicott wa treated for numerous bruises, and his clothes were torn in the affray.

According to the story told police, the Tracey brothers had been "cut off" from further servings of beer. Incensed, they started to clean up the hotel, aided by Hopkins. Then a call was sent for police and Cons. Hunter and Endicott rushed to the scene. They found a full-fledged brawl in progress. The officers unlimbered their billies and waded in.

The fight was going against the officers when Sgt. Hargreave, who happened to be passing, took a hand.

The sergeant later said he arrived to find Endicott astride one of the men, and others on top of the constable. It was now three against five and the officers did a little better, though taking more punishment.

Constable Boulderstone was the next to put in an appearance, and in the mix-up Gerald Tracey departed for parts unknown.

"When we got them into the police cruiser they tried to upset it," said Sgt. Hargreave, "but we got them to the jail where they quieted down."

According to R. I. Moore, K.C., who was called to the aid of the Traceys, Cons. Hunter used a bottle on the head of one of the brothers. The police deny doing so.

Warn Ontario New Cold Wave On Way

By The Canadian Press

A new cold wave today headed for Western Ontario where severe weather which reduced the supply of gas to factories has kept 25,000 industrial workers idle 10 days.

The forecast that a fresh cold wave would push down from Northern Ontario by tonight to rout milder temperatures which settled over the southern part of the province during the week-end came on the heels of announcement that the gas shortage likely will continue for at least a week.

A. R. Crozier, provincial fuel controller, said last night that two weeks of almost continuous cold had stepped up consumption of natural gas and "put a terrific pull on the gas fields." It would take nearly a week of mild weather for them to recover and the outlook was for more cold.

Most of the temporarily-idle workers are employees of Windsor's large automotive plants. The others belong to staffs of other Windsor area factories or of plants in Chatham, Sarnia, Simcoe and other communities in the southwestern corner of the province.

Call Meeting

An Ontario government order that gas would not be available to Windsor industrial users tomorrow or for an indefinite period thereafter led industrial leaders in that city to call a meeting today. Mayor Arthur Reaume plans to discuss the situation with gas company officials.

Reserve Pleas In Alberta Case

EDMONTON, Feb. 2. —(CP).— Mr. Justice S. J. Shepherd today allowed three Ontario residents to reserve their pleas on charges of conspiring to publish defamatory libel against Alberta child welfare administration officials, and adjourned the trial until April 5.

Mr. Justice Shepherd, sitting in Alberta Supreme Court, granted the defence the right to reserve its plea after the Crown had urged that immediate pleas be obtained from Jack Kent Cooke, publisher of New Liberty magazine, writer Harold Dingman and Dr. Charlotte Whitton, welfare authority.

The Crown did not argue against postponement of the trial, which involves the question of press freedom, but contended that various appeals may delay indefinitely the opening of the actual trial.

Girl Given 15 Days Asks For 15 More

LINDSAY, Feb. 2. (ENS) — "This is a new one," said Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court today when a 22-year-old Lindsay girl, charged with intoxication asked to be given an extra 15 days in jail.

Winnifred Smoke was sentenced to 15 days, but asked his worship to make it 30, because she wanted to be with her sister Audrey, aged 19. Audrey was charged with intoxication and received 30 days because it was her second offence. She would not tell where she had obtained liquor. Both were picked up Saturday night.

In Mental Hospital

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 2 —(CP).—Frank J. Timmons, 72, who had been arraigned on a charge of murder following the death of his 42-year-old daughter, Helen, last Jan. 11, today was committed to the Ontario Mental Hospital in Hamilton on a warrant issued by Lieut.-Governor Ray Lawson of Ontario.

Dr. McIlwraith Masonic Leader Killed In Crash

HAMILTON, Feb. 2 (CP)—Dr. Douglas G. McIlwraith, 69, was killed instantly at 9.40 this morning when his car was struck by a T.H. and B. gas-electric coach on Leyland street in West Hamilton. With his passing, Hamilton has lost a brilliant physician and obstetrician, a leader in Canadian Masonic activities and a man of great charm and many personal attributes.

Dr. McIlwraith was almost across the tracks when his car was struck at the rear, thrown about 30 feet and almost completely wrecked.

The locomotive, the regular coach to Waterford, had left the terminal 10 minutes prior to the crash. The crew was: Engineer George Wright, Welland; Conductor Edward Barlow, Westdale; and Baggageman Laverne Chipps of Wellandport.

Lift Him Out

A witness of the accident was Stanley Stroud of Hamilton who with the assistance of Pat Rooney of Hamilton turned off the ignition of the racing engine, and lifted the doctor out of the car.

Dr. McIlwraith retained an extensive practice in the city. After graduating from the University of Toronto in 1901 as an M.B., silver medallist, he became house surgeon at Hamilton General Hospital until 1902, when he entered general practice in Binbrook. In 1908, he was appointed associate coroner of Wentworth county and held office until his death.

He has been a staff obstretician and lecturer at the General Hospital for many years and served in the Army Medical Corps of the Canadian militia from 1910 to 1919.

Outstanding in Masonic activities since 1906, he was elected sovereign grand commander of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite for the Dominion of Canada in 1942. He was also Dominion of Canada head of the Royal Order of Scotland, past principal of the Hamilton Chapter, R.A.M., No. 175, G.R.C., and past master of Harmony Lodge, No. 57, A.F. and A.M., and of the Lodge of Strict Observance, No. 27.

Two of Canada's Skaters Call It Quits At Olympics

By JACK SULLIVAN

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 2—(CP)—Two of Canada's Olympic speed-skating team—Frank Stack of Winnipeg and Ab Hardy of Edmonton—announced today their retirement from active competition.

"I've had enough," said Stack after finishing 27th in the 1,500-metre event today. "Let the younger fellows take over from here."

Hardy, 38, placed 29th in the 1,500 metres and also said he is "finished."

Stack, a greying, 41-year-old Winnipeg product whose flashing skates have placed Canada in the speed-skating world's bigtime for years said he will coach the two other members of Canada's Olympic team —Craig Mackay of Saskatoon and Gordon Audley of Winnipeg. Audley was 35th in the 1,500 metres and Mackay, who likes longer distances, did not start.

"I've been in the game 28 years and that's too long," Stack said in an interview in the Olympic stadium dressing room. "Who wants to watch an old guy like myself going around the track?"

But the old timer who holds two indoor world records—the five-mile and the 500-metre—and who placed sixth in the 500-metre Olympic event last week can still show his heels to the youngsters. He led the Canadian Olympic team in the 500 and 1,500-metre events here

Married and with three children, Hardy plans to devote most of his time to the contracting business and to teaching speed skating in his native Edmonton.

Stack's performances on the ice would almost fill a book. From his first championship tournament when only 14, he has brought high honors to the Dominion.

Jeep Crash Slits Throat Of Passenger

Prompt First Aid Saves His Life; 2 Accidents On Hill

BANCROFT, Feb. 2 (ENS). — Edward (Ted) Reid, Cross Lake, narrowly missed death in a peculiar car mishap on the highway north of Maynooth Saturday at midnight. He suffered a six-inch gash in the throat which severed an artery, and only prompt first aid saved his life.

Reid was a passenger in a jeep, driven by Arthur Brodoski, Maynooth. The jeep was proceeding north, and as it topped a steep hill, a car owned by W. J. Davidson, Maynooth, was being pushed down the incline to get it started. Joseph A. Brumfield was steering the Davidson car and apparently the owner was doing the pushing. The latter seeing the jeep approaching jumped aside and yelled, but apparently Brodoski did not hear him. The jeep crashed into the rear of the car, and Reid crashed through the windshield, sustaining the throat injury.

Provincial Police report Brodoski was unable to stop the jeep because of the slipper road.

Give First Aid

The injured man was taken to the Arlington Hotel at Maynooth, where Mr. and Mrs. William Painter, the owners, gave first aid and staunched the flow of blood. This is believed to have saved the victim's life. He was then rushed to Bancroft Red Cross hospital where Dr. S. S. Lumb attended him.

Dr. Lumb said that if the injured man had been half an hour late in reaching the hospital he would have died.

A short time after the first accident, another vehicle driven by Joseph Foster of Lake St. Peter and going in the same direction as the jeep, turned out to miss the vehicle, and his car also crashed into the Davidson car. There were no others injured.

Brodoski, according to Provincial Constable Palmateer will be charged with a breach of the Highway Traffic Act.

Use Tanks, Cars To Quell Strike

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2—(AP). — Two women workers were trampled to death and a third was killed in a three-storey fall today in rioting punctuated by gunfire between 500 policemen and strikers among 7,000 cotton mill workers.

More than 60 workers were injured, many seriously. A dozen policemen were hurt.

Police, using tanks and riot cars, brought about surrender of the strikers who had barricaded themselves in the big Sung Sing cotton mill. More than 300 workers were arrested. The strikers began their sitdown four days ago to enforce demands for a new year bonus of two months' pay.

Officers fired into the rambling three-storey building after seven policemen had been seized and held as hostages.

The strikers then dropped pieces of iron machinery and stones on the policemen, 10 of whom were injured. Two officers were shot.

Strike spokesmen said about half of the 7,000 laborers opposed the sitdown and several were seriously hurt attempting to leave the building.

FOLDING MONEY NO GOOD IN PARIS—As a result of the French government's decision to withdraw from circulation some $1,540,000,000 worth of 5,000-franc notes, this would-be customer in Paris finds that his note of that denomination is about as welcome in this store as a slight attack of smallpox. The lady behind the counter has no intention of being stuck with it. The government closed all banks to forestall speculation. It was reported that 5,000-franc notes were being bought by speculators for 4,000 francs.

Blast Wrecks Newspaper; 20 People Hurt

JERUSALEM, Feb. 2—(AP)—Police said today they were still unable to fix the blame for a bomb-blast which wrecked the Palestine Post last night, injured at least 20 persons and touched off an $800,000 fire.

One Arab source said Arabs did it. Other informants blamed Jewish extremists, who have threatened the pro-Zionist, English-language daily newspaper because of its moderate stand on Jewish defence.

Still other sources blamed Britons known for their anti-Jewish sentiments.

Down - town Jerusalem, Zion Square and Zen Yehuda Street were littered with broken glass from windows shattered as far as 1,000 yards from the site of the blast.

Magen David Clinic, across from the Post building—itself badly damaged by the explosion—reported it had 11 injured, two critically. Other hospitals reported a total of eight or nine while dozens of other persons walked around with bandages.

There was no official confirmation to reports that a woman living in the Post building was killed in the blast.

Continue To Publish

The paper put out a single sheet two-page edition today. Ted Lurie, assistant editor, said that would continue until further notice.

The blast, which occurred just before midnight, caused a fire which threatened to engulf an entire city block.

During the night, Arabs launched an attack against the old city of Jerusalem where 1,700 Jews are virtually cut off from aid. The attackers were said to have used mortars and machine-guns, but no casualties were reported.

The Royal Navy intercepted a schooner yesterday carrying 280 Jews seeking to enter Palestine without immigration papers. They were sent to detention camps on Cyprus.

Urge Newfoundland VoteOnConfederation

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 2. — (CP)—A postcript memorandum signed by the minority in the National Convention who supported confederation with Canada has been forwarded to the Commonwealth office in London urging that the question of the union with Canada be submitted to the Newfoundland people, it was learned here today.

The action was taken following announcements by convention members F. Gordon Bradley and Joseph Smallwood that they were "inundated with messages from all over the country" protesting the convention vote last week against the confederation issue.

The convention, which began sittings 17 months ago to consider and recommend future forms of government for Newfoundland, was dissolved Friday after voting 29-16 against confederation.

Visits To Italy Authorized US Rejects Russ Protest

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—(AP).—The United States rejected outright today Russia's protest against the visit of American warships to Italian ports. A State Department note said that the Italian government granted advance permission for each such visit. It said that the calls were "in strict accord with the comity of nations."

"It is customary for sovereign states to grant the privileges of visits to naval vessels and personnel of friendly foreign powers," the note added.

Russia charged in a note delivered Wednesday by Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin that the presence of American warships in Italian ports violated the new peace treaty with Italy which required withdrawal of all allied armed forces by last Dec. 15.

Delay Reply

The State Department meanwhile delayed a reply to an earlier Moscow protest against restoring an American built air field at Mellaha in Italy's former North African colony of Libya. Russia in a note delivered Jan. 21 charged this likewise violated the Italian treaty.

The warships visiting Italian ports are part of the United States Mediterranean fleet and include the 45,000-ton aircraft carrier Midway.

Will Stand Trial

TORONTO, Feb. 2.— (CP).— Albert Dorland, key figure in a Royal Commission investigation 15 years ago of charges that he was "framed" by police, was committed today for trial on a charge of illegal possession of narcotics. Bail of $20,000 was renewed. Dorland surrendered last Jan. 8 when he learned a warrant had been issued for his arrest. The charge was laid following a chase late in December in which police tried unsuccessfully to nab men suspected of trafficking in narcotics.

Security Council Finds Plan For Palestine In Difficulty

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Feb. 2. —(AP).—The United Nations Security Council today received its first formal notification that the Palestine partition plan is in serious difficulty.

The critical situation in the Holy Land was laid before the 11-country council in a grim report by the United Nations Palestine Commission.

The report covered the first month's work of the five-country commission, which was responsible for carrying out the plan to carve Palestine into separate Arab and Jewish countries.

Although not dealing with the vital security problem, the document made it clear that the commission had little hope of succeeding without help from the Council.

The text of the report was expected to be made public today.

Even before the Council received the report, the Commission had begun work on a special communication outlining the security problem and the need for an international military force for the Holy Land.

Today's report informed the Council that Britain had refused to comply with the General Assembly's recommendation that a major Palestine port be re-opened for Jewish immigration by Feb. 1.

The special report will include a later British declaration which blocked a commission decision to help the Jewish agency form a Jewish-controlled militia in Palestine.

It also will inform the council of Britain's refusal to admit the Commission to Palestine until two weeks before the termination of the British mandate May 15.

BEARDMORE, Ont., Feb. 2.— (CP)—One miner was fatally injured and four others hurt, one seriously, in the collapse of a "blasting" set and bracing timber at the 2,150-foot level of the Leitch Gold Mine, six miles west of here last night.

Keep Peace Or Resign Nehru Pledge

Searching For Gang Accused Of Plot Against 3 Officials

NEW DELHI, Feb. 2 (AP). — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru staked the survival of his government today on the issue of restoring peace, for which Mohandas K. Gandhi was killed.

In swift implementation of Nehru's stand, the home ministry issued a communique abolishing private armies and "any organization preaching violence or communal hatred."

Gandhi's ashes were prepared for committal to the Ganges, a river his Hindu followers consider sacred. His body was cremated on a huge sandal-wood pyre by the waters of the Jumna river Saturday after his youngest son, by Hindu rite, had lit the fire. Gandhi, 78, was assassinated en route to a prayer meeting. His assailant was held incommunicado.

Crowds in Bombay, angered by Gandhi's death, tried to burn the house of a member of the militant Maha Sabha (Greater Hindu organization). They attempted to stop traffic and close shops. They kept all but a few workers from their jobs.

The home ministry said India and the princely state of Hyderabad, ruled by Moslems, had agreed to work in close harmony to settle problems which were assuming serious proportions. Small border riots had broken out.

Nehru told the constituent assembly his government would stand or fall on the issue of restoring peace.

Ayrhart Plane Crashes Sunday

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2. — (ENS) — A two-seater biplane owned by E. J. Ayrhart, Campbellford, crashed Sunday afternoon on Nicholson Island, three miles from Wellington, Prince Edward Island.

Particulars of the crash were not known on the mainland, Sunday night, because, except by air, there is no other means of communication to the island during the winter. However, two observers, one from Trenton Air Station the other, Cameron Allan, Campbellford, reported the pilot, Bud Ayrhart, apparently unhurt, but the plane wrecked.

Unable to land at the scene of the crash because of a snowstorm and adverse landing conditions, Allan was of the opinion that the pilot had landed, discharged his passenger, an employee at Ayrhart's farm on the island, and then when he started the motor again by spinning the prop by hand, was unable to reach the cockpit to check the throttle and the plane took off without the pilot and crashed.

Indian Bucks Decide To Give Squaws Vote

CALGARY, Feb. 2 — (CP). — Women won a major victory over their male rivals here during the week-end as Alberta Indian bucks voted to abolish the age-old "male domination" of Indian reservations—a domination that has been the envy of males the world over.

At a pow-wow in Calgary Saturday the council of the Indian Association of Alberta — representing all the tribes in the province and comprised of men only —voted to give squaws an equal voice in tribal affairs.

Twenty-five chieftains of tribes from the lesser Slave Lake region in the northern section of the province to the United States border, forwarded a resolution to the joint Senate-Commons committee at Ottawa asking that the Indian Act be amended to give squaws the right to vote for chiefs and councillors and to take part in the determination and administration of tribal affairs.

Armed Forces Budget Cut By Russia

MOSCOW, Feb. 2 —(AP). — Finance Minister A. G. Zverev proposed Saturday night to a joint session of the Supreme Soviet the largest budget in the history of the Soviet Union.

With Prime Minister Stalin and Foreign Minister Molotov among his listeners, Zverev called for expenditures of 387,900,000,000 rubles and a revenue of 428,000,000,000 rubles in 1948.

The amounts would come roughly to $77,580,000,000 in expenditures and $85,600,000,000 in revenue.

The appropriation recommended for Russia's armed forces for the current year was 66,000,000,000 rubles. That would amount to 17 per cent. of the total budget and a curt of 2,500,000,000 rubles from the 1947 military expenditure.

President Truman has asked the United States Congress for $11,025,000,000 for national defence in the next year. Washington experts have contended that the Russians do not include in their military budget many items that are carried in the United States as national defence expenditures.

Russia's social and cultural expenditures for 1948 will be almost double the funds allocated to the armed forces, according to Zverev's statement.

Education Up

Education has been allotted 59,100,000,000 rubles, apparently a considerable increase over 1947.

The Minister called for an increase of roughly 1,000,000,000 rubles in the health and physical culture allocations. The sum for social security funds was raised to 22,700,000,000 rubles.

The total allocation for cultural and social expenses, Zverev said, including education, health and social security, amounts to 116,300,000,000 rubles. This represented an increase of 9,800,000,000 rubles over the 1947 figure.

The Finance Minister said Russia had 33,000,000 pupils in schools throughout the Soviet Union in 1947.

Board Members Shot For Refusing License

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 2 (AP). —An angry storekeeper Saturday turning his deer rifle on the five-man town board of the tiny crossroads community of Elmer which had refused him a beer tavern license, killed three members, wounded a fourth, then took his own life.

Louis Ringhommer, 53, a supervisor, was shot in the left arm. At hospital in Hibbing, he was said to be in serious condition from loss of blood.

The fifth member of the board, Albert Beensdorf, 35, said he escaped by running out of the schoolroom, where the board was in session when Contanzi pulled a 30-30 rifle from beneath his coat and started shooting.

Each of the board members killed was shot in the head and had at least one other wound. Deputy Sheriff Ed Anderson said 14 shots were fired.

WHERE UN ASSEMBLY MAY MEET—A general view of the Palais de Chaillot, Paris, as it appears from the first floor of the Eiffel Tower. Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, paid a visit to Paris recently to inspect the palace as a possible meeting place for the UN general assembly at the September session. Mr. Lie also is said to be considering sites in Brussels and Geneva, but the devaluation of the franc may play an important role in his final decision. It is estimated thtat the United Nations would have roughly $500,000 and $570,000 under the new exchange rate—this would be in addition to the great saving to the delegations of the 57 member nations.

as an individual and as the head of the government that we should have failed to protect the greatest treasure we possess."

On the banks of the Jumna, meanwhile the ashes of the assassinated Gandhi were reverently collected and prepared for scattering on waters sacred to orthodox Hinduism.

Officials of the Indian Union hunted for a gang accused of plotting to send three high officials of the Dominion to their deaths with Gandhi.

Too Much Hatred

Nehru, who had just returned from the services beside the Jumna, had to pause at times as he spoke to the assembly at a memorial service for Gandhi. He was barely able to control his tears and sobbing.

"Gandhiji's assassination is not the isolated act of a madman," he told the hushed assembly, which is jointly the constitution-writing and legislative branch of the new Indian government. (Gandhiji is the affectionate, diminutive form of the name.)

"It is the result of a certain atmosphere of violence and hatred that has prevailed in the country for many months and years, especially the past few months.

"If we are to serve the cause that Gandhiji put before us we have to face this atmosphere, combat it, struggle against it and root out this evil of hatred and violence from the country and from our individual selves.

"I assure you on behalf of the government of India that we will spare no means, no effort to do that. If we don't do that we are not worth being in this government. . . ."

Personal Shame

Declaring again his personal shame for failure to save Gandhi's life, the prime minister, who was one of the slain man's closest associates, declared:

"It is a shame to me as an Indian that an Indian raised a hand against him. It is a shame to me as a Hindu that a Hindu should have done it to the greatest Indian of the day and the greatest Hindu of the age."

Earlier, at the services beside the Jumna, a throng of 5,000 watched quietly as the ashes were sifted carefully. One object sifted out was handed to Nehru. Witnesses speculated that it might have been one of the bullets which struck Gandhi down Friday night, but there was no explanation from anyone in position to know.

Hindu was set against Hindu by Gandhi's assassination. Unofficial estimates were that at least 50 had been slain in rioting since the pistol killing of the 68-year-old patriot.

Others On List

Home Minister Sardar Vallabhai Patel told correspondents last night that he, Nehru and Education Minister Maulana Abul Kalam Azad had been marked for murder by a group decrying leniency toward Moslems.

The Mahatma's ashes were gathered up this morning in reverent funeral rites in the burning ground where he was cremated Saturday.

Leaders of the ceremony said all ashes and unburned bones would be taken to Birla House, where Gandhi died, and kept there in pots to be scattered Feb. 13 in the Ganges. Both the Ganges and Jumna are holy to Hindus.

Mobs formed in this city today when reports of the assassination plot spread. Rifle fire was heard. Mobs attacked members of the Militant Hindu Mahasabha (Great Hindu Organization) during the week-end. Gandhi's accused assassin was reported by police to belong to the party.

Patel, India's chief law enforcement officer and so-called "iron man" of Nehru's Congress Party, told correspondents the conspiracy was under investigation and arrests were being made. He urged the people not to take the law into their own hands.

Patel would not say whether Gandhi's death had resulted from the plot. But another high government official indicated the home minister knew it had.

"There is ample evidence that we were marked to be liquidated," Patel said, "because a certain group believed we were making too many concessions to Pakistan and Moslems generally."

A Daring Rescue

CLEVELAND, Feb. 2 — (AP). — Hercules Latimer, 40-year-old army veteran, hung by his feet and pulled a girl to safety yesterday from an automobile which dangled by one wheel 50 feet above tracks of a suburban railway. The driver of the car, in which Miss Rosemary K. O'Malley, 21, was a passenger, swerved to avoid another car at an intersection. The machine ripped through a steel fence guarding the drop to the tracks and, with only a rear wheel caught by a post, hung downward. Miss O'Malley was pinned in the front seat. Several persons held Latimer by his feet while he made the rescue.

Western Oils Show Moderate Increase

TORONTO, Feb. 2 — (CP). — Golds and western oils advanced moderately on a handful of good gains in each group on the stock exchange today but, industrials and base metals were mildly off. Negus led Yellowknife issues on a turnover of about 70,000 shares to advance 30 cents at $2.99.

Volume of the first three hours was 535,000 shares, about 128,000 more than Friday's similar period.

Industrials traded narrowly about balancing fractional gains against losses. Key issues ahead were Algoma Steel, Bell, Canada Cement, Bank of Commerce, Canadian Car, Dominion Foundries, Massey Harris, Weston, Simpsons "B" and B.C. Pulp.

Ahead in the senior golds were Bralorne, Hallnor, while Hollinger was off a fraction. Better juniors were Campbell, Cariboo, Chesterville, MacLeod, Negus, O'Brien and Preston. Base Metals ahead were Smelters 1 at 101, Golden Manitou, Nickel and Noranda.

Flames Level Six Buildings

MATTAWA, Ont., Feb. 2 (CP) —Fire early yesterday destroyed the Mattawa Town Hall and Fire Department building, a combination restaurant and apartment, a Canadian Pacific Railway waiting-room and a taxi stand. Damage was estimated at approximately $100,000.

A fire truck from North Bay, 40 miles west of here, was sent to help fight the fire. Firemen attributed the blaze to an overturned coal stove.

No one was injured. Joseph Bollier, owner of the restaurant, barely managed to escape from the apartment in the same building with his wife and six children before flames levelled the structure.

Bollier said he estimated his loss at $25,000, including the restaurant equipment and contents of the upstairs apartment. The property was only partly covered by insurance. Members of the family lost all their belongings except the few articles of clothing they were able to don before leaving the building.

A forestry-type pump, sent to the scene from the nearby CPR mainline station, froze solid in the 25-below-zero weather before it could be put into operation.

Planes Take Supplies To Fire-Blitzed Area

GOOSE BAY, Labrador, Feb. 2 — (CP) — Canadian and United States airmen—flying out of this jointly-operated air outpost—Saturday joined to bring relief to the 136 inhabitants of the partially-burned-out fishing settlement of Mokkovik, Labrador.

Food, clothing and medical supplies were dropped by parachute from two Douglas transports—one an R.C.A.F. plane and the other a United States air transport command ship. Other supplies were flown in by a single-engined, ski-equipped R.C.A.F. Norseman to the hamlet devastated by fire last Tuesday.

News of the fire at this village in the wastelands of Labrador in which nearly all of the community's food, clothing and medical supplies were burned did not reach Goose Bay until 10 a.m. Saturday in a radio message from Cape Harrison, a United States base in Labrador. There was no loss of life.

To get word out of the isolated location a dog sled driver travelled 65 miles over rough terrain to Cape Harrison. The settlement's only short-wave radio was destroyed by fire.

Rev. George Harp, in charge of the Moravian Mission said that two large buildings, the school house, missionary homes, a stores warehouse and a church were destroyed. Also destroyed were 160 sacks of flour, 40 sacks of sugar and valuable medical suplies, including penicillin.

Switch Damaged

PALGRAVE, Ont., Feb. 2.—(CP)—Canadian Pacific rail traffic was delayed three hours here last night after a track switch was damaged when a truck of the locomotive tender of the Toronto-Camp Borden passenger train went off the track. No one was injured and service was resumed when the switch was replaced.

4 Complaints Against U.S. Filed By Russia

LONDON, Feb. 2—(AP)—Russia has filed two more complaints against the United States, the Moscow radio reported today. That makes four in less than a week.

The latest protests concern the flights of American bombers over Russian shipping in Japanese waters and the activities of the American military mission in Iran.

The bomber flights, the radio said, infringed upon the freedom of merchant shipping, while the activities of the United States military mission in Iran are called threats to the Russian frontier. The Russians want both activities stopped, the broadcast said.

(Washington dispatches last night said those protests would be rejected sometime this week.)

Now the Russian ministry of foreign affairs has demanded that American bombers stop flying over and inspecting Russian shipping in the Yellow Sea and the Sea of Japan.

The protest note said the bombers circled low and sometimes dived on Russian ships.

The broadcast, quoting a Tass News Agency Dispatch, said Russia sent a note to Walter B. Smith, United States ambassador, last Friday demanding that the necessary instructions be issued to stop the actions, which produced "legitimate resentment on the part of crews and passengers of Soviet steamers."

13 Ontario Week-end Fires Take 2 Lives, Cost $600,000

By The Canadian Press

Thirteen week-end fires in Ontario cost the lives of two children and caused property damage estimated today at more than $600,000. The heavy fire loss for the opening of February followed a bad fire record in January when 17 lives were lost. The two killed this week-end were Michael, six months old, and Gerald, two, children of Mrs. Gerald Donovan, who saved a third child and suffered severe burns when her home two miles south of London was swept by fire Saturday.

Officials estimated it would take $325,000 to replace the high school at Orangeville, 55 miles northwest of Toronto, a two-storey building razed by fire Sunday night. Sparks from a detective chimney were blamed.

Loss was estimated at $100,000 when fire at Mattawa destroyed the town hall, police station, fire department building, a taxi stand and the Canadian Pacific Railway waiting room.

At Belleville Saturday fire destroyed the two-storey Chamber of Commerce building and the adjacent brewer's warehouse with loss of $100,000.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hayes and their seven children were made homeless when fire destroyed their one-room dwelling at Kirkland Lake.

Fire Destroyed

Another dwelling fire, at Simcoe, forced Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Derich and their five children out into the cold. The family came to Canada from Belgium last spring.

The Spicer Bakery at Otterville near Woodstock, was damaged by an oven explosion Sunday. At Kleinburg damage was estimated at $15,000 in destruction of a 60-foot barn with 10 head of cattle, farm equipment, more than 150 tons of hay and 20 tons of coal. More than 100 horses were rescued.

An over-heated elevator motor caused a $1,500 blaze in the Deer Park Manor Apartments in Toronto Sunday.

Damages were approximately $50,000 in fire which damaged the H. B. Wright Ltd. restaurant at Brickville on Saturday night after a coal gas explosion in the basement. Patrons and employees escaped without injury.

Barn Burned.

The barn of Murray McFarlane 12 miles south-west of London, was destroyed Sunday with damages of $25,000. A frozen water system hampered efforts to fight the blaze. The barn, one of the largest in South-western Ontario was a local landmark.

While Port Colborne firemen were en route to a fire in the roof of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Martin's house on Sunday a second alarm was sounded. Half the firemen were despatched to fight a fire which gutted the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Ellsworth at the opposite end of the community.

Damage was estimated at $20,000 in a fire which gutted the plant of National Floral Manufacturing Company at Waterford, six miles north of Simcoe, Sunday night. Cause of the fire was not determined.

U.S. Professor Has New Theory On Modern Ills

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—Feelings of anxiety — something that bothered even caveman society — may often stem from guilt, says Dr. O. H. Mowrer, associate professor of psychology at Harvard University.

This idea differs from that of Sigmund Freud, who believed that anxiety and many neuroses of modern life came from repressed desires and impulses which a person would like to indulge in, but didn't dare.

The view that they come from guilt and social fear offers a way to treat them successfully and to get rid of the anxiety and neuroses, Dr. Mowrer said. It would also indicate that man's social and moral conscience is getting better.

Ancient and prehistoric man probably had the psychological problem of anxiety feelings, he said. There is good reason to believe that anxiety "is the principal reason for modern man's addiction to alcohol, tobacco, other intoxicants and stimulants and to gambling and gluttony." Such things can bring some relief of the anxiety.

The use of magic, and many religious rites and practices also seem to offer relief, he added.

Fear is a dread of something objective, but anxiety might be defined as fear of nothing, or fear of something which the person won't admit exists, Dr. Mowrer explained. A neurosis can be thought of as behavior that reduces the anxiety, by escaping the reality of facing the cause of it. Neurotics don't know why they are anxious.

Freud's theory, Dr. Mowrer said, was that a person did something for which he was punished. This leads to an internal conflict between the impulse and the fear of being punished for it and the impulse is repressed.

Anxiety The Key

But later the impulse tries to reassert itself. Threatened with its return, the person feels anxiety. This is really fear of the repressed impulse, but only the fear and not the impulse itself gets into his consciousness. He may do neurotic things to allay the anxiety.

"Freud's theory in essence comes from evil wishes, from acts an individual would commit if he dared."

Dr. Mowrer, in a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, expressed the view that the anxiety comes from acts which a person has committed, but wishes he hadn't done.

"It now appears that in most if not all neurotics the problem is to help the individual 'grow up' to the demands of his conscience, not to try to whittle down or dilute those demands," he said.

"It brings the scientific theory of anxiety into fundamental agreement with the implicit assumptions of the great religions of the world concerning anxiety, namely that it is a product of too little self-indulgence and satisfaction, but of too much, a product not of over-restraint and inhibition, but of irresponsibility, guilt and immaturity."

The anxiety can be accepted as a "friendly" and helpful sign of something wrong, and treatment can be carried out so that the anxiety becomes ordinary guilt and moral fear, he continued. Realistic adjustments and new learing can then be accomplished so that the hidden fear is recognized and overcome.

"This is in marked contrast to the Freudian imputation that anxiety is an imposter—foreign, unfriendly and destructive."

This approach opens the way to a more hopeful and healthy conception of the nature of psychotherapy (treatment of psychological ills) and of education generally.

Editor Criticizes RCMP For Seizing Story Carbon

TORONTO, Feb. 2.— (CP). — RCMP officers got their manuscripts Saturday but the manner in which they seized a carbon copy of the "babies for export" articles from the offices of New Liberty magazine drew a verbal blast from the publication's managing editor, Wallace Reyburn.

Acting Cpl. J. J. Molyneux of the RCMP who came here from Alberta to serve warrants in connection with charges agains three Ontario residents of conspiracy to commit a defamatory libel, with three other officers, obtained the original of the story during a visit to the magazine office. He held a warrant to search the office and seize the original article.

He was told then by Joseph Sedgwick, Toronto lawyer, that the warrant did not cover a carbon copy of the article to which were attached some editorial notes.

Didn't Wait

"He came back later and told us he wanted the carbon copy and the attached notes," Mr. Reyburn said. "Mr. Sedgwick had said before he could not take it and I went to telephone Mr. Sedgwick again. While I was phoning, he took the copy and left the office."

Assistant Editor Frank Hamilton and Director Gene Aliman followed the RCMP man to the street and Mr. Hamilton told him he had no right to take the copy. He was told the warrant had been changed.

Mr. Reyburn said that when Mr. Hamilton asked to see the revised warrant, the officer refused to produce it and said:

"Well, we've got it."

Mr. Sedgwick said later it was his opinion the warrant was exhausted when the officers took the original manuscript.

Cpl. Molyneux could not be reached last night and RCMP officials here and in Ottawa said they had no comment. In Edmonton, Jack Kent Cooke, New Liberty publisher, committed for trial on a conspiracy charge arising from the "babies for export" artitcle together with Ottawa correspondent, Harold Dingman and Dr. Charlotte Whitton, Ottawa welfare consulting, said he had nothing to say about the seizure.

"Filling a prescription is next in importance to writing it."

Statistics Wrong Cobourg Reports

COBOURG, Feb. 2 — (ENS). — Recently released Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures, based on the 1941 census, reveal that the census-takers certainly slipped up on the Cobourg calculations. They list Cobourg as having 44 retail establishments. There are more than that number on King street alone, excluding Division street and several corner grocery stores throughout the town. Retail business is listed at $144,000 per year, a total considerably below the actual amount. It is interesting to note that Port Hope is recorded in the statics as having only 34 retail establishments. Cobourg citizens do not miss an opportusity to point out Cobourg's superiority over Port Hope, but even Cobourg gives credit to its rival town for having more than 34 retail outlets.

A native of Yarmouth, NS, he entered the service of the Bank of Montreal in 1906, became general manager in 1936, and president in December, 1942. He was chairman of Canada's four First Victory Loan campaigns and honorary chairman of the others in the Second World War.

He was chairman of the Wartime National War Finance Committee until the end of 1943. On retirement he was made honorary chairman of this committee.

Wooden Cars Must Be Placed At End Of Train

OTTAWA, Feb. 2—(CP)—Close on the heels of two disastrous railway collisions, the Board of Transport Commissioners last night made public an order requiring that all wooden coaches be placed at the rear of passenger trains on Canadian railways.

A board spokesman, recalling that the commissioners had recommended that railways dispense with wooden coaches as quickly as possible, said that until that could be done, the order was designed to prevent telescoping of wooden coaches in the event of head-on collisions.

The board ruling also said that a car with a steel underframe would not be considered a wooden car and that no wooden mail, express or baggage car occupied by any person should be placed between the locomotive and steel equipment or between other steel units in the make-up of any Canadian passenger train.

The order made no mention of recent Canadian railway wrecks but it was a follow-up to board investigations of the Labor Day wreck at Dugald., Man., in which 31 died when a holiday special, made up mainly of wooden coaches, smashed into a standing trans-continental train. The wooden coaches of the special caught fire. In a similar wreck near Wykes in Northern Quebec, Jan. 14, nine died when one train smashed into the rear of another, piling a steel coach on the rear of train on top of a wooden coach ahead of it.

There was no immediate comment from railways officials but it was conceded that the board order would have a considerable effect on the makeup of Canadian trains. At present most passenger trains are made up with coaches, some of which are wooden, ahead, followed by tourist and standard sleeping cars and with steel parlor or chair cars on the rear of the train.

Injection In Blood Stream Said Aid In Cancer Cure

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 2—(Reuters).—A vital substance which is injected into the blood stream—"ridiculously cheap and simple"—was said by a cancer specialist here yesterday to be the secret of John Braund, a non-medical Sydney septuagenarian, whose claims to be able to cure cancer have aroused world-wide interest. The specialist, who has studied Braund's treatment, said that the substance is injected into the blood stream near the growth and that there is nothing in Braund's methods contrary to orthodox medical opinion.

Maintaining that the malignant growths have their sources in the blood stream, Braund's methods were said by the specialist to aim at purifying the blood and promoting correct circulation as a preliminary to treatment.

His patients spent hours with their feet in hot salt water and underwent strenuous massage.

The specialist said that the substance injected in or near the seat of the growth appeared to be attracted to the cancer cells. It destroyed them, but left healthy tissues unharmed.

When cancer cells were killed, the specialist added they seemed to shrivel and were ejected by the healthy cells as any foreign bodies would be.

Thus malignant growths—even though internal— broke through the surface of the skin and Braund then applied powerful ointment.

About a week later, he removthe growth, then attached only by a few fibrous threads, with ordinary pliers.

Braund claims that growths so treated do not recur.

Patients declare the treatment is painless and after the removal of the growth they dress and walk away.

IT'S WISER TO CALL IN AN ELECTRICIAN

Electricity is one of the great wonders of our day . . . but one of the deadliest. The unskilled person who attempts to repair any type of electrical equipment is asking for trouble, and possibly death. When trouble develops, call in an electrician. He is the person best qualified to make any necessary repairs. This is the only sure way to avoid danger of shock, fire, or something even more serious. Avoidance of needless risk is evidence of your "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

The Effects of General Eisenhower's Withdrawal

Perhaps the most thoroughly discussed domestic subject of recent days in United States' political circles has been the probable effects of General Dwight Eisenhower's withdrawal on other Presidential candidates. Declarations from a few of the Eisenhower backers that they would continue to press for his nomination are disregarded; the generally accepted belief is that the general has definitely and finally removed himsel as a possible candidate, and that the Republican Convention will recognize that decision when it meets in Philadelphia in June.

* * *

President Truman, whose nomination by the Democratic Convention is as certain as anything can be in politics, clearly benefits by the withdrawal of General Eisenhower. Public opinion polls taken in the United States have shown that the general rated higher than the president. With the former out of the race, Mr. Truman now heads the polls, which have been remarkably accurate in predicting Presidential voting in the past two decades. Another candidate who will probably benefit—if he runs—is Henry A. Wallace. The only thing Mr. Wallace can hope to do is to poll as large a vote as possible as preparation for a greater effort in 1952. That aim will likely be furthered by the removal of General Eisenhower, who would have attracted many independent votes that may now go to Mr. Wallace.

* * *

The effect of the withdrawal within the Republican Party cannot be described as simply as the effect on the candidates mentioned in the foregoing paragraph. Governor Dewey of New York and Senator Taft of Ohio, both of whom are candidates for the Republican nomination, will both gain strength—but that leaves the issue more in doubt than ever. On present ratings, the most likely result of convention voting on these two men would be a stalemate, and U.S. political observers say the party has no "dark horse" capable of sweeping the convention in the event of a tie between Dewey and Taft.

* * *

The "dark horses" of the Republican Party, with one exception, are at least unaffected by the Eisenhower withdrawal, and former Minnesota Governor Stassen gains the immediate support of the organizers of the "Draft Eisenhower League". Governor Warren of California, a passive candidate so far, gains slightly, as does Senator Vandenberg of Michigan. Senator Vandenberg, although he has disavowed his candidacy, is easily his party's strongest compromise nominee; his age is against him, but at that he is little older than President Truman. Another possibility not to be overlooked is Senator John Bricker of Ohio. If the Philadelphia Convention reaches a deadlock between Dewey and Taft, Taft's strongly organized "Old Guard" Republicans might easily switch their support to Old Guard Bricker.

* * *

The only loser seems to be General Douglas MacArthur—assuming that the United States' hero of the Pacific ever toyed with the idea of accepting a Republican nomination. The arguments against soldier-candidates used by General Eisenhower were so forceful and so widely approved that they seem to have wiped out any chance of General MacArthur's name being placed before the Republican Convention by a strongly-organized group of supporters. There is always the possibility, of course, that the people might take over the convention and elect MacArthur, as they elected Willkie in 1940, but the latter's nomination is now regarded as one of those accidents that happen once in a hundred years. Today's Republican leaders, it is said, are determined to uphold their party's tradition that they, and not the people, pick the Republican candidate.

Pity Toronto

Miss Enid Smith, a British immigrant under the Ontario air transport scheme, has laid Toronto by the heels. She is reported in the Globe and Mail as saying:

Toronto is completely dead. It has no personality, not even a soul. It is a hive of money-making activity where people are bent only on making money. They drink to get drunk and they are much too serious....They tell me Toronto is the Queen City but, if it is, something should be done to make it more queenly. There is such a sameness about it. The houses are all the same colour and style with no originality.

These and other comments shocked or angered many good Torontonians. We have sympathy for both Toronto and Miss Smith.

What Miss Smith has said is, of course, true, but we shall not join with everybody else in Ontario (except Torontonians) in giggles, jeers, smirks and cat-calls at poor Toronto. We are temperamentally on the side of the underdog, and since almost nobody likes Toronto other than Torontonians, we are disposed to say something nice about the place. It has plays, concerts and parks. It cannot be entirely blamed for its stuffiness and complacency, its lack of imagination and colour, for many of its present citizens have come from smaller Ontario communities — even cities like Peterborough — and brought their narrowness and dollar-daze with them. They have become Torontonians and added to its lacklustre solidity. Further, Toronto, distillation of Ontario mores, has inherited 19th century puritan conventions. It is not to be wondered at that it is a very wicked city with bad drinking habits.

We sympathize with Miss Smith, not because she will be an outcast from Toronto, but because she had the temerity to speak her mind even though she is a British immigrant. She was indiscreet: one doesn't tell one's friends the truth about themselves. Canadians, especially Torontonians, are thin-skinned and cannot graciously take adverse criticism from outsiders. She may now not be able to find the job she has been looking for in Ontario. We suggest that Premier Drew pay her aeroplane passage to Montreal.

More Immigrants

There are three kinds of critics of the Dominion Government's immigration policy—those who say the Government is not doing enough, those who say that too many immigrants are being brought in, and those who say the policy is working slowly but well.

The first class of critics is the largest. They say that only 75,000 immigrants arrived in 1947, and that if it hadn't been for Mr. Drew and private citizens, that number would have been reduced to a trickle. Mr. Drew's scheme (which accounted for 5,068 of the total) is to be generously commended but it must be pointed out that the immigrants under the Ontario plan all come from the British Isles, except for a few central Europeans masquerading as McTavishes from Aberdeen. Thus the difficult task and responsibility of selection is comparatively simple. Mr. Drew's immigrants are already British subjects and familiar with our language and political customs. It must be pointed out, however, that Mr. Drew's immigrants are coming here "on spec", whereas every Dominion Government immigrant comes to an assured job.

The Federal Government is seeking out European immigrants of superior types. They cannot be picked up by placarding the Canadian consulate in Lisbon with "Come To Canada" signs. There are various selection "teams" at work now in continental Europe, and judging from the type of immigrant reaching this southern Ontario district, the teams are doing a thorough and good job.

In an immigration project of this scope it is wise to make haste slowly. The quality of the immigrants, not their numbers, is the first consideration. The two or three million Europeans who will come to this country during the next decade will form a considerable part of our population. They must be the kind who will develop into citizens able to vote wisely.

The Federal Government has had difficulty in finding sufficient transportation. Mr. Howe has announced that Trans-Canada Air Lines will henceforth be flying 160 D.P.'s daily. This will speed up the program, and not at public expense, for future employers and the international committee dealing with D.P.'s will foot the bills.

"Of Cabbages and Kings"

By PETER ELIOT

ALICE Payne Hackett's Fifty Years of Best sellers, published in 1945 is a very useful guide to best-sellers of past fifty year. First, detective story to reach the yearly best seller lists was Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's Hound of the Baskerville's in 1902. The first American author to reach the top of the ladder in detective fiction was Mary Roberts Rinehart with The Man In Lower Ten. It is likely that the largest selling mystery ever was Ellery Queen's Chinese Orange Mystery, reading 1,015,000 copies. Queen and Erle Stanley Gardner are the top-ranking detective writers of today. In 1945 alone, 4,567,922 copies of all Gardner's, then 36 titles, were sold. (Is it any wonder that he is supposed to be the only author whose life is insured by his publisher.)

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Canadians on the all-time best-seller lists include Gwethalyn Graham (Earth and High Heaven) 1944, Hugh MacLennan (Two Solitudes, 1945) and, of course, Stephen Leacock, whose essays and stories have been reprinted time and again, and Lloyd C. Douglas, who preached for some time in Canada, (The Robe, 1942 — Magnificent Obsession, 1929—and Green Light, 1935).

NEITHER of them, Gilbert or Sullivan, recounts Hesketh Pearson in his fascinating bigraphy "Gilbert and Sullivan" felt unduly flattered on a visit to the United States when some judge, in an after-dinner speech, hoped they would be brought before him on the charge of being drunk and disorderly, so that he might repay the pleasure Pinafore had given him, by letting them off. Nor was Gilbert altogether pleased when an American impresario had the bright idea that they might heap up a pile of dollars if only they would prepare an American version of the piece.

"Say now, Mr. Gilbert", said this gentleman, "all you've got to do is to change H.M.S. to U.S.S., pull down the British ensign, hoist the Stars and Stripes, and anchor your ship off Jersey beach. Then, in place of your First Lord of the Admiralty, introduce our navy boss. All the re-writing you'd want would be some new words to Bill Bobstay's song—Just let him remain an American instead of an Englishman. Now ain't that a cute notion, sir?"

"Well, yes", replied Gilbert thoughtfully, "perhaps your suggestion is a good one, but I see some difficulties in carrying it out. In the first place I'm afraid I'm not sufficiently versed in your vernacular to translate my original English words. The best I could do would be something like this:

He is American!
Though he himself has said it,
'Tis not much to his credit,
That he is American!
For he might have been a Dutchman,
An Irish, Scotch, or such man,
Or perhaps an Englishman!
But in spite of nanky-panky,
He remains a true-born Yankee,
A cute Americ-can.

✧ ✧ ✧

"HIS (Gilbert's) obection to the clergy was notorious. Staying in some provincial hotel, he once found himself the only layman among a number of divines who were present for a conference in the town, one of whom addressed him with quiet irony:

"I should think, Mr. Gilbert, you must feel sligatly out of place in this company?"

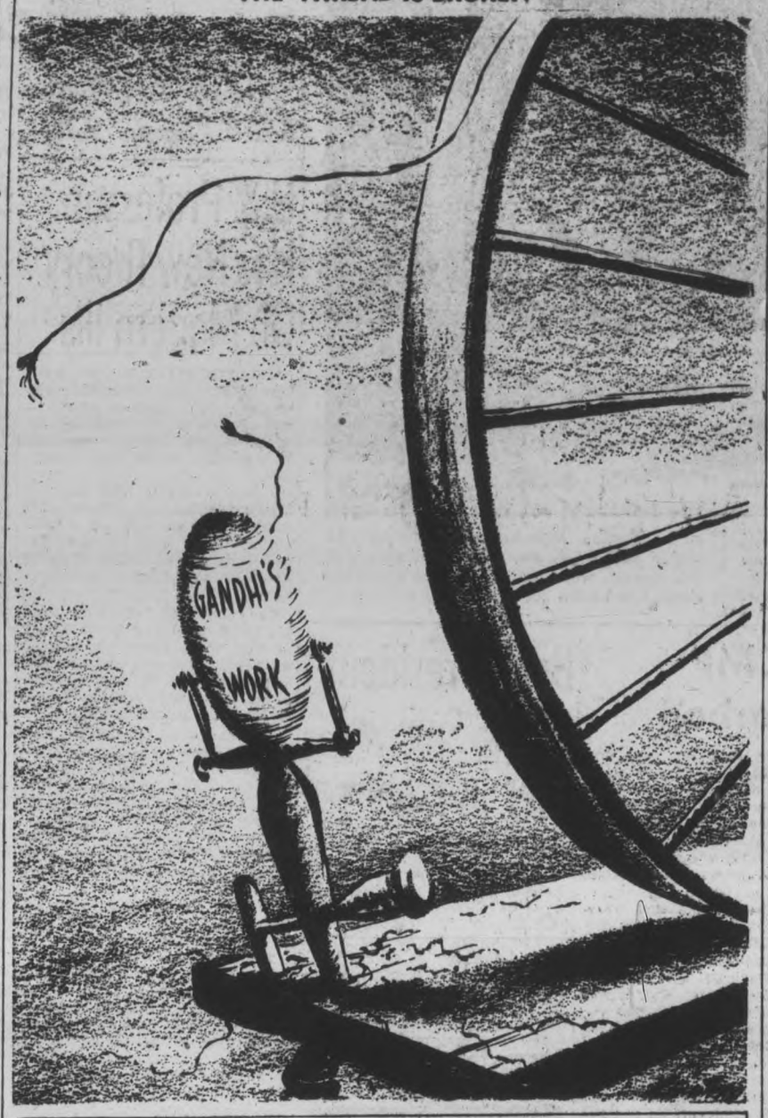
"Yes," answered Gilbert, "I feel like a lion in a den of Daniels."

"Upon being told that excessive activity was dangerous in a man of his age and that he was tempting Providence, his comment was:

'If Providence can't resist my humble temptations, now can I be expected to resist His?'

"Meeting a judge named Kekewich, who said that he liked all the Savoy operas except 'Trial By Jury, Gilbert remarked: 'He seemed to think that in holding the proceedings up to ridicule I was trenching on his prerogative.'"

Gilbert could never see eye-to-eye with people who considered that their proper place was in the centre of the stage, and when a lady who was rehearsing the part of Josephine in Pinafore pointed out that she had always occupied that position in the Italian Opera, he remarked:



"Unfortunately this is not Italian Opera, but only a low burlesque of the worst possible kind."

✧ ✧ ✧

"MRS. Andrew Lang never invited me to her London house, (recounts Mrs. Belloc Lowndes, in her recent Merry Wives of Westminster, a book of recent happenings), but one day, two years before her husband died, I met her, by chance, in the hall of the Sesame Club. Rather to my surprise she asked me to follow her into an empty room, and then as we sat down, she said abruptly, 'I am in great trouble.' Without binding me to silence, though I only wrote an account of what followed to my mother, she explained that, to her distress and amazement, Mr. Lang, as she always called him, had suddenly expressed, some time before, a strong desire that they should part with their London house, and their adored home at St. Andrews and settle in South America. He declared that awful calamities were about to befall Europe, and that almost everything for which he cared would be destroyed, especially university buildings and libraries. They were both fond of going abroad and he was especially fond of Italy. He told her that Italy would be devastated, and that a time would come when it would be impossible for them ever to go there again. He further said the little money they possessed would probably be taken from them.

I was astounded at what she told me, and I felt convinced Andrew Lang had suddenly become insane; indeed such was evidently his wife's own view. She said that as regarded everything else he was quite normal; but that these delusions so filled his mind that, when he and she were alone together, he spoke of nothing else but the frightful things that were going to happen in the world. Letters To The Editor

A MOST DEPLORABLE CASE

Sir: Yes, a most deplorable case and right here at 656 Frank Street!! Thursday afternoon in sub-zero weather a woman in poor health, together with her five children, the oldest five years and the youngest eight weeks were evicted from their home by the bailiff under a court order. A kindly neighbour woman with already a full house, but who has a heart, has taken the mother and baby for a few days and the four children have gone to the Shelter. These people have lived in this house over three years, with the rent paid regularly by the relief at the full rate per month. Today the windows of the house are boarded up and the house empty. Someone has said 'the law is an ass' at any rate it must be "an ass of law" that would permit this to happen. It is the writer's earnest hope that our various humane organizations, lodges, churches etc. will see to it that no more such evictions will be allowed to take place in the middle of winter. But it happened Thursday and may happen again unless some steps are taken to amend this 'ass of a law'.

We are told our children are our greatest asset, it is to be hoped these children will never remember their eviction. It is things like this that make bad citizens.

Can we right this? Can we find a little home for these people and get them together; the writer is willing to do anything he can for them. Sincerely,

H .G. CARLETON.

LET THE HOCKEY PLAYERS BE AMATEURS

Sir: I am writing you regarding the newly proposed arena for the hockey teams. I was unable to be at the meeting but I am interested in seeing the scheme go, though like many more contributors to the Memorial Centre I may be a little cynical of another venture to build this new rink. It will have to go to the public once more for the money. I am not exactly in favour of donating another ten dollars again as freely as I did before. I think it would be a good idea to give one season ticket with every ten dollars collected from the subscribers. After all, although we like to watch a game, it must be remembered that our boys in most sports in our city (I don't mean the young boys either) do not play for peanuts. It has to be more than a puck or a ball to interest them, so let them play strictly amateur for one year until we get the rink paid for. This may seem complicated to you sir, as I am not used to writing to newspapers so I'll put it down like this:

(1) Every $10 contributed give one season ticket; this is only for the first year.

(2) Put all sports organizations under one committee.

(3) Make all sports connected with the arena strictly amateur until the arena is paid for. Thank you,

SPORTSMAN.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Judge me, O Lord; for I have walked in mine integrity: I have trusted also in the Lord....For thy lovingkindness is before mine eyes: and I have walked in thy truth...

I will wash mine hands in innocency: so will I compass thine altar, O Lord: that I may publish with the voice of thanksgiving, and tell of all thy wondrous works.

Lord, I have loved the habitation of thy house, and the place where thine honour dwelleth. (Ps. 26: 1, 3, 6-8.)

Blessed are they that dwell in thy house: they will be still praising thee. Selah. (Ps. 84: 4.)

John to the seven churches which are in Asia: Grace be unto you, and peace, from him which is, and which was, and which is to come; and from the seven Spirits which are before his throne; and from Jesus Christ, who is the faithful witness, and the first begotten of the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth. Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen. (Rev. 1: 4-6.)

UNCONSIDERED TRIFLE

For months he had been her devoted admirer. Now at long last he had collected up sufficient courage to ask her the momentous of all questions.

"There are quite a lot of advantages in being a bachelor," he began, "but there comes a time when one longs for the companionship of another being—a being who will regard one as perfect, as an idol; whom one can treat as one's absolute property; who will be kind and faithful when times are hard; who will share one's joys and sorrows—"

To his delight he saw a sympathetic gleam in her eyes. Then she nodded in agreement.

"So you're thinking of buying a dog."

A BRITISH OPINION

Report Rush To Pay Taxes

OTTAWA, Feb. 2 — (CP). — A Revenue Department official, a twinkle in his eye, said the treasury has benefitted to the tune of more than $2,000,000 since the department started putting special investigators on the track of large-scale tax evasions a year ago. And he suggested that the ramifications of the reaction of business probably had meant a lot more money that was scored in.

The official said fines had brought in $327,000 and another $1,675,000 had been collected in "hidden" or "forgotten" back taxes, the returns usually accompanied by letters which say a mistake has just been discovered or a lowly bookkeeper had made a miscalculation.

The unknown quantity comes in the "nervous" dollars that are "frightened" out of hiding by the heavy penalties imposed for tax evasion. The officials said that "each time a large-scale prosecution with its severe penalties gets into the headlines, there is a rush of voluntary declarations at our tax offices."

The Department does not prosecute in the case of these declarations, but accepts payment of the delinquent taxes without questioning the motive. The returns and sometimes the firm's books are scrutinized, however.

TOURING GERMANY—"In the spring and summer of 1913 I toured Germany . . . and helped to celebrate the 91st birthday of my "Aunt Augusta" (Grand Duchess Mecklenberg-Strelitz) by putting on my full-dress naval uniform (right). But my German cousins easily outshone me with their plumed helmets (left).

Life And Education Of A Prince....

—By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER XIX.

My Oxford routine was interrupted in 1913 by two trips to Germany, the first in the spring, the second in the summer.

As in France, I travelled with a party of three—Major Cadogan, my German tutor, the learned Dr. Fiedler, and Finch.

The purpose of the trip was to improve my German and teach me something about those vigorous people whose blood flowed strongly in my own veins.

Though the First World War started barely a year later, I must confess that as a tourist I never sensed the approaching catastrophe.

The Germany of my student days echoed with work and song, and I judged it to be inhabited by the kindest people in all Europe.

One reason why I felt that way, of course, was that the numerous smaller German courts were filled with uncles and cousins and aunts, all of whom welcomed me.

At Strelitz I spent some weeks with the 91-year-old Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, my mother's aunt, who told me of being taken when a young girl to see George IV., who patted her head.

And in the Kingdom of Wurtemberg, now vanished into the limbo of Graustark, I stayed in an ornate palace at Stuttgart as guest of King William and Queen Charlotte, whom I called "Oukel Willy" and "Tante Charlotte."

Quite apart from the family relationship, protocol required me as Prince of Wales to pay a courtesy call upon Emperor William II.

But with singular obtuseness, the Kaiser, in inviting me to visit him on August 31, added that he expected me to stay over for the annual parade celebrating the French surrender at Sedan in 1870.

Now the French, joined with us in the Entente Cordiale, would certainly have taken a poor view of my presence at such an occasion, and a potentially awkward situation was averted only by the British ambassador's diplomatic finesse, by means of which my call upon the emperor was rendered quite devoid of political implications.

I knew him distantly, of course, from his spectacular descents upon our little island, but at the Konigliches Schloss, on Unter den Linden, in Berlin, I saw him for the first time in his own environment.

Arriving in the late afternoon, I was taken at once to the emperor's room.

He was sitting in uniform behind an extraordinarily high desk, and in greeting me, rose in a most curious manner, as if dismounting from a horse.

Upon drawing closer, I perceived to my astonishment that he had risen from a wooden block shaped like a horse's back; to this was birthed a military saddle, complete with stirrups.

Noting my startled expression, the emperor smiled, and explained condescendingly that he was so accustomed to sitting on a horse he had found a saddle more conducive to clear, concise thinking than a conventional desk chair.

The Kaiser's saddle was only the first of a series of exciting events in store for me.

I dined that night with him, the empress, and several other members of the family.

The Kaiser, in a different and more colourful uniform, led the conversation in German to test my fluency.

Satisfied that I had not been wasting my time, he relapsed into English, which he spoke beautifully, and asked all kinds of questions about my parents and his English relatives.

Dinner over, he excused himself, only to reappear almost immediately in the most dazzling uniform of all and whisked me off alone to the opera for a performance of "Aida."

We swept through the streets in a gleaming limousine; a jager in a rich green uniform, gilt hunting dagger, and cock-tailed plume hat, rode in front, while distinctive notes on the horn warned the police to hold the traffic for the emperor.

But for all the garish uniforms and his brusque manners William II. had undoubted charm of which I caught the full effect.

Next morning, when I re-entered his study to take my leave, he was again astride that incredible saddle, his face, with upturned moustache, brooding over a document.

He expressed the hope that I had learned something of the German people from my stay, adding that despite all the terrible things my country thought about them, he and they really were not so difficult to get along with.

And at that impressionable age I believed him.

What with one thing or another, my second year at Oxford slipped by in a blur of deer-stalking at Balmoral, good fellowship, shooting at Sandringham, beagling, President Warren's dissertations on the English poets—not to mention occasional admonishing notes from my father about my taking life more seriously.

Search To Continue For Raw Materials

By The Canadian Press

The frontiers of Canada's natural resources have been under steady pressure of expanding world demands for raw materials—notably oil, mine and forest products — until today it is widely believed that a break-through into new, untapped areas is inevitable and with the foreseeable future.

The unending reconnaissance on one of these frontiers—the Northwest Territories—was described last week by a small group of men—engineers, geologists and prospectors. For three years the group, financed by private interests in Toronto, has been exploring the area stretching east of Yellowknife over to Hudson Bay and from the Manitoba boundary line north to the Arctic Islands. Although primarily in search of gold the group reported indications of substantial deposits of other minerals.

Intensified activity in the Canadian forests is best exemplified in the pulp and paper industry where modernization of equipment and rationalization of processes has brought the industry new production records. Today, greater emphasis is directed toward fuller utilization of the "waste" products of that industry.

Marines Cagers Drop Two Weekend Tilts

Marines' cagers, the intermediate "A" and "B" teams, both lost in games Saturday night at the Collegiate gym. The "A" squad lost on a foul shot in the last nine seconds of play, 41-40 being the edge for Toronto Dalton Furriers in a tight tussle. The "B" team fell 63-44 to Bowmanville in their Lakeshore League fixture. They drew a big crowd of fans.

Al Clark's "A" crowd opened fast to disorganize Toronto on their breaks and led 16-3 the first 10 minutes. Toronto came back to whittle the lead to 23-22 at half-time in hard going. The second half was hard-fought with both sides battling for possession of the ball. The locals retained the lead until the final half minute of play when Furriers tied it up and then yanked out a last second verdict on a free toss.

Briggs, Kerr and Banton were the pick of the Dalton's outfit, while Bill Edger shone for Marines with nine points and good all-around play. Joe Stewart led the snipers with 13 in neat playing, and Burns and Nicholls got six each. It was good, even basketball all the way, fast and not too rugged, and the crowd of fans enjoyed it all. The teams:

Furriers: Whitcomb 2, Briggs 9, Kerr 5, Dixon 7, Brannigan 5, Banton 9, Ingram 4.

Marines "A": Wood, J. Stewart 13, Burns 6, Nicholls 6, Gillespie 2, Edger 9, Menzies, Csumrik, Mactavish 2, A. Stewart 2.

Referees, S. Mackford, R. Dyer.

Good Game

Despite their Lakeshore Loop loss, Marines "B" team turned in their best game to date against stiff opposition. Coach Hilly Yudin donned the uniform and went well defensively as he directed play. Bowmanville clicked early to run up a lead that was never headed. At the half, the count stood at 38-14. Marines came back in the second with a driving game as they dominated play and outscored the league leaders 30-25. Rundle, Clements and Mason went best for the winners, while Seabrook, Gardner, Green and Smith turned in a fine effort for Marines. And Hilly Yudin rated an orchid for his effort. The teams:

Bowmanville: Clements 14, Gilbert 3, Ferguson 2, Rundle 25, Mason 8, McIntyre 4, Brown 1, Williams, Robson 6, Reddock.

Marines "B": Hanbidge, Seabrook 8, Burrow 1, Butcher 3, Green 9, Correll, Gardiner 9, Yudin 3, Smith 11.

Referees, R. Dyer, T. Woods.

Mask To Attempt Superman Feat

Wednesday's feature wrestling bout at the Brock Arena is arousing strong interest among the mat fans. The unusual handicap affair has the big strong Masked Marvel endeavoring to beat two men, Earl McCready and Ben Sharpe on the same night. Conditions for the match have been agreed upon by the principals and will call for the Masked Marvel tackling Sharpe and McCready one after the other. Although the muscular and robust mystery-man has been extremely lucky to eke out a win in some of his bouts, it looks as if he has bitten off too big a chunk this time. Ben Sharpe whose injured knee has responded to treatment is a pretty big handful in himself and Earl McCready is one of the best of all the big matmen.

Earl McCready

Nanjo Singh the horrid Hindu will be back on Wednesday's card against a newcome here, Mario Renaldi of Italy. In the third bout Don McIntyre will meet the gigantic Wee Willie Davis of Hollywood.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Ere this month endeth, many of the diamond major leaguers—pitchers particularly—will be working out in the sunny south. Nice to chuck the odd wintry thought baseball-ward. Hopes here that we'd see pro ball at Riverside next summer faded with failure of Belleville interests to satisfy the Border Pro Loop last fall that they'd be ready. League has six clubs and doesn't want seven, but would settle for eight responsible ones. Peterborough looked set with a Toronto Maple Leafs' tie-up, guaranteeing good players, all regular expenses, plus $10,000 toward fixing up the park. We may get in another year, but not this.

* * * * * *

Two other New York State clubs have applied for entrance but so far haven't been accepted, as far as we've heard. They're Plattsburg and Oswego, but Plattsburg hasn't suitable playing facilities, so it may remain as a six-club circuit—with the door still open to Peterborough and another Ontario club. Showing the expanding interest up this way by bigger pro clubs, Watertown is hooking up with Syracuse, Kingston is a Boston Braves' farm and Geneva has a Washington interest. Ottawa is independent but has a working agreement with Chicago Cubs. Maurice Richard, by the way, may play ball for a Border League club this year.

Vets Play The Petes

But let's return to hockey. Belleville Vets play the Petes at 8.30 tonight—not Tuesday this week — in Omemee, an important OHA senior "B" fixture. Highly important to the Quinte crew as they battle their way back up the ladder, being hotter than somewhat on Friday to win at home 'gainst the classy Petes. Latter won't like that and certainly will try to protect their three-season undefeated Omemee record, so it'll be a swell struggle all the way on good ice. And it should draw a big crowd as these senior "B" jousts are chuck full of speedy and smart—and sometimes rough—action.

* * * * * *

And here's the up-to-date standing in this torrid senior "B" scramble:

	P	W	L
Legion	9	5	4
Belleville	8	3	5
Kingston	9	3	6

So you can see at a glance how it's going, as the schedule winds up next week. Top three teams make the playoffs, and they're too busy battling to do much jockeying for positions. A Quinte loss tonight would put 'em back in a tie with Kingston, who could climb right up this week. Nor can Legion afford two losses this week. Petes aren't too far out in front, either. It's a swell race.

Some Get Up There

Andy Lytle, speaking of retirement of oldtime NHL managers, remarks: "Boucher, Day, Clapper and Conacher are in the category of younger men who also pursued the hockey trail as minor executives after their playing days were over. Such men are chosen, as a rule, because they possess qualities of leadership which were evident in their playing days. Adams, Ross and Patrick long were business leaders of the hockey industry. They doubled in brass as coaches, as managers and as league governors." Yes, some players are just players but others go on to be big executive officials in time.

* * * * * *

It was tighter than two guys in one pair of pants when Dalton Furriers of Toronto edged Marines "A" cagers here Saturday 41-40 in the last few seconds of play. Fine hoop fixture and just a tossup as they pounded down the stretch. Marines "B" bunch lost a 63-44 Lakeshore Loop fixture to Bowmanville Rotary but turned in a neat effort with Coach Harry Yudin dishing up a good defensive chore. They return to Bowman Villa on Thursday, while Marines "A" gang have Toronto Moss Park here Saturday. PCI-ers won from Bowmanville's OABA junior entry here Saturday, and they have TCS at Collegiate gym on Wednesday, and Oshawa on Friday. No girls' games till Friday.

Marvel Has A Job

They've taken the Masked Marvel at his boastful word and matched him with two large opponents in the main melee at the Brock this Wednesday e'en. Ben Sharpe and Earl McCready are the opposition, and the powerful Mask will tackle one after the other, if he survives the first. That should be something to see, eh? Neither Sharpe nor McCready is a setup in any wrestling ring, both having plenty of size, Ben being youthful and Earl having a raft of mat experience. The Mask hasn't lost a bout here yet. Nanjo Singh tangles with an Italian newcomer, Mario Renaldi, in the semi-final, while the prelim has Don McIntyre and that huge Hollywoodian villain, Wee Willie Davis, in against each other. Quite a card at that.

Tweed Yanks Out 6-5 Win In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 2.—(ENS).—Two goal in the last minutes of play by Bruce Gehan, Tweed centre, stole the game and made him the hero of the night for Tweed as they shaded Lakefield Hockey Club 6-5 in a thrill-packed battle Friday night on Lakefield ice.

It was a see-saw session from the go-in, with the same Gehan both opening and closing it. Lakefiel in the third at one time had a two goal edge only to see victory fade and wane in the last three minutes of play.

For the invaders B. Gehan shone with three goals, while Eldon Jewell was outstanding for the homesters with a pair.

Tweed jumped into a quick lead in the first period with two tallies in the first two minutes by B. Gehan and C. Rivers. Chappell added one for Lakefield five minutes later and Jewell on an assist from Jopling, evened the score at the 14-minute mark, the period battling out to a 2-all tie.

The final session saw Lakefield hot with Hopkins scoring on an assist by Jopling at the four-minute mark. Jewell added another aided by Chappell two minutes later to put them two up. Long for Tweed cut it one at 7.24 only to have Henry lace in another for the Staves men three minutes after, Fawcett being credited with an assist. Home town fans, wild with excitement, figured the game was in the bag as Tweed, two down, fought vainly for seven minutes without scoring, but at the 17 minute mark, Meraw broke through alone and at the 18 minute mark Gehan evened it up. Then riding his luck with 10 seconds to go, he repeated, punching in the winner.

Lakefield—Goal, Wasson; defence, J. Jopling, C. Birch; centre, G. Chappell; wings, E. Jewell, A. Stuart; alternates, F. Fawcette, G. Henry, W. Morin, H. Campbell, G. Hopkins.

Tweed—Goal, C. Courneya; defence, N. Gehan, H. Leal; centre, G. Gehan; wings, D. Meraw, C. Rivers; alternates, V. Prout, H. Long, A. Lenander, C. Cotton, D. Graham.

PCVS Hoopsters Gain Win By 44-24 Count

The senior "A" and junior "A" PCVS boys' basketball teams played as one team to defeat the Bowmanville junior OABA team in an exhibition game Saturday evening 44-24 before the Outboard Marine games. This game and the one to be played with TCS at the Collegiate gym on Wednesday afternoon of this week should serve as excellent preps for the important games with the Oshawa senior "A" and junior "A" teams Friday night, also at the PCVS gym.

Bowmanville broke in front and led 8-7 at the quarter on baskets by Dadson twice and Buckspan plus Dadson's two foul shots, as against single hoops by McKee, Griffin and Connell, plus a foul by the latter. However the PCVS defense tightened to allow the home team to go ahead before half time 15-10. McKee, Griffin and Northcott collected hoops while Dinsdale and Connell again scored fouls. Foul shots by Dadson and McGee were the Bowmanville second quarter scores.

Increase Lead

The home team lead was further increased during the third quarter as the visitors were outscored 10-5. McKee had two more hoops, Richardson and Welsh one each, besides foul shots by Welsh and Dinsdale. Dadson had three points and Malson two for Bowmanville during this quarter.

The teams finally found the scoring range during the last quarter as PCVS counted 18 points and Bowmanville nine. Al Lee featured with two field goals and four successful fouls in a possible, while Don Griffin had two scores from the floor and one foul shot.

The PCVS team tried 60 shots from the floor during the game counting 16 of them. Bowmanville were restricted to 38 shots of which eight went through the strings. In free throws PCVS made 12 out of 19, while their visitors made eight out of 15.

The teams:

Bud Poile of Chicago continued his hot pace to garner three points and move into a third place tie with Toronto's Max Bentley for third spot.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Fiorello La Guardia, one-time mayor of New York, attempted in Congress to put a 90-per-cent tax on sale of professional baseball players bought for more than $5,000. That was 23 years ago today. The "Little Flower" said pro ball was the only field where individuals failed to profit through improved ability and transfer of their services, but his bill didn't get far.

RCAF Flyers Blank Britain

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 2.—(CP).—The RCAF Flyers, Dominion representatives, yesterday defeated Britain 3-0 to remain undefeated and moved into a third-place tie with the United States team, two points behind Czechoslovakia and Switzerland. The Canadians have a game in hand, having drawn a second-round bye.

Meanwhile, the bickering continued as to whether hockey should or should not be recognized as an Olympic event.

George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said in an interview that the country that wins the hockey tournament probably will be "recognized as the world Olympic champions despite what the International Olympic committee says."

On other fronts, meanwhile, Reidar Liaklev of Norway—the Scandinavian countries have dominated most events to date—won the 5,000-metre speed-skating championship to move his country into unofficial second place behind Sweden with 30½ points. Sweden had 32 and third-place Finland 21. Canada is 10th with one quarter of a point.

In the event, Craig Mackay of Saskatoon placed 14th, best showing by a North American, in 8:47.2.

Trojan Hockey

Saturday ended the Bantam schedule at Turner Park and a small turnout of players was on hand. Detroit had the best as all their players were on deck and Rangers were hard hit for players, having to use Ernie Flint from the Pee-Wee League in goal, who didn't have a chance against the hard drives of Allen, Collins and Floyd up front for Detroit, while Burfield and LaRoche were a stone wall defence.

Church, Deck, D. Gramham, Dauncey and O'Dette were Rangers team, who fought a losing battle all the way. Detroit had no trouble to score at will, the score being 14 to 4.

It was a different story with Canadiens and Leafs battling to a 2-all draw. Some fine passing plays were dished up in this game as Panter in Leafs' goal had some good saves and Evans at the other and also made some fine ones.

Armstrong, Lockie, Hewie and Gar. White were Canadiens' best players. Leafs' stars were Brioux, D. Gramham, Williams and Kent. Armstrong was banished from the game for abusive language. Church and Henderson were also chased for the remainder of the game for throwing punches.

V. Brown Rink Winners Of Club Title

By HERB MARTIN

On Friday night V. Brown's rink won the club championship, and with it the Harry T. Foote memorial trophy. In the semi-finals his rink met and defeated Dr. R. Clark's rink and then went on to the finals to defeat the C. Lawrence rink.

Although we didn't see these two games many who did see them told us that the Brown rink was terrific, played real curling and deserved the honor. Congratulations are due to all. The personnel of the rink is: J. Dinsdale, H. Outram, B. Harrison, V. Brown, skip.

Good 'Spiel

The local bonspiel held all day Saturday went over big. Each rink played three 10-end games and the new system of scoring seemed to make a hit. We understand that the committee intends to put on another one of these spiels soon. The winners:

First—W. Brown, D. Clarke, A. Clark, G. Clark, skip.

Second — H. Rutherford, W. Pakenham, F. Hickey, O. Price, skip.

Third—C. Ferguson, A. Ingram, J. Dutton, F. Stenson, skip.

Fourth—A. Jones, G. Soulby, R. Bastable, K. Hamley, skip.

Several of our lady curlers are leaving Wednesday noon for their annual trip to the Seignory Club, Quebec. Included in the party are: Mrs. W. Thomas, Mrs. J. Watts, Mrs. V. Selkirk, Mrs. G. Wood, Mrs H. Bletcher, Mrs. A. Sands, Mrs. J. Elliott, Mrs. C. Westbrook, Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. M. Doll, Mrs. F. Hall and Miss H. Munro.

Tonight we commence the second schedule. Games at 7.00 p.m. and 9.00 p.m.

OMHA Playdowns

Three PMHA teams go into OMHA playdowns tonight in Lindsay. Due to such a big entry list this year in provincial playdowns, the OMHA has ordered early first rounds, before most minor leagues have completed schedules. The PMHA hasn't finished yet, but President Dick Ouimet had to name teams, so he picked the leading local teams. They are Trojan-Legion juveniles, Rotary midgets and Lions bantams, and their games tonight are: Bantams at 7.00, midgets at 8.15, and juveniles at 9.15. Return games of the points-to-count series will be at the same hours Wednesday in Lakefield. Local schedules will be completed later.

Detroit Holds NHL Lead After Split With The Leafs

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

While Detroit Red Wings, Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers remained 1-2-3 in the National Hockey Leagueu today, the Montreal Canadiens had jumped into a tie with Boston Bruins for fourth place.

The Canadiens, showing stronger form in the last few games than they had from the start of the season, were back in the thick of contention for a play-off spot.

All six teams played two games each over the week-end. Toronto Maple Leafs beat Detroit 3-2 Saturday night to tie the Wings for the lead, but the Wings came back with a 3-0 shutout over the Leafs at Detroit Sunday to regain their two-point edge.

New York Rangers beat Montreal 4-2 Saturday and then were held to a 2-2 tie by the Chicago Black Hawks Sunday night at New York. The Rangers in third place are five full games back of Toronto.

Meanwhile Chicago walloped the Bruins 7-4 at Boston Saturday night, while Canadiens whitewashed the Bruins 3-0 at Boston last night.

The Leafs-Wings struggle at Toronto Saturday was notable in that no penalties were given against Toronto in the entire session. Coach Clarence Day said he thought this is the first time such a thing has happened. Only three penalties were given the Wings.

Bill Ezinicki scored for Toronto in the first 20 seconds but Ted Lindsay got that one back. Captain Syd Abel put Detroit ahead but Vic Lynn tied it up again in the second period. It was Howie Meeker who fired the winner after 12 minutes of the last period, getting the puck from Lynn and Ted Kennedy after a scramble.

Bruising Battle

A record for Detroit hockey crowds, 15,578 fans, saw the leaders clash at the Olympia Sunday. It was a bruising struggle in which 17 penalties were called, nine against the Leafs. Detroit recorded their fifth shut-out of the season but both goalies kicked out the same number of shots—19.

Three others however went through Turk Broda in the Toronto nets as the Wings attacked heavily for their victory. Ted Lindsay, Jim Conacher and Gordon Howe were the goal-scorers, one in each period, and the Leafs complained bitterly about the last one. Vic Lynn in fact earned a 10-minute misconduct for protesting too vigorously.

Veteran Elmer Lach scored all three goals as the Canadiens shut out Boston last night. It was the fourth shut-out of the season for goalie Bill Durnan.

The Bruins, who saw Canadiens climb into a tie with them, also lost centre Milt Schmidt for perhaps the balance of the season. Schmidt was slashed by Murphy Chamberlain and he limped past the penalty box where Chamberlain had arrived with a penalty. Schmidt threw a hard punch at the Montreal right winger. All the players rushed to the fight and when it was straightened out Schmidt was given a 10-minute misconduct, but he was also helped off the ice, perhaps for the last time this season.

Sets New Record

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(CP).—If Gilbert Dodds, the Boston Athletic Association's high-geared miler, continues the record-shattering pace, the United States may have a chance against the Swedes in the Olympic 1,500 metres this year after all. Legion Demands Floor Set For Pensions

OTTAWA, Feb. 2 — (CP). — Parliament is going to hear an echo of the shooting of a pensions examiner of the Department of Veterans Affairs by a middle-aged veteran whose pension had been reduced.

The Canadian Legion is going to make use of the incident at DVA Headquarters in Ottawa in its forthcoming submission to the Veterans Committee of the Commons. It is expected to argue that a floor should be placed under pensions for disabled veterans of the First World War who have reached a certain age. After that time, the Legion feels, it is unjust to cut the aid given such men.

The shooting occurred late last year when the veteran walked into the office of the doctor-examiner whose medical findings had resulted in the pension reduction. After shooting the doctor, he took his own life.

Judgments.

The Supreme Court of Canada opens its February term Tuesday and will be faced with one of the heaviest agendas in years. Some 20 cases are on the roll and they are expected to carry the court sittings well into April.

Most of the cases centre on the contestation of wills and an appeals from sentences for criminal offences. No constittutional cases have yet been inscribed.

Oil Priority List

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 — (AP). — A voluntary priority list system of fuel oil deliveries began here yesterday and patrolmen were assigned by Mayor William O'Dwyer to ride all oil trucks to see that the program was carried out. Under the plan, agreed to by the fuel oil companies at the Mayor's request, shipments were halted to all non-essential users.

Mrs. Keeshig, suffering a hemorrhage, was taken to hospital in Owen Sound.

Congregation Honors J. F. Elliott

NORWOOD, Feb. 2—(ENS)—The annual meeting of the Norwood United Church was held on Wednesday. Reports of the most encouraging nature were presented by all departments.

With a resident membership of 329, the total givings for all purposes amounted to $8,377. Of this amount $2,048 was for missions and the general enterprises of the United Church of Canada, $831 of it being for Women's Missionary Society work, $670 also went to other worthy outside causes.

It was noted with deep regret that since the last annual meeting 18 members and adherents of the congregation had died. A brief memorial service was observed.

The following were elected stewards: A. Weir, J. H. Caskey, Alfred McMillan, Maitland Kirk, W. G. Barrie, Rork Ferguson, Arnold Stevenson, Franklin Webster, H. W. Hudson, A. E. Battered Ship Reaches Port

HALIFAX, Feb. 2 — (CP). — The 7,176-ton United States Liberty ship Enoch Train limped into Halifax yesterday showing scars of a deadly struggle with the sea. "Lucky to be alive" were the words of three injured crew members. The proof was their ship. Laden with iron ore from Narvik, the Enoch Train had been mauled by heavy weather since leaving Antwerp Christmas Day. Injured when seas crashed over her starboard bow during the height of the storm were second mate William Duggan, Windsor, N.H., who suffered a broken nose and body bruises, third mate August Otten, Dearborn, Mich., broken left leg, and seaman Robert Blake, St. Catharines, several broken ribs.

The Enoch Train, out of Portland, Me., left Narvik Jan. 10 and struck bad weather on her first day at sea. It was Sunday night, Jan. 18, when the crew members were injured.

At one point the Gainsville Victory and William Sims were asked to stand by to take off the injured but the weather failed to moderate to permit a transfer.

Blake received his injury when he was slammed against the railing of the ship as he was about to take his turn at the wheel.

Girl Guides Entertain Seniors At Party

MILLBROOK, Feb. 2—(ENS)—The junior patrol of the Millbrook Girl Guides Company entertained the seniors at a jolly house party on Thursday evening, at the home of the Guide leader, Mrs. Guy Mackay. The event was a happy surprise for the seniors and the young patrol members cleverly presented a play, "Our Debt to China". Those taking part were: Margaret McKay, Luella Kellett, Arlene McPherson, Lena-Marie Lowery and June Blair.

A sing-song was enjoyed, Nancy Richards contributed two solo numbers, Francis Dawson and Marlene Richards following with duets. Mrs. MacKay was assisted by Ruth Richards in serving the guests. Mrs. James A. Thompson, BA, principal of the Continuation School, was among the guests for part of the evening.

The junior patrol has only recently been organized. Margaret MacKay is the leader.

ANGOLA, N.Y., Feb. 2 — (AP). — Three fishermen were rescued by helicopter from a Lake Erie ice flo before daylight yesterday after 21 hours on the open lake in temperatures estimated down to 15 below zero. The men, who lighted newspaper flares to attract attention, were William Stevenson, 71, Miles Reynolds, 35, and George Kellner, 39. They were trapped about noon Saturday.

Bright Colors Predominate In Valentines

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—(CP). — Satins will replace laces as datebait when Joe goes a'coutring Corabelle with a bright Valentine card this month.

Manufacturers say there's a shortage of satin but no scarcity of sentiment—more cards are ordered this year than ever before, with preference for shiny stain over-ruling the lace-bedecked card of former years.

And the affection which used to be expressed in pastels has flared up in bright reds, greens and blues. Why? Valentines and women's styles are unpredictable, say manufacturers.

But if the outward form of cards are changing slightly, what they says is just the same as other years: "Roses are red and violets . . ." It's still the old hearts and flowers routine which has kept cupid busy for years.

"The world may go up in an atomic explosion tomorrow but today we're working on the theory that 'all the world loves a lover.'" Commented another manufacturer, "and we do alright around Feb. 14."

Sentimental cards outsell comic valentines but it's a close race. In time the humorous cards might win out because men are afraid of expressing real affection and would rather not be the target of a girl's sense of humor.

There's be fewer calendar-size valentines around this year because most of them are made in the United States, and the government placed valentines on the list of unessentials barred from import.

"Accidental Death"

BRITANNIA, B.C., Feb. 2 — (CP): — A verdict of "accidental death" was returned Saturday night by a coroner's jury investigating the death of three miners here Friday when a rock slide entombed them in a stope. The jury added a rider recommending that in future only experienced miners be allowed to work in operations of the kind where Julian Krill, 43, Burnaby, B.C., Willian Natrasowany, 28, Fort River, Man., and Irwin G. A. Boucher, 32, Buffalo, N.Y., were trapped.

SEARCH MAGAZINE OFFICE — Four RCMP officers, backed by an Alberta search warrant, went through desks and files at the offices of New Liberty magazine in Toronto Saturday in a hunt for the original of "Babies for Export" and originals of three telegrams sent to magazine distributors in Alberta. The police took the manuscript and a carbon copy, but could not find the telegrams. Looking on during the search is Managing Editor Wallace Reyburn.

Fly Indian Woman Out To Hospital

WIARTON, Feb. 2 — (CP). — Mrs. Catherine Keeshig, resident of the Indian Reserve at Lake Croker, near Owen Sound, was flown to Wiarton on Saturday, and transferred to hospital in Owen Sound for treatment of illness. The woman's condition was reported satisfactory, but nature of the illness was not known.

Dr. F. M. Williamson chartered a private ski-equipped plane piloted by Nick Selden of the local Flying Club to bring the woman out of the snow-bound Reserve area. The doctor had made a previous trip a week ago to attend the sick woman, but was unable to reach there by ground routes on Saturday.

Few Unemployed Factory Jobs For Girls Scarce

Peterborough has one of the lowest unemployment figures in the province. This is reported from the Peterborough Branch of the National Employment Office, Barrie Building and is quoted as being 18 unemployed per thousand.

The unemployment in the city at the present time is not out of proportion to the figures shown in previous years at this season. Heavy falls of snow and intense cold have been largely responsible for the unemployment in the past few weeks, as the weather has held up many construction projecs.

The National Employment Office report that in the main, the unemployed in Peterborough consist of people on superannuation and others suffering from some physical disability. There are unfortunately the usual percentage of shiftless workers who are more or less unemployable for any length of time because they are not able to keep a job.

There are very few skilled men looking for work, in nearly every case the unemployed are of the unskilled type of employee. In respect to the female unemployed in the city, there are far more applicants for factory work than there are vacancies. There are many vacancies for stenographers and office positions but few applicants on the unemployment list capable of accepting such positions.

Point-getters for Peterborough were: Juniors—Gord Buck, two firsts, two seconds, and one winning relay; Bob Howe, two seconds and one winning relay; Louis McClennan, one second, one third and one winning relay; Hugh Outram, one first, and one winning relay. Seniors—Frank Wright, one second and one third; Ted Payne, one third; Jack Forbes, three seconds.

TWO CARS DAMAGED

Heavy damage was caused the front of two cars which collided at the corner of Charlotte and Rubidge streets about nine o'clock Saturday morning. The car of W. R. Jones, 561 Paterson street, had a fender smashed and hubcap caved in, while that of Edward Crandell, 373 Queen street received a damaged headlight, grille, radiator and hood. Crandell, charged Saturday morning with careless driving, was adjourned until Feb. 5.

MORE RECORD FIGURES

January custom and excise receipts totalled $463,179.04—record breaking figure for any month during the past six years. Comparable months were, Jan. 1947, $357,772.50; and Jan. 1946, $219,-160.13.

HORSE SHIES, CAR DAMAGED

Slight damage was caused to the car of Hugh C. Cruikshank, 540 Aylmer street, when a horse-drawn rig of Kenneth Tully, R.R. 3, Peterborough, backed into it Friday afternoon. The horse had been frightened by traffic sounds.

J. A. McKONE HONORED

J. A. McKone, president Peterborough Business College received a pen and pencil set from students and staff on Friday in honor of his 40th year as head of that school. During that time it is estimated some 4,000 students have come under his instruction.

MILD SPELL ARRIVES

The mild spell promised over the week-end arrived late Sunday morning. Its duration, however, promises to be short. By 6.30 a.m. it was 21 below zero in Peterborough, but it began to moderate by about 9 a.m. Lowest Sunday night was three below, and it was 15 above by 9 a.m. Monday.

BUS AND CAR COLLIDE

Damage resulted to a city bus and a car when they collided at the corner of Water and Hilliard streets. The car was that of Guy C. Rudd, 275 John street, and had a damaged grille, radiator, bumper and fender. The motor door and grille of the bus, driven by Edward Dunford, 533 Armour Rd., was also damaged.

SMALL MARKET AGAIN

Again this past Saturday there was a small market both inside and out. The intense cold prevented many stall-holders from attending who otherwise would have been selling apples and potatoes. Quarters of beef and sides of pork were the only commodities in demand outside. In the market hall, poultry and eggs were selling moderately well.

EARLY MORNING COLLISION

An accident occurred at 1.45 Sunday morning at Reid street and Park Hill road when the cars of Jack Hudson, Lakefield and Frank Thompson, 581 Douglas street, met in collision. Fender, radiator, grill and frame damages resulted to both cars. PC C. J. McGillen investigated.

FUEL BILLS MOUNT

Thrifty householders welcomed the milder weather that arrived over the week-end not only because it made outdoor activity more congenial but also because it cut down on the mounting fuel bill. The long January cold snap has made heavy demands on the fuel supply; and many feel that if it continues extra supplies will have to be purchased.... As bad news comes the weatherman's report that another cold wave is moving down from the Arctic.

OPEN FOUR LAKES

Hon. Harold R. Scott, Ontario Lands and Forests Minister, announced at Kingston Saturday that four of six Frontenac county lakes that had been closed to winter fishing Jan. 1 are re-opened. The original action followed complaints that fishermen, by using trip lines and other devices, were taking excessive catches. Canoe and Birch lakes will remain closed. Those re-opened are Buck, Desert, Devil and Clear lakes.

Housewives Groan, On Groundhog Day As They View Dwindling Coal In Bins

If the groundhog braved the austerity progfram long enough to-day to emerge from his snug home to go through this silly annual routine of looking for his shadow, he certainly saw it. For the first day of February dawned a bit chilly, but, intent on fulfilling its promise (or threat) of another six weeks of winter, the sun beamed down cheerfully on this land of 17-cent milk, 73-cent butter, and 80-cent bacon.

Superstitious housewives, thinking of the cost of fuel, glared into shiny-bright store windows and saw their own shadows. By a natural deduction it is presumed Mr. Groundhog also viewed him. Maybe the darn thing should have stayed in bed. With coal piles shrinking at an alarming rate, most people will agree with that suggestion.

Bears and raccons are other animals that could be used as a yardstick today for gauging the length of winter. It was hoped that the bear at the Filtration Zoo would be available for a picture this morning but officials say that he is well denned up in his bank tunnel, has been for several week and it would be very unwise to waken him and ask his opinion.

Groundhog Day is the local name of the Christian festival Candlemas which commemorates the Purification of the Virgin Mary. It was first observed at Jerusalem as the 40th day after the Epiphany, the ancient Christmas. The name dates from the 11th century when the ceremony of blessing candles and carrying them in procession was instituted.

48 Recruits Enlisted With 50th HAA Regiment

Recruiting figures for January reached a new high in the 50th HAA Regiment of the Prince of Wales Rangers, RCA, Captain P. W. Sargeant reports. January saw an enlistment of 12 new recruits. Since recruiting commenced in September last, there has been a steady increase each month and the number of recruits on the strength to date is 48.

One family has three brothers in the regiment, Ronald E. Rose, 423 Driscoll Terrace; Vernon C. Rose, 438 Wolseley Street, who has five and a half years' active service overseas with the H and PE Regiment to his credit, as bombadier, and his brother Alfred C. Rose, 423 Driscoll Terrace, who also served overseas, and saw three years' active service as gunner.

Captain Sargeant reports that 50 per cent. of the recruits are men who have seen service in World War Two. The standard of new men who have never been in the service before is very high, he reports, and the men are very keen on attending the bi-weekly parades and drills.

Commencing Tuesday night the newly formed Gunners' Mess will remain open as a parade feature after the evening's drill. This is in order that other ranks may be entertained by the gunners.

A special NCO's course will commence Thursday night at the Armouries. Twelve gunners have been chosen to attend this course and the successful entrants will be given promotion. This is a new departure in military procedure and hitherto it has been a long process for gunners to receive promotion.

During January the 50th HAA Regiment received three of the latest type gun tractors. These are the most modernly equipped 12-ton six-wheel Mack trucks. Wireless vehicles are expected from headquarters shortly.

A special recruiting campaign to strengthen the reserve forces will soon be launched.

200 Delegates At Convention

NIAGARA FALLS, Feb. 2.—(CP).—More than 200 hunting and angling enthusiasts from various parts of Ontario converged in this border city today at sessions of the 20th annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters got underway. The convention will close tomorrow.

One of the major items on today's agenda will be discussion pertaining to the amalgamation of angling and hunting clubs in Northern and Southern Ontario into one federation.

Hon. H. R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, will be the guest speaker at the main banquet this evening.

The delegates were welcomed to Niagara Falls at the opening session this morning by Mayor W. L. Houck.

Consider Bids On Market Block

Ald. Max Swanston, chairman of the finance committee of the council, said today in reference to tenders for the purchase of market block property owned by the city: "We don't have to sell, and that means we don't want to take any price that is offered."

The bids will be submitted to the finance committee following tonight's council meeting.

"The council obtained by a vote of the ratepayers their approval of the sale of the property which they own in the George, Charlotte, Water and Simcoe streets block," Ald Swanston said, "and they naturally expect that the council will make the best possible deal for them, even to the extent of not accepting any bid at all if we think the city is not getting full value."

City council's hands are tied anyway by the special legislation making sales of any property owned by the city referable to the City Trust Commission. Council is asking the Ontario Legislature to revoke that Trust authority, and thereby leave property administration a responsibility of the council. Ratepayers no doubt remember that one of the reasons for the proposed sale of all or part of the market block was need of funds for the purchase of property for the site of the new city hall in the block bounded by George, Murray, Water and McDonnel streets. It was also expected, from some of the property prices in George St. transfers last year, that there might be money available to assist in further financing the Memorial Community Centre.

Patrol Leaders Meet

A program of instruction and introduction will be held for the patrol leaders in the Peterborough Boy Scout troops at 7.30 tonight in the Scout Hall at Exhibition Park. Field Commissioner Art Jackson, Toronto, will be in charge, assisted by four PL's of the city: Douglas Cooke, 1st troop; Calvin Johnson, 5th troop; Walter Ryan, 6th troop; George Fanjoy, 16th troop.

CAR PLOWS THROUGH SNOWBACK

Damage estimated at $65 was done to the car of J. C. Donnelly, 421 Stewart St. when it was in collision with the car of Rev. V. J. Gillogly, Ennismore, about 6.00 p.m. Sunday. Report of PC S. Keliele stated that in the impact of the collision, the Donnelly car plowed through a snowbank four feet high. Damage to the other car is estimated at $40.

To Consolidate 2 Plants In South End

Canadian Ventilating Shades Limited are thinking these days of transferring their Reid St. plant, in the former Wm. Hamilton Co. building, to their south end property at Park St. and Braidwood Ave., site of their planing mill which was levelled by fire New Year's Eve.

"It would make a great deal of difference in our planning if we could dispose of our present factory," Thomas Taylor, general manager, told the Examiner today, confirming reports of tentative action looking toward consolidation of the two former units of the company in one place.

The company has made temporary arrangement for the supply of processed wood, which they had secured for themselves by the purchase of the Scott Lumber Company's mill at Braidwood Ave. The plant of Charles Wood, across the Otonabee river, southeast of the city, has been obtained on a rental basis and some special machines are being set up there. Kiln drying accommodation is supplied by Peterborough Canoe Co. and certain other relief assistance is provided from other sources.

Bought 5 Acres

Immediate requirements of Ventilating Shades are being taken care of in the emergency occasioned by the loss of their mill. Meanwhile they have bought from Hon. H. R. Scott five or six acres immediately adjoining their south end property. The company has been also in communication with several industries which have expressed interest in the possibility of locating in Peterborough. They are clearing off the charred remnants of the mill, and otherwise getting ready for eventually re-occupation of the Park St. south property. Action in that direction is likely to be delayed in part by the problem of disposing of their present Reid St. factory. There has already been some correspondence in that regard, but no definite development toward sale or rental has yet taken place.

Planning for the concentration of this Peterborough industry on one site has been under way hardly a month, but the project is already fairly well defined, and residents of the new south ward of the city may look forward to another industry setting up their neighborhood.

Car Clips Bus Driver Charged

William D. Tuckington, 9 Wallace street, was remanded until Feb. 9 on $200 bail when he was charged with drunk driving in court this morning.

The charge resulted from an accident Saturday afternoon between a city bus and Tuckington's car. Cecil Howson, R.R. 7, Peterborough, was the bus driver. The accident took place at the corner of Charlotte and Reid streets.

The bus, according to report of PC M. D. Traynor, was going east on Charlotte street when Tuckington attempted to pass while there was oncoming traffic from the west. Veering to avoid collision, his front bump caught the rear of the bus, damaging it. There was no damage to the car.

Skiers Practise At Nassau Jump

Once again good skiing weather was reported over the week-end, and the surfaces at both Bethany and Kemp's Hill were described as well packed and particularly fast—like "greased lightning."

Few were on hand at Kemp's Saturday afternoon but more than 200 turned up on Sunday when the weather was a little milder.

Attendance at Bethany was also very small on Saturday, but this was partially due to the fact that the road was blocked. Keen types were not slowed down by this little handicap however and skied in. On Sunday afternoon more than 200 were reported at Bethany and excellent skiing was reported on all slopes. A little loose snow on top of the hard surface improved the runs.

Practice jumping went ahead on both Saturday and Sunday at Nassau. The majority of those present were training for the ski meet next Saturday, Feb. 7. A cross country will be held in the morning and jumping in the afternoon.

Rambling Reporter

AND WITHOUT HORNS, EITHER!

What appeared to be a new form of symbolism occurred in the pulpit during Sunday night service at St. Paul's church. The Rev. C. G. Boyd was addressing his congregation on the significance of the words, "Thy Kingdom Come." As is usual during sermons, strong overhead lights were turned off thus illuminating the speaker and the pulpit in the otherwise dimly lit church. Many times he returned to the theme of the sin inherent in man; and then with measured solemnity, he said: "The devil appears in many forms." As he finished uttering these theological words of warning he was forced to duck as a bat suddenly flew within 10 inches of his head and passed on into the darkened interior of building. By the unfortunate timing of its appearance the creature took on a form of black malignity to the startled watchers. Shades of Martin Luther and the ink-spot.

New City Hall Switchboard In Operation

With two notable exceptions, municipal telephone connections are now made through the switchboard that was completed in its installation in the city hall Saturday and was in operation today.

Fire alarms by telephone will continue to be dialed over No. 5711, and the police department retains its separate line, No. 3535. Both these numbers are generally known, and this occasion of other changes provides a new opportunity of stressing them.

The new telephone directory is expected to be in delivery today. It will combine the municipal departments under No. 20406 for the daily working period from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., except Saturdays—9 a.m. to 12 a.m. It should also be understood that the Utilities Commission is not included in the municipal telephone exchange.

Calls prior to 9 a.m. and after 5 p.m. to any of the departments, such as board of works, parks, garbage collection, should be made by dialling No. 20407. Business calls—not fire alarms—to the fire department should be made through No. 20408.

These are some of the main changes in telephone communications between the public and the municipal departments and services. The general number is 20406. The switchboard was one of the improvements advocated by John E. Sullivan as alderman last year. One of its purposes is to assure to citizens a complete service in matters of enquiry, complaint and so on. The board operator will list the subjects of enquiry and will follow them through respective departments until the desired information is obtained.

Passenger Cut

Extensive damage to two cars resulted from a collision at the corner of Donegal and Wolsley streets Saturday afternoon. A passenger in the car of Harold Berry, 11 Moir St., was Richard Collins, 57 River Rd., received cuts on the lip when his face hit the windshield. The other car involved was that of Clifford Booth, 767 Donegal St. Damage to the Booth car was the radiator, fender, frame, spring, pump and motor mount. They Berry car received a damaged wheel, running board, doors, body, fender. PC H. Mesley investigated.

Railway Coach Hit By Truck Moved Six Feet

A hit-and-run accident which caused damage to a parked railway coach and a truck was traced shortly after its occurrence, about Sunday noon Delbert Perritt, truck driver of 689 Gilchrist street, told PC V. J. O'Donoghue, who followed up the investigation, that he had driven the truck but was not aware that a report had to be made to police.

The accident, which was reported by officials at the CNR station, occurred when Perritt's truck crashed into a parked combination coach on the tracks east of the CNR depot. The collision bent safety appliances on the coach, smashed door moulding of the baggage compartment and scraped the side of the coach. The truck, continuing on, also struck a parked coal car on the tracks, but caused no damage to it.

The combination coach was driven forward five or six feet by the force of the truck's impact.

Later in the afternoon, the station reported again to the police the truck had returned to pick up some side iron which had been knocked off by the collision. Tracing the truck license, the truck owner advised police that Perritt was driver.

The truck, found with Perritt, had a badly damaged fender and side iron ripped off.

C. Lacheur 45 Years With Post Office

Started As Clerk In 1903—Postmaster Since 1924

For 45 years, Charles Lacheur, postmaster of the Peterborough Post Office, has been connected with that branch of the civil service, during which period he has worked in the city post office. Beginning in 1903 as a junior clerk, Mr. Lacheur has seen the service grow from an operation involving a postmaster, his deputy and five clerks to its present bustling industry with a staff of 60 on city work and 11 rural rountes.

There are now 25 letter carrier routes in the city. In 1903, there were no deliveries, all business being handled by about 2,000 letter boxes in the post office or "through the wickets."

The system of mail delivery was inaugurated in 1907.

A gauge of the increase of importance of the service of the post office may be seen in contrasting figures of that first year for Mr. Lacheur. Total revenue for that year was about $30,000. In 1947, that figure had reached $234,-952.25 —nearly 800 per cent in 45 years.

When Mr. Lacheur first entered the familiar red brick building on the north-west corner of Hunter and Water streets, all mail was stamped by hand. Clerks reported at six o'clock in the morning and stayed until the work was finished— often seven and eight o'clock at night.

Today, the staff works on an eight-hour day, 44-hour week.

And today, all date-stamping of normal letter correspondence is about 25,000 pieces, incoming and outgoing, per day. Mr. Lacheur estimates that during his service in the building more than a quarter of a billion pieces of mail have passed through the doors.

"Peterborough, as a growing city, deserves a postal service which can grow with it," said Mr. Lacheur, "and we are doing our best to see that the system keeps pace with the city's growth."

He recalls that when he entered the Peterborough office, the postmaster was the late Col. H. C. Rogers.

The postmaster general at that time was the first Sir William Mulock. Since then, Mr. Lacheur has served under 15 department heads.

There are now six sub-offices in the city, the last one opened at Park and Albert in 1936.

Mr. Lacheur was born in Peterborough. In the full 45 years his work has given him an opportunity to observe first hand the development of the city and the growth of business activities by a check on the volume of mail handled.

"Since 1903, the volume has increased at least ten times," he says.

He has been postmaster since September, 1924.

Helen Currie Presents Fantasy

Mr. and Mrs. V. R. Currie and son Kenneth, Clonsilla Ave. were in Kingston Saturday where they were joined by their daughter, Miss Margaret Currie of Ottawa. All attended the Queen's University Aquacade, written and directed by their daughter, Miss Helen Currie, who was also one of the swimming actors. "The Fantasy of Alladin" was presented by Oriental-costumed swimmers with harem-dancers and tumblers performing at the edge of the pool, all paying homage to the Sultan. Lighting for the scene came from under-water spotlights. About 1,400 persons witnessed the first showing and sell-outs are reported for this week. It is Miss Currie's first effort in this type of work.

Beasley-Bailey Nuptials Held

On Saturday afternoon St. James' United Church was the setting for the wedding of Wanda Marie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bailey, to Maurice Wilson Beasley, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Beasley of Milford Bay. Rev. F. W. Craik officiated at the ceremony. During the signing of the register, Miss Ruth Boorman sang "Because". Mr. E. C. Dolman was at the organ.

The bride's gown was of white satin, fashioned on princess lines with long sleeves coming to points over the hands. The high neckline had an inset of silk marquisette with pearl bead trimming. Her veil of embroidered illusion net with scalloped edge was caught with a bandeau of lily of the valley, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. She was given in marriage by her father.

Attendants were Miss Jean Knott, bridesmaid, wearing pink nylon marquisette over taffeta with lace insertion at the sweetheart neckline, tied with bows of black velvet. She wore a matching shoulder length veil and carried a nosegay of spring flowers. Mr. Roy Beasley attended his brother as groomsman and ushers were Kenneth Bailey, brother of the bride, and Herbert Bryon.

The bride's mother received afterward at her home, wearing a dress of grey crepe with black accessories and corsage of red roses. Following the reception the couple left on a trip to Muskoka, the bride wearing a lime green wool dress and black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Beasley will live at 19 Howden Ave., Peterborough.

Tom Weir added his views on the subjects.

President Tom Hope led the business discussion. The next meeting is to be a skating and Valentine party on Monday, February 16 with Isobel Nelson and Helen Hope in charge.

Mrs. J. V. Gallivan, President St. Joseph's Ladies' Auxiliary

Mrs. J. V. Gallivan was elected president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital at their second annual meeting, held Thursday at the nurses' residence.

The retiring president, Mrs. F. J. Lynch, was chairman and received reports of the officers for the past year. Mrs. J. V. Gallivan, recording secretary, reviewed activities of the Auxiliary and her report showed a year of progress with many interesting events, particularly the opening of the new nurses' home on December 8. She also reported the purchase of a new sterilizer for the hospital, together with other equipment, and furnishing of the reception room in the new residence.

Miss Madeleine Flynn, treasurer, presented her report which showed a balance at the last annual meeting of $2,250.19. Total receipts for 1947 amounting to $706.82, were made up as follows: Annual memberships for 1947, $268.95; proceeds from tag day, $387.10; additional receipts from draw tickets, $15.75; life memberships, $15; bank interest, $20.02. Total expenditures amounted to $2,568.16, covering: Gifts for nurses' graduation, $68; other expenses in connection with graduation, $4.85; equipment for hospital, $1,628.92; affiliation fee in Ontario Hospital Association, $10; delegates' expenses to Ontario Hospital convention, $42.90; gifts for hospital patients, $18.39; Masses for deceased persons, $5; furnishing for reception room, $765.34; expenses in connection with opening of nurses' residence, $24.76. A net balance of $388.85 remains in the bank.

Mrs. Chambers reported a total of 1,064 annual memberships, and Mrs. P. J. Doris gave a report on the life memberships. Others reports were read by Mrs. N. McConkey, first vice-president; Miss Louise Letellier, second vice-president; Miss Josephine Gordon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. Paquette, convener of the sewing committee; Mrs. E. M. Crough, convener of the social committee; Mrs. J. McCarney, house committee; Mrs. J. Quirk, visiting committee.

Mrs. N. McConkey, convener of St. Joseph's Cupboard, which provides small luxuries for elderly and ward patients, babies' layettes and necessities for those in need in the hospital, gratefully acknowledged contributions from St. Peter's, Sacred Heart and Immaculate Conception parishes and the Junior League.

His Excellency, Bishop Gerald Berry, addressing the meeting, stated that progress made by the Auxiliary in the short period of time since its inception reflected credit on the organization. With the hospital building program not completed, the Bishop urged that the good work be continued, and commented that the Ladies' Auxiliary had been the means of directing considerable public attention toward the hospital.

The Bishop chose as his topic "The Life Of Cardinal Manning," and referred to the friendship which existed between the Cardinal and Florence Nightingale, who had a mutual interest in the betterment of the hospitals of that period and the elevation of the nursing profession.

Co-operation was the keynote stressed by Mrs. Lynch, who said that the harmonious relationship which existed between the two bodies, St. Joseph's Hospital and the Auxiliary, was evidenced by the amount of progress which has been made. Rev. Mother Priscilla in her remarks gave full credit to the Ladies' Auxiliary for splendid work done during the past two years, and voiced the appreciation of the hospital.

The meeting was fortunate in having two out-of-town guests, Sister Ursula and Sister Joan of the staff of St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton, who spoke briefly regarding auxiliary work in that city.

Mrs. R. G. Aman and Mrs. D. Flett entertained with two piano duets.

The officers for the coming year are as follows:

President, Mrs. J. V. Gallivan; first vice-president, Mrs. A. Cauley; second vice-president, Miss L. Flynn; third vice-president, Mrs. O. Hallihan; fourth vice-president, Mrs. T. V. O'Toole; fifth vice-president, Mrs. A. Hayes; treasurer, Miss Madeleine Flynn; recording secretary, Mrs. J. F. O'Brien; corresponding secretary, Miss Agnes Grant.

Mrs. D. Campanaro was chairman of the nominating committee.

Work of CAS Interests Mr. and Mrs. Club

Mr. and Mrs. Club of St. James' United church met Friday for their third social evening. Guest speaker was Miss Rachel Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society for the city and county of Peterborough.

Miss Young talked on the operation of the Society, outlining the various phases of work carried on. She also mentioned that the local branch is as highly rated as any society of its kind.

A short sing song period was highlighted with a pantomime, "I'm in the King's Navy." Mrs. McLaren delighted with two exceptionally fine vocal selections and was accompanied by Mr. Ashton Fife at the piano. Games and contests were followed by a light lunch.

Committee in charge for this meeting were Edith and Howard Bell, and Margaret and Gerry Seabrook.

Next meeting will take the form of a "hard time" party to be held on February 28. Those in charge will be Loretta and Jack Stuart, Dorothy and Bill Prest.

Sealzo-Brown Wedding At Bride's Home

At Home Acres, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. J. Brown, Trent River, on Saturday, the marriage of their youngest daughter, Glenna Roberta, to Richard Homer Scalzo, son of Honorable H. F. Scalzo and Mrs. Scalzo of Niagara Falls, New York, was solemnized. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. R. Vanderburg of Trent River United Church in a room decorated with streamers and evergreen.

The bride was attired in a dress of natural beige crepe and wore a corsage of roses. Her sister, Miss Jeryne Brown, Ottawa, was bridesmaid, and her brother, Mr. George Brown, attended the groom.

Later the couple left for Niagara Falls, New York, and Buffalo, where the groom is attending a school of law, since returning from three years service overseas with the American army.

Immediate members of the family present, included Miss Vaughn Brown of Ottawa, sister of the bride.

Scalloped Potatoes Provide Dependable Supper Dish

By MARY MOORE

One of my sisters is a good cook in a limited sort of a way. On breakfasts she is an expert. Her variety of breakfast menus is endless for she specializes in them.

But she never has had the responsibility of planning dinners, but . . . when she does have a dinner to prepare we can be sure scalloped potatoes will be part of it. And what scalloped potatoes. Other specialties of her are French omelettes; marinated baked salmon; broiled thick beefsteak.

The scalloped potatoes are what I aim to borrow from her, this week, for your benefit. They are a good dependable dish to teach your daughter how to make.

I have trouble persuading my two teen-agers to peel potatoes. They avoid the job like the plague. "Can't we have baked potatoes, Mum? I'll scrub them real clean." When I'm tough and insist on them doing the dish of scalloped potatoes from start to finish and they finally taste their delicious handiwork at the table, then they believe that all the work is worth the result.

Doris' Scalloped Potatoes

For six people pare 7 medium-sized potatoes and slice them as thinly as possible into cold water. Let stand 5 minutes. Drain. Place in buttered caserole in layers, sprinkling each layer with salt and pepper and dotting it with butter, using 3 tablespoons butter in all. Pour over 3 cups boiling hot milk, sprinkle top with salt, white pepper and a little paprika, and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes, then reduce heat to 300 deg. Fahr. for 1 more hour. If the shape and size of your casserole does not permit the 3 cups of milk to cover the potatoes at first, add enough milk to cover potatoes.

Variations Of Scalloped Potatoes

(1) Sprinkle top of prepared dish of potatoes with anywhere from ½ to 1 cup shredded processed cheese.

(2) Sprinkle top of prepared dish of potatoes with ½ cup each cracker crumbs (stale) mixed with ½ cup grated old cheese.

(3) Onions make scalloped potatoes dark, but some people do not mind this. While putting potatoes in casserole in layers, add about 1 or 2 tablespoons grated onion to layers.

(4) If you wish to speed up the cooking process of scalloping potatoes, then potatoes may be precooked in their skins for 15 minutes beforehand. This way the skins peel off easier than when raw, the potatoes are partially cooked and not only bake more quickly but slice more easily. When potatoes are precooked before slicing for scalloped potatoes, a thin white cream sauce is usually used in place of plain milk, because they are not so long in the oven, and the excess liquid from the plain milk would not evaporate fast enough.

(5) Scalloped Potatoes Royal York: Precook potatoes in skins; cut them into ½-inch cubes. Put in generously buttered casserole and cover with thin cheese sauce made by melting 2 tablespoons butter, stirring in 2 tablespoons flour, adding 1 cup boiling water and 1 cup evaporated milk and stirring until it thickens. Add from 1 to 2 cups grated processed cheese, 1 teaspoon salt and pour over diced potatoes. Sprinkle top with paprika and about 2 tablespoons very fine cracker crumbs. Place under broiler to heat through and brown the little protruding mounds of potatoes. This is also called Potatoes Delmonico and Potatoes au Gratin.

Potatoes Anna

Let 9 cups sliced raw potatoes stand in cold water to cover 15 min. Dry on towel. Butter a 2-quart casserole and sprinkle the inside with crumbs. Arrange potatoes in layers, dotting each layer with butter generously and then sprinkle with salt and white pepper. Repeat until all potatoes are used. If possible use as much as ½ cup butter. Bake, covered, at 350 deg. F. for 70 minutes. To serve, carefully turn out on hot chop plate—if done well potatoes will retain shape of casserole. A lovely dish.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

WORKING WIFE
Spouse's Rightful Place Is At Home If Husband Can Support Her

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife and I have been married 13 years and have two daughters, one 12 and the other 10. I have earned a good living for my family and before the war my wife never worked out, but while I was in the Army she decided to get a job in a war plant.

Dorothy Dix

Now the war is over and I am back at my old job, making a comfortable living, and have bought a home and have it nicely furnished. I am anxious for my wife to give up her position and let me support the family, as I am amply able to do. I feel that it is her duty to make a home for the children and me, but she positively refuses to do so. She is now a clerk in a grocery store.

I love my wife and children very much, but I am afraid that if she keeps on with her job and neglecting her home and family, our marriage will end in divorce. Can you advise me on this situation, because I am at my wits' end?

CONFUSED.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The only valid reason for a wife working outside of her home is that her husband does not make enough money to support it. Or else that he is so penurious that he doles the housekeeping money out nickel by nickel and never gives her a cent for her very own. No woman can be blamed if, under these circumstances, she bangs her home door shut and goes out and gets a job by which she can be financially independent.

Able To Support Wife

But these drawbacks do not appear to exist in your case. You are able and willing to support your wife. You offer her a good home and she refuses it, either because she wants more money to spend, or she gets a kick out of having her own pocketbook, or because she likes the excitement of working in crowds.

Many other women, like your wife, who tasted blood money during the war, have refused to give up their jobs and go back home to their husbands and children. This is one of the main causes of juvenile delinquency, which is our greatest headache right now. For no woman can make a real home when she is giving most of her time and her strength and her interest to her job. Nor can she be an adequate wife and mother when her ambitions and thoughts and plans are centred in her work instead of her children, and when she seldom knows where her children are or what they are doing.

It takes all that any woman has of heart and brain and patience and diplomacy to run a house properly, make her husband happy and rear children into fine men and women. And there is just no arguing the question. The undomestic and unmaterial woman never should marry.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: In our neighborhood is a woman who has a girl, four, and a baby, nine months old, whom she parks with the neighbors up and down the street several times a week. She doesn't ask if it is convenient. She just dumps the kids on us and goes. The little girl is chain lightning, and the baby howls and screams. She never offers one penny as payment for our services; just says: "I'll do something for you some time."

Now I am not well and the children make me very nervous. Don't you think she should get wise as to how she is taking advantage of us?

OVERWORKED NEIGHBOR.

ANSWER: No, I think she is the wise one and you are the dummies and, that if you had a particle of spunk about you, you wouldn't stand for her unloading her responsibilities upon you. You would let her nurse her own children.

I can't be very sorry for people who allow themselves to be made doormats. Just tell this woman that you are not running a baby-sitting resort and stand by it, and that will end the whole trouble.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 15 and am having parent trouble. Every time I come home at about 3 a.m. from a date, my father is waiting up for me with a hair brush. The minute I get my coat off he turns me across his knee and spanks me. The last time he didn't even wait until my date left. He spanked me so hard with his slipper that I can't sit down.

I think I will run away so that I can date and drink all I want to. He is spoiling my health with his paddling. My mother is no help. In fact, she wields a wicked hair brush, too.

DISGUSTED.

ANSWER: Evidently your parents got out their hair brushes too late to save you. Certainly no girl who has had proper supervision and whose father and mother have done their duty by her, even thinks about roaming the streets at three o'clock in the morning, or plans to leave home so she can get drunk and go with any heel who will date her.

FIVE BIRTHDAYS IN HOSPITAL—Peter Moreau blows out the candles of his birthday cake as he celebrates his fifth birthday at the Children's Memorial Hospital in Montreal. It wasn't strange for him to observe his birthday in hospital, because he's been there since birth. But this was a special birthday, for this was the first solid food he has eaten in his life. Peter was born with his esophagus and wind-pipe communicating, and was fed intravenously for two years, while operations were performed to sever the connections and make them separate organs. At present Peter weighs only 23 pounds.

Of Interest to Women

THE STARS SAY....

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, February 3

It is probable that an indomitable tendency to rush head-on into putting over new projects or in speeding up those already established, may come to grief or run into disagreeable, unhappy and unproductive situations. A turbulent, over-zealous and aggressive attitude, accompanied by poor judgment or an inclination to gloss over facts and figures, may result in mistakes and inharmonious personal encounter. Impractical or explosive urges may prove disastrous.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of defeat and distress, largely because new projects or revision of old ones in which the outlook seems fair, are likely to be nullified by obscure judgment, want of proper understanding of facts and vital issues, as well as a tendency to meet resistance and lack of progress with intemperate, turbulent and virulent conduct. The energies might better be centered on due study of fair prospects, with new agreements, needful change or improvements, rather than "flying off the handle" and begetting personal strife.

A child born on this day may be energetic and aggressive, but its tendencies may be too strenuous and its judgment not able to cope with underlying situations.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

NOTE: This column is for the use of our readers. If you would like to write to Mary Moore for any special recipes for baking, soup or salad - making, main course menus, desserts or cakes or cookies, address your letters to Mary Moore, in care of this paper.

QUESTION I am going to entertain our bridge club next month and I would like to make those tiny lemon tarts that have such a rich lemon filling. I do not know what they are called unless it might be lemon cheese tartlets. Do you have this recipe? While I am writing do you think you would have room to print recipe for that lemon pie that has the meringue mixed into the filling. Do you know what I mean? Thanks for any help you can give me.—Aunty Beanie.

ANSWER:

Lemon Curd Tartlets
(Or Lemon Cheese Tarts)

Three eggs, ½ cup butter, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup lemon juice. Beat eggs until light. Melt butter in double boiler; then add sugar and eggs, mixing well. Cook over boiling water, stirring, for 5 minutes; add lemon juice and continue cooking, stirring, for about 3 minutes or uptil mixture is thick and smooth. Chill. Use to fill tiny baked tart shells about 1½ to 2 inches in diameter. Delicious for tea, or as a variation on a large plate of assorted cakes.

Lemon Fluff Pie

Three egg yolks, ¼ cup lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 3 egg whites, ½ cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, baked pastry shell. Beat egg yolks. Add lemon juice and grated rind. Cook slowly until rather thick, stirring. Cool and fold in egg whites which have been beaten stiff with the sugar and salt. Pour into baked shell and bake 30 minutes at 325 deg. F.

QUESTION: Our family likes sardines and I wonder that you do not mention them oftener Years ago you gave me a tip on how to serve them hot and it has been one of my standbys. Do you remember telling us to saute them crumbled and serve them on fingers of toast with lemon wedges? They are so good and tasty and cheap. Have you any other good sardine recipes? Any suggestions would be welcome. Thanks for all your past help.—Mother of Twins.

ANSWER: I remember that dish and I remember you too—the twins must be grown young men by now.

You will like these sardine recipes too.

Rice And Sardines

Wash ¼ cup rice, and cook in salted boiling water until soft and drain. To it add two hard-cooked eggs, 2 tablespoons finely chopped pimiento, 2 tablespoons ground fresh green pepper, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and ½ teaspoon salt. Press through potato ricer in a broad border onto platter. In centre place sardines on lettuce or shredded endive or Chinese lettuce, and garnish with stuffed green or plain ripe olives, and pass French dressing or mayonnaise.

Sardine and Cheese Canapes

Mash three sardines with two ounces of white cream cheese and tablespoon chili sauce. Spread this on the untoasted side of toasted rounds of white bread—or bread may be cut in crescent shapes and toasted on one side. Place one whole perfect sardine on top. These are very pretty on a tray of canapes and easy to make.

Sardine And Egg Toasted Open-Face Sandwiches

Mix two shelled hard-cooked eggs with one 4-oz. tin sardines, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise and 1 tablespoon French dressing. Spread on rounds of white or whole wheat bread, and just before serving pass sthem under broiler to heat and to make the oil bubble.

Fahr. Serve with toasted crackers and Baumert cheese.

To make the pork ragout you need 2 lbs. lean pork trimmings which your butcher would save for you if you ask him beforehand. Add 2 teaspoons salt, 1 20-oz. tin canned tomatoes, cover, reduce heat, simmer 1 to 1½ hours. Add 1 teaspoon each currypowder and paprika, ¼ teaspoon pepper, and taste for salt. Thanks a lot...

It is not an easy matter, these winter mornings, to get your supply of milk to your door as promptly as you would like it. Heavy roads and uncleared paths, tend to slow down the service. You can help your milkman to give you the service that he strives for if you remember to keep the path to your milkbox open for him.

The milkman is part of a chain of organization that battles snowdrifts and ice-covered roads to bring the milk from farm to pasteurizing and bottling plants and then through the streets to your door. And his is a heavy, weary task as he struggles through the rutted snow carrying your supply of milk.

The men of the milk distribution services, and your dairy, take pride in the privilege of serving you and will be grateful for your help in speeding delivery.

British Spirit Amazes German Writer

By ALLAN DREYFUSS.

WIESBADEN, Feb. 2.—(Reuters).— A German journalist, who has returned to the American zone after spending three weeks touring the British Isles believes that only British type "tolerance" applied to Europe can save the Continent from sinking into a quagmire of inhumanity.

The journalist, Fritz Von Woedtke, who is well known for his theatrical writing, stated in a report published in the Wiesbadener Kurier that during his trip he discovered the spirit of England was best epitomized in Voltaire's saying: "I may disagree with your opinion; but I will fight to the death for your right to express it."

Von Woedtke said that he was unable to discover whether the average Englishman's love of tolerance sprang from self-discipline, lack of passion, the influence of the damp climate, or was simply the consequence of a 300-year-old democracy.

"Anyone fortunate enough to be able to visit England from Germany in these times," he wrote, "no matter what the ostensible purpose of his trip, could only leave the small island with one priceless commody—the spirit of England. If you transfer it to your children it is like medicine. It has the nutritious value of mental calories and the formula of the drug is—toleration."

Von Woedtke declared that during his brief visit to the "cloud and crisis-curtained" island, he found people living with a mixture of self-discipline and liberty, which resolved itself into the spirit of British tolerance.

Through the hungry eyes of a German accustomed to gazing at the bomb-jagged ruins of his country's cities, and its discouraged inhabitants, London became a magic kaleidoscope.

Drove Through London.

Describing his arrival at Liverpool Street Station, Von Woedtke said: "Mist and fog cloak us as we drive through the city of 7,000,000. We, a group of Germans riding in a taxi through the town, drive fast on the shiny asphalt of the main streets. Huge double-deck monsters (London buses) congregate nightly in front of the red traffic lights like herds of hurrying, heavily-breathing metal animals."

When he arrived at his hotel in Kensington and found a hot bath waiting, Von Woedtke decided: "It must be a dream. I think of my poor home in Germany and I am sure that it is all a dream. But there I am in a huge, still-shining cosmopolitan city, and I am happy at being in the world again and at home in it."

During a trip to a post office, Von Woedtke was surprised at "the good left in the world"—as typified by two persons altruistically sending gift parcels to the needy persons abroad.

"There are two persons ahead of me in line who want to dispatch parcels. A woman and an English workman with a pipe and healthy-colored skin. I catch a glimpse of the addresses on the parcels. The woman is posting a gift to Hungary, containing used clothes. The workman is sending his to a woman who has a German address which I cannot read: I see the good left in the world. Strangers: A workman and a woman sending clothes."

Von Woedtke concludes his article with the statement: "From London the invasion was planned and the war made and won. It is here that men are trying to puzzle out the enigma of Germany and it is from here that they want to win the peace."

GREY AND BRUCE TRUST AND SAVING CO. has bought the Toronto Savings and Loan block at the southwest corner of George and Brock Streets. The building comprises the stores and offices from the main store of E. F. Mason Company to the Brock Street corner. This is one of the largest realty transfers in the city's retail section during the last year. The Toronto Savings and Loan block, including the offices of that financial company, has dominated upper George Street for many years.

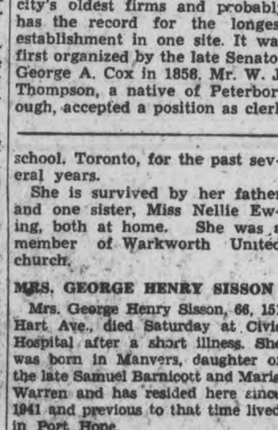
Grey and Bruce Trust Co. Purchases George St. Block

The purchase by Grey and Bruce Trust and Savings Company of a business block on George Street reveals an interesting insight into the early days of Peterborough's history. This block includes the property now occupied by Mason's store at 429 George to the corner of Brock Street.

Built in 1858 the block was originally occupied by the Toronto Savings and Loan Company and by Senator George A. Cox who specialized in insurance business. Included in the block are stores occupied by Donald H. Hunter, who took over the grocery business of his father 17 years ago. R. H. Hunter leased the store from the Toronto Savings and Loan Company in the year 1872 and enjoyed more than 58 years of business in his grocery store. His son D. H. Hunter took over the business in 1931.

Davis-Thompson Company, insurance agents who occupy premises next door to the Grey and Bruce Company is one of the city's oldest firms and probably has the record for the longest establishment in one site. It was first organized by the late Senator George A. Cox in 1858. Mr. W. J. Thompson, a native of Peterborough, accepted a position as clerk in the firm on February 10, 1886.



Subsequently Mr. Thompson went into partnership with the late A. L. Davis and the firm took the name it has continued to the present. Mr. Thompson died in February, 1946, and his son W. Ross Thompson who was on leave from overseas duty at the time of his father's death took over the business upon his discharge.

William J. Mason opened a general goods store on the site occupied by the present Mason's Groceteria at 429 George, in 1878. He continued as proprietor until 1885 when upon his death his son Ernest F. Mason took over the business. Mr. Mason decided to run a business on straight grocery lines in 1900. Building up one of the largest grocery businesses in the city he opened up other branches in the city in 1915.

Ernest F. Mason died in 1939 and his son Herbert took over the management upon his death. The head office of Mason's Groceterias, situated next door to the branch at 429 George is the original office occupied by Senator Cox. The large and ornamental black marble fireplace was brought over from England and is complete with its hand moulded Sussex iron fireback.

In 1938 Mason's Groceterias celebrated their Diamond Jubilee.

Seizure Of Copy By RCMP Called 'Trespass'

TORONTO, Feb. 2 (CP) —Joseph Sedgwick, KC, said today that RCMP seizure of a copy of the "Babies For Export" manuscript from the offices of New Liberty magazine "constituted a trespass."

Mr. Sedgwick, counsel for Jack Kent Cooke, New Liberty publisher, and Harold Dingman, the magazine's Ottawa editor, made the "trespass" charges in a letter to the senior RCMP officer here.

The text of the letter was released to the press by Wallace Reyburn, managing editor of the publication.

RCMP Cpl. J. J. Molyneux, who came here from Alberta to serve warrants charging Mr. Cooke and Mr. Dingman with conspiracy to commit a defamatory libel, obtained the original of the story during a search of the magazine office Saturday.

Mr. Sedgwick said the copy was taken later the same day in a separate search. He said his information is that "certain editorial notes and comments" were attached to the copy.

Mr. Sedgwick's letter to the senior RCMP officer in Toronto read in part:

"On behalf of my clients, I desire to protest against the action of your officers in taking this second manuscript on the ground, firstly, that the (search) warrant refers only to 'a manuscript' and also that the warrant makes no reference at all to documents containing editorial comment, etc.

"In my view, the action of your officers in seizing and taking this second document and its attachments constituted a trespass and I desire you to know that my clients will hold your officers and those authorizing them, responsible."

No Comment

Cpl. Molyneux could not be reached and RCMP officials in Ottawa said they had no comment on the seizure of the second manuscript.

In Edmonton, Mr. Cooke, who with Mr. Dingman and Dr. Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa, a welfare authority, has been committed for trial on the conspiracy charges, said he had nothing to say about the seizure.

Mr. Sedgwick's letter said that Cpl. Molyneux, accompanied by three other RCMP officers, made the search after presnting a warrant "to search for and, if found to seize three telegrams specified in the warrant and (the manuscript.)"

"Under the presumed authority of this warrant, the officers thoroughly combed the offices of the magazine, spending a few hours in the process. My information is that they failed to find the three telegrams set out in the warrant but that they did find what seemed to them to be a manuscript of the article and that they took with them.

"I stayed until their search had concluded and was then informed by Cpl. Molyneux that the manuscript to which I have referred was the only document which they intended to seize and take.

"They left the offices but returned later in the afternoon when I was not there and then seized and took a second manuscript, apparently of the same article, to which, as my information is, were attached certain editorial notes and comments."

Man Wrongly Jailed Dies In Scotland

GLASGOW, Feb. 2—(Reuters)—Oscar Slater, who was convicted of murder in 1909 and vindicated after he had spent nearly 19 years in prison, died Saturday at Ayr, Scotland, aged 75.

Slater's case was one of the most widely-known in the history of crime and made famous by the part the writer, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, played in the condemned man's vindication.

Slater, after his arrest in the United States, was sentenced to death for the murder of a 28-year-old woman, found in her Glasgow flat with her head and face battered.

Sir Arthur, convinced something was wrong, fought strenuously for Slater's release.

Public feeling grew and in 1928 the case was remitted to the Scottish court of criminal appeal which unanimously set aside the conviction.

Slater was freed and received £6,000 ($24,000) from the government as compensation for wrongful conviction.

Montreal Has Plan To Stop U.S. Army

MONTREAL, Feb. 2. (CP)—Montrealers shouldn't fear an invasion from the south because the city has a detailed plan of defence prepared in October, 1812.

Dr. G. R. Lomer, former director of McGill University's library school, who recently went to the British West Indies to assist in setting up library facilities for the new BWI University, announced he "found" the long-lost document.

It was donated to the McGill Museum by Sir Gilbert Wainwright, retired manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Jamaica, to be exhibited in public and to serve as a means of checking the accuracy of Canadian history in connection with the American invasion of Canada during the war of 1812.

The military map shows the disposition of Canadian troops against the invaders. It provides for the development of Col. de Salaberry's 300 men posted at St. Philip who sped to meet the Americans coming down the Chateauguay River.

Also included are the operational plans for the Second Battalion of Militia, the Montreal Brigade of 1,500 voltigeurs and Indians at Lacolle, a flanking brigade under Sir George Provost at Chambly, and a garrison of 500 at St. Johns, with a further disposition of troops at the fort at Isle aux Noix.

Only de Salaberry's men fought and they handled the invaders so well that the fall campaign of 1812 folded up.

CHINESE REDS CAPTURED—This group of approximately 2,000 members of the Chinese Communist army was captured in Tapiehshan on the Hupeh-Honan-Anhwei borders, base of Communist activity in central China. At top, the captives sit on the ground in the compound of a Wuchang school, awaiting disposition of their case. Bottom, some of the women political workers captured among the group. Except for two, none of the girls had any school education, yet all were well indoctrinated in the Communist philosophy.

Bring Culture To Prairies

REGINA, Feb. 2 — (CP). — Residents of prairie towns and villages whose entertainment—apart from sports and dancing—frequently is limited to a twice-weekly movie during the long western winters, soon many have an opportunity of seeing reproductions of world-famous paintings, hearing the finest music and seeing some of the best plays.

Formation of Canada's first provincial arts board, designed to pool Saskatchewan's scattered cultural facilities and extend them to smaller towns and villages was announced today by Education Minister W. S. Lloyd.

Comprising leaders in visual arts, music, drama and literature and representatives of the government and general public, the arts board will provide opportunities and leadership for people wishing to participate in these fields, Mr. Lloyd said.

No definite program has been decided by the 13-man board whose formation followed 10 months of planning by the government adult education decision. But its chairman, Dean Stewart Basterfield of Regina College and David Smith, director of adult education, agreed travelling art exhibits, musical and theatrical groups will be part of the program.

Norah McCullough, formerly on the staff of the Toronto Art Gallery and the National Gallery Ottawa, will be secretary of the board.

Public School Men Hear S. O. Shields

The January meeting of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation was held in Queen Mary School. In the absence of Mr. C. H. Rutherford, the vice-president, Mr. Jack Nicholls, presided. Several interesting topics were discussed including the idea of a new parliamentary system for conducting the Federation's annual meetings.

The next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 17, when it is planned to have Mr. R. J. Bolton speak on superannuation and report on the district meeting.

The speaker of the evening, Mr. S. Shields of the CGE, was introduced by Mr. Bolton. His topic was "Opportunities In Industry."

Lunch was served by the house committee.

4,187 Veterans Settled On N.Z. Farms

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Feb. 2. (CP).—New Zealand is making better progress than after the First World War in settling war veterans on the land. After 1918, 16,000 men applied for government rehabilitation assistance to put them on farms of their own. Of these 4,000 were eventually settled on farms, 5,000 received partial assistance and 7,000 did not receive any help from the government.

Already after the Second World War 4,187 veterans have been settled on farms by the government and farms have been prepared for others who will receive them as soon as they are fully trained. Another 9,000 men are still awaiting assistance and the government is trying to speed up its settlement schemes so that these men will not be delayed too long in getting farms of their own. Chief difficulty is in securing suitable land for the projects.

Veterans are settled under several different schemes. They may obtain approved freehold properties by loans of up to $21,000 with interest at two per cent for the first year and three per cent thereafter. They may receive a loan to purchase the leasehold of a property or they may be settled on single unit properties acquired by the Crown and made available on a leasehold basis. The rent of these farms is fixed on the unimproved value and is fixed at two per cent for the first year, three per cent for the next two years and four per cent thereafter.

Chicken Pox Aplenty

LINDSAY, Feb. 2—Chicken pox has caused a depletion of ranks in several schools in the area, but the dozen pupils of North Valentia School are expected to be back in the classroom on Monday after the unexpected vacation. The school was closed on Jan. 20, when all pupils went down with chicken pox. Closing of the school, it is reported, stopped the disease from spreading further and most of the pupils are up and around again.

MUGGS AND SKEETER

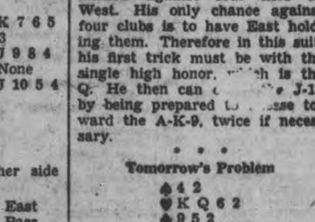
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DIFFERENCE IS DECISIVE

IF YOU HOLD nine cards of a suit between your own hand and the dummy, you would hardly expect the difference between an 8-spot and a 10-spot to have much influence on the best way to play for maximum number of tricks in it. Actually, however, it can make all the difference in the world. If in one case, there are four cards headed by the jack-ten out against you and in the other there are four headed by the jack-eight, you proceed along contrasting lines in seeking all the tricks in the suit.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♦	Pass
7 NT



No need to censure that bidding, as it was never done. In fact, this hand was never dealt, but was constructed synthetically to illustrate a point. The point arises as soon as West leads the spade 4 and East puts in the K. South of course must win with the A and then find a way to take the next dozen consecutive tricks.

With only three major suit tricks available, South must manage to get five in each minor. That would of course be a cinch if the outstanding cards in each of those suits were divided no worse than three with one defender and the other card with his partner. But only an optimist would play for that development. The fine player will strive to protect himself against a bunch of four diamonds opposite none and four clubs opposite none.

Since four to the J-8 are out against the diamonds, the right play is to lay down the A or K. Now, if either defender discards, there is a marked finesse against his partner's J. But in the clubs, where the four cards are headed by the J-10, South can not guard himself against four held by West. His only chance against four clubs is to have East holding them. Therefore in this suit, his first trick must be with the single high honor, which is the Q. He then can [illegible] J-10 by being prepared [illegible] toward the A-K-9, twice if necessary.

Till memory fades and life departs,
You live forever in our hearts.
—Remembered by her son Leonard and family.

LEAN—In memory of Sgt. Raymond C. Lean, who was killed at Ortona, Italy, February 2, 1944.

Of our loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame we keep it
Because he was one of the best.
—Always remembered by his mother, Mrs. Edith Lean and family.

SPRY, Ruth (Danford) — In loving memory of our dear daughter Ruth, who passed away February 2, 1945.

We mourn for her in silence,

Flyers Plaster Poland 15-0 In Tilt

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 2—(CP)—Canada's Olympic hockey team dropped the goal-a-period habit today and plastered Poland by a 15-0 count to move into a second-place tie in the hockey tournament here.

With goaltender Murray Dowey of Toronto keeping his cage clear of pucks for the second straight day—only one goal has been scored against the Canadians in three contests—the Dominion's RCAF Flyers took an offensive role from the start to record their third straight victory.

Canada, now tied for second place with Switzerland behind Czechoslovakia, had been held to three goals a game in winning her first two games, 3-1 against Sweden last Friday and 3-0 against Britain Sunday.

Czechoslovakia defeated Britain 11-4 in another fourth-round match today to remain two points ahead of Canada, which has a game in hand over the strong Czech squad.

Canada, Czechoslovakia and Switzerland are the only undefeated teams among the nine countries participating in the 36-game tournament, which the International Olympic Committee says has no Olympic status.

Ptominetn Again

Wally Halder and Schroeter, who scored a goal apiece in each of Canada's two previous triumphs, were prominent again today as the Flyers scored five goals in the first period, six in the second and four in the third.

Schroeter counted twice in the first period and had a single in the second. Halder's harvest for the first two periods was two goals and three assists.

Other Canadian marksmen in the first two periods were Ab Renaud (2), Louis Lecompte, Orval Gravelle, Patsy Guzzo and George Mara.

"Snowfall totals showed wide variations ranging from an excess of 80 per cent above average at North Bay to deficiencies of 50 per cent at Windsor and Ottawa."

Tie At Bancroft

BANCROFT, Feb. 2—(ENS)—Barry's Bay Lumberjacks and Bancroft Rockets played a 1-1 hockey tie before a good crowd here Thursday. It was fast, rugged and exciting. Billings scored in the first period, aided by Cybulski and Coulas. The Rockets got the equalizer in the second chukker. Teams:

Barry's Bay: Goal, O'Kelly; defence, Vituskie, Murray; centre, J. Billings; wings, T. Billings, R. Sullivan; alternates, Cybulski, Shalla, Fox, Yeuteh, G. Sullivan, Buckanavitch, O'Malley.

Bancroft: Goal, McGhee; defence, Flaglar, Carpenter; centre, Fox; wings, McAlpine, Maxwell; alternates, N. Brough, E. Brough, Kavanagh, Crawford, Gratto, Stringer, Bruce, Foster, Sullivan.

Closed Bathroom Vent Floods Room With Gas

Firemen were busy during the weekend answering minor alarms.

On Saturday at 12.36 p.m. a plugged vent in the bathroom of J. Jones, 580 Downie St. caused sewer gas to fill the house. At 5.19 p.m. a smouldering chair that had caught fire while a blow torch was being used to thaw out a pipe, filled the store of I. Outwater, 227 Hunter St. with smoke. Little damage was done, apart from the chair. At 6.49 p.m. overheated pipes brought an alarm from 475 Mark St., residence of M. O'Leary. And at 10.48 p.m. a chimney fire was reported from the residence of Bernard Sage, 100 Bennett St.

Two calls came on Sunday. At 9.26 a.m. smoke filled the store of S. Easton, 241 George St. when a chimney became plugged. At 11.07 a.m. overheated pipes caused an alarm to be sent from 668 Stormont St., residence of [illegible] Lincoln.

Early Monday morning a sprinkler head discharged at the B. F. Ackerman factory, George St. Firemen investigated but found that it was due to excessive pressure.

Driver Remanded On Driving Charge

Charles Armstrong, 372 Queen St., was remanded on bail of $200 until Feb. 9 on charges of drunk driving and illegal possession of liquor when he appeared in court today.

The charge arose following an accident when it is stated Armstrong's car crashed into the parked car of Mr. Percival, 273 John St., about eight o'clock Saturday evening.

Damage to Armstrong's car was a smashed headlight and dented fender. The parked car had a damaged grille.

The report of PC M. D. Traynor also stated that a partly consumed case of beer had been found in the back seat of the Armstrong car.

Generals Crush Spitfires In 7-3 Triumph

By The Canadian Press

It's a bad time to sink into a slump and Tommy Burlington's Owen Sound Mercurys who previously have been able to handle other strong clubs had better take note.

Weakened by the loss of Johnny McCormack to professional ranks the second-place Toronto Marlboros, nevertheless notched a decisive victory over Owen Sound in an Ontario Hockey Association senior A fixture at Owen Sound Saturday night. The loss left Mercurys in a fourth-place tie with Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen.

The cellar-dwelling Brantford Redmen were "Bauer" meat at Waterloo. Ray, Don and Bobby Bauer tallied six goals among them to lead the Dutchmen as they swamped Brantford 14-5 in the week-end's other senior tilt.

Break Tie

In the junior loop Oshawa Generals broke their first-place tie with Windsor Spitfires and snapped Spitfires' winning streak of 14 games and a tie with their 7-3 win over Windsor at Oshawa. It was Generals' third victory against Windsor in as many tries.

The eighth-place Guelph Blitmores showed surprising scoring punch with a 9-5 win over Barrie Flyers at Galt. It was the third-place Flyers' worst defeat so far this season but there is little chance of Guelph making the playoffs.

Galt Rockets took over fourth place, one point behind Barrie by edging the seventh-place Toronto Marlboros 5-4 in the nightcap of a junior twin-bill at Toronto.

St. Catharines Teepees eked out a 2-1 decision over the ninth-place Toronto St. Michael's Majors in the opening tilt at Toronto to take sixth and last playoff spot.

Joe Primeau's senior Dukes climbed to within two points of the league - leading Hamilton Tigers with their victory at Owen Sound. It was Marlboros' 21st win in 31 starts.

Three Million Workers Strike

FRANKFURT, Feb. 2—(AP)—Nearly 3,000,000 German workers will strike at midnight tonight in the biggest mass demonstration yet against shrinking food rations.

Other strikes were threatened. Labor leaders reported increasing Communist efforts to foment mass unrest throughout the food-short British and American zones.

The 24-hour protest strikes beginning tonight were called in a large are stretching from Hamburg to Stuttgart.

Aobut 1,500,000 white collar workers in the British zone will leave their jobs for a day in support of their demands for the same food rations allotted so-called heavy workers.

More than 1,000,000 workers will participate in a one-day strike by trade union federations in the American zone state of Wurttemberg-Baden to protest recent cuts in their fat rations and demand more efficient food distribution.

Hold Redheaded Girl In Drug Round-up

TORONTO, Feb. 2 — (CP). — A glamorous 20-year-old redhead who police said is a continent-wide narcotics runner and a male companion were arrested here last night in a raid on a downtown apartment by a four-man squad.

Police said they believed the man and woman recently arrived in the city from Vancouver to take over the dope interests of Max Beaver who will be sentenced tomorrow by Judge J. Ambrose Shea after conviction of being in illegal possession of drugs.

The report at headquarters indicated four capsules of heroin were seized in the raid. The heroin was found in the girl's purse and in the man's pockets.

Five Fire Brigades Battle $250,000 Fire

KINGSTON, Feb. 2.—(CP). — Fought by five fire departments, a savage blaze which destroyed a large section of the business section of Capt Vincent, N.Y., was brought under control at 10 a.m. today, it was learned here.

Raging 100-foot flames, fanned by strong winds and visible 20 miles away, roared through a hotel, a theatre, a drug store and the telephone exchange, levelling them to the ground.

Cape Vincent is about 12 miles from Kingston, directly across from Wolfe Island on the American side. There was no loss of life. Damage was estimated at $250,000.

Believed to have originated in the Broadview hotel, on the village's main thoroughfare, the conflagration was discovered at 5 a.m.

Volunteer departments in Chaumont, Brownsville, Dexter and Clayton, all in New York State, were notified and came to the assistance of the local brigade.

Minor Changes Made In Rugby Playing Code

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—(CP). — Continued co-operation with the Canadian Rugby Union was recommended Saturday by the Canadian Intercollegiate Union's rules committee, which proposed three minor rules changes in football's 1948 playing code.

A decision that the Eastern Canada college circuit planned to experiment with an Americanized playing code next season, was announced by Dr. H. L. Batstone, retiring chairman, following a four-hour closed meeting at Hart House.

Dr. Batstone, Queen's University representative on the committee, said delegates were unanimous in their decision to remain affiliated with the CRU even though the league doesn't take part in Dominion playoffs. The recommendation was made in the form of a resolution to the Union's board of governors, scheduled to meet in March.

The three suggested rules changes, which will recommend to the CRU's annual meeting in Toronto Feb. 28 for discussion, are:

1. On a third-down blocked kick, regardless of who recovers, the ball should be awarded to the blocking side if the kicking sides does not make yards on the play.

2. The forward pass rule should be amended to award the defending side possession at the last point of scrimmage when a third-down pass over the defending team's goal-line is not completed. At present, the defending side is awarded the ball on their own 25-yard line.

3. All players should be permitted to re-enter the game once in any quarter, instead of only two players a side.

Takes His Coffin To Native China

VANCOUVER, Feb. 2—(CP)—Ah Tse Wu, now 86 and none too firm of step, is on his way back to China carrying his belonging in a coffin presented to him 10 years ago by a nephew.

He was one of the young coolies who landed in Canada and worked on construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway. He has not been back to his native land since.

Ah Tse Wu has no son, but a nephew in Canton whom he educated, took over a son's duties and gladdened his heart by sending him a beautiful, hand-made coffin which was Ah's greatest treasure.

It stood in his little Chinatown room here, was polished to a bright sheen daily, and shown to every visitor.

Finally Ah succeeded in acquiring enough money to pay for passage home. He placed his few possessions in the casket, gave it a final polishing and has a special box made, lined with cotton wool and rags to prevent scratching, to go around it.

After buying a few presents for his white friends here, he set out on his long journey.

Physical Education, Recreation Said Necessary For Good Health

Recreation — the spirit of play — is essentially basic and fundamental in growth and life, it is stated by the Canadian Physical Education Association in a message issued in connection with Canada's fourth annual observance of NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK.

Dr. A. S. Lamb, Director of Physical Education at McGill University, Montreal, once said that "the values of recreation are many and this is true for all ages."

"There is perhaps no force so powerful in removing racial and religious prejudices, in bringing language problems, in developing co-operation and one's social nature," he said.

Dr. Lamb added, however, that skilled supervision and wise leadership are essential, because the leader or supervisor can make of recreation whatever he chooss.

It is the belief of those engaged in physical ducation that no program of health can be adequate without provision of physical activity or recreation. Similarly, no isolated program of physical activity and recreation can be adequate without consideration of the broader aspects of health and preventive medicine.

It is suggested that while education has been made compulsory for all children, the same has not been done for health, except to a limited degree. In this regard, it is the belief of some physical educationists that students in Canadian schools should not only be concerned with health knowledge and health practices, but they should also develop a sense of responsibility in identifying their own health problems, and also the problems of their homes, schools and communities.

It is suggested further that it is not too much to expect high school students to know something of he common cold, tuberculosis, smallpox, typhoid fever, venereal diseases, whooping cough, and many of the other ills, many of them preventible, which plague the human race.

702 Volunteers Take Readings For Weatherman

TORONTO, Feb. 2 — (CP) — The man who said "everyone talks about the weather, but no one does anything about it," was not aware that thousands of persons on this continent are doing something about weather forecasting every day. In the United States and Canada there are 5,700 persons voluntarily helping their country's weather bureaux collect data.

In Canada there are 702 volunteers who take daily temperature readings and read rain gauges for the Dominion Meteorological Office. Anyone can join their ranks, which already include business men, housewives, telegraphers, and school teachers.

Andrew Thomson, Controllers of the Meteorological Division of the Department of Transport and one of North America's leading weathermen, says the Dominion is behind other countries in the organization of volunteers for this type of work.

The controller said that Ontario, with 98 volunteers, needs at least 100 more. Young people do not seem anxious to take a part in the work because they do not realize how important it is, he explained.

Unlike their British and American counterparts, Canadian weather observers are given their instruments free. No mathematical skill is required, but consistency is essential, as the readings are of no use to the weather office unless kept morning and night without fail.

To measure rainfall, the volunteers are given a gauge and a graduated glass. Two special thermometers are used to record temperature. Ordinary types of thermometers are not suitable, and may be as much as four degrees out. The thermometers register maximum and minimum temperatures. Readings are taken twice daily from the rain gauge and the temperature instruments and entered on a form supplied by the meteorological service. Mailed Monthly.

The forms are mailed once a month to the head office of the service, a grey stone building on Bloor Street in Toronto.

Information gleaned from the many reports is used to make the weather maps and show annual rainfall and average temperatures for every part of Canada. But weathermen can also give specific information on a certain district to individuals.

For instance, a manufacturer of textiles could tell if the region had the right humidity for a factory; an asthma sufferer would find a dry spot; or an engineer could check the rainfall at the site of a dam to find if it varied from year to year.

The gathering of detailed weather information in Canada began in 1850, when school principals were ordered to keep a record of temperatures and rainfall. Pioneer work in this field is credited to a science master of Toronto's Upper Canada College, who took observations as early as 1830.

Controller Thomson revealed that British Columbia has more observers than any other per capita. The reason: There are many persons of English descent in the West Coast province, and they take a greater interest than anyone else in the weather.

"They inherit it," he said.

REPORT ARAB ARMY TO ATTACK FEB. 15

GI KASHMIR LEADER, Russell K. Height, Jr., 25-year-old ex-GI from New York, arrives home after serving for two months as a brigadier general in the Free Kashmir Rebel Army. He wears an Indian turban and his sergeant's stripes on the Indian Army uniform. The American commander of wild tribal warriors in the snowy mountains of an embattled princely state, he says he is ready, if necessary, to testify that Pakistan supported Moslem tribal invaders of Kashmir. He left India after an attempt on his life.

McNaughton UN Chairman As Knotty Issues Studied

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 3—(CP).—Faced immediately with the Palestine problem and with the dangerous Indian situation soon to come, the United Nations Security Council meets today under chairmanship of Canada's Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton. At the same time the Economic and Social Council settles down to work with little prospect of easing the differences between Russia and the West. This council, with a Canadian delegation in attendance, has a list of 43 items on its agenda, having to do with economic rehabilitation, social welfare, freedom of the press, health and sanitation and other assorted problems.

The Security Council was to consider a report by the partition committee urging the Council to take immediate action to prevent chaos in the Holy Land when the British mandate expires some time before May 15. Meanwhile reports from Syria indicate the Arab army is planning a general attack on Palestine to sweep

G. B. McGregor Heads Air Lines

MONTREAL, Feb. 3 — (CP)—Appointment of Gordon R. McGregor, a combat flier of the Second World War, as president of Trans-Canada Air Lines was announced to-day after meetings of the TCA and Canadian National Railways board of directors.

Mr. McGregor, who joined TCA in 1945, after serving with the RCAF, succeeds H. J. Symington who relinquished the post last November.

The first combat flier of the Second World War to become president of an air line, Mr. McGregor from 1923 until the outbreak of war in 1939, was a member of the staff of Bell Telephone Company of Canada, serving in Montreal, Ottawa and Kingston.

While in Kingston he became interested in aviation, and in 1939 went on active service.

During the Battle of Britain he ran up a score of five Nazi aircraft destroyed and shared credit in downing a sixth.

Acquit Jail Guard In Narcotics Case

TORONTO, Feb. 3 — (CP). — Eric Rankin, a guard at the Don Jail, was acquitted today of a charge of illegal possession of narcotics. Judge J. Ambrose Shea remarked that Rankin's story of how he came to be in possession of five heroin capsules "could be true."

Police said they found the capsules concealed in a package Rankin was delivering to a jail prisoner. The guard disclaimed all knowledge of the heroin and swore that the package — which also contained cigarettes, candy and tooth paste — was given to him by a former prisoner to be delivered to a man in custody.

Air Service Increased In Ontario

Favors Permanent Dates For Opening Angling Season—Scott

NIAGARA FALLS, Feb. 3 — (CP). — Ontario provincial air service will be increased from 28 to 40 planes this spring, Hon. Harold Scott, Lands and Forests Minister, last night told the annual banquet of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters.

All of the additional planes will be available for game and fish patrol services, he said.

Mr. Scott said he favored permanent opening dates for angling seasons. He cited trout as an example.

"May 1 is the deadline for their protection," he said. "Following that date they are fair game. We know that their popularity is bringing a pressure which they can hardly withstand.

"Our stocking of 3,000,000 yearling speckled and some 400,000 brown, rainbow and Kamloops is the direct answer which we are directing to this species. These trout really do need the protection we give them right up to May 1, regardless of weather conditions."

On the subject of black bass, he pointed out that the male fish guards the nest and small fry and "that taken one day too early may mean the loss of the whole school of 3,000 to 5,000 fry.

Duck Conservation

It has been found that July 1 is the best average opening day for the bass. He reported that 1,700,000 and 580,000 fingerlings of large and small-mouth bass were planted in Ontario waters last year.

Cognizance is being taken of the drop in the duck population, said the minister.

"We have had talks with authorities at Ottawa on the protection of breeding areas and steps are now under consideration to bring about the desired results."

A wildlife survey of the province has been started, "with the survey party consisting of a biologist, forester, geographer and chief of party."

Thieves Grab $80,000 Jewels

ASCOT, Berkshire, England, Feb. 3 (Reuters)—Thieves struck again last night at Sunningdale Park, known as "millionaires' land," and made off with £20,000 ($80,000) worth of jewelry belonging to a relative of the late Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen, British tobacco magnate.

Last October gems worth £20,000 were stolen from the Duchess of Windsor while she was staying at nearby Ednam House.

The jewels stolen last night were taken from a bedroom early in the evening. There was no indication of how the thieves had entered.

The house is not far from Princess Elizabeth's new home, Windlesham Moor.

Six UN Observer Teams Work On Greek Frontiers

SALONIKA, Greece, Feb. 3 — (AP). — Six permanent observation teams, "eyes and ears" of the United Nations Special Committee on the Balkans, are going to work on the frontiers of Greece as soon as the groups can be organized and trained.

"Observation Group No. 1," which recently investigated the guerrilla attack on Konitsa, already has been assigned to the area of Epirus. A second team was sent to the Florina area.

The remaining four will be sent to various points on the frontier from Thrace to the Adriatic coast.

Each team will be assigned to a definite area to investigate any alleged incident or suspected incidents involving two or more of the Balkan States.

Rules of procedure adopted by UNSCOB indicate that the "doors would be left open" for liaison officers of any interested governments (Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Albania) who might wish to join the observation groups.

Upon completion of any investigation a full report of each incident will be forwarded to a sub-committee for study before presentation to the entire special committee.

The observer teams will not be armed, although Gen. Markos, guerrilla commander, has declared the "guerrillas will assume no responsibility for the safety of the observers' lives while they are on the frontier."

The observers, however, are forbidden to proceed to any location where their personal safety is not reasonably provided for by the government of the area. In effect this means the teams will always work behind the Greek Army lines.

A Counter-Punch

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 — (AP).—The United States aimed a counter-punch today in the war of words with Russia. It charged Communist-dominated Romania with violating its new peace treaty. State Secretary Marshall gave notice at the same time, however, that the United States is ready to discuss again the Soviet proposal for a peace treaty for Austria. Marshall proposed that deputies of the Big Four Foreign Ministers' Council reconvene Feb. 20 in London to take up the Russian demands.

RCMP Begins Third Search For Story File

TORONTO, Feb. 3 — (CP). — Two RCMP corporals this afternoon started a third search of the downtown Richmond Street offices of New Liberty Magazine.

Managing editor Wallace Reyburn said the officers presented a warrant authorizing them to search for a file marked "Alberta Child Welfare" and a letter "commencing with 'Dear Jim' and signed or initialled by Harold Dingman."

Mr. Dingman is the magazine's Ottawa editor. He and Jack Kent Cooke, New Liberty manager, are charged by Alberta authorities with conspiracy to publish a defamatory libel.

Mr. Reyburn said that Cpl. J. J. Molyneux of Edmonton and Cpl. G. Mackay of Toronto presented the warrant to him at 1:40 p.m. to-day. Mr. Cooke, who flew back to Toronto to-day, was in the office and asked that the RCMP officers be accommodated in their search, the managing editor said.

Cpl. Molyneux was in charge of two RCMP searches last Saturday. Joseph Sedgwick, counsel for Mr. Cooke and Mr. Dingman, said yesterday that he believes the second search "constituted a trespass."

During the first visit to the magazine offices, the officers seized a copy of the "Babies for Export" article. They left, returned later and took away a copy of the same story, to which were attached certain notes.

Mr. Reyburn said the warrant presented to-day authorized Cpls. Molyneux and Mackay to search for a file marked "Alberta Child Welfare, containing correspondence and other papers dealing with the Alberta Child Welfare Commission and the Superintendent of Child Welfare for Alberta."

500 U.S. Paratroopers To Fight 'Invaders'

PINE CAMP, NY, Feb. 3. (AP) —Five hundred American paratroopers, conditioned against cold weather, were poised today for a mass jump against an imaginary enemy invading the United States from Canada.

Eighteen C-82 "flying boxcars" were on the ready line at Wheelersack airfield to carry the white-clad paratroopers participating in "Exercise Snowdrop" over their drop zone. Clear skies with a minimum temperature of 10 degrees above zero were forecast for the jump.

The paratroopers, acclimatized to cold weather by three months' training in temperatures ranging as low as 30 degrees below zero, were given the job of spearheading an attack against the make-believe enemy. They supposedly were part of a task force numbering 100,000 men.

The drop zone was a bleak, wind-swept field about five miles north of the village of Carthage, NY. Snow in the area was at least three feet deep.

Dies At Work

GODERICH, Feb. 3 — (CP)—Frederick Littlechild, 41-year-old father of seven children who was acquitted last January 17 of a charge of murder in the stabbing of his friend Charles Bell, collapsed and died to-day as he cut ice in the harbor of this Lake Huron port town.

Dr. W. F. Gallow, coroner, who said Littlechild received treatment for a heart condition, attributed his death to coronary thrombosis.

Angry Mobs Attack Hindu Groups

Will Show No Mercy To Those Plotting Against Government

NEW DELHI, Feb. 3.—(AP).—Throughout India today members of two militant Hindu groups which bitterly opposed Mohandas K. Gandhi's peace appeals were attacked by mobs enraged over the Hindu spiritual leader's assassination.

The Indian press said large numbers of both Maha Sabha and the R.S.S. were being arrested for questioning. Others were beaten and stoned.

Maha Sabha—literally great organization — is a political body with branches all over India. It seeks an India run solely by Hindu laws with no protection for Moslem rights at the expense of Hindus.

R.S.S.—Rastriya Swayam Sevaysangh — is another militant group with similar beliefs.

Both organizations are classed as Rightist. Both have been assailed as Fascist. Both maintain youth organizations called "volunteers" which have been described as private armies.

The New Delhi government of Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, in a pledge to maintain peace, yesterday banned private armies and organizations which preach violence and communal hatred.

Nehru appealed to the people to let the law take its course in the investigation of Friday's assassination.

The government has promised to show "no mercy" to those fomenting communal trouble — that Gandhi in death might be accorded the harmony he failed to achieve in life.

Despite the appeals and assurances violence continued to spread.

News dispatches saaid 135 R.S.S. members and six Maha Sbha followers were arrested at Nagpur and Cawnpore following rioting. The Maha Sabha leader in the United Provinces area was reported arrested at Gorakhpur.

Warns Denmark Export Threat

TORONTO, Feb. 3 — (CP). — Denmark is the greatest threat to the Canadian export market in pork, Sir Andrew Jones yesterday told the Ontario Swine Breeders' Association and the Yorkshire Breeders' Association.

Head of the British Food Mission in Canada, Sir Andrew was addressing two of the many farmers' organizations, comprising some 4,000 agriculturists from all across Canada, who are meeting here during next two weeks in annual convention.

Sir Andrew declared that Canadians and British alike were paying for th steep rise in feed prices which followed removal of ceilings.

Great Britain had agreed to a higher bacon price on the understanding that price of barley and other grains would not move upward accordingly. Britons, he said, pleaded "not guilty" to the charges their higher offers had caused the mark-up in the grain prices.

Wheeler Will Head AFL Political League

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 3. (AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today announced the selection of Burton K. Wheeler, former Democratic Senator from Montana, as director of the AFL's new political league in the coming elections.

The post will pay $20,000, Green said. Wheeler, 66, will appear before the 30-member administrative committee of the newly-formed league here tomorrow.

The AFL head said the wartime isolationist views of ex-senator Wheeler would not interfere with the political objectives of the labor organization, because they were primarily to bring about repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Barbara Ann Well In Lead At Olympics As Soft Ice Causes Delay In Skating

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 3 (CP).—The women's figure-skating event at the fifth winter Olympics was postponed until tomorrow after the first half of the compulsory figures had been skated today with Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa in the lead.

Softening ice made the postponement necessary.

The favored Canadian star scored 330.6 points in her first two compulsory figures. Gretchen Merrill of Boston, the five-time United States champion, was in seventh place with 311.1 points.

The second spot in the women's figure skating competition with three more school figures today, was Eva Pawlik of Austria, 8.4 points back of Miss Scott.

Compulsory figures count 60 per cent in the figure skating event. Free skating, to be staged later, counts 40 per cent.

Marilyn Ruth Take of Toronto was in eighth place.

Say Entire British Zone Paralyzed Today As Three Million Strike

HAMBURG, Feb. 3—(AP).—Nearly 3,000,000 German workers went on a 24-hour hunger strike today. The walkout is expected to stall industry in the entire British zone and the state of Wurttemberg-Baden in the American sector. Three simultaneous strikes began at midnight over an area reaching from Hamburg to Stuttgart. It was the greatest mass demonstration of this type yet held in Germany. Street cars and trains stopped running at the appointed hour in Stuttgart, Heidelberg, Mannheim and other major cities while in factories night shift workers left their machines.

Only vital utilities continued to operate.

About 1,000,000 workers are involved in the Wurttemberg-Baden tie-up. The strikers have adopted the slogan the "unequally laden table."

In both zones the walkouts appear to be aimed against German food officials rather than the occupying powers.

Office Workers

Most of the strikers in the British sector are office workers seeking food rations equal to those for laborers.

Labor leaders are demanding a more even distribution of food, much of which is being diverted into the black market.

Both the British and American military governments have declared a policy of non-intervention.

Union and military government officials concurred in the opinion that the walkouts were not in the main Communist-inspired.

Recently mass demonstrations against food shortages have been called in the industrial Ruhr and the United States zone state of Bavaria.

Gas Shortage Crippling Brantford Area

By The Canadian Press

The Brantford district today is feeling for the first time the full impact of the natural gas shortage which struck many parts of southwestern Ontario with the advent of sub-zero weather two weeks ago.

A spokesman for the Dominion Natural Gas Company said last night in Brantford there is danger of complete failure of the company's system in that city unless emergency supplies are received today.

St. Thomas 50 miles southwest of Brantford, was less seriously affected but faced the threat of a situation similar to the one developing in the Brant county centre.

The Dominion spokesman in Brantford said: "We are practically out of supplies and if we don't get any I don't know what we will do."

In Toronto, the Ontario fuel controller, A. R. Crozier, said allocation of emergency supplies to

Well-Trained Armed Men In Damascus

Plan Frontal Blow Against Jews; Many Trained In Syria

DAMASCUS, Feb. 3. (AP) — Truckloads of armed Arabs rolling into Damascus led many observers to believe today that a general attack on Palestine Jews may be approaching.

Some believe such an attack has been set for Feb. 15.

Fawzi Bey Al Kaukji, leader of the Arab forces, told reporters that "the Middle East's finest army is moving in."

He expects to move his headquarters to Palestine "soon", and to assume personal direction of operations.

"We are organizing slowly and thoroughly for an all-out fight," he said. "When we strike it will be with confidence of complete victory."

"Direct Attack"

Ahmed Sharabati, Syrian defence minister, said in an interview Jan. 13 that a "direct frontal attack against Jewish forces can be expected." He said such an offensive, to sweep Zionism from Palestine, would be launched this month.

An Arab "people's army" would make the attack, fighting against the partition of Palestine approved Nov. 29 by the United Nations.

The Exiled Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin Al Husseini, is in Damascus meeting with members of the Arab higher executive.

At least four truck convoys of cheering, rifle-bearing Arabs arrived in Damascus last night. Observers estimated the convoys carried about 1,000 men. A Syrian army officer said they had been trained in several Syrian camps.

Foreign military observers looked on the army as one composed of "smart, tough and mature fighting men." Some of the volunteers were believed to be former soldiers.

Trophy Winner Dundas Man

NIAGARA FALLS, Feb. 3 — (Special). — Nine men were nominated for the Carling Conservation Trophy at the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters being held at the General Brock Hotel, Niagara Falls. The section made late Monday by the executive committee of 25 members voting by secret ballot William Smith past president of the Federation from Dundas was named for his work in bringing about amalgamation of sportsmen from Northern and Southern Ontario. This was regarded as the finest piece of conservation work of the year.

The trophy is awarded annually to the individual who makes the most notable contribution to the cause of conservation in Ontario, and those nominated were Bill Smith of Dundas, J. J. Girling of Hamilton, Pete McGillen, city editor of The Peterborough Examiner, Austin Peters of Kingston, president of the Federation, Harry Banks of St. Catharines, Vivian Sutton of Windsor, vice-president of the Federation, Dr. Norman K. Douglas of Owen Sound, Major Fred Roberts of Brantford, J. Wagner of Delhi and Prof. Dymond of the Royal Ontario Museum.

Ask Second Beer Vote For Tweed Citizens

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 3—An application for a second vote on whether a beverage room for the sale of beer will be permitted in the village of Tweed was heard before Judge J. A. Anderson at the county buildings here Monday.

In the absence of some witnesses from out of town who could not appear, the session was adjourned until Feb. 13. The application for the new vote is being made by Ed J. Courneyea, Tweed hotel proprietor, on the grounds that there were irregularities in the counting of ballots after the vote last fall. At that time the beverage room was defeated by a slim majority of five or six votes.

King Hints Tax Cuts For Budget

Other Sources Say Major Reduction Not Likely In '48

By JOHN LEBLANC

OTTAWA, Feb. 3—(CP). — A tantalizing whiff of the heady wine of tax reduction had Parliament Hill speculating today on the possibility of the Government setting them up for the taxpayer in the next budget, possibly in April or May.

But, despite an oblique reference to taxation easement in a Commons speech by Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday, the chances for major tax cuts this year did not seem too bright.

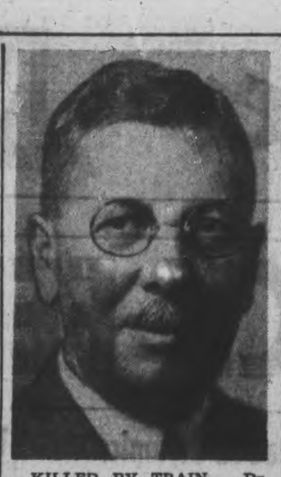
The Prime Minister, introducing his motion to set up a prices committee, was talking about the cost of living, and he said the papers were claiming that the way to bring it down was to "make certain changes" in taxes.

But the Government, he quickly added, "cannot disclose its program on this matter until the budget itself is brought down."

That was all he said, but the mention of "its program" left observers wondering whether Mr. King might not be tipping off the country that the Government has something up its sleeve for the tax-paying citizens.

Top Secret

Budget tax changes are top secret, and any reference to them in advance would have to be very discreet. Mr King's statement was just that.



It must be read, too, in the light of the fact that it would not be politically smart for a government head to toss out even a hint of tax reduction unless he happened to follow it up.

On the other hand, there has been no indication that the government has departed from its policy of "cyclical budgeting." That program calls for high taxation in periods of high national revenue—such as now—with this double end in view:

1. To provide a financial cushion against hard times.

2. To drain away surplus purchasing power as a weapon against inflation.

So far as can be learned, this double-edged program is still in effect. What is likely is that there will be some modifications here and there is the light of an expected heavy surplus this year, but that Finance Minister Abbott will still have an open palm extended to the taxpayers when his new budget comes down in the spring.

Demand Probe Into Trucking

TORONTO, Feb. 3 —(CP)—An immediate probe into Ontario's transport industry was asked of Highways Minister Doucett last night by the General Truck Drivers' Union (AFL).

The union charged in a brief to the minister that drivers are sleeping in their trucks at the side of the road, in rat-infested warehouses under filthy conditions and nine to a room holding only three beds.

The new charges arose out of a reply from Mr. Doucett to a brief by the union calling for an investigation of "violations" of the law by trucking operators engaged in "cut-rate competition." William Mills, union president said the stability of the industry was jeopardized by tactics of rate-cutting operators which "violated" hours of work, tonnage and safety regulations.

Mr. Doucett had replied the brief would be held for future reference.

Moscrop Kitchen Damaged By Fire

Fire believed to have started from an overheated stove did today an unestimated amount of damage to the kitchen and furnishings at the home of Arthur Moscrop, 51 Sophia St.

Mrs. Moscrop said she had put coal in the stove, which stands in one corner of the room close to the wall, and had then gone upstairs. A short time later she heard a strange noise and came downstairs to investigate. Flames about a foot in length had covered two walls and part of the ceiling. Clothes which she had hung on a rack near the stove and window curtains had caught fire.

One of the fire trucks that came in answer to the alarm stalled and had to be abandoned on the Hunter St. bridge. However the delay was only temporary and the blaze was soon extinguished.

Acting Fire Chief George Smith said he believed the outbreak was due to an overheated stove. And he cautioned householders in general not to put stoves and pipes too near walls; also not to put drying clothes too close to a hot stove.

Second School Burns Within 24 Hours

COBALT, Feb. 3 —(CP)—Fire early today destroyed the brick public school in suburban North Cobalt, 24 hours after the community's one-storey high school was demolished by flames.

The public school blaze was discovered by Mrs. H. Culhane, who lives nearby, but before she was able to arouse neighbors and turn in an alarm, the fire had made great headway. With no water supply in the village, residents could take no action but throw snow on embers falling on adjoining houses.

Yesterday's fire gutted the high school, a building valued at $25,000. Cause of the fires has not been determined.

Red Army Paper Denies Planes In Arctic

LONDON, Feb. 3 — (CP). — The Soviet Monitor today quoted an article from the Russian army newspaper, Red Star, which described as a "provocative invention" a report that aircraft with Russian identification marks had been seen over Cambridge Gulf in the Canadian Arctic.

The article began with a derisive comment on the flying saucers said to have been seen in many places in North America last summer. Then it added:

"The fantastic story of 'cones' or 'flying saucers' directed from Soviet territory is already left behind by the 'Canadian Press' agency which hastened to surprise its countrymen with a new provocative invention.

"A certain Dumas who returned from Cambridge Gulf, sensationally reported that in September he saw in that area two four-engined aircraft with Russian identification marks. How did Soviet aircraft find their way to Cambridge Gulf, where did they come from and where were they flying to?

"As is known, the slanderers did not take pains to give proof. However, in order to give their lies at least the appearance of truth, they usually supply lavishly various details. This very fact exposes the liars of the 'Canadian Press.'

"It has been ascertained that according to the same Dumas the aircraft he saw were similar to American Superfortresses.

"Such is the inglorious end to yet another Canadian provocation."

certain essential industries is being considered.

"There has been no decision made, but the possibility of rationing it on a priority basis is being studied. The emergency is still on and although it hasn't grown any worse, we can only depend on the weather."

Dominion supplies the Brantford-St. Thomas area and complete break-down would paralyze much of its domestic heating and cooking facilities.

As upwards of 20,000 automobile workers in the Windsor area began their second week of idleness because of shut-downs, 20 industrial leaders met with Mayor J. Reaume and Russell M. Perkins. Windsor Gas Company manager, yesterday. The meeting heard a demand from industry that Union Gas must either fulfil its contract to supply gas or surrender its franchise.

Mayor Reaume said he was tired of listening to the company's reasons for the shortage.

"I am not prepared any longer to accept the word of the company. This matter goes a lot farther than just the present crisis. It goes back to 1942. After all these years, even yet, the gas company is not able to tell us whether we will get more gas in 1949, 1952 — or ever."

Ask If Shelter Site For Sale At Council Meet

"I doubt that they will [illegible]quish their hold on the pr[illegible]ty," said Grant Miller Monday night as the council decided to ask the Children's Aid Society whether they would sell the Shelter property, George St. south, proposed as a site for the Community Memorial Centre.

The motion by Ald. Douglas Miller, seconded by Ald. H. Dodds, merely asks whether the property "can be bought."

The property was listed with two others suggested recently by the Memorial Centre committee. It was at the top of the list. The two others were—the east side of Burnham St., between Hunter and Robinson St., and the Nicholls Oval.

"I don't think you could get anything on the Shelter property other than a glorified rink," Ald. G. Miler said. A member of the C.A.S. had recently explained to him that the Shelter had been gradually improved in its accommodation and comforts to the satisfactory condition in which it is now a most desirable temporary home for wards of the society.

"I'm told it will amply accommodate the plans of the Centre," Mayor Wm. Ovens remarked.

Ald. Dodds suggested that soundings be taken by the Centre committee.

"Wait until we hear if the C.A.S. will sell," Ald. Herbert Young said.

Smallwood Presses For Vote On Union

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 3 — (CP).—Joseph Smallwood, leader of the movement for Newfoundland confederation with Canada, said today that more than 11,000 Newfoundlanders telegraphed his headquarters yesterday demanding that the question of union with Canada be submitted to them in this spring's referendum on the form of government the island should adopt.

Last week the convention called to discuss future forms of government voted 29-16 against placing confederation on the ballot. If this recommendation were followed the alternatives placed before the people would be a return to responsible government or continuation of the commission government which has administered the island since 1934.

Smallwood said today that the demand for an opportunity to vote on confederation had come "from 250 fishing villages and other small towns after hundreds of public meetings."

He added that "today thousands more are telegraphing" that a petition is being circulated in St. John's, and that all messages and petitions are being flown to the British Government.

Blame Foreman, Company For Cave-In

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 3.—(CP). —Blame for the death of two men in a cave-in of a sewer excavation here Jan. 20 was placed last night by a coroner's jury on the construction company involved and its foreman.

The foreman, Joe Formica of Toronto, died with George Blackwell of London after tons of earth slid into the open pit. Another employee crawled through the sewer pipe to safety.

Recommending that a city by-law be passed embodying a safety clause for all future contracts involving the city, the verdict said in part: "We find the contracting firm, the Wainright Construction Company, and its foreman both negligent. The work . . . was not being handled in a reasonably safe and proper manner."

One of the 19 witnesses questioned at the 9½ hour hearing, William Munro, Ontario Labor Department inspector, said there was no cribbing, shoring or other safety device in evidence in the excavation.

J. E. Wainright, president of the construction company, testified the city had no part in the work and that operation of the job was left to the foreman, who knew the safety regulations.

Six safety officials and engineers testified the work should not have been done without some type of reinforcement.

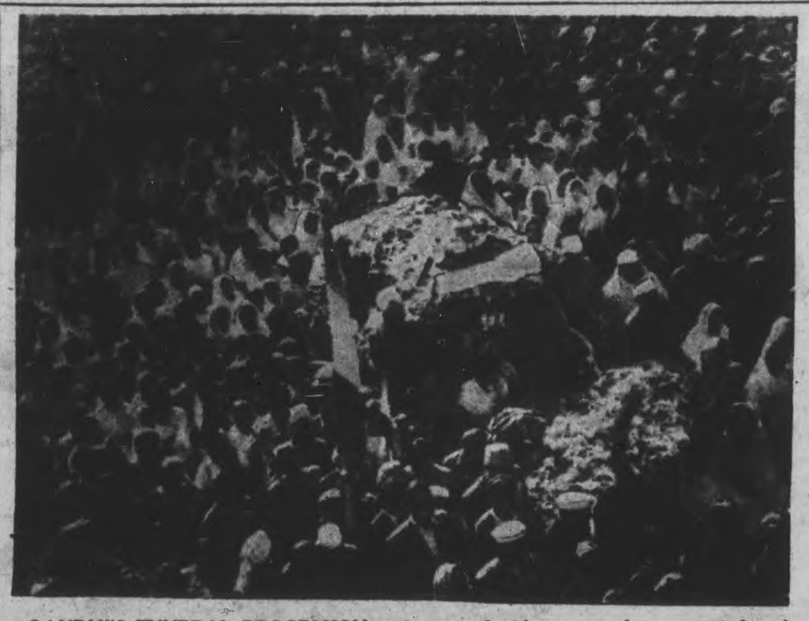
Damage Actions Set Down For CobourgHearing



COBOURG, Feb. 3 — (ENS).—Aftermath of the James Angus case, an attempted murder trial which was held last fall at Cobourg in which Angus was found not guilty of attempting to murder Jack Jackson, a suit for damages is on the jury list of the Supreme Court which opens on February 9 before Mr. Justice Genest.

Jackson is suing Angus for $2,500 for alleged personal damages suffered in an alleged knife attack on April 27 of last year. Plaintiff claims that Angus in addition caused damage to contents of the Jackson dwelling at Baltimore. In the defence, Angus contends that if any wound was inflicted it was done in self-defence and that damage to chattels in the dwelling occurred while the plaintiff in the counterclaim was in a dazed condition after the fight. Angus seeks $5,000 damages from Jackson for alienation of Mrs. Angus' affections and $5,000 for alleged criminal conversation and a further sum of $2,500 for assault.

Second jury action is a claim for damages brought by Lloyd Harren and Malcolm Bird of Cobourg against Edward and Marjorie Blackwell of Peterborough. The case is the result of a motor accident which occurred last July. Bird is the owner of a taxi involved and Harren is the driver. Harren seeks damages of $673.10 and Bird is asking for $900. In the counter-claim, Mrs. Blackwell is suing for $1,525 damages and Mr. Blackwell asks damages of $1,036.

Third case on the jury list is Victor Jurkovich of Port Hope vs. Frances Jurkovich of Toronto. It is an action which seeks divorce plus $5,000 damages for alienation of affections against the co-respondent plus $5,000 for criminal conversation. A defence has been entered.

Two divorce actions are on the non-jury list, Clifford Crossen of Cobourg vs. Florence Crossen of the District of MccLeod, Alberta, and Fred White of Cobourg vs. Mabel White of Kingston. The other case on the docket is a dispute over a mortgage, the plaintiff being Lloyd Long of Peterborough and the defendant Evelyn Long of Omemee.

Campbellford Council Plans To Reduce Police Force

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 3—(ENS).—The town police force of three is to be reduced to two. On a motion by Wilbert A. Kingston and seconded by Peter H. MacMillan, the council agreed to ask for the resignation of all three on or before March 31. Applications will be advertised for, it being understood that the present officers may apply, but only two applicants will be hired. On the present force are Constables Fred Cargin and Cecil White, and the chief, George Hardy.

At a previous meeting this question of reducing the police force was discussed. Walter F. Burgess, chairman of the police committee, stated he thought a town of about 3,000 people would not have adequate protection from two policemen. He summarized their work during 1947 and said that while there had been no serious crimes committed there had been, to his knowledge, several prevented because of prompt, efficient and adequate policing.

J. C. Anderson, reeve, said during his years in business as a hardware merchant he had never required police service. Mr. Burgess countered with the statement that he had paid fire insurance on his property for many years but had never had a serious fire.

Not Proper Protection

P. H. Macmillan said the town was not getting proper protection as regards the snow removal by-law and the matter of used cars being parked along tthe streets, particularly at the corner of Rear and Bridge Sts. Charles Palliser said he knew of sidewalks which had not been shovelled this winter.

Mayor Harvey M. Donald said the police were doing a good job, but the council must decide on how much money they could afford for police protection. The constables were not satisfied at their present wage of $1,600 a year and it was rumored they were going to ask for a $500 raise.

W. A. Kingston held two officers were enough. If there are kept on the force he said, their wages would have to be raised some and he thought it would be much better to have only two drawing a substantial salary than to have three underpaid and dissatisfied.

The police committee of Mr. Burgess, Mr. Palliser and the deputy-reeve, Ralph Locke, were instructed to talk over the salary question with the police and present their findings to the council last night.

The police agreed to carry on at their present salary of pay if all three were kept on the force. But one, perhaps all three, will go on March 31, according to the council's decision.

The following is a record of police activities from Jan 1 to Dec. 28:

Telephone calls 2,114; complaints, general, 183; complaints, domestic, 26; accidents (automobile) 65; accidents (street) 15; accidents (miscellaneous) 4; autos stolen 4; autos recovered 4; bicycles stolen 8; bicycles recovered 8; property stolen (miscellaneous) $260.00; property recovered (miscellaneous) $192.00; property list $177.00; property recovered $138.00; premises found insecure 34; fires discovered 4; cases of theft 9; cases of house breaking 2; cases of shop breaking 2; investigations 69; arrests for other municipalities 2; arrests (criminal offenses) 16, fines $105.00; arrests (Highway Traffic Act) 79, fines $157.50; arrests (Liquor Act) 28, fines $446.90; summonses and local bylaws 6, $27.50; warnings regarding parking regulations 86; cases of suspended sentences (Criminal Code) 9.

Anglican Commission Weighs Job Of Church In Mass Man Age

By STUART UNDERHILL

LONDON, Feb. 3—(CP).—A commission appointed by the Church of England to weigh the task of the Church in the age of the "mass man" makes two strong recommendations —that church workers seek Christian vocations in the secular world and that family life be fostered in the orbit of the local parish church. "The real dilemma for the church today is to penetrate the secular world through its handful of active Christians, whom it has first to inspire with the knowledge of continuous experience of its own divine fellowship," said the report of the commission of 37, which has as its chairman Sir Anderson Montague-Barlow.

It recommended that the church "consider the need for directing the attention of Christians to those occupations within the industrial and professional world which are particularly liable to turn the scale for or against family and social well-being."

There should be "positive encouragement" toward vocations directly concerned with personal development, such as teaching, maternity and child welfare.

The commission repudiated the suggestion that the church should withdraw from worldly affairs, although admitting that "the circumstances of our time impose such conditions upon people's lives...that the ordinary communicant finds it well-nigh impossible to fulfill the obligation of faithful churchmanship and at the same time play an active part in the social life of the secular community."

Can't Make Truce

The church, however, "can make no truce with the notion that God is interested in men and women only when they are being in the narrow and specific sense 'religious.' The church is committed . . . to a concern with the secular activities of men and societies."

At the same time it must not come to be regarded as "just one more voluntary agency for promoting social welfare under the direction of the Welfare States."

In its summing-up the Commission said the parish church was the outlet for the worth of each person, and therefore everything possible should be done "to make possible a family worship in which all our activities find a focus."

Parish meetings should be ready to sponsor special discussion groups to deal with common problems, and should be prepared to consider local and national issues even though they entered politics.

"Shall we in England continue to attempt to spread a thin Christian veneer over a non-Christian society, or shall we attempt the creation of truly Christian communities of one sort or another, parochial and non-parochial?" it asked. "Can every parish in England become a truly missionary community again?"

Big East-West Spread Say Thermometers

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 3. — (ENS).—It was cold here last Saturday morning, but just how cold seems to be a matter of doubt, even with the experts.

In fact, to believe some thermometers it was 15 degrees colder on the east side of the river than on the west. At 6.30 a.m. one thermometer at the Campbellford District Co-operative store registered -26 degrees, another hanging just above read -20. Nearer the bridge at Barnum's drug store, it was getting warmer at -15, and directly across the bridge at Lowrey"s ice cream parlor, Birk's drug store and Atkinson's store, thermometers read respectively, -13, -10 and -9. It must have been quite balmy at Edgewater park, near the western limits of town.

Sub Contractor Of Garbage Wishes To Quit

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 3. — (ENS)—Unless his salary is raised from $6.50 a day to $3,000 per year, Ellis Wood, garbage collector, informed the council in a letter Monday night, that he was resigning his position on Feb. 14.

But the original contract for garbage collection was let to David Bowen by the council and does not expire until April 1, 1948. When Mr. Bowen turned the work over to Mr. Wood last summer, he did not get a release from his contract.

On a motion from Walter Burgess the clerk was instructed to contact Bowen and tell him he is still responsible for the contract and cannot be released from it until after April 1, at which time he may obtain a release by giving 30 days' notice in writing.

The mill rate for 1948 is to be set at a special meeting of council to be called by the mayor.

The Film Board's Annual Report

The Annual Report of the National Film Board of Canada has reached us, and we think that it tells a very good story. Because there is a tendency in some quarters to snipe at the Film Board and to accuse it of extravagance we should like to draw the attention of our readers to these significant figures: the Film Board was alloted $2,290,148 last year and it spent $2,285,486.34—that is to say it was within its budget by a margin in excess of $4,500. It did work on contracts for federal and provincial government departments to the extent of $829,352—and was paid for this work, of course. The further revenue taken in by the Film Board for various services was $67,133—which may be regarded as profit for the Dominion of Canada.

* * * *

Apart from this financial record, which appears to us to be an excellent one, some attempt must be made to decide what the Board has done for Canada. The people of Peterborough County can make such a reckoning as well as any community in the country, for we make good use of the Board's facilities here. They have brought information and intellectual stimulus and entertainment to people who are outside the range of our libraries; during its last year of operation the local Film Council gave 659 showings to a total audience of 88,000 people in this district. We consider that this is success on a very high level. Nor are we unmindful of the fact that twice recently the Film Board has sent representatives to this city to make records of some of our local activities, in order that other Canadian communities may see what we are doing and, if they choose, follow our example. If the Film Board is as valuable to other Canadian areas as it is to Peterborough County, it is certainly one of the most efficacious and cheapest educational agencies in the country.

* * *

The Film Board has its enemies, and so far as we are able to judge they are drawn from that small but determined element in the country which is hostile toward art and new developments in education, and which cannot think of the Film Board's work as anything but "movies"—a damning word, implying a type of entertainment foolish at best and downright immoral at worst. But disregarding such numbskulls, the Film Board also has its supporters, even among people who are not fully conscious of what the Board is, or how it works; these supporters are the thousands in Peterborough County and similar districts from the Maritimes to the West Coast, who find in the showings of the Film Councils something to feed their minds, something to chew on, something to increase their knowledge of the world and particularly of our own large and varied country. And the Film Board has its friends, too, among those who know what it is doing for districts like this, and how eloquently it is speaking for Canada to audiences all over the world. The Film Board has come to stay, and considering the value of the work it does and the excellence of its Financial Report, we wonder whether it does not deserve an increased appropriation?

Europe Is Helping Itself

E.R.P. is necessary to Europe, but that alone will not preserve it. The people and nations must help themselves. Have they been doing this? The head of the World Bank and former U.S. Assistant Secretary of War, Mr. John J. McCloy, says "yes" and gives some encouraging figures to substantiate this.

Before the war Western Europe was one of the two most productive areas in the world; the other was the United States. It would be gross pessimism to think that Western Europe productivity is forever destroyed, and according to Mr. McCloy's facts, it is unrealistic. Before the war the sixteen nations included in the Marshall Plan mined more coal, produced more electricity, built and sailed more ships, and wove more textiles than the United States. Their production of steel and machinery, their transportation of goods and their farm produce were of the same magnitude.

What is the story now? Mr. McCloy visited Europe at the end of the war and again last fall. In the interval between visits he found seven of Western Europe's eight million displaced persons had been re-settled. Despite heavy war damage Europe's transport system carried more passengers and freight in 1947 than in 1938. The continent's shipyards are doing fifty per cent. more business than in pre-war years; production of electric power is forty per cent. greater.

Steel and coal production are still low, but progress is being made. Last year the British mined 92 per cent. of pre-war coal production. On the continent the percentage was 88. Steel production is lagging. It should be remembered that workers in these heavy industries cannot get along without food, and that there is real danger that even the present level of production will be lowered unless more food is available.

In general, British, Scandinavian and Belgian industrial production is now above pre-war levels. France and The Netherlands are reaching those levels. In Germany, Austria and Italy production is considerably below 1938's, and will remain so unless until E.R.P. comes into full operation.

The Kingston Whig-Standard says in its editorial comment on Mr. McCloy's statements:

> A mere return to pre-war production levels is not a satisfactory goal for the nations of Western Europe, or for the nations deeply concerned in the recovery of Western Europe. The goal is for higher production to provide a better standard of living for Western Europe's increasing population.

This increment of population is a strange and important fact—strange considering the slaughter of civilians and the exodus of Jews during the war. There has, of course, been a great migration from Eastern to Western Europe. Before the war the population of Western Europe was 264,000,000; now it is 270,000,000. That means six million more mouths to feed and bodies to house and clothe—in impoverished and shattered countries poorly equipped at present to provide food, warmth, shelter and clothing.

A Canadian Governor-General

The suggestion that a Canadian be appointed as Governor-General is again being bruited abroad. This time Mr. King is the suggested candidate. The Prime Minister could fittingly hold many high offices, but not that one. He is a party man and could not shake off his affiliations. We think, too, that the office is unsuited to a Canadian.

The experiment of having a native-born Governor-General was tried in Australia without great success. Canada is a democracy but it is also a monarchy. The Governor-General as personal representative of the Crown must bring to his office something of the vice-regal air. He is expected to have "a little touch of Harry" — Henry the Fifth, not President Harry Truman.

The Governors-General have given Canadian society a courtly and dignified direction. In recent years they have been men of vigour (no old man can cope successfully with the physical demands of the office), wide experience and outstanding ability. These have been directly beneficial to the Government and the citizens generally. Lord Willingdon was Viceroy of India and an able administrator. Baron Tweedsmuir was an experienced diplomat. Viscount Alexander is one of the great military commanders of this century.

Such men have given an impetus to our cultural development. Lord Willingdon was a composer. Each New Year's day a program of his songs was presented at Rideau Hall. Through his interest a fund was established to assist musical composers and the fruits are now appearing. Recently the Toronto Symphony orchestra presented a complete program by Canadian composers—whose work is already favourably known in the United States and Britain. Through Lord Bessborough, an actor, the Little Theatre movement was founded. Lord Tweedsmuir, best known as the writer John Buchan, instituted the Governor-General's literary prizes and encouraged our writers. Viscount Alexander is a painter—two of his canvases were exhibited last spring in Montreal. Where he leads, others will follow.

As long as His Majesty can provide British Governors-General of this calibre Canadians will thankfully receive them.

A psychologist is trying to find out why movie-goers like cartoons best. Maybe it's because people are getting sick of people.

From Parliament Hill

By A. J. THOMAS

PARLIAMENT reconvened on Monday, January 26th. In the Commons a daily procedure for the next several weeks was agreed to — the debate on the Speech from the Throne is to be continued on Wednesdays and Thursdays and on the other days priority is to be given to the Government's emergency measures — notably the exchange conservation measures and the transitional powers bill.

The Prime Minister announced the resignation of the Right Hon. Ian Mackenzie as Minister of Veterans Affairs and the appointment of the Hon. Milton Gregg to the position. This left Fisheries vacant — and Mr. MacKinnon was transferred from Trade and Commerce to it. The shuffle prepared the way for the assumption by the Right Hon. C. D. Howe of co-ordinated economic powers which had already been assigned. Mr. Howe is now Minister of Trade and Commerce and Minister of Reconstruction and Supply and has greater authority to direct the economy of the country than any one man has ever held in peace times. Mr. Mackenzie has been summoned to the Senate. In the Commons he was senior in appointment to all other Cabinet Ministers, except Mr. King. As recent Government Leader in the Commons he had not been remarkably successful in dealing with the Opposition. In the Senate he will be a strong Government voice. The Department of National War Services has ceased to exist, and Mr. McCann has now the one post of Minister of National Revenue.

The chief business on Monday, Tuesday and Friday was the second reading of Bill Number 3—popularly called Mr. Abbott's import restrictions bill. This Bill will give parliamentary sanction to the regulations and decrees announced a month ago when special taxes and duties were put on manufactured articles and a large number of American goods were banned from import.

People not familiar with parliamentary procedure may be flummoxed by the terms first, second and third reading. Before a Bill can become law it must pass three readings (stages) in both Houses of Parliament. Introduction and first reading are usually a formality. Second reading means adoption of the principle of the Bill. Parliamentary debate on the Bill is largely carried on during the Second Reading. After it has passed this, the Bill goes into committee where its details are discussed. From committee it is reported back to the House for third and final reading. Then it is passed to the Governor-General for signature, and so becomes law.

The opposition to the Emergency Measures Bill came from both C.C.F. and Conservatives. C.C.F. speakers claimed that the Government was making Canada subservient to Uncle Sam and criticized it for (a) not lifting the ban on fresh vegetables, (b) too few price ceilings, (c) the protectionist aspect of the program. The Conservatives reiterated their demand for devaluing the Canadian dollar.

Mr. Abbott said that if the Canadian dollar were devalued, the resultant increase in the cost of living would be "something to make your hair curl.... Anyone who says that even a ten per cent. devalution is uninflationary is living in a dream world".

The Minister of Finance spoke of the effect of the restrictions to date. Less than 1.5 per cent. of the total British import was affected, and he claimed that the program stimulated rather than restricted British imports. He cited textiles as an example: under the regulations U.S. imports were cut one-third, and a British quota of 200 per cent. was allowed. Mr. Abbott described the principle of Bill Number 3 in one phrase: Whether import restrictions should be used to conserve United States dollar reserves. The regulations seemed to be achieving their purpose. Before they were applied American dollar reserves were dwindling at a shocking rate; during the last month they were up 53 million dollars.

Division on the second reading took place shortly after 6 p.m. on Friday. It is a poor time to take a vote, because many M.P.'s have already left for their homes and others are anxious to get away for the week-end. The measure was upheld 84-70—a total of 154 votes in a House of 245. The absentees included 31 Conservatives and about 50 Liberals.

The debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne continued on Wednesday and Thursday, and gave many private members an opportunity to air their views on prices, veterans affairs, national income and matters which would have special interest to citizens of the speakers' constituencies. Mr. McIvor (Fort William) spoke of Fort William's needs, one of them being more money for a hockey rink and community centre they are trying to build. They have only $107,000 and need $100,000 more. Mr. McIvor's introductory remarks were a tribute to "two great Canadians":

"When I saw these two men in action and when I learned that the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) began his day by keeping quiet and reading a chapter out of his old Bible, I knew that under his leadership the country was safe. And when I saw the late Lord Bennett in action, sitting over yonder, I could not but admire him, and today I prize amongst my chief treasures a book autographed by him, the life and times of John Wesley. Of course if the book had been the life and times of John Knox I would have appreciated it just as much."

On Friday as the House adjourned the Prime Minister announced that he had the names of the members of the select committee on the investigation of prices. The first order of business on Monday was the ratification of this committee. The sixteen members will report on (a) the cause of the recent rise in the cost of living; (b) prices which have been raised above the levels justified by increased costs; (c) rises in prices due to the acquiring, accumulating or withholding of goods from sale.

In the Upper House the Senators debated the reply to the Speech from the Throne and gave first and second reading to many private bills, the most interesting being the bill respecting the Bell Telephone Company's request for a 233 per cent. increase in its capital stock. The Bell is planning a ten-year program of expansion, at a cost of 700 million dollars.

On Wednesday Senator Davies spoke in detail about Unemployment Insurance, noting that the Commission had now an enormous reserve of nearly 373 millions, although the total spent by the federal government for relief during the depression, specifically from September 1930 to March 31, 1936, was considerably less—204 million dollars. He questioned the need for such a great income as the Commission is now receiving. On Thursday, the Hon. Iva Fallis (Peterborough) spoke on the high cost of food, and the trek of young men from rural to urban jobs. She asked for an easing of the tax burden, by removing, for instance, the 8 per cent. sales tax, which, she said, would help the people in the very lowest income bracket.

Senator Hugessen addressed the Upper House at length on Russia and its impact on western democracies. His theme was that Russian imperialism was a danger but, quoting the words of Karl Marx in 1853 when Czarist Russia was making demands upon Turkey: "If the other powers hold firm, Russia is sure to retire in a very decent manner". It is good for the government of this country that one can hear in the Senate such speeches as Senator Hugessen's. Another indication of the value of the Senate was given by the Hon. Rupert Davies when he cited a Bill that had come up from the Commons. The Senate examined it, and made 67 amendments to its clauses. All of these were accepted by the Commons when the Bill was sent back to it.

WHAT ABOUT THE BROCK ST. RINK

Sir: Along with other interested citizens I attended the meeting at the Market Hall last Thursday night, and was indeed agreeably surprised at the large crowd who showed such keen interest in the question of a secondary ice rink. Some good and some not so good suggestions were put forward, I have one that I would like to suggest through your valuable paper.

Why not, before going ahead with the secondary rink project, which will only be temporary I understand, approach the now owners of the Brock Street ex-rink to see if they would come to some arrangement perhaps on a rental basis plus share of the gates, or some such agreement?

An ice plant could be installed there and later removed to a permanent rink when the time comes.

The citizens of our fair city have subscribed a goodly sum to the building of a Memorial Centre and are entitled to see this Centre a fact, in building a secondary rink I like others fear the Memorial Centre will be put off for years, and even if it wasn't and both were built one or the other would or could become another White Elephant.

By having the Brock Street Arena, providing of course it could be secured, we would be assured of our hockey next winter in comfort, and would also eliminate the necessity of building the secondary rink and would leave a clear field for the building of the Memorial Centre which is dear to every one who subscribed.

If further subscriptions are needed for the suggestion I am making I am sure it would be forthcoming, and I would be the first to donate, and lend any assistance within my power.

Yours sincerely,
LOUIS YEOTES.

TAKES ISSUE WITH J. S. McLEAN

Sir: Your correspondent (J. S. McLean) writes a careful and plausible letter in reply to some meaty remarks (I think they were full of factual calories) concerning unearned and anti-social packinghouse 'mark-ups', as a result of the new food contracts with the United Kingdom.

I well recall a rather bitter exchange of words in the newspapers within the following day, concerning this windfall of fortuitous inventory 'profit'—in the course of which the packinghouse union labour leader (Mr. Dowling) indicated an unearned increment of $10,000,000 to the packers, on processed and in store' meats; whereas your correspondent (Mr. McLean) categorically denied the estimate, but indicated that the figure would be only $2,700,000. Chickenfeed!

If the organized farmers were further along that 'organized' road than they are, and were operating two or three giant packing-plants at the co-operative level—i.e. "Service at Cost"—it would be revealing to see what disposition they would make of their share of the above meaty 'melon', built upon livestock tonnage bought from their member growers at earlier and lower price levels?

I am not impressed with your correspondent's reference to the fact that "This involved an equivalent profit on inventory stocks in the hands of processors. The processors did not request and did not wish this profit. Insofar as their own interest was concerned, they would be much better without it. For, when the inevitable decline occurs, they will suffer a corresponding inventory loss...."

To me that is mere sophistry, and beside the point—namely, that $2,700,000 belongs to the primary producers!

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Thus saith God the Lord, he that created the heavens, and stretched them out; he that spread forth the earth, and that which cometh out of it; he that giveth breath unto the people upon it, and spirit to them that walk therein....I am the Lord: that is my name: and my glory will I not give to another, neither my praise to graven images. Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number: he calleth them all by names by the greatness of his might, for that he is strong in power; not one faileth. (Isa. 40: 13, 26.)

O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me....

Whither shall I go from thy spirit? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right shall hold me. (Ps. 139: 1, 7-10.)

GOP Tax Bill Passes By Big Majority

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP).—Republicans easily rammed their $6,500,000,000 tax-slashing bill through the House of Representatives today and sent it over to the Senate where the amount may be cut.

The House vote was 297 to 120—19 more votes than will be needed there to pass the bill over an expected presidential veto.

However, Senator Robert Taft (Rep., O.) told reporters that he doubts that the bill could be passed over a veto in the Senate unless the amount of revenue loss is reduced.

Senator Scott Lucas (Dem., Ill.) predicted Senate Republicans will 'gladly" accept a $4,000,000,000 figure.

Sixty-three Democrats joined 234 Republicans voting for the big tax cut. Opposed were 118 Democrats, representative Vito Marcantonio, of New York, the only American Labor Party representative, and a lone Republican, representative H. Carl Andersent of Minnesota.

The House vote came shortly after the Republicans, with the aid of 21 Democrats, beat down 258 to 159 a Democratic substitute bill. This proposed to cut individual income taxes $4,000,000,000, but would have recovered all but $800,000,000 of the revenue loss by a new $3,280,000,000 excess profits levy on corporations.

The Republican measure, written by representative Harold Knutson (Rep., Minn.), would grant reductions to all the United States' 52,000,000 income taxpayers, ranging from 100 per cent in the lowest income area to 10 per cent in the upper brackets. It would apply on 1948 income.

HUNTING THE HARE—"Beagling was one of my favorite sports at Oxford, and two days a week I used to hunt the hare on foot with the New College, Magdalen and Trinity packs."

Life And Education Of A Prince....

—By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER 20

The "position" about which my father was continually reminding me now began to take form.

In November, 1913, Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir apparent to the Austro-Hungarian Empire, paid an official visit to England and was put up at Windsor.

Deciding that the time had come to induct me into court and diplomatic ways, my father had me come from Oxford to participate in the sumptuous entertainments.

I wore the Windsor uniform—a blue tailcoat with red facings and gilt buttons; and under my father's appraising eye began my apprenticeship in the subtle business of always talking to the right people about the right things.

The archduke was a wonderful wing shot, and at Windsor, standing beside my father, I watched him pull the pheasants down out of the sky.

No suggestion of tragedy then touched the elegant figure which only seven months later would fall before the assassin's fateful bullets at Serajevo.

The thought of war was elusively and persistently in the air, but, exactly as in 1939, all the "best-informed people" were wisely assuring one another that there would be no war.

I find from my diary that as late as June 5, 1914, I was planning, with my father's consent, to go chamois shooting in the Tyrol in the autumn with my cousin, Charlie Coburg, the Duke of Saxe-Cobourg and Gotha.

By then it was more or less understood that I had had enough of Oxford and Oxford had enough of me.

My father was arranging for me to join the Grenadier Guards, as he was all for balancing off my early association wtih the Navy and demonstrating the impartiality expected of the monarchy in its relation with the two rival Services.

In fact I was already a corporal in the Oxford Battalion of the Officers' Training Corps, and had spent two weeks in training under canvas near Aldershot.

As matters turned out, that episode ended my connection with Oxford.

It is a little discouraging to realize how little I learned there.

But the fault does not lie with Oxford. The heads of its learned dons were crammed with erudition; what they did not know was stored on the shelves of the Bodleian Library.

In retrospect, it seems a pity that I did not have the imagination to realize that in those difficult studies which I treated so cavalierly were the keys to many of the problems which beset the present world.

People and places — these I thought were more important in my kind of life than books.

Well, I was soon destined to see a lot of new people, a ghastly number of whom would die violently, and a lot of new places, mostly two feet deep in mud.

Yet in June and July 1914 the atmosphere in Great Britain was deceptively tranquil.

The Irish question was at its perennial crisis, and my father and mother were heckled by suffragettes whenever they made a public appearance.

So remote was the possibility of war from the public mind that they took a large party of guests to the Ascot races and threw themselves into the usual social activities.

To make sure that I was kept occupied my father had me attached to the 1st Life Guards, one of the Household Cavalary regiments then stationed at Hyde Park Barracks.

To what I learned about horses from Willie Cadogan I now added the more exciting drills of cavalryman.

But since the officers, along with the other "lads" around town, wen to parties every night, I began to learn, as my diary attests, about other things, too.

June 25....."Life is very pleasant. . . . ."

July 7. "....I stuck it out to the bitter end and got back to Buckingham Palace at 2.. My first ball in London . . ."

July 8. "....Duke of Portland's house. My dancing is improving. I got in at 4 and in bed at 4.30....I was up again at 6 and walked to the Barracks, parading with the Composite Squad at 7.30."

July 23. "....with Ld. and Lady Farquhar, Pembrokes, Desboroughs, Ly. Castiereagh, Ld. A. Innes-Kerr...Balfour and his sister....We all had a bear fight. Nothing broken but clothes suffered!! The ladies were the most hearty....Relations between Austria and Serbia very strained....I don't like the looks of things abroad."

July 24. "....Poor Papa is having an awful time with the Irish crisis....I saw a man from Daimler to get an idea of my new car which is going to be something special."

The old riding master knew all about young subalterns who had been up dancing all night.

And with a sardonic expression he would order the horses unsaddled and put us through the most bone-jarring bareback exercises that he could think up.

I was then 20 and this was my first glimpse of the kind of life which I had taken for granted It was snatched away almost before I savored it.

July 31. "....I was reading newspaper all night and Papa received news of Belgium's mobilization. All this is too ghastly and that we shall be on the brink of war is almost incredible...I am v. depressedi."

Hesitant Note On Market On February 2

By The Canadian Press

With market sentiment significantly improved by the good performance of stocks in the final days of January—after three weeks of steadily falling prices—February trading, nevertheless, opened yesterday on a hesitant note.

Whether or not the recovery shift will be extended further seemed to depend on the relative strength of opposing forces. On the one hand were the bearish influences determined in large part by the approaching "third round" of wage demands, and the possibilities of interrupted production; and in the international sphere the situation was no conductive to investment confidence. On the other hand bullish sentiment was supported by disbursement of larger dividends and reports by corporations of increased earnings.

The disturbing element in the wide gap between high commodity prices remained uppermost in the minds of many and several minor indications of softening commodity prices last week were watched closely.

Toronto was the most buoyant among stock markets yesterday on a pleasing jump in share transfers. Industrials were irregular but other groups on the exchange made modest advances. Golds showed signs of regaining popularity as several junior issues moved ahead. New York was relatively less active and trends were irregular, although selected stocks edged upward. Grains in Chicago and Winnipeg eased Livestock on Canadian markets moved actively and prices were 25 to 50 cents a hundredweight higher.

Try To Delay Seaway Vote

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP).—United States senate backers of the St. Lawrence seaway project sought yesterday to delay a vote on the measure while opponents pressed for an early decision.

Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.) floor manager for the bill, said he doubted a vote could be reached this week and suggested Feb. 25 as a tentative date.

Senator Alben Barkley (Dem.-Ky), minority floor leader who is supporting the bill, also suggested voting later this month.

But Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (Rep.-Mass.), who is leading the fight against the seaway, said he would continue to press for a vote this week, and Senator Kenneth Wherry (Rep-Neb.), acting majority floor leader, strongly backed him.

Unless the senate can reach a vote by Thursday, the legislation is likely to lay over until late in the month because many senators will be away in the meantime delivering Lincoln Day or Jackson Day speeches.

As the two factions sought agreement on a time-table, debate centered in the constitutionality of the proposed United States-Canadian agreement on the project.

Senator Moher Ferguson (Rep.-Mich.) urged quick approval of the project, declaring it is time to bring "the vision of a St. Lawrence seaway . . . into reality."

Doctors Make Study Of Young Diabetics

TORONTO, Feb. 3.—(CP). —(CP).—Reasons for degenerative diseases in juvenile diabetics who survive to an average age of 30 are under study at the Hospital for Sick Children here, it was learned last night.

The research started when a two-year survey disclosed that some diabetics who survive 15 to 20 years have degenerative lesions of the eyes, heart, kidneys and blood vessels. In other words, they were acting twice as fast as they normally should.

Reluctant to voice an opinion before the research is complete, doctors believe nevertheless that some children harm themselves because of their efforts to avoid taking insulin as a treatment. But the research also seeks to answer whether complications are due to taking a regular diet and insulin or because of an inadequate diet and insulin.

The Great-West Life's growing responsibility for security and protection was widely extended in 1947. There are now more than 360,000 policyholders in Canada and the United States.

New protection of $195 millions was issued to more than 58,000 policyholders through the Company's representatives during the year.

Payments to policyholders and beneficiaries amounted to $19 millions. A further sum of $27 millions was added to the amount—now over $300 millions—held to meet future obligations to them.

The year's results are further evidence that the entire Great-West Life organization is united in the common endeavor of serving the best interests of its policyholders.

Petes Pound Out A 6-2 Victory Over The Vets In A Fast Tussle

The Petes stiffened their grip on top spot in their OHA Senior "B" group last night in Omemee when they downed Belleville Vets 6-2 before some 500 fans. They avenged their recent defeat in Belleville but it was a speedy and fairly close contest all the way. Neither side counted in the first, and the Petes took a 3-1 edge to end the second, maintaining that margin in the final frame.

Honey Tompkins again sparked the Creighton crew to their win, being in on five goals in a neat hurry-up performance throughout. Bun Kingdon was right on his heels with four scoring points, and Red Creighton was in on two. These veterans, along with Goalie Ray Harding, were standouts for the victors, though the whole team hustled in the fast, clean fixture. The Gerow-Williams-V. Goyer line got both Belleville counters, while McDonald, Day and Hayes also showed up well all the way as the Vets fought from start to finish.

Play was fast and quite even in the first chukker but pretty ragged at times as they pitched and prayed on a speedy surface. No miracles happened so it was a scoreless stanza. Vern Goyer came close once and later Joe Blewett pulled a fast and dangerous rush, but the cord guardians were in command all through. Belleville had an edge on play for a space but later it was hot and even with play zipping from end to end in its present-day popular and disorganized manner. No one looked crooked at his fellow man and no one did penance.

The hosts forgot themselves in the second and rammed in three as the Vets retaliated with one. Red Creighton counted early with a bullet shot from out near the blue line on a passout of a play built up by Kingdon and Tompkins. Hayes robbed several of the homesters then in nice work as they pressed. Jack Mortimer batted another in on a hot rebound of Tompkins' torrid drive. Horton went off for boarding but returned before Walt Gerow backhanded one into the hemp in close and fast, aided by Williams and Vern Goyer. It stepped up again and was hot and even with Day, Barrett and Blewett in turn missing, until Kingdon scored in close on a pass from Red Creighton to make it 3-1.

Both sides played better hockey in the third and it was still fast and fairly even, though the Petes had a little margin from the blue line in. Murphy went away for interference and Floyd Parsons capped home a rebound from Tompkins. Murphy returned and Montgomery came close, with Williams then being robbed, and Garvey missing a chance as play swept up and down. Kingdon added one right in with the help of Tompkins and Jopling, and Burton nearly nabbed one. Gerow whisked in fast for a neat one, Vern Goyer and Williams assisting. Semark was off near the end when Tompkins tapped in another with assists going to Kingdon and Montgomery. This play was really built up by Red Creighton.

The teams:

Belleville: Goal, Hayes. defence, McNaught and Williamson; centre, V. Goyer; wings, Williams and Gerow; alternates, Barrett, Semark, McDonald, Murphy, Stewart and Day.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling and R. Creighton; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins and Montgomery; alternates, Garvey, J. Creighton, Blewett, J. Mortimer, F. Parsons, Burton and Horton.

Three Wrestlers In Main Bout

When the Masked Marvel made his boast that he "could whip two men in one night" he never expected that Brock Arena Manager Jim Laidlaw would pick big Ben Sharpe and powerful Earl McCready as his successive opponents However give the masked grappler credit he has agreed to meet both Sharpe and McCready one after the other within the hour time limit in the feature attraction here Wednesday night.

Masked Marvel

Sharpe who had to miss last week's bout owing to a twisted knee reports that he is fit and ready and hopes that there will be only the one fracas. "If I get him first and I can hit him with a couple of my drop-kicks" says Ben, "the bout will be over and Earl McCready won't have to even muss his hair." On the other hand if the Unknown can beat both McCready and Sharpe on the same night he will have established himself as one of the great wrestlers of the world.

Nanjo Singh wrestles the new man, Mario Renaldi of Italy, and Don McIntyre takes on huge rough Wee Willie Davis the ex-movie villain.

Coe Hill Victors

APSLEY, Feb. 3 (ENS). — Coe Hill beat Apsley 5-4, in Apsley on Saturday night.

In the first period there were no goals scored. In the second, Coe Hill came out fighting, scoring two goals. Whitely scoring one and McCoy the second.

In the third period the boys roughed it up. Howden counted from Tucker. While the teams were grumbling Howden broke through to score from Tanner, tying it up. Coe Hill put on the pressure, McCoy scoring from McCaw. Howden and Watson broke loose for Apsley tying the score again. Coe Hill came back fast, Whitely scoring to give them a lead again. With three minutes to go, Dunford tied it up again. The fans were really on edge, when Turner scored again and put the game in the bag. Final score was 5-4 for Coe Hill.

Penalties to Peters of Coe Hill and R. Tucker and Lapham of Apsley.

Trojans Draw At 5-All With Lindsay

The Legion-Trojans tied Lindsay 5-5 on Scugog ice last night in the first of their home-and-home OMHA juvenile playdowns, second game being in Lakefield on Wednesday. Floyd counted two for them in the first period as Lewis scored for Lindsay. Clarke and Casey added two in the second, assists going to Casey and Doris, as Karrys scored from Sproule. Lindsay rallied strongly in the hot third to tally three, Sproule, B. Burns and DeBois sinking the disc, aided by DeBois and J. Burns. But Driscoll sewed it up for the visitors.

Play was speedy and pretty even throughout, and rough in spots. The ice was fast and both clubs hustled from start to finish. Trojans had a little margin on play the first two frames, but Lindsay had the edge most of the third. Goals count on the round, and they will start on even terms tomorrow night.

The teams:

Trojans: Goal, Menard; defence, Grainger and Riches; centre, Wyatt; wings, Crowder and Floyd; alternates, McPhail, Miller, Doris, Casey, Driscoll, Allen and Clarke.

Lindsay: Goal, Carew; defence, Hartwick and Green; centre, Karrys; wings, Sproule and DeBois; alternates, Carley, J. Burns, B. Burns, Lewis, Powers, Davis and St. Thomas.

Lakefield Draws In Norwood, 6-6

NORWOOD, Feb. 3—(ENS)—Lakefield and Norwood fought it out to a 6-6 TVL tie here last night before a big crowd. They got it on Chittick's goal with 12 seconds left to play in the third period. The teams:

Lakefield: Goal, Wasson; defence, Morin and C. Birch; centre, Chittick; wings, Chappell and J. Birch; alternates, Hopkins, Fawcett, Henry and Jewell.

Trojanettes Play

Two new girls' hockey teams will make their first appearance on Turner Park hockey cushion on Monday night, Feb. 9. These girls are 15 and 16 years of age and will be under the supervision of Mrs. Campbell of High St. They will be New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs and will of course be "Trojanettes."

Two of the star hockey players, Linda Jordan and Betty Richmond, were missed on Monday night at Turner Park Rink. The Canadiens couldn't help but win with the superb playing of Joan Dunk. She got four goals and one assist on one of the goals was by Marjory Woods, making the score 4-0 for Canadiens.

Joan Dunk is being made captain of the New York Rangers and Marjory Woods will take her place on the Canadiens as captain.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Always enjoy the peculiar propaganda as perpetrated in Soviet circles. And we enjoy this item from Bill Westwick's Ottawa Journal column: "Trouble with some of these events such as the Olympics is that a person is apt to overlook events of interest and importance at home. We now admit our ignorance of some hockey developments right in our own backyard, and it has been left to Russia's Tass News Agency and the English publication "Canada's Weekly" to bring us to task in most startling fashion. Under the heading 'Moscow's Hockey Team Excel in Canada' we note the following item in 'Canada's Weekly':

* * * * * *

"'Two Soviet teams are doing exceptionally well in the Canadian national ice hockey competition, according to a Tass weekly sports review. The Spartak Sport Society team of Moscow is in the lead with eight points out of a possible 10 from five matches, while the Dynamo team of Moscow, still undefeated, has scored seven points from four matches.' Well, they can say what they like about the Russians not saying too much about their own affairs, but this one surely hits a new high in secret hockey operations. Just let those Spartaks or the Dynamos pop in the Stanley Cup finals and someone is going to be very embarrassed in our Department of External Affairs. Come to think of it, we still haven't caught Canadiens in action yet this season. You don't suppose, do you....?"

On The Industrialists

Players' lists for the Industrial Hockey League must be mailed to the secretary, Mel Burgess, Peterborough Automotive Supply, by midnight this Thursday. Westclox play at Millbrook at 8.30 tonight. These tilts are listed for the Quaker rink Thursday p.m.: Automotives vs. Ventilating at 6.30, Packers vs. Millbrook at 7.35, Marines vs. Colts at 8.40, while at Confederation rink, Quakers tangle at seven with Nashua, and Westclox meets De Laval at eight. The Ventilating lads trek to Millbrook on Friday for an 8.30 fixture. Schedule is rolling right along in this interesting circuit and playoffs are not afar off.

* * * * * *

Trent Valley League puck results of yester twilight should be in elsewhere if none of the dog teams broke down en route. Only one joust for tomorrow, Warkworth at Marmora. But this list slated for Friday: Frankford at Warkworth, Lakefield at Hastings, Marmora at Campbellford, Stirling at Madoc, and Norwood at Tweed. Schedule winds up a week from this Friday, and then the hefty playoff series start on several fronts. The popular district TVL-ers have been having a merry winter of it, despite frosty weather, before good galleries, and interest is really mounting now with the end in sight.

They Have The Savvy

Old soldiers never die, they say, but the Petes' veterans are by no means old. You'd think, to hear fans talk, that some of 'em were 38 or 40. They run generally around 30—same as does Godfrey of Legion—apart from the youngsters on the team. These chaps broke into junior OHA around 15 and they've been playing some 15 years, but they're not old as puckists go yet, by any means. Just thought we'd point that out, particularly as it was fellows like Honey Tompkins, Bun Kingdon, Red Creighton and Ray Harding who starred in Omemee last e'en when the Petes knocked down the Belleville Vets 6-2. A fine, fast and clean contest on good ice but not much of a crowd. Guess they're awaiting the playoffs now.

* * * * * *

The Quinte crew fought all the way and it was never very one-sided, but the Petes had a little edge. Tompkins was really hot again and Bun Kingdon was almost as good. Keith Montgomery saw service on their line and showed lots of promise. All he needs is experience—and he should get a lot between playing for Lakefield in the TVL, the Petes, and later the IOOF-ers, and maybe arguing a Legion protest before the OHA! Some fun when two local clubs are in the race in the same group, eh? And there'll be plenty of fun when those classy Petes and the scrappy Legionnaires tangle this Friday on Lindsay ice. Legion goes to Kingston tomorrow.

Boys Start Off Well

A trio of PMHA squads saw OMA action last eve in Lindsay and did pretty well for themselves. Lions won the bantam game 4-1, Rotarians took the midget melee 10-5, while Trojans tied their Scugog opponents 5-5. As goals count in these two-game series, the Peterborough puckists have a good chance of surviving the first provincial playdown round. They settle it tomorrow (Wednesday) p.m. in Lakefield, bantams playing at 7.00, midgets at 8.15 and juveniles an hour later. Local fans should support these boys in their playdowns.

Bancroft Trappers Swamp Maynooth

BANCROFT, Feb. 3 (ENS). — The Maynooth Redmen were no match for the league-leading Bancroft Trappers in a North Hastings Hockey League fixture last night as they went down to defeat by an 18 to 3 score. The Redmen fought gamely for one period and limited the Trappers to a 4-2 lead at the end of the first session but were unable to stop the Trapper sharp-shooters after that. The Trapper line of N. Brough, E. Brough, and J. Kavanagh, still of juvenile age clicked for 15 goals.

N. Brough had a field day with seven goals and four assists while Kavanagh notched six and assisted on three. Even Flaglar and Carpenter, Trapper rear-guards, took up positions on the wings in the late stages of the game and combined to notch a couple. Scott in the Maynooth cage was a busy boy, while 18 pucks eluded him he seemed to be stopping 180. The 15-year-old kid was sensational as he leaped, jumped, hopped, and blocked hard shots.

D. Neuman shone for Maynooth as he counted a goal and assist but it was not Maynooth's good night in spite of the fact they were trying all the time. The game was well-handled by Stewart Stringer. The win left the Trappers on top of the heap with six straight wins without a loss, for 12 points, with the Bancroft Rovers following a close second.

Lineups:

Maynooth—Goal, Scott; defence Henry Neuman and Green; forwards, D. Neuman, Fitzgerald, Buckley. Subs., Herb Neuman, Flynn, Mayhew, Robinson, Davis.

Bancroft Trappers. — Goal, Crawford; defence, Flaglar and Carpenter; forwards, N. Brough, E. Brough, Kavanagh. Subs., Walton, Maxwell, Whyte, Foster, Adams.

Rotarians Win By 10 to 5 In First Fray

Rotarians took a five-goal OMHA midget series lead in Lindsay last night with their 10-5 victory, return game being in Lakefield to-morrow. They rolled up a 3-0 lead in the first frame on goals by Gandy, Jones and Douglas, assists going to D. Ferguson, Jones and Douglas. It was 3-3 in the second, Rotary goals being counted by Gooley, Shearer, and Jones, as Douglas, Shearer and Robinson aided. Lewis got two for Lindsay and Butts a goal and an assist. The four Rotary goals in the third were by Jensen, R. Ferguson, Gandy, and D. Ferguson, the latter and Shearer having assists. Wilson and Gregg tallied for Lindsay.

It was not a rough game, though lively at times, but both sides hustled plenty in the wide-open tussle on a slick surface. The Morrow-Rotarians had an early edge, it tightened up in the second and the visitors shaded the homesters again in the third to carry home a fairly comfortable lead.

The teams:

Rotary—Goal, Batley; defence, R. Ferguson and Bigford; centre, Jensen; wings, Douglas and Jones; alternates, Robinson, D. Ferguson, Gandy, Shearer, Telford and Gooley.

Lindsay — Goal, Kennedy; defence, Gregg and Magee; centre, Butts; wings, Caley and Lewis; alternates, Junkinson, Maidens, Lucas, McGaughey, Wilson, Pogue and Foshey.

Referee—W. Leggitt. Linesman, J. Gleason.

Actor Fears Canada May Lose Playwrights

TORONTO, Feb. 3.—(C). — While Canada and Eire are "youthful in the theatre" and stand at the "birth of a great theatrical movement," this country is in danger of losing its playwrights, thereby robbing it of a national theatre, Michael MacLiammoir, manager-star of the Dublin Gate Players said here yesterday.

He told the University Women's Club that the Gate Theatre, now on Canadian tour, is primarily interested in expanding the view of Irish poverty-stricken peasant life which the famed Abbey players have portrayed.

Agreeing that the Dublin Gate group is representative of the new Irish experimental movement, Mr. MacLiammoir said they have earned a "significant place" in the Irish theatre.

ANOTHER SET-BACK

Canada's Olympic ski team suffered another set-back yesterday when Montreal's Rhona Wurtele suffered a chipped ankle in the women's downhill race and joined her twin sister, Rhoda, in hospital. Rhona, who previously gashed her head, necessitating three stitches and a week lay-off fell twice in yesterday's race and finished last in the 37-woman field

Best of the preliminaries was Harvey Mathe of Toronto in his clean-cut decision over Harold Whitney, a hard-hitting Hamiltonian.

Canada Packers scored a major upset in the YMCA Men's League last night when they blanked the league-leading Commercials 6-0. The win moves the Packers up on the top-place rung along with the Sedgwick outfit.

All the other contests were 4-2 decisions, Tip Tops winning over Quakers by that margin, Artists over Aberdeen and Jay Bees from B'nai B'rith. The latter teams had close games, six pins being the margin in the first, 10 pins in the second, and 40 in the last game.

Ab Guerin was top man for the night with a nifty 762 for three games. Zimmel Levine was right on his heels with 757 and Ray Bennett had 722.

Lions Win 4-1 In Opener With Lindsay

Peterborough Lions defeated Lindsay 4-1 on the latter's ice last night in the first of their two-game OMHA playdown bantam series. They carry a three-goal lead into the return match in Lakefield tomorrow night. The Lions got a goal in the first period from the stick of Ferguson, another in the second by Pammett and two in the third by McGrath and Scriver. Assists went to Spencer with two and Ferguson. Dawson dented the twine in the middle heat for Lindsay on a pass from Brown.

There were only three penalties, two to Lions, throughout the clean fray, and all were of a minor nature. The boys hurried up every minute and turned in some good hockey, though the Lions found the large sheet almost too much for them at times after being used to small ice. They were dragging in the third but hung on.

The teams:

Lions: Goal, Delahaye; defence, Stewart and Byrne; centre, Pammett; wings, Ferguson and Langhorne; alternates, McGrath, Spencer, Scriver, McCormick, Cunningham, McGillen and Allen.

Lindsay: Goal, MacLeish; defence, Finney and Stockler; centre, Trotter; wings, Dawson and Brown; alternates, Lockwood, uBrns, Race, Hutton, O'Bell, Hickson and Morton.

Redmen Hit Their Stride Blank Hamilton Pats 5-0

By The Canadian Press.

It was quixotic—as pointless as counting the kernels in a bushel of wheat—but the Ontario Hockey Association's last-place Senior A team, Brantford Redmen, had the satisfaction of displaying a superior brand of hockey last night while trouncing Hamilton Pats 5-0.

The victory at Hamilton, only game in the OHA Senior and Junior Divisions last night, did not even raise the Redmen's hopes of getting into the one-step-out-of-the-cellar class. The Pats, present holders of that position, still are four games ahead of the Brantford team.

Moy and Hann each tallied twice for the Redmen and Denneny once. First counter in the Brantford attack was Denneny's marker in the first frame. A minute after the second period opened, Moy notched his first counter. At the 10:20 mark, Hann pounded home a long shot and Moy netted his second tally three minutes later.

Hann's second tally came with a bit of luck in the third period. When he lifted a blue-line shot, the disc struck a Pats' skate and bounced into the net.

Undisputed claim to the fourth place in the OHA Senior Division will be at stake to-night when Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen visit Owen Sound. The two teams are tied for the post, 2½ games out of third place.

Lach Skyrockets To Second In Scoring Race

MONTREAL, Feb. 3 — (CP). — Buddy O'Connor, New York Rangers' smooth playmaker, still holds a comfortable three-point margin atop the National Hockey League scoring list but the man who stole the spotlight during the last week was Montreal's Elmer Lach who racked up seven points in three games to edge into second place.

Official statistics released today show O'Connor with 17 goals and 27 assists for 44 points, while Lach has 22 and 19 for 41 points.

Max Bentley, crack Toronto sharpshooter went pointless during the week, and slipped to third spot with 39 points, one more than Chicago's Norman (Bud) Poile and veteran Syl Apps of Toronto, who are deadlocked with 38 apiece.

Detroit's Red Wings' star marksmen, Ted Lindsay and rookie Jim McFadden, share sixth position with 37 points each, while Gaye Stewart of Chicago has taken over seventh spot.

In the penalty parade, Bill Barilko, Toronto's hard-hitting rearguard, had a comparatively quiet week with only one minor penalty, which boosted his season's total to 119 minutes spent in the cooler and kept the blond blocker away in front of badman race.

Goalie Harry Lumley of Detroit, who tops the circuit in shutouts with six, also has the best goals-against average among the netminders. Lumley has allowed 97 counters in 42 games for a 2.30 average. Bill Durnan of Canadiens is next best with 2.50.

Flyers Trounce Italians 21-1

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 3—(CP).—Canada's Olympic team whitewashed Italy 21-1 to-day to extend the RCAF Flyers' unbeaten string to four games and place them in a first-place tie with Czechoslovakia in the disputed hockey tournament held with the Olympic Games here.

A last-period goal by Italy robbed the Canadians of their third straight shutout in the four games they have played.

The Flyers walked over the Italian contenders in the first period with 11 goals, added six in the second period, and four in the third.

Only two goals have been scored against Goalie Murray Dowey of the Flyers, giving the Canadians by far the best defensive record of any of the nine countries entered in the 10-day tournament which the international Olympic committee insists is not an Olympic event.

In tallying 21 goals against Italy, the Flyers equalled their cumulative goal count for their first three games. They defeated Sweden 3-1 in the opening game last Friday, Britain 3-0 Sunday and Poland 15-0 Monday.

Despite Canada's excellent record, observers still consider Czechoslovakia the team to beat.

George Mara paced the Canadian attack, exploding for a total of four goals and four assists in the first two periods. Ab Renaud was next top scorer for the first two periods with a goal and four assists.

Health-Of-Workers Investment Which Pays Big Dividends

Industrial health in Canada has a great future, chiefly because it is an investment which pays big dividends, states the Health League of Canada's Industrial Division in a message issued in connection with NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK.

Improved working conditions, more contented workers, increased production, and happier homes are the returns of the properly organized health service.

The Health League, sponsor of this fourth annual "Health Week" states that where industrial plants have installed adequate health and medical services, it has been shown that there is a very substantial profit — 15 per cent — on the investment, because sound industrial health plans result in:

1—Less absenteeism.

2—Marked decrease in labor turnover.

3—Increased efficiency through a feeling of well-being on the part of the employees.

4—Decrease in the cost in workmen's compensation through safety education.

5—Improved morale of employer-employee relations.

A satisfactory program should include—

(a) An adequate pre-employment health examination for every new employee — fitting the workman to the job.

(b) A periodic health examination for every employee from executive to office boy. This should result in the repression of early organic disease, elimination of infection and correction of faulty ways of living, which include diet and other health habits.

(c) First-aid treatment for both minor illnesses and accidents. The early recognition of potentially serious illnesses which are referred to the family physician, is also part of the program.

JOINT AND MUSCLE PAINS

May mean kidney trouble . .

A function of the kidneys is to help eliminate impurities from the system. If the kidneys grow sluggish these impurities accumulate and settle and may become a cause of pain in joints and muscles. The way to tackle the trouble is to help the kidneys. They should be toned up with De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills—the medicine made specially for this purpose. De Witt's Pills invigorate the kidneys so that they perform their natural function properly. This well-tried remedy is sold all over the world and we have many letters from sufferers telling of relief gained after years of suffering through taking De Witt's Pills. Go to your drug store and get a supply to-day.

Live Criminals Guinea Pigs For Doctors In Early Days

"Ontario is the only province in the Dominion of Canada that has made pasteurizng of milk compulsory." This startling information, based on his talk on protective medicine, was made by Dr. J. Z. Gillies, Past President of the Academy of Medicine, Toronto, when he addressed the Rotary Club weekly luncheon, on Monday.

This week is National Health Week sponsored by the Health League of Canada, and will be observed throughout Canada.

"We have to thank the press," said Dr. Gillies," for the support received in this all important subject, and the different Service Club all have done excellent work in bringing home to the general public the vital statistics of the nation's health, and the work that is being done to prevent disease."

Taken For Granted

"The public today takes too much for granted, and think little about the serious thought and work that has been put into effect in the matter of giving to the world such things as penicillin, liver extract, sulphur drugs and the many curative and protective medicine that are now accepted as household words.

"European medicine began with the Greeks, and Homer was acknowledged one of the first surgeons. In the island of Cos was born one of the greatest men in medicine the world has known, Hypocrites, he was the father of medicine, and was a brilliant physician and shaped the course of medicine for all time, both in diagnosing and treatment.

"The subject of anatomy," continued the speaker, "was practised in a somewhat cruel fashion, as criminals of that day were handed over and dissected alive in order that the doctors in those days might learn of the anatomy of the human body. Medicinal learning then moved on towards Rome, but did little to make progress and it was not until studies were carried on in Arabia and the Moorish schools that great strides were made.

"The influx of students from all parts of the then known world to the Moorish schools presented one serious problem and that was the question of language. It was thus decided that in the medicine schools of the world a common language should be used and the one chosen was Latin. To this day all prescriptions are made out in Latin and this is the direct connection that medicine today has with the schools of so many centuries ago.

"In the passing of years more and more has been done in the matter of protective medicine as against curative treatment. The world has to thank Louis Pasteur for his work in prevention of diseases by what is now known as pasteurizing and from whom it got its name. Joseph Lister opened up fresh channels of curative medicine when he found that many causes of infection and poisoning were traced to germs. Black death and smallpox ran wild because it was not known that this was spread by germs, and as short a time as 80 years ago people had no knowledge that germs took such a heavy toll of life.'

Chlorinated Water

"In the 18th century, William Jenner noticed that milkmaids easily contracted what was known as cowpox but not one of them ever contracted smallpox which ravaged the countryside. This led to his developing a serum from cows and was so elaborated the technique known as vaccination. This has eliminated smallpox. In recent years typhoid proved to be a terrible sourge and in the Boer War 12 men died from this fever to every one killed by a bullet. Little could be done and it was not known from what source the men contracted this dread disease. In later years a Dr. Hastings of Toronto, experimented with a water supply and found that by chlorinating the water a city that had recorded many deaths from typhoid was suddenly freed from this disease."

"Another great victory that medicine won was in the pasturizing of milk," said Dr. Gillies. "Toronto was the first city to legislate in this direction, and since the enforced pasteurizing of milk has been put into effect no new cases of Bovine T.B. have been recorded. Diphtheria was another sickness that wiped out whole families. Little children died in the hundreds. From 1,022 cases in the city in 1929 there were 64 deaths. A toxoid was found and injections of this serum resulted in the deaths being lowered to a complete wiping out of the disease. In 1935 there were no new cases reported in Toronto and no deaths. Whooping cough and scarlet fever are now being attacked, and the dreaded disease T.B. is being treated by a protective medicine known as DCG.

"In the same way VD is being treated by protective medicine and already has been brought down to unbelievable low figures by modern treatment and medicine."

"It is a regrettable fact," concluded the doctor, "that the public is deplorably apathetic. They must be urged and stirred most vehemently to assist this great question of protective measures Health Week will surely stir their conscience and make them health-minded. They must be co-operative in every respect. It is no good having a Health Week if they are soon to forget about the compaign."

A vote of thanks was voiced by A. Ward Smith.

Lewis Threatens "Action" By Coal Miners

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP).—John L. Lewis today told soft coal operators that bargaining has got nowhere and he feels free "to take any independent action necessary" to force payments from a $50,000,000 mine welfare fund.

Lewis' office made public a notice to the operators of how Lewis, leader of the United Mine Workers (Ind.), feels, but gave no hint what "independent action" he may have in mind.

Such a phrase as that could mean anything from a strike to a court suit.

Lewis' notice brought into the open officially a bitter argument —debated in secret meetings for some time by Lewis and the bituminous operators — over a method of paying benefits from the fund.

The fund has been accumulating from 10-cent-per-ton royalties since the present contract became effective last July. However, no plan has been agreed upon by the fund's three trustees to set up a benefit payment system.

The trustees are Lewis, Ezra Van Horn, who represents the operators, and Thomas Murray, New York industrialist.

Arrest Eisler In New York; May Be Deported

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP). —Gerhard Eisler, accused "No. 1 Communist" in the United States, was arrested in New York Monday under a process which, if it works, will keep him in custody until he has served time, been deported, or both.

The arrest was made on a deportation warrant obtained by the Justice Department. Officials said bail is not allowed in such a case.

The Justice Department would not discuss the action in detail, but the practical effect is to block any effort to obtain Eisler's release on bond pending Supreme Court action on his appeal from two convictions. He faces possible punishment in those cases totalling up to six years plus fines of $6,000.

Actually there is no expectation here that a move will be made to send Eisler home to Germany immediately.

Deportation proceedings against persons under prison sentence customarily wait until they have served minimum time.

A few hours before the 50-year-old Eisler was taken into custody, the United States district court here refused to upset his conviction on a charge of concealing his Communist links when he applied for a permit to leave the United States in 1945.

Eisler also has been convicted of contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. He was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $1,000 on the contempt charge.

Witnesses in the two trials said Eisler gave the Communist Party in the United States its orders. The government charged that Eisler came here "to disrupt the economy of the United States in accordance with the wishes of Moscow."

Eisler acknowledged membership in the German Communist Party, but said he was not a foreign agent.

VOL. XCVI, No. 28 — TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1948

Planning Board Is Set Up By City Council

The Peterborough and Suburban Area Planning Board was set up by the city council Monday night. It has been slowly forming for the last year or more, and in the main was one of James Dutton's projects.

The members are: James Dutton, James Hamilton, Herbert J. McCannan, Hubert Sills, G. Wilson Craw, Reeve W. W. Dawson, Otonabee, Reeve M. H. Johnston, North Monaghan, Reeve Gilbert McIlmoyl of Smith and Mr. Clinton Young of Douro.

In the institution of this board of nine members the only statutory stipulation was the "the majority shall not be members of municipal councils," as explained by City Clerk Outram.

This board will be concerned with community planning matters in which both the city and townships have interests. It was conceived in the fact that urban planning should not come to a dead stop at the boundaries of a city or town.

Peterborough's municipal neighbors are the townships of Smith, Douro, Otonabee and North Monaghan. They were first consulted about two years ago when the planning legislation was becoming available. Their representatives agreed to co-operate with the city, and generally under the impetus from Mr. Dutton's lively interest the detail of preliminary organization have been completed.

The township councils determined individually the marginal area which they were marking off as properly falling within suburban planning. This suburban strip around the city has been marked off, and the basic work has been approved by the Department. In the nomination of members of the new board, three of the townships designated their reeves. The exception was Douro council which went beyond its own membership and named Clinton Young. Mayor Ovens is an ex-officio member of the Board.

The bylaw actually received only two readings. It was held up for reference to the Hon. Dana Porter, and with his approval will come back for final reading.

Pays $800 Taxes Wants Services

Mr. J. Wineberg of Club Aragon wrote the council Monday night that his recent tax bill as a resident and property owner of the city was $800. East of Downer's Corners, on No. 7 Highway, he has had no sidewalks, meagre light, has provided his own sewer service and waterworks system at considerable expense, very inadequate fire protection, and so on. But, the tax bill comes along in the amount of $800, just the same as if all those services were supplied by the city.

And finally no public transportation service. "As a substantial taxpayer we feel we should be given special consideration on one of the most important of the above-mentioned items, namely public transportation, which can be remedied immediately.

"We understand that extension of the franchise of the Peterborough Bus Lines is being considered by the council. This, gentlemen, would be the opportune time to support our plea.

"Last year the Bus Company declined our request, saying they did not have sufficient vehicles to grant us the required service, and they flatly refused to allow another bus operator to look after our needs, who was willing and able to do so."

Mr. Wineberg's letter was passed on to the legal committee.

SIGHTS THREE WOLVES

White hunting for a steer that had strayed, John Loucks, Aylmer St. saw three wolves between the mainland and Upper Foley Island on Rice Lake, Monday. He believes they came from Lower Foley and disappeared when he returned to get his gun. At first he thought they were foxes, but when he examined them through field glasses he identified them as wolves immediately.

D.S.T. ON THE WING

The new year of 1948 is beginning to pass familiar milestones. Candlemas day has vanished into the past, St. Valentine's Day is near at hand, and Ash Wednesday approaches. And — city council was advised Monday night by the association of railways that daylight saving time begins Sunday, April 25 at 12.01 a.m. and continues until September 26 at 12.01 a.m. The letter was referred to the finance committee.

NEW DIRECTORIES MAILED

New telephone directories, 9,300 of them were mailed on Monday to the subscribers in the Peterborough district, including Lindsay, Campbellford, Havelock, Lakefield, Norwood, Hastings and other smaller places. The book contains more than 6,300 new and revised listings. All directories are mailed simultaneously to all points, and Bell Telephone officials request subscribers to destroy the old dun-colored telephone books to avoid getting wrong numbers.

TWO FALSE ALARMS

A chimney fire, sparks from a chimney, and a low pressure sprinkler system all resulted in alarms being sent in to the fire department, on Monday. At 12.11 p.m. a chimney fire was reported at the residence of Jas. Buchan, 294 Lake St. Sparks from the chimney caused firemen to investigate the premises at 421 Water St., Capitol Taxi, just after midnight Tuesday morning. Again at 1.20 a.m. an alarm came from the Wonder Bakery, Stewart St., due to low pressure in the sprinkler system.

PENSIONS BYLAW PASSED

As a mere detail of formality the civic pensions bylaw was given its third reading Monday night, with authority to Mayor Wm. Ovens and City Clerk E. A. Outram "to sign and seal the same". If the council had a large audience—it did have the south end delegation — the passing of this bylaw would probably have escaped attention. Yet, it represented a great deal of work by the council and members of the staff, particularly by City Clerk Outram and City Auditor Edward Humpage.

Fishing Season Opens July 1 Scott Announces

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 3.—(CP).—Opening dates for fishing seasons in Ontario next spring and summer were announced yesterday by Lands Minister Scott at the annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Hunters and Anglers.

Speckled trout fishing will start May 1, a Saturday; pickerel and pike, May 15, also a Saturday; and bass and maskinonge July 1, Thursday.

Urging protection of bass, Mr. Scott said:

"July 1 is a good average date for completion of guarding their nests and we should not jeopardize the bass by advancing the open dates by one single day. By exerting ourselves, we were able to produce 1,700,000 fry and some 580,000 large-mouth and small-mouth black bass fingerlings last year. These are useful for hitting the weak spots in bass reproduction.

Caribou Park

He said the first caribou park in Ontario was being established in the north-western section of the province to protect an existing herd of animals. Possibility of a hunting season for caribou was foreseen.

Mr. Scott also announced that a wildlife survey of Ontario was under way, with a survey party consisting of a biologist, a forester, geographer and a chief of party.

Amalgamation of 25 independent angling and hunting clubs in Northern Ontario under the charter of the Federation was announced.

Addition of the 25 brings to 85 the number of hunting and angling organizations affiliated with the OFAH. Officials said it is expected total membership will be almost 200,000 by the end of 1948.

Truck Owners Trace Thief

Two alert and determined truck owners combined forces Monday night to apprehend a truck thief. As a result, 18-year-old Russell Davis of Warsaw pleaded guilty to theft of a truck when he appeared in court today. He has been remanded for sentence until Feb. 9.

Roy McCall, RR 3, Peterborough, noticed Monday night that his truck had been taken from the yard. He enlisted the aid of his neighbor, M. Edgerton. Going to get Edgerton's truck to follow up the loss, they discovered that evidently someone had attempted to take it, too, as it had been moved some distance. It is believed that the thief was unable to start the Edgerton truck properly and abandoned his efforts so went on to the McCall vehicle.

The two men, in Edgerton's truck, followed the truck marks in the snow along Shelbrooke St. about half a mile when they found the stolen truck stuck in a snowbank. The accused youth was in it, they told police when they brought him to the police station.

The men also reported that young Davis had put up considerable resistance to accompanying them and that it had been necessary to use force.

Davis appeared in court with a black eye.

Hold Up Naming Man To Trust

Significantly, it appeared, city council Monday night held up appointment of a member of the City Trust Commission in succession to G. A. Gillespie.

Custom, with few exceptions in recent years, has retained retiring trustees, and by that rule it might have been expected that Mr. Gillespie would have been reappointed for another term of five years beginning February 1.

"I feel this is an important matter," said Mayor Wm. Ovens, "and should go to the finance committee for consideration at its next meeting."

That suggestion was made during the second reading of a routine bylaw to authorize appointment of a trustee. His Worship moved that "we rise and report progress". Ald. Dodds seconded the motion, and it carried.

One of the members of the council suggested several weeks ago, that the council ought to ask Hon. G N. Gordon if we would accept appointment to the City Trust.

City Can Afford To Wait Attitude on Market Property

Finance committee of the council Monday night scanned the bids for the municipal properties in the market block, including George St. frontage, shook their heads in disappointment, folded their folios and took off into the cold night. And—so to bed, late.

"Well," remarked Mayor W. G. Ovens, "there is no great pressure on us to build the new city hall for the next two or three years."

"We can afford to wait," said Ald. Grant Miller. "Time is on our side."

Mayor Ovens' reference was the public intention of converting part of the George, Charlotte, Water and Simcoe Streets block into a site elsewhere for the city hall that is to be built with the legacy of the late W. G. Morrow to the people of Peterborough.

"Frankly," said Mayor Ovens, "I'm greatly disappointed at these tenders." Ald. Max Swanston expressed the same degree of disillusionment just as tersely.

"The bids are a complete disappointment to me," said Ald. Gordon Armstrong. That tells the story, briefly, of why the Swanston committee picked up their marbles and went home around eleven o'clock last night.

"If we wait we'll get what we want," was the quiet advice of Ald. Grant Miller.

Action Deferred

"We haven't got what we want so far?" Mayor Ovens answered. He seconded Ald. Grant Miller's motion to defer action until "we have had a chance to consider this information further."

"Should we engage a qualified valuator of those properties to revalue them? Have we gone as far as we can in that direction?" Ald. Doug Miller enquired.

City Clerk Outram explained the spread of advertising the council adopted toward the end of last year, using several newspapers in Toronto and Montreal and other mediums of publicity.

Mayor vens said the council might find out whether there "are any other arrangements we can make. I think Ald. D. Miller's idea is al lright." His motion was seconded by Ald .Dodds.

City Clerk Outram mentioned several men in Toronto, away from Peterborough prejudices and opinions. One of them had been engaged in several of the George St. property transfers that made local realty history during the last 18 months. Another was equally experienced. No person was selected, but enquiries will be made into the most competent property valuators available, and some engagement will be made from their number.

Jewel Presented To Chris Wood

Chris Wood, 286 Simcoe Street received a Veteran's Jewel at a meeting of the Lansdowne Lodge of the Sons of England Monday night in the lodge rooms George St. The Veteran's Jewel represents 50 years as a member of the Lodge.

Mr. Wood was born in Dover, England, in 1865 and came to Canada with his bride in 1886, coming to Peterborough in 1891 where he has resided ever since.

The jewel was presented by Bro. W. G. P. Benton, who in fitting terms expressed on behalf of the Lodge congratulations and the good wishes of all the members. In replying Mr. Wood recalled many incidents of interest that had happened during his 50 years membership. After the closing of the lodge a special supper was served in Mr. Wood's honor and the Worthy President Bro. Robert Starr presented Mr. Wood with an automatic table lighter, as a personal tribute from a few of the members of the Lodge for his 46 years service as treasurer. He still holds this office.

Mr. Wood was associated with the Bank of Commerce for 26 years. He has always been an enthusiastic out-door man and held office as secretary-treasurer for 25 years in the Peterborough Gun Club. Until recently he had the record of never missing one duck hunt for 40 years. He was also regarded as an expert fisherman.

Mr. Wood resides with his two daughters, Miss Marguerite Wood and Miss E. F. Wood. His wife died in 1933.

Huge Generators Snaked Over Northern Lakes

The freight marshalling yards at Flin Flon is a busy place these days, even though the temperature is anywhere from 35 to 50 below. It is here that tractor transportation companies make up their swings of ponderous freight that snake across country 60 miles to the town's power plant site at Island Falls. Four to six wide sleighs drawn by a powerful diesel tractor with a cookhouse-bunk caboose lurch at four miles an hour across six lakes that are connected by long overland portages.

Trains each carry a crew of four, two "cat skinners" or drivers and two brakemen who alternate in eight-hour shifts and keep the swing rolling continuously. This year they are transporting products from Peterborough's CGE plant, a dismantled generator that weighs 12 tons in its heaviest part and three transformers of 600 KVA each. Five generators have previously been supplied to the Churchill River Power Co. and the heavy freighting specialists know all the tricks of the trade in loading and unloading.

It is only by reason of the extreme cold weather that it is possible to take this massive equipment into Island Falls for the ice must be a good 36 inches to support heavy loads of this nature. Where lake ice is doubtful, it is often necessary to break the train on the portages and drag each loaded sleigh across the lakes individually.

At times there are streaks of what the crews term "bad luck," when a sleighload goes through and sinks to the lake bottom. This causes hours and days of delay while divers go below and attach hoisting cables to haul load, sleigh and often the tractor to the surface by the use of a timber tripod. Some years such accidents are unavoidable but lost time is pared to a minimum by using aircraft patrols to make check flights over the tractor route and come down to investigate each train that is stalled. Then too, some tractors are radio-equipped and give scheduled position reports so that the freight base may know of their progress.

Island Falls is a small settlement of 35 families which depends on the power plant and its transmission lines for a living. Although they are isolated they are very happy with their lot. Their homes are extremely modern and months of extreme low temperatures cannot induce them to move to the "bright lights."

January Building Greatly Reduced

Peterborough's building year as reflected in the number and value of permits issued from the office of City Engineer Chalmers trailed in January the amount for the first month of last year.

The figures for last month were: one house $4,000; 10 miscellaneous permits $35,000; total $39,700. And for Jannary 1947 the permits were: one garage $350; one house $3,000; and 17 miscellaneous $88,025; total $91,375.

Deputation Asks Council To Open George Street Through Exhibition Park

Steps for the projecting of George St. southerly through Exhibition Park, sought by a deputation from "down under" it, took off in a new direction of expected light at the meeting of the City Council Monday night. City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, KC, is being asked for a report on a proposal to apply to a Judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario for an interpretation of the Morrow Trust deed in terms of expressed and potential benefits of the park for the citizens of Peterborough.

The members of the deputation were: Rev. C. E. Moore of St. George's Anglican Church, Ernest M. Gibson, H. J. McLarnon and George Morrison. Their request was for some action by the council to obtain access through the park, by the extension of George St., to and from the rapidly developing section of the city lying south of the "1,200-foot board fence" and between Lock and Park Streets. They were asking for facility of communication for the residents of that new south end of Peterborough, and were probably surprised by the course of action which their innocent petition eventually directed.

At the conclusion of the other business of the meeting, the council adjourned into committee of the whole with Ald. Hugh Waddell as chairman, to consider the deputation's request. Mayor Wm. Ovens opened the discussion with a review of the negotiations during the last year or more between the council, the Morrow Trust, the Peterborough Exhibition Board, and, more or less in the parleys, the general committee of the Community Memorial Centre.

Expropriation of a strip through the park for the George St. extension was an early and convenient proposal, and finally Ald. Grant Miller turned the conversation on to the broader plane of trying to bring into effect the general and desirable purposes and ends of Mr. Harold Morrow's gift of the park for public uses of the community.

Only Place For Centre

Ald. Miller expressed his opinion that Morrow Park was the only place for the Memorial Centre, and suggested that the council should endeavor to bring about an amicable arrangement between the several bodies by which various public uses of the park could be ensured to the public.

Ald. (Grant) Miller said the true benefits of the park were not being realized, and proposed that if there was anything more the council could do, particularly in trying to reach a harmonious agreement in regard to the use of the park as it was evidently intended, that course should be followed. If necessary, he said, the question should be taken to the proper sources to get a decision.

Ald. Anglesey enquired whether the council should first ask Mr. Huycke to prepare "the necessary expropriation by-law".

Expropriation of a street strip through the park, said Ald. Herbert Young, would entail a breaking up of the property, "and it would all go back to the estate to be divided into lots."

Ald. Waddell said the council should consider the property as a whole first, and the last course should be toward the expropriation for a street.

"I think we should give Mr. Huycke a week to think it over, before we do anything about expropriation," said Mayor Ovens.

Mr. Huycke recalled that in the negotiations respecting the possible placing of the Memorial Centre on part of Morrow Park, opinion of the authority of the Trustees to give assent had been obtained from three independent lawyers in Toronto.

"The opinions they gave suggested that an application should be made to the Court, a Judge of the Supreme Court," Mr. Huycke said, "but nothing has yet been done in that respect. And, I don't think you will get much co-operation from any of the other bodies. But, you could take it to the Supreme Court and see what happens."

City Water Rate Increased $5,000

Utilities Commission directed Monday the sending of a memorandum to the city council that the charge for water and hydrants required in fire protection will be $25,000 this year as compared with $20,000 in 1947.

The Commission's requisition in 1939 was $20,000, reduced to $18,000 in 1940 and remaining at that level until 1947 when he charge was raised to $20,000. Back in 1933 in the depth of the depression period the levy was $25,000.

Increased wages and general costs of operation is the main factor in the new increase. Twelve additional hydrants were placed last year over an enlarged area of the city.

Sentence 3rd Offender Just Out Of Jail

John Cahill, unemployed, no fixed address, has a fixed address again for another three months. Released Monday after serving a sentence on a liquor charge, he was up before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in court today, charged wtih being drunk in public and as a third offender.

He explained the brevity of his period of freedom to his worship: "I didn't realize the effect the quantity I had to drink would have on me."

In sentencing him to three months, the magistrate advised him to "take it easy on such things."

Harold Sipes, 250 Charlotte St., was remanded on bail of $500 until Feb. 10 when trial will take place against him of theft of a case of soup from a George St. restaurant.

He entered a plea of not guilty.

Outlines Need of Choosing Stories For Small Children

Founder's Day rally held Monday evening in the Sunday School room of George St. United Church was attended by more than 400 members of Home and School associations of the city. Guest speaker of the evening was Miss Mary Grannan, well - known author of children's books and story-teller.

Following her introduction by Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, Miss Grannan expressed deep pleasure in the reception given her in Peterborough. Her talk outlined the various types of radio programs suitable for children and with many amusing anecdotes she told the origins of many of her own stories.

"Variety shows," she said, "are economically sound, because they please the largest audience. The same ingredients go into them as in those for adults, except in smaller quantities." The second type she mentioned were book reviews and newspaper stories and in these the lives of famous people are dramatized.

She also included "on the spot" or "actuality" programs which are done with a mobile unit in which they interview workers in toy factories, etc. In the fantasy shows they use folk-lore from many foreign countries, and in this way the children learn a great deal about other lands. Then there is the school broadcast, which is familiar to most persons. So-called "horror" programs are in most cases quite suitable for the children as they are strictly censured beforehand, but the parents consider them "bad" because of the noise. They are usually full of geographic knowledge which the child picks up for future reference without really seeming to.

"Children who are happy and secure in their homes are not affected adversely by these programs," said Miss Grannan.

Blames Parents

From a recent poll to find out children's favorite programs, it was learned that the ones they like which might be classed as "Horrors" are on the air at times not considered children's listening times, and therefore the parents are responsible.

Speaking of her own series, Miss Grannan said they are well-spiked with nature study which benefits the small students. She explained that she has armed herself with an expensive array of books on nature study from which she takes her information.

Every-day happenings form the basis for many of her stories and she amused the audience with some of her most interesting behind-the-scenes anecdotes. In conclusion she read her own story, "Tippy O'Grady and the Hall Clock."

Program for this special meeting opened with a sing song led by Mr. Jack Telford. Those taking part in an interesting playlet presented were: Mrs. O. Laderach Miss Margaret Parnell, Mrs. W. Frise, Mrs. H. J. Parnell, Mrs. R. Davidson, Mrs. W. Laing, Mrs. B. Holland and Mr J. Telford.

Mrs. R. L. Hale, guest soloist, sang "My Task" and "Slumber Dear Maid" by Handel, set to the music of Largo, with Mrs. A. E. DeNure accompanying at the piano. These were selections chosen in memory of Mrs. A. Courtice, the founder of Home and School. Mrs. E. Chamber, district chairman, explained Founder's Day which was being celebrated with this rally, and outlined the work of Home and School Associations, mentioning the extent to which it has grown from such a small beginning.

The candle-lighting service was conducted by Mrs. L. M. Richardson, Mrs. S. Whitfield and Mrs. A. W. Nelson.

A vote of appreciation to all taking part in the rally was moved by Mrs. C. Collins.

Deputation Asks

"Our Solicitor has those opinions," said Ald. Waddell. "I think he might review them, and make some recommendation to the council. We might then decide what steps to take."

Ald. Doug Miller's motion, seconded by Mayor Ovens, was a general directive that "the City Solicitor look into the situation, and report next Monday night".

Ald. Dodds commented that if the city could take over the park up a George St. strip without expropriation. The present question is whether we are content to let things drift on for another year without getting a road for those citizens who need it."

Section Cut Off

Rev. C. E. Moore previously said the sentiment and wishes of the great majority of the people in the south end was that something should be done to provide an ordinary means of traffic through the park to Ann St. "It might be said that I have a selfish interest because the extension of George St. would be of great assistance to my people in their coming to St. George's Church, but on the opposite side of the street from us is St. John's Separate School. Public institutions have a right to the attentions of the council in a matter of convenience to many citizens. The street would be of assistance to the church and of further assistants to the city as a whole. This is important and I hope something will be done."

Rev. Mr. Moore said he had observed something of a psychologic effect of the fence in creating a feeling that the people to the south of the park were some how apart from the rest of the city. "You can't build unity with that attitude developing in the minds of people. In view of the enlightment of today there should be no feeling in part of the community of being below the tracks or the fair grounds." Rev. Mr. Moore said there was evidence that the park as at present was convenient for child delinquency.

Mr. McLarnon said no other part of the city "would stand for being cut off by a 1200-foot board fence". As a builder he considered that the enclosed park would gradually have a detrimental effect to property values south of it.

Mayors Ovens told the deputation that the council would consider their request in committee, and at once "because we are all disturbed about the condition there".

Nothing To Disclaim

In his statement to the committee, Mayor Ovens recalled that the council had asked the Exhibition Board formally to disclaim any right to the Park, as a condition to it devolving to the city. "We were advised that the Exhibition Board did not have anything to disclaim."

Six years, when G. N. Gordon was an alderman, the council had bought a six foot strip of land along the south fence of the park as a means of securing for the future an extension of George St. "More recently we were advised that the Exhibition Board were the only people who could put George St. through. It was understood that the Morrow Trust were not opposed. The only party who can open up George St. is the Exhibition Board itself, and as you know they have a new Board. We have had no reply from any of the discussions we have had with the Exhibition Board on several occasions."

Mr. Huycke said he could not definitely recall that one of the legal opinions about the Morrow Trust deed expressed the view that the Exhibition Board were the only people who could run a street through the park. "The park property is vested in the Morrow Trust board of five members. They own it. The Exhibition Board has it as tenants as long as they care to use it."

Ald Swanston said this question of George St. extension had been kicked around long enough. The people of that south end area had asked for annexation and were now part of the city with the rights of all other citizens. "I'd like to see a committee deal with this immediately."

Mayor Ovens suggested that City Solicitor Huycke be given authority "to take steps to have George St. extended. We could have such a committee report next week."

Mr. Huycke said there was nothing to prevent the council from taking expropriation proceedings preliminary to the extension of George St.

WHY DO WOMEN SOUR ON MARRIAGE

Too Many Spouses Build Impossible Ideal Husbands Cannot Live Up To

A correspondent says: "Practically all women want to marry; and they feel that life is cinders, ashes and dust if they do not get a husband. Yet women are the chief petitioners in the divorce cases. Why is it that so many of them so soon lose their taste for marriage?"

Dorothy Dix

That is a conundrum that no one can answer for true for there are as many different sources of domestic grouches as there are married women; and each wife has her own pet peeve if she is one of those pernickety ladies who is always searching for a crumpled rose leaf under her 40 mattresses of ease.

Any woman can find a grievance if she looks for it hard enough, for even the Creator was not able to make a perfectly satisfactory husband, as is proven by the Adam and Eve affair. But I think that the reason that so many women go about beating their breasts and crying out that marriage is a failure is because they expected too much of it.

They had built up an impossible ideal of earthly bliss in which there would be nothing but sunshine and roses; where their husbands would always be great lovers; where they would be always clothed in bridal finery and where as the old cowboy song says, they would never hear a discouraging word.

Marriage Can Be Tedious

And when they found out that marriage was mostly cooking and washing and scrubbing and babytending and putting up with the peculiarities of husbands who are always throwing their mothers in their teeth, and who had dropped all of their love-making at the altar, they just couldn't take it. They turned on their tear ducts and began filing their bills of complaint against marriage.

Another reason why so many women find marriage a chore instead of a picnic is because mothers so seldom rear their daughters to be wives. Not one bride in a dozen knows how to cook, or whether to buy a sheep or a chop for lunch. No has her mother ever given her any tips about how to stroke her husband's fur the right way instead of getting in his hair. So it is no wonder that, when the young husband sits down to a meat that is inedible, he says things that sour her on the whole matrimonial relationship.

Of course, a gloomy and disgruntled wife, who is always complaining and fault-finding, isn't what the husband bargained for in marriage, either. But, to a large extent, he is to blame for it; for the great majority of husbands take mighty little trouble to make marriage a happy experience to the women to whom they are married. They think that all that any woman needs to keep her entertained and amused is to sit up and look at her wedding ring.

Unfortunately, such is not the case. Little as husbands suspect it, their wives have the same need and desire for entertainment and amusement as they have. The girl who has been accustomed to putting on her pretty clothes and stepping out in the bright lights can be just as bored spending every evening at home as her husband would. She doesn't even enjoy hearing the baby cry any more than he does.

But husbands are obsessed with the belief that wives need no other entertainment than just being married to them, so there is no use in wasting time and money in showing them a good time. It is his wife's boredom that costs many a man a lot of alimony.

Loretta Young Raised Storm With Impressions of Britain

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Loretta Young's doleful impressions of post-war Britain that only one kind thing has been said about her since— and that was the Daily Herald's pale orchid at the end of a scathing editorial "but we still like her acting."

Not a murmur was heard in support of her observation that Britons looked "tired and drained of feeling." Even the critical Conservative press which often laments the declining standards of living in Britain withheld approval.

Hundreds of indignant letters are still reaching newspapers and one suggestion frequently made by ordinary folk is that "Miss Young should have stayed with us."

Reaction in Fleet Street to Loretta's tale of a shipping reporter who grew a beard because of an alleged razor blade famine is that "he was probably trying to look literary."

In fact, so many London newspaper men now cultivate beards in conjunction with green corduroy trousers and floppy ties that it lends weight to the suggestion.

Humorist Takes It Up

British humorist Nathaniel Gubbins, writing in the Sunday Express, had this to say of a business executive who was reported to have gone around in shoes "patched with cardboard."

"There was a time when children of the poor went around with cardboard soles in their shoes . . . . without attracting much attention from distinguished visitors or even from distinguished natives."

Gubbins said that she was right about people looking tired and drained of feeling if she was referring to guests in expensive London hotels, adding: "I've never seen them look any different at any time . . . some of them have hangovers. Some are acquiring hangovers. Most of them dislike or distrust each other. All of them are bored . . . ."

BBC Banter.

Staid, long-service employees of the BBC, whose lives have mellowed in the cloistered silences of Broadcasting House, are wondering what has happened to their once so solid world.

No less than nine organizations now are storming the BBC's stone fortress on Langham Place—the Dance Band Directors Association, the British Song-Writers Club, Equity, the football authorities, the Musicians' Union, the Theatre Managers Association, the Boxing Board of Control, the Song Writers Guild, and National Association of Theatrical and Kine Employees.

Resisting this concerted attack are persons "deputed" to act as spokesmen. There are spokesmen against increased fees for bands, spokesmen defending time given to American music, spokesmen dealing with the theatre managers and spokesmen arguing against the ban on broadcasting announced by the Boxing Board of Control.

"We deal with them as they come along," said a resigned voice at the BBC. "There's no peace these days."

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, February 4

The astral indications are that an energetic and fiery flare-up or explosion may result in clarifying the atmosphere for a promising degree of constructive work. After an outburst of over-enthusiasm, with resentments and harsh words, there is likely to be a saving gesture of pouring oil on troubled water, with compromise, better understanding, and a show of reason rather than riot and recrimination. This possibly owing to the kindly intervention of responsible persons, able to note advantages, progress and ultimate gain and harmony born of consideration and amicable adjustments of honest differences of opinion.

For The Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find their affairs moving into productive goals, with definite progress and promotion, following a space of entanglements, misunderstanding, wrangling acrimony and resentments. A deep analysis with practical appraisal of major interests, has promise of an energetic move in the right direction, possibly with the good offices and constructive cooperation of those in responsible places. There is much to be gained by reason and sound tactics, as the mentality and energies are under splendid stimuli for action.

A child born on this day has a versatile mentality, with skill, ingenuity and force to back up its ambitious ideas and enterprises.

St. John's Church Vestry Urged To Aid In Expansion Work

There was a splendid attendance at the annual meeting of the vestry of St. John's Church on Monday evening, with the rector, Archdeacon W. P. Robertson presiding. A very satisfactory financial statement was presented by the two wardens, A. L. Killaly and E. G. R. Clarke.

In commenting on the excellent financial condition of the parish, the rector drew special attention to the wonderful response made by the congregation to the "Anglican Advance Appeal", known as the "AAA Fund" admitting both joy and amusement that the full objective of $15,945 will be fully met by May, 1949. This amount was far in excess of what was expected. He paid tribute to Mr. H. C. Sootheran who has handled this fund while thanking the congregation for their support. He said these results were encouraging to himself, and the wardens, but added these are challenging days when "church extension" must go on. Parishes like St. John's that are free of debt must assist those less fortunate by assuming greater responsibility toward newly formed mission parishes. He referred to the one starting south of the parish of St. George's in the south end of the city, known as St. Alban's. Great strides are being made, and he emphasized the need for financial support for the building of a place of worship and placed the onus on the older parishes like St. John's, to assist in a concrete manner.

The wardens for 1948 were named: Mr. A. L. Killaly consented to serve a third term as rector's warden with the assistance of Mr. E. G. R. Clarke, retiring people's warden; Mr. E. Vernon Morphet was named people's warden.

The thanks of the vestry was extended to Mr. D. Lawrie for his kindness in acting as auditor. The vestry also passed an expression of sympathy and regret at the untimely death during the year of the late Primate, Derwyn T. Owen, and assured his successor, Bishop Beverley, the full support of the congregation.

Excellent reports were presented by the organizations of the church, showing progress and advancement.

Sunday School—Mr. F. Stewart, secretary-treasurer, with a supplementary report from the superintendent, Mr. Victor Coleman, who thanked the teaching staff for their loyal support.

Primary Sunday School — Report was read by Miss G. Record.

Junior Church — Report was read by Mr. A. L. Killaly for Miss Stevenson.

Women's Friendly Bible Class—Report was presented by Mrs. F. Biddle, president. This very earnest group of women meet regularly each Sunday afternoon for spiritual guidance and during the week for practical work and they assist financially many of the church and extra parochial funds.

Church Women's Association—Report read by Mrs. Ward showing progress, especially in the reorganizing of the "Cent a Day" fund.

Chancel Guild—This report was given by Miss M. English.

The choir report, read by Miss R. Quartermaine, thanked those who made the new choir vestments and the "WFBC" for the gift of new cushions. Mr. F. G. Mann, organist and choirmaster, added a brief word of thanks for the support given him by the choir and looks back on 25 years of service at St. John's with thankfulness and gratification.

AYPA was reported on by the president, June Record, under whose guidance this youthful organization is growing.

All these organizations of the church were congratulated by the rector and they were assured their reports were most encouraging.

The following are the list of officers for the ensuing year:

Rector's Warden, Mr. A. L. Killaly; people's warden, Mr. E. Vernon Morphet; lay delegates to Synod, Dr. G. S. Cameron, C. Coleman, W. R. L. Blackwell, H. C. Sootheran, A. L. Killaly; alternates, F. D. Kerr, W. C. Ackerman, H. A. Lemmings, C. K. Lech, E. Vernon Morphet.

Magistrate Dismisses Sausage Meat Case

TORONTO, Feb. 3 — (CP). — An action against James Cridland and Sons, charged with selling adulterated sausage meat to a grocery store in Brockville, was dismissed in Magistrate's Court yesterday on the grounds there was no proof whether the meat was Cridland's or that of the butcher, James E. McDaugall.

The butcher said he had two pans of sausage on his counter—one containing Cridland sausages and the other his own hand-made sausage. Willis Moon, Federal food inspector, said he had sent a sample from one of the pans for analysis. A report on the analysis said the meat tested contained an over-supply of sulphur dioxide which rendered it impure.

Get $11,000 In Holdup

MONTREAL, Feb. 3.—(CP).— Their faces masked with handkerchiefs, two armed bandits walked into the Banque Canadienne Nationale branch at nearby Laprairie yesterday, forced two employees and two customers to lie on the floor and cleaned out the teller's cage of $11,000, provincial police reported yesterday.

Labor Leader Apologizes For Big Uproar

PRINCEVILLE, Que., Feb. 3—(CP). — Jacques Casgrain, Montreal lawyer and fiery labor leader who made headlines last fall by his numerous brushes with the police and repeated arrests during the packinghouse workers' strike, apologized for it all yesterday.

Pleading guilty before Judge Joseph Marier on charges arising from the strike at the Co-operative Federee meat-packing plant here, Casgrain who resigned recently as provincial organizer of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO) was given a suspended sentence and ordered to post a bond of $200 to keep the peace for one year.

The former UOWA organizer and lawyer denounced all attempts at violence by labor and praised the work of the Provincial Police during strikes in the Province of Quebec.

Casgrain is awaiting trial on several other charges arising from the meat-packers' and other strikes in the Montreal area. He was arrested several times when he led strikers in an attempt to stop willing workers from entering plants.

In his written statement read to the court, Casgrain warned that "we must stop the subversive elements from dominating labor unions and we must prevent the Marxist parties from gaining control of the labor movement...

"The recent events in Europe show eloquently how vain are the policies of the Communist Party," he said.

School Area Plan Favored

LINDSAY, Feb. 3 — (ENS) — Lindsay town council went on record Monday as favoring the school area plan as proposed for Victoria County. Under this plan students of Lindsay and the townships of Ops, Mariposa, part of Fenelon and the village of Omemee would attend a central high school here. J. R. Wilford, secretary of the Lindsay Board of Education, told council of the advantages that students from outlying districts would enjoy along with pupils from Lindsay under such an arrangement. In addition to the five-year academic course, he said the course of studies taught here would include four years of shop work, four years of agriculture and a two-year commercial course. Mr. Wilford was of the opinion other municipalities involved would favor the plan too. At a recent meeting, a number of Ops township residents were in accord with the scheme, he said.

Lindsay Appoints Parks Board Of Six

LINDSAY, Feb. 3,—(ENS). — The Lindsay Town Council appointed on Monday night a board of parks management, as a result of the municipal elections January 5, when citizens of Lindsay voted strongly in favor of the move. The board will supervise all parks and grounds and expend up to one mill a year in so doing.

Members of the board are Mrs. Frank Reynolds, Miss Ada Greaves, W. J. Carlisle, T. R Price, H. Debois and Carl Brown.

Rising Cost of Living Under Review In House

By GEORGE KITCHEN

OTTAWA, Feb. 3—(CP).—The Commons continued today a full-dress debate on the country's No. 1 problem—the rising cost of living—as a prelude to the formation of a special 16-man committee to investigate cases of hoarding and profiteering. The debate, sparked by bitter political wrangling, opened yesterday after Prime Minister Mackenzie King moved a resolution which would give the proposed committee power to probe the causes of the recent rise in living costs and delve into reports that goods have been withheld from the market and abnormal prices charged.

The debate drew from John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, an amendment enlarging the committee's field of investigation, and a charge that the Government was seeking to "side-step" the issue and place on others the blame he said it should itself assume for the mishandling of controls.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, challenged the government to put the question to the people by calling immediate by-elections in the three vacant Federal constituencies of Ontario, Yale, B.C., and Vancouver centre, and pledged his party to stand or fall on the verdict of those contests.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, agreed that the administration was seeking to "evade" its responsibilities and suggested the committee investigate the effects of the rising cost of living on specified groups, such as pensioners and student veterans.

Recommend Action

The three opposition leaders joined in urging that the committee be given power to recommend action to parliament.

Mr. Bracken's amendment would direct the committee to study the effect of present government policies in lessening agricultural production, the advisability of continuing present controls over farm products when there are no controls over costs of production and the advisability of reverting to subsidies on essential commodities.

Other speakers included Joseph A. Bradette (L—Cochrane), Karl Homuth (PC—Waterloo South), T. L. Church (PC—Toronto Broadview) and Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre).

Mr. King indicated the committee will be given the power to make recommendations at a later stage but said that for the moment that power was being withheld because it would only breed political controversy when the committee came to the point of deciding what should or should not be recommended.

Fact-Finding Jbo

The committee would be fact-finding in nature and not policy-making. Once the facts were available, prosecutions could be started in the courts under existing legislation. Its powers would be broad enough to enable it to call "individuals from any part of the country to answer for the situation in which they may be involved."

Indicating the possibility of tax reductions, he told the chamber some parts of the government's program for the lowering of living costs could not be disclosed at this time, and added:

"It has been stated in the press that the proper way to bring down the cost of living is to make certain changes in the tax schedules and the like. As members well know, the government cannot disclose its program on this matter until the budget itself is brought down."

While there may be individuals "here and there" who were hoarding and keeping prices "at an unnaturally high level," there was "not necessarily" a combine in existence supporting them.

Publicity Answer?

At the same time, Mr. King reiterated his belief that publicity based on facts would be more effective than penalties.

Mr. Bracken charged that the rising cost of living was directly traceable to government policies which allowed credit to expand twice as fast as goods became available. The government had "deliberately and designedly" contributed to the situation.

He suggested the government lower living costs by reducing the burden of 'hidden" taxes. which he said had poured $1,000,000 into the Federal treasury each year. Through these taxes, the government itself was "more mean and more greedy" than any individual profiteer.

Mr. Coldwell said the facts did not bear out the government's contention that Canada had suffered less from inflation than any other country. No one could say that those living in fixed incomes, such as pensioners and those whose means came from investments, could buy as much now as they could a few years ago

He agreed with much that was in Mr. Bracken's amendment but did not believe that the problem could be solved by taking steps to decrease the country's purchasing power. The most effective means would be the return to price control and to increased production.

Charging that the Government was "trying to evade its responsibilities" in the prices situation, Mr. Low expressed belief the removal of indirect taxes alone would cut living costs by 20 to 40 per cent. since they tended to pyramid taxes.

His party stood for controls but its theory was that control should be by inducement rather than by compulsion. This type of control could be developed through subsidies and price discounts.

Southerners Annoyed With Truman

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP).— The United States Senate today put aside, perhaps for two months, the Republican tax-cutting bill while in the ranks of the Democrats southerners talked of calling a convention to split away from President Truman on the civil rights issue.

The tax-cutting bill and the civil rights report by Truman highlighted congressional action yesterday as progress on the controversial St. Lawrence seaway and power project was halted.

Senate backers of the joint Canada-United States project sought to delay a vote on the measure while its opponents pressed for an early decision.

Unless the Senate can reach a vote by Thursday the legislation is likely to lay over until late in the month.

The Republican tax-cutting bill passed the House of Representatives yesterday by a vote of 297 to 120, 19 more than the two-thirds majority needed to override a presidential veto. The House overwhelmingly approved a tax cut of $6,500,000,000 but it is expected the cut will be reduced in the Senate.

Very Annoyed

The southern Democrats were annoyed over four points of Truman's civil rights message. These call for a federal anti-lynching law, a permanent fair employment practice commision, an end to "Jim Crow" segregation rules in transportation and outlawing state poll taxes.

One Senator from the southern states said present plans are to ask the conference of southern state governors to call an all-southern convention. Such a gathering could pick its own presidential candidate.

Chief cause of anger in the south is that these federal measures would give the government powers now delegated to the states and jealously guarded by the south since post-civil war days.

Ask Marketing Laws

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—(CP).— In two resolutions yesterday the 26th annual meeting of the Canadian Horticulture Council urged Federal government action for marketing legislation to supplement existing provincial marketing acts and continuance of the Dominion-Provincial farm labor service.

KING-QUEENS BETTER

IN MOST tables of high card values, an ace is rated as equal in trick-taking power to a king-queen. Actually the king-queen excels the ace in that respect, since the combination will frequently take two tricks whereas the ace can never take more than one. The ace obviously has certain properties which the combination can't possess, such as immediacy of use as a quick entry and for establishing the value of lower cards. But for sheer trick-taking potentiality, the king-queen is usually worth two when the ace has to play before it.

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

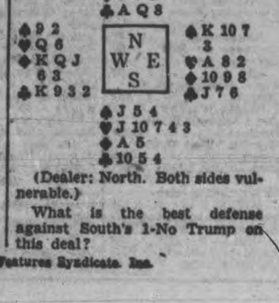
South, having opened a bit lightly, got himself in a contract which was slightly over his head. But just examine the holdings of dummy and declarer, in relation to the position of the defenders' aces. Isn't it pretty clear that he can get two tricks with any one of his K-Q combinations if he leads toward it twice? Taking eight tricks that way, plus another in spades if they set up, would seem to furnish him enough tricks for his game while the opponents score only their four aces.



It didn't actually work out that way, due to a factor known as "timing." West led the second suit named by the dummy, his club 2, the Q winning. The spade 4 was sent to the K, then the heart 4 to the Q. On the spade 2 lead, East scored his A and sent back the club J to the A. West now used his club 6 to knock out the K and establish his own 5. The diamond 2 was led to the K, whereupon South cashed the spade Q, 10 and 7.

When the heart 9 was now led, West came in with the A and scored his club 5, then led to the diamond A to set the contract.

Notice this feature—how much closer South came to getting nine tricks with his four K-Q's than he would have with four A's.

Lindsay's Mayor Critical Of Citizens' Band

LINDSAY, Feb. 3 (ENS) —The Lindsay Citizens' Band came in for some criticism from Mayor Chas. Lamb at a meeting of town council here Monday night. "The present band is the worst in the history of Lindsay," Mayor Lamb declared, "they can's play "Home Sweet Home' for Old Home Week." He pointed out the need for a good band for the Lindsay and Victoria County Old Home Week celebrations to take place July 1 to 10 of this year. Mayor Lamb's criticism came after council had received a request from the local band for the annual grant of $1,200. "It's time we stopped monkeying around with this band question," His Worship stated. "On two occasions, July 12 and Armistice Day we asked for the town band and the Salvation Army Band turned up."

He suggested Col. Alex Turner, officer commanding the local reserve unit be approached to take over the band. "As a military band they could practice in the armoury and enjoy many other advantages," he added.

A committee of council will meet with Bandmaster W. Heffernan, Col. Turner and the bandsmen to discuss the matter.

De Valera Will Face Stiff Election Test

By MICHAEL ROONEY

DUBLIN, Feb. 3 — (CP). — Prime Minister De Valera's Fianna Fail government party tomorrow faces the stiffest test of its 16-year-old supremacy in a general election and all signs point to a record poll.

The main challenge comes from the newly-formed Republican party led by Sean MacBride, former private secretary to De Valera, whose followers include many professional men, some of them former Fianna Fail supporters.

Husky, sore-throated politicians and newspaper men straggling back to Dublin for the final phases of the campaign say that they have never known the country to be so election-conscious.

De Valera's meetings show that the Fianna Fail leader still has a great grip on the affection of the people but it is noticeable that MacBride held meetings in many centres that set new attendance records.

Second Offender Has Some Difficulty Refreshing His Mind To First Offense

There seemed to be some doubt in the mind of Harry Yeotes, 612 Gordon Ave., as to the truth alleged in the two charges against him in police court today. Charged with being drunk in public, and as a second offender, Yeotes objected rather mildly to both.

In regard to being drunk in public, he explained that he had been drunk—he did not dispute that—but maintained that he had come to the police station Monday night and asked to be locked up... but he wasn't drunk on the street, as charged in the standard information form.

"Are you suggesting," asked Magistrate Philp, "that not until you crossed the threshold of the station did you become drunk?"

The second objection caused more delay. Yeotes could not recall if and when he had ever been convicted of an offence against the Liquor Control Act, as alleged in the "second offender" part of the charge.

This entailed three trips from the court room to the cells and back while police dug into the files to refresh his memory and while the court proceeded with other cases.

He was shown a certificate signed by the court clerk giving details of that conviction—one for illegal possession in March, 1947. Although this led him to "guess" it must be correct, he appealed to the magistrate:

"I'll plead guilty to whatever you say, sir," he said candidly.

The magistrate replied that it was up to the accused to enter his own plea.

Yeotes finally decided he was guilty as charged.

He was fined $50 and costs of $2.50 or one month.

Speed Skater Sticks To Own Line

WINNIPEG, Feb. 3.—(CP). — Comely Betty Mitchell of Winnipeg, queen of North America's speed skaters for the last two years, feels that speed and figure skating don't mix.

Stretched out in an easy chair, with her feet propped on a footrest, 19-year-old Betty wriggled her toes for a moment, and then ventured: "It's either one or the other—but not both."

That, at least, is the way it worked out for dark-haired Betty. She took a whirl at figure skating a few years ago but found that it retarded her progress in the speed skating field and therefore gave it up.

"It takes such constant practice to become good at figure skating," said Betty. "It's necessary to be at it all the time and I wouldn't have had any time for speed skating."

Betty, who retained her North American laurels at Alpena, Mich., last month, has been speed skating since she was 10. She swept the boards in the Alepan meet—first girl racer ever to turn the trick — winning in the 200 yards, the 440, the half-mile, three-quarter mile and mile.

It was also the first time that a girl had been able to win the title two years in succession.

Betty's chief disappointment is that there is no women's speed skating in the Olympic games, although it is possible that she may represent Canada at the summer Olympics in track.

Health League Support Sought

An address tracing the growth of medical lore through European history and particularly during the last 80 years as a result of Pasteur's contribution to bacteriology, was given by Dr. J. Gillies, Toronto, at a meeting of the Lions Club held Monday night at the Kawartha Club.

It marked the opening day of Health Week in which citizens are invited to become acquainted with latest medical practices and appreciate the work that the Health League of Canada is doing.

More than 60 members at the dinner-gathering heard him tell of the great scientific advances made in medicine since the second half of the 19th century.

Dr. Gillies paid tribute to Canada's recognition of good health practices. Ontario, he pointed out, was still the only province that made pasteurization of milk obligatory before it could be offered for sale. Forty years ago whole families were wiped out by diphtheria. In recent years the disease has been almost nil.

Whooping cough, chicken pox, and veneral diseases were all being slowly conquered, he contended; and he said the greatest problem was that the great mass of the people are apathetic, not only to others, but also to their own health.

Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, said that the Health League in Peterborough was doing a worth while job. Medical practice had advanced to the stage where it could tell what to do and what not to do. The big gap was between knowledge and practice. Dr. Kelly then asked for public opinion to rally behind the Health League.

Guests were: R. A. Cox, Toronto; Dr. Max Young, Dr. J. E. Howes, Dr. J. C. Dawson, Douglas Weaver, Dr. G. Longman and Dr. H. M. Yelland.

At the head table were: Dr. J. R. Epping, C. A. McTavish, vice-president Peterborough Health League; Dr. J. Gillies, Toronto; Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH; J. E. Girven, local chairman Health League, and George Barnes.

Mennonite Refugees Leave For Paraguay

GENEVA, Feb. 3 —(Reuters)— The first of 2,400 Mennonite displaced persons in Germany will leave Bremerhaven on Feb. 6 to settle in the wild Chaco area of Paraguay.

Cornelius Klaseen, members of the executive of the Mennonite central committee of the United States and Canada, recently visited Geneva to arrange the passage for these religious refugees with the preparatory commission of the United Nations international refugee organization.

Already 8,300 Mennonites — members of a 400-year-old Dutch religious sect who migrated to Russia—have been settled in this area of Paraguay, formerly inhabited only by Indians.

In the deserted brush land, 300 miles from the nearest town, they have built five settlements to grow cotton and raise cattle.

P.C.I.R.O. is paying for the movement of 1,600 of the present group of 2,400 Mennonite emigrants. Funds for the remainder will be provided by the Mennonite church.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

A spokesman for New York District Attorney, Frank Hogan announced that several persons closely connected with boxing have been ordered to appear Thursday before the current grand jury investigation of underworld influences of boxing in New York. At least three persons were issued subpoenaes at last Friday's Madison Square Garden bouts.

Joe Maxim of Cleveland, one of the many contenders for the world's heavyweight boxing championship, displayed improved speed and punching know-how in Little Rock, Ark., last night as he outpointed Bob Sikes of Little Rock.

Milt Schmidt, Boston Bruins National League hockey star centre, is back on the sidelines for at least three weeks as a result of torn ligaments in his left knee, suffered in last Friday's game with Montreal.

Harvey Clifford of Ottawa, and Hec Sutherland of Montreal finished the men's downhill ski race at the Winter Olympics in a tie for 28th place. They travelled the two-mile run against 114 contestants the time 3:14.1.

Joltin' Johnny Greco, Canadian welterweight champion, knockd out Henry Jordan of Philadelphia in Montreal last night with a stinging right uppercut in the eighth round.

The 26th annual meeting of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association is scheduled for March 26 at Kingston. More than 300 delegates from 212 local associations are expected to attend.

Reject Leniency Plea

LONDON, Feb. 3— (CP) — Pleas for more lenient treatment for Britain's estimated 21,000 deserters from the armed forces were rejected in the House of Commons yesterday by defence minister A. V. Alexander. "It would have a serious effect on the discipline of those now serving in the forces," the minister said.

Blame Brundage For Placing U.S. In Hot Spot

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

MONTREAL, Feb. 3 — (CP)— The greater the muddle in the winter Olympics, the greater is the field day for the sports columnists.

There was the wild and ludicrous bickering over which hockey team should represent the United States and then there came the more serious piece of business—sabotage of two American bob sleds.

Baz (Montreal Herald) O'Meara has never pulled his punches on Avery Brundage, the US Olympic head, since Brundage with much shouting played the leading role in depriving Barbara Ann Scott of her canary-colored convertible automobile. Now Baz tosses the blame for all the Olympic goings-on right in Brundage's lap.

"It isn't a pretty picture," writes Baz. "In fact, it is a sad state of affairs. The whole squalid business would never have happened except for the hatred generated by the action of one man, Avery Brundage.

"Avery Umbrage, as you might call him, certainly put his American compatriots in a very hot spot...."

Phurious Phil.

Phil Watson, the colorful 33-year-old veteran of New York Rangers, is putting on a great hockey display this season teamed up with Buddy O'Connor, former Montreal Canadien. Phil, whose home is in Longueuil across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal, did a stretch with Canadiens during one of the war years when there was some difficulty over residential and border-crossing regulations. Then he went back to Rangers.

Says Baz of Phil:

"Canadiens could have had Watson back in the O'Connor deal, but the management demurred because quite a few of the players were at odds with Phil after a summer softball season when he was in charge of affairs. Anyway, he was 33, and they felt if Rangers wanted to get rid of him he must be washed up. Playing with O'Connor, a deft puck-passer, has given him a new lease of life...."

"He is quick-tempered, high-strung and emotional. He subsides as quickly as he erupts. One thing about him, he is never dull...."

U.S. In Running For Gold Medal

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 3 (AP). — The fifth winter Olympic Games entered the half-way mark of their 10-day run to-day with hockey, women's figure skating, speed skating, and skiing among the events.

Originally scheduled to begin yesterday, the women's figure skating event was postponed with a shortage of judges given as the reason.

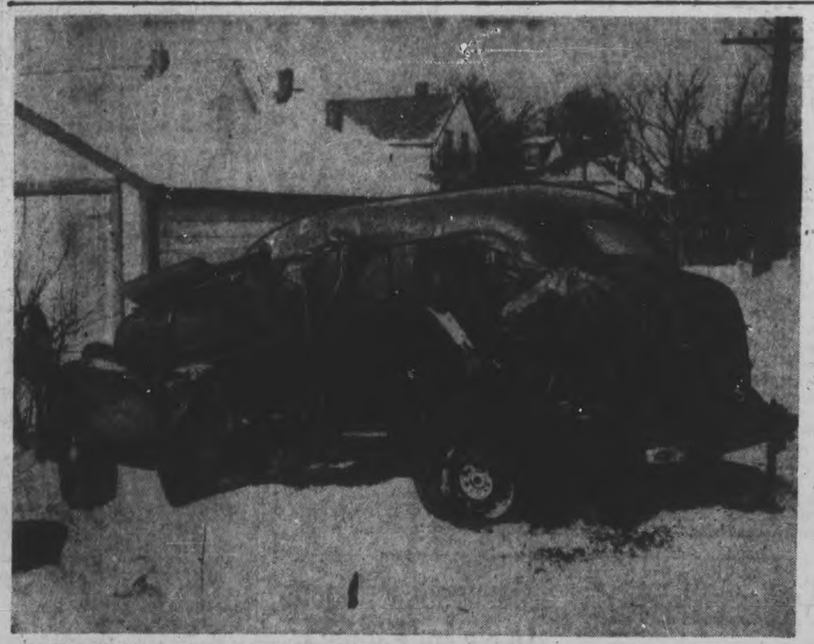
In yesterday's events, Dick Button of Englewood, NJ, kept the United States in the running for a gold medal by gaining the most points in the first half of the men's figure-skating competition—compulsory figures. The free-skating event will be held to-morrow.

Button outscored his chief rival, Hans Gerschwiler of Switzerland. The 18-year-old American's official score was 994.7 points against Gerschwiler's 965.1

Norway took over first place in the race for team honors from Sweden as Norwegian Sverre Farstad set an Olympic record in the 1,500-metre speed skating event.

The 28-year-old Farstad completed the distance in 2 minutes 17.6 seconds, eclipsing the old mark of 1:19.2 set by Norseman Charles Mathisen in 1936.

Norway now has garnered 44½ points to the Swedes' 39. The United States is sixth with 15¼ points. Canada has ¼ of a point.



Henri Oreiller of France copped the men's downhill two-mile ski race and Hedy Schlunegger of Switzerland took top honors in a similar event for women.

NAMED TOP JOCKEY

10,000 Troops Required To Preserve Peace In Trieste

By KUDSON O'QUINN

TRIESTE, Feb. 3 — (AP) — Trieste today is like a beautiful woman striken with cancer. Her suitors wine, dine and entertain her, enjoying her company, but knowing the possibility of full recovery is remote.

The Yugoslavs want the area because it is a natural outlet to the sea for their hinterland. Italy wants it because the population and culure are mostly Italian.

Neither faction is prepared to accept fully the compromise solution of the United Nations in making it a free territory. Ten thousand British-United States occupation troops stay on to preserve order and a toehold on the edge of the iron curtain. The peace treaty provides for occupation until after a civilian governor is named.

Almost all observers agree that the U.N.'s first-born never can stand alone economically. The Austro-Hungarian Empire subsidized Trieste before the First World War because the port was Central Europe's gateway to the Mediterranean. The Italians followed suit between wars. Now the United States is footing most of the bill.

Theoretically, the United Nations will finance the free territory once a civilian governor takes over. But the political unanimity necessary for appointment of a governor appears as unlikely at present as the free territory's chances of firm unsubsidized economic stability.

The free territory, a tiny wedge between Italy and Yugoslavia, was created by the Italian peace treaty and came into being Sept. 15, 1947, when it was ratified.

Two-Zone Area

British and American troops occupy the northern sector, which includes the city of Trieste and about two-fifths of the area of the free territory. Five thousand Yugoslav troops police the southern zone.

There are more than 300,000 persons living in the Anglo-American zone, including 260,000 in the city itself. The Yugoslav sector has about 70,000, of which about 80 per cent are Italian and the remainder Slavs and Croats.

The Communist party, mainstay of a political bloc called "The Union of Anti-Fascists and Slovenes," is agitating for a governor now. These tactics, an official said, stem from a desire to get American and British troops out of the area.

Communists are barred from from the civilian section of the American Military government, but recently have offered to cooperate. Formerly they pressed for union with Yugoslavia. Now their line is "Trieste for the Tristinos."

The Italians are spit into several factions, including Monachists and Fascists. Some Italians are Communists, as are most of the Slavs. Other Italians and independent Triestinos favor a free territory.

The relative strength of all parties is disputed. One high U.S. official predicted that anti-Communists would poll 65 per cent of the vote in any election on a straight Communist issue.

Some of the Italian groups, fearing Communist domination under a civilian government, openly oppose appointment of a governor. They wish Allied troops to remain. Most observers agree that selection of a governor hinges on a general reconciliation between east and west.

McNAUGHTON BECOMES U.N. PRESIDENT—Gen. A. G. L. Ambassador Wrong, guest speaker, spoke about Canadian problems and projects.

Cancer Clinic Offer Rejected

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 3 — (CP). — John Braund of Sydney, who claims he can cure cancer, today rejected an offer of $64,000 by E. J. Hallstrom, wealth Sydney philanthropist, to set up a cancer clinic.

In rejecting the offer, Braund said arrangements have been made for him to work in Melbourne.

Meantime, he continues to treat an unending stream of cancer sufferers who are making his modest little home at Beverly Hills, Sydney, a place of pilgrimage.

As a result of the widespread publicity given to Braund's claims, the New South Wales government decided to establish a panel of doctors and three laymen to check his treatment.

Braund at first welcomed the idea but yesterday he refused to entertain the government plan.

The Sydney Daily Mirror today used its first page to denounce Braund and issued a $16,000 challenge to him to perform his cure on a patient suffering from malignant cancer before a panel of doctors from BMA.

Rule Statement Out As Evidence

WELLAND, Feb. 3—(CP)—A statement made to police by 20-year-old Edwin Farrington was ruled inadmissible today as his trial for murder continued.

A statement made at the same time by Norman Kindy, 17, also was ruled inadmissible by Mr. Justice R. P. J. Kelly of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Farrington, whose home is in Glendale, RI, and Kindy, of suburban Stamford township, are charged with the rifle slaying last Sept. 24 of 57-year-old James Bell.

Contents of the statements — given to Chief Constable R. E. Worm of Stamford when the youths were brought back to Canada after being arrested in Oklahoma eight days after the murder —were not disclosed during last week's hearings.

Mr. Justice Kelly said he rejected the Farrington statement reluctantly, even though Farrington said it contained the truth.

"I was not satisfied that the Crown satisfied its onus of showing the statement was made voluntarily," said the judge. "Keeping in mind the age of the accused and the fact he is a foreigner and not familiar with our law, I believe the inducement which brought about (a statement made in Oklahoma) was not removed by the warning given prior to the second statement."

Flees Burning Home

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP)—A 10-year-old girl escaped in pyjamas from a burning London house today a short time after weary firemen returned from fighting in succession two London township house fires. One house was burned to the ground.

The girl, Nancy Wells, was seen running to the street by a passing motorist, Col. G. A. McArthur. He stopped his car and, learning the house was on fire, ran into the dwelling and brought the blaze under control before firemen arrived.

Shortly before noon a brick farm house, occupied by George Lockery and family was destroyed about six miles northwest of the city. Firemen had the fire there almost under control when the water supply gave out and the flames demolished the building.

An exploding coal stove was blamed for the fire that destroyed the house.

Flames Trap 4 Asleep In Que. Fire

Firemen Hampered By 20 Below Cold; Fifth Person Injured

ST. MICHEL, Que., Feb. 4 — (CP). — Trapped in bed when fire engulfed their home late last night, four members of one family were burned to death while a fifth was taken to hospital in Levis, 12 miles to the west of this Bellechasse county parish.

Dead are Treffle Michaud, 83, his 78-year-old wife; their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Adolphe Michaud, 52, and her 18-year-old son, Jean-Yves.

Jeannine Michaud, 17-year-old daughter of Adolphe Michaud, suffered burns to face and hands but Hotel Dieu Hospital in Levis today reported her condition not serious.

Only member of the family to escape the blazing inferno which destroyed the home was Adolphe Michaud. Charred remains of the four dead were removed from the burned-out building after local firemen, battling in 20 below zero weather, had brought the fire under control.

The fire, believed to have originated in the chimney, spread quickly through the two-storey frame dwelling, trapping members of the family asleep on the second floor. Neighbors, turned in the call for the tiny parish's volunteer firefighting bridgade.

The aged Mr. Michaud discovered the flames shortly after 11 p.m. and attempted to rouse the family. He was said to have succumbed to heat and smoke in his efforts to save his wife.

Ice-sheathed firemen, assisted by villagers, were hampered by the biting cold.

Jackson Says Industry Threatened

Union Submits Brief To Cabinet, House Howe Refuses Parley

OTTAWA, Feb. 4. — (CP). — Charging Canada's electrical manufacturing industry faces destruction, the United Electrical Workers (CCL) today demanded that the government free it from United States "domination" and from "disastrous effects" of the new dollar-conservation policy.

A 20,000-word brief from the UEW was made public by Canadian President C. S. Jackson of Toronto, who declared it had been sent to the Cabinet and Commons members after Trade Minister Howe had declined to grant an interview to representatives of the 25,000-member Canadian section of the UEW.

Mr. Jackson said it was "difficult to understand" Mr. Howe's attitude, in view of the fact it was largely on his judgment the "Abbott plan" would operate. The UEW members were being "denied a voice in the formation of government policies that can drastically affect their future."

Mr. Howe declined to comment on the Jackson charge that he had declined an interview. He said the brief was under consideration.

Make Suggestions

Declaring American domination and the dollar-conservation program threatened the Canadian industry, the UEW brief called on the government to take these steps immediately:

1. Rescind the new excise tax on certain durable consumer goods made in Canada. This would help maintain the domestic market and encourage Canadian manufacture to take the place of banned imports from the U.S.
2. Roll back prices to 1946 levels and impose ceilings there.
3. Impose a 100-per-cent tax on excess profits.
4. Promote export trade with, and grant credits to, countries wanting to buy Canadian goods to restore or expand their industries, regardless of their ability to pay in U.S. dollars and "without attaching political conditions."
5. Ban the transfer from Canada of dividends and royalty payments to the U.S.
6. Control the import of parts, supplies, materials and capital equipment from the U.S. "in such a way that Canadian industry will be developed rather than disrupted."
7. Encourage Canadian development of industries to produce components for the electrical manufacturing industry.
8. Seek alternative supply sources, for components which cannot be produced in Canada and which now are imported from the U.S.
9. Break "monopoly restrictions" on Canadian industry, creating new legal machinery where

Save 7 Children

TORONTO, Feb. 4—(CP). —Three women early today carried four small children to safety and led three older boys and girls from a two-storey house in east-central Toronto as fire gutted the building. All 10 persons were in night attire as they escaped to the street in the middle of a wind-whipped snowstorm.

Raft Report False Clue; Abandon Search

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 — (AP).— Air Force officers today abandoned search for the missing British South American Airways plane "Star Tiger" because "there is absolutely no hope of any survivors." The plane disappeared five days ago.

The United States army radio station at Coolidge Field, Antiqua Islands, said that faint SOS signals ending in the word "Tiger" originated somewhere north of the Leeward Islands in the Caribbean sea.

The mysterious signals, picked up by an Ohio radio amateur last night have been heard by a military and civil aeronautics authority communication centres on the Atlantic seaboard.

Earlier, the tanker Esso Philadelphia identified a white life raft seen floating about 700 miles south of Bermuda by a Pan American World Airways plane pilot as merchant ship equipment.

The British plane disappeared en route from the Azores to Bermuda with 29 aboard, including Sir Arthur Coningham, RAF second world war hero.

At Westover Field, Mass., the air transport command said that American planes which last night were ordered to end the search for the missing plane might start over again on the basis of the rudimentary radio message.

The sightings were reported six days after the disappearance of a British South American Airways plane, carrying Sir Arthur Coningham, British air hero of the Second World War and 28 othmer persons, on a flight from the Azores to Bermuda.

Strange Code

HALIFAX, Feb. 4 — (CP). — Two RCMP cutters put to sea today to act as listening posts following reports that crude wireless messages that may have come from survivors of a missing British passenger plane have been heard along the Atlantic coast.

RCAF and navy officials here described the messages shortly before a report from Hamilton, Bermuda, said a five-day air and surface search had been abandoned and no hope remained that any survivors would be found.

The latest message was received at the United States Air Force base at Argentia, Nfld., today. It was interpreted as the words "Star Tiger" — call sign of the missing Tudor IV.

Similar messages previously had been heard at the Ohio towns

Attlee Asks Great Britain For Voluntary Wage And Price Freezing

Declares Only Alternative Serious Setback To Economic Recovery, Accompanied By Low Standard Of Living

LONDON, Feb. 4 — (AP). — The Labor Government put Britons on an honor system today to sacrifice possible increased earnings. Wage earners, landlords and employers alike were asked in a White Paper to give up possible advances in wages and profits for the sake of combatting inflation and rebuilding the British economy. Prime Minister Attlee's Cabinet in effect called for a freeze on wages and profits, except in exceptional cases, in order to promote the export market and thus draw in additional dollars the United Kingdom needs.

The Government regarded the problem so seriously that Attlee went before the Commons to present the case after consulting trade unions, the backbone of his party, and Britain's organized employers.

The White Paper amounted to a reaffirmation of the Government's stand a year ago for voluntary curbs on increased earnings. The Government promised that, except for taxation, it would not interfere with individual incomes.

Voluntary Basis

The program remained on a voluntary basis. The Government said the only alternative to acceptance would be "a serious prolonged setback in our economic reconstruction, accompanied by a persistent low standard of living."

And the Government held one powerful weapon to make its wishes stick. It still retains wartime power to fix prices. It said there should be no presumption that an increase in prices will be granted if increased costs of a product reflect increased wages and profits.

The White Paper said:

"It is essential that there should be no further general increase in the level of personal incomes without at least a corresponding increase in the volume of production.

"Unless we are prepared to check such a tendency, we shall find ourselves unable to fulfill our export task, owing to the rise in costs, which will be reflected on the home market."

In recognition of the shaky British economic position, informants said Attlee planned to take the floor in the House of Commons and outline the need for self-sacrifice by British workers and employers.

The informants said a decision to try to peg incomes temporarily was rejected at a cabinet meeting yesterday. They said the Prime

Find Cigarette Loot Hidden Beneath Bridge

WINDSOR, Feb. 4 — (CP). — A wholesale attempt to smuggle 200,000 American cigarettes into Canada was foiled early to-day when the huge cache was found beneath the Ambassador Bridge which spans the Detroit River between Windsor and Detroit.

Harold Beardmore, collector of customs, said the seizure was the largest since austerity restrictions last November 18 banned all import of American cigarettes.

About 1 a.m. customs officers saw two vehicles, with lights off, stop part way across the bridge. Several persons got out, walked to the side of the bridge, and then after a pause returned to the cars and proceeded on to the Windsor side.

The bridge is over land on the Canadian side of the border for a considerable distance after passing the edge of the Detroit River. Examination of the vehicles produced nothing unusual and they were allowed to continue through to the Canadian side.

Later, however, customs officers searched the area and found the contraband cigarettes in kit bags lying inside the fence of the Ambassador Bridge property beneath the bridge.

RCMP were called and, although the suspected cars have not been traced, they are continuing their investigation.

Record Vote In Eire

DUBLIN, Feb. 4.— (AP). — Eire voted today to determine whether Prime Minister Eamon De Valera will retain control of the government he has headed since 1932.

The polls were open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. for balloting in the most hotly contested general election since the end of the civil war days in 1916. A record vote was predicted.

There are 406 candidates for the 147 seats in the Dail. Six parties are in the running.

Plan To Hold All Ice Events Despite Weather

By JACK SULLIVAN

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 4.—(CP).—The Olympics press bureau today issued a terse statement saying "all ice events will be held tomorrow," reviving hope that a turn in the weather will give Barbara Ann Scott her prized opportunity to win the Olympic figure-skating title.

The press bureau's short statement was issued after a welter of rumors and official admissions that softening ice may deprive the Canadian girl of her chance for an Olympic gold medal, her ambition since she first donned skates.

(Reuters News Agency said a meeting of officials and competitors decided to continue the compulsory figures at 7 a.m. local time tomorrow, weather permitting, and to complete the men's event with free skating in the afternoon.

Barbara Ann accepted philosophically the news that her hopes for a title may die in the slush of St. Moritz.

"Well, the ice might be better tomorrow," said the 19-year-old skater when informed of a statement by H. J. Clarke, president of the International Skating Union, concerning the possibility that the Olympic championship may be abandoned. .

Hands Out Bombshell

Clarke's bombshell came as a thaw paralyzed Olympic skating and rendered hockey and ski events difficult to carry out on this sixth day of the 10-day fifth winter Olympics, first since 1936.

"If the figure skating cannot be concluded due to poor ice conditions, the Olympic figure-skating championship will be abandoned," Clarke said.

Referring to the possibility of calling off the championships, Clarke told The Canadian Press that "it's too bad but that's the way it is—if we can't finish our events for the weather, or any other reason, then they will be abandoned."

Extend Wildlife Resources Across Canada, Glen Plan

OTTAWA, Feb. 4—(CP).—Plans for enlarging Canada's wildlife resources and extending their utilization were announced today by Resources Minister Glen. Mr. Glen said "much attention" was being given to the caribou herds, staple source of meat in vast areas of the north and also supplying natives with hides for clothing.

In co-operation with the Prairie Provinces and Ontario, the Department was undertaking large-scale investigation of the herds, to include census work from the air and studies of food, reproduction, diseases and losses.

Special scientific investigations were being undertaken on the muskrat, Canada's leading producer of wild fur, in the Northwest.

Other studies dealt with cranes and waterfowl.

Prove Value

In wild furs generally, Mr. Glen said, the establishment of a system of registered trapping grounds had passed the experimental stage. These had proven their value, and their use was rapidly spreading over new areas.

Dealing with conditions among other wildlife, Mr. Glen said last year deer and moose showed a tendency to increase but were held down in some areas by heavy hunting. Moose were extending their range northwards into new territory.

Rabbits were increasing in many places but the cycle of wolf population was trending downward.

The North American stock of wild ducks, which decreased sharply in 1946, met adverse breeding conditions last year but reproduction generally was fairly good.

No Ammunition Sold To Greece

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 — (CP). — The Canadian heavy mortar ammunition reported by the Communist Daily Worker in London as having been captured by Communist forces in northern Greece probably came from dumps in western Europe left behind when the war ended.

But government officials here were emphatic that no ammunition has been sold to Greece by Canada.

The captured mortar bombs might have come from Italy. France, Belgium or Holland but the Canadians had nothing to do with the deal.

During the war, Canadian ammunition of all types was either kept in Canadian overseas dumps or pooled in many cases with British stocks.

When the fighting finished practically no Canadian ammunition was returned to Canada and the stocks were either taken over by the British Army or Netherlands, Belgian or French forces.

SWEDEN WON'T JOIN

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 4 — (Reuters). — Sweden will not join in the plan of Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain for a western European union.

Jury Decides Youths To Hang

WELLAND, Feb. 4.—(CP).—A crowded court room heard Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly yesterday sentence Norman Kindy, 17, and Edwin Farrington, 20, to hang April 28 for the fatal shooting of James Bell, 57, last Sept. 24.

After an Ontario Supreme Court jury returned verdicts of guilty of murder, Mr. Justice Kelly said: "The jury has recommended mercy . . . the recommendation will go to the Minister of Justice."

Later, Col. H. A. Rose, KC, counsel for Farrington, and W. T. McCallum, appearing for Kindy, said that an appeal against the convictions and sentences was being considered.

The body of Bell, whom defence counsel claimed had been a bootlegger and was "probably a man with enemies," was found on the steps of his one-storey bungalow in nearby Stamford township last September 24.

Fritz Kuhn Escapes Interment Camp

MUNICH, Feb. 4. — (AP). — The Bavarian Denazification Ministry announced Fritz Kuhn, former leader of the German-American Bund in the United States, escaped from a German internment camp at Dachau this morning.

Kuhn was jailed in July for possible trial as a Nazi offender. He has been held since without trial.

Break Deadlock On Peers

Plan Inter-Party Talks On Lords' Powers

LONDON, Feb. 4 — (Reuters). —The Government to-day broke the deadlock in its dispute with the House of Lords by agreeing to an inter-party conference on the issues raised by its Bill to curtail the Lords' powers to delay legislation.

The decision was described by the Opposition as "a notable victory for commonsense."

Second reading of the Bill was postponed indefinitely.

A crowded House had awaited the Government's reply to a proposal made yesterday by Opposition Leader Viscount Salisbury, that the conversations should be limited to ensuring reasonable time for discussion of measures by the House of Lords and for parliamentary discussion of the differences between the two Houses.

He also proposed an adequate period of delay in the event of any unresolved differences of view.

To-day, Viscount Addison, the Government Leader in the Lords, said the Government has decided to offer an alternative form of the proposal—it was willing to enter into a conference on the issues raised without prejudice to either side.

Scouring India for Gandhi's Enemies

Bombay Police Arrest Hindu Youth Blamed for Bombing Before Mahatma's Death

NEW DELHI, Feb. 4.—(AP).—A high police official said today an intensive round-up is under way throughout India of prominent members of the militant Hindu organization, R.S.S.S., which was declared illegal today.

The R.S.S.S.—Rashtriya Swayam Sewak Saugh—has, along with the equally militant Hindu Maha Sabha party, been the target of irate mobs since the assassination last Friday of Mohandas K. Gandhi. The accused slayer is described as a member of Maha Sabha.

The official said the defendants were being charged with belonging to an unlawful organization.

At Bombay reliable police sources said today Madan Lal, a Hindu youth accused of exploding a home-made bomb near one of Mohandas K. Gandhi's last prayer meetings, has been brought here from New Delhi by plane.

Although police officially maintained strict secrecy, they said investigation of the assassination of the Indian leader last Friday would centre in Bombay, where they say a plot on Gandhi's life was begun.

Asked For Information

Police sources said Madan Lal, a west Punjab refugee, is being asked by police to identify persons arrested on suspicion of conspiring in the assassination.

Devadas Gandhi said today that plans had been completed to consign the bones and ashes of his father to the sacred Hindu rivers of India.

The bones of the spiritual leader will be committed on February 12 at the confluence of the Ganges, Jumna, and Saraswati Rivers at Allahabad, Gandhi's son said. His ashes will be scattered at a later date in the holy rivers of all Indian provinces as a symbol of universal love.

Devadas, who lighted his father's funeral pyre last Saturday said he and other relatives and friends would accompany the funeral urn to Allahabad, 350 miles south-west of here, in a special train leaving Delhi on February 11.

Upon arrival at Allahabad, the funeral procession, on foot, will accompany the urn directly to the confluence of the rivers.

One of the peacemaker's sons will wade into the sacred waters to set the bones adrift as he immerses himself. The ceremony, according to Hindu belief, washes away the sins and purifies the spirit of the departed one.

Devadas said the ashes of his father will be presented in individual containers to various representatives of Indian provinces for similar services. The bones and ashes were separated at a ceremony on Monday.

Iraq Rejects Alliance

Riots Protesting Treaty Cost Many Lives

BAGHDAD, Feb. 4.— (AP).— An official said tonight the Council of Ministers had rejected the Anglo-Iraq alliance.

Riots protesting the accord have cost scores of lives and caused the fall of Premier Salih Bey Jabur's cabinet. He has left for Baghdad. (Salih Jabur's wife said in London he had fled to Trans-Jordan.)

An official note of rejection has been handed to the charge d'affaires of the British Embassy. The informant said the treaty was rejected by the Council three days ago and that news was withheld while details of the diplomatic manner of rejection were worked out.

Prince Regent Abdul Ilah was to broadcast news of the rejection tonight, the informant said. (The treaty, which Salih Jabur negotiated in Britain, was one of mutual defence and friendship. Under its terms, British troops would have been allowed to enter Iraq in case of war or threat of war)

MARKED FOR SAME FATE AS GANDHI—Sardar V. Patel (left), Indian home minister asserted that there was "ample evidence" that he and education minister Azad, shown with him, were "marked to be liquidated" by political conspirators in the same manner that the life of Mohandas K. Gandhi was taken. Pandit Nehru was another marked for death. Police spread a dragnet to round up the alleged gang of assassins. In Cawnpore 40 members of the secret Maha Sabha were arrested. The Maha Sabha is the organization of which Gandhi's slayer, Nathuram Vinayak Godse, is a member.

Arabs Attack In Attempt To Open Prison

JERUSALEM, Feb. 4.—(AP).—Three British constables, six Arabs and five Jews were killed Tuesday in shooting incidents throughout Palestine.

Arabs tried to crack open Jerusalem's Central Prison Tuesday night with bombs and gunfire. They freed two convicts, one of them a life-termer.

Tel Aviv sources said Arab attackers killed three Jews in the Petah Tiqvah area.

The 20-minute assault upon the Central Prison was the second big attack in Jerusalem in two days. Sunday night the building occupied by the Palestine Post, a Jewish English-language daily, was destroyed by bombs and fire.

Two Arabs escaped from the prison by breaking bars of a kitchen window and using a ladder apparently brought by the attackers.

The attackers approached via the Arab Quarter between the prison and the Old City. Under cover of rifle and pistol fire they succeeded in cutting a part of the barbed wire fence around the prison.

An Arab prison warden and a British constable were wounded before the attackers withdrew.

Four Arabs were killed in Haifa when a Jewish dynamite squad blasted an Arab welfare headquarters, police said. The Jews drove up to the front of the building in a dynamite-laden car, then fled in a taxi which followed it.

The building housed the National Reform Society, a welfare organization for Arabs.

Permanent Solution

This program, said, the brief, was required for a permanent solution to that part of Canada's dollar deficit resulting from the operation of the electrical manufacturing industry.

It would result in development of Canadian industry, rather than "the dislocation and degeneration which would result from a strict application of the import restrictions of the Abbott Plan."

"It will result," the brief added, "in the development of a truly independent Canadian industry, rather than capitulation to present U.S. policies which in this industry will inevitably result in restricting markets and production and will contribute eventually to the de-industrialization of Canada."

The U.E.W. lashed out at rising costs, in a reference to "the rampant inflation stemming from the government's premature and precipitate retreat on wartime controls."

"Taken as a whole," said the brief, "the results of our study shows that the present government policies mean for the industry — drastically reducing the home market, limiting export opportunities to only those export markets which are under U.S. control, increasing U.S. domination of the remaining portion of the industry, all adding up to the eventual destruction of the industry."

White Charges Government Trying To Whitewash Rising Cost of Living Facts

By GEORGE KITCHEN

OTTAWA, Feb. 4—(CP).—The rising cost of living, slated for study by a special parliamentary committee, remained in the discussion stage in yesterday's Commons' proceedings. In a lengthening debate which brought two Cabinet Ministers to their feet, Opposition parties delayed action on formation of the proposed committee by hammering away at what they claimed was the core of the situation — the Government's responsibility for the soaring living costs.

The discussion, on Prime Minister Mackenzie King's motion to appoint the special 16-man committee to delve into the background of the price rise, was broken once when the House voted 105 to 90 to uphold Speaker Gaspard Fauteux in a ruling that two Opposition amendments, aimed at broadening the committee's inquiry powers, were contrary to parliamentary procedure.

Out Of Order

Specifically, he ruled out of order a Progressive Conservative amendment, moved Monday by party leader John Bracken, and a CCF sub-amendment, introduced yesterday by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre), on the grounds it was against precedent to refer policy-making questions to a committee being formed solely as a fact-finding body.

Government members upheld the ruling against a solid front of Opposition supporters.

However, the Speaker's ruling does not prevent both the Progressive Conservative and CCF parties from proposing new amendments today. And one Progressive Conservative spokesman said price experts among his party already were drafting a new amendment.

Sees Enslavement

George White (PC—Hastings Peterborough) charged the Socialistic C.C.F. party seeks to "enslave" the Canadian people and domiante the Canadian economy.

He said the ambitions and desires inherent in Canadian youth could be developed only in a free and democratic Canada.

Of the motion to establish a price spreads committee he said it had been demonstrated that the government "is seeking to whitewash and hide the true facts," of the rise in the cost of living.

He said the committee would simply result in a "fishing expedition and after a long, long course they will catch no fish."

The prices board already has all the staff necessary to probe the price rise and launch any prosecutions necessary where profiteering was proved. He personally never had had any use for the prices board but now there may be a job for it.

The cost of living now was higher than it was after the First World War. The proof of this was the fact that income taxes, now at a high level, amounted to only a "trifle" in the post-war period.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Labor Minister Mitchell stepped into the debate to defend the government's policies against a continuing barrage of opposition charges that the main purpose of the committee would be to "whitewash" the facts and hide the true situation from the people.

Keep Down Costs

Mr. Gardiner held that the government had sought to keep down costs of production and warned that low-cost output was the only way Canada would be able to maintain her place in the markets of the world when conditions returned to normal.

Mr. Mitchell said it was strange that some opposition members wanted controls re-established on some phases of the economy and not on others. The Progressive Conservatives were seeking a measure of control and subsidies but at the same time were calling for a lowering of the tax load.

At the House opening. Finance Minister Abbott said the Prices Board had been authorized to spend up to $15,000 out of its funds to assist in the organization of the Canadian Consumers Association.

Joining the prices debate in the Commons, Mr. Gardiner said the government's policy was to open the United States market to Canadian beef when the price levels of the two countries were such as to permit this without disrupting Canada's economy.

The objective in continuing the current embargo on beef shipments was to keep down the cost of living. If Canadian beef went to the U.S., it would increase the prices of beef and all other farm products on the domestic market

Bussey Loses Appeal Hanged At Midnight

OWEN SOUND, Feb. 4.—(CP).—Sentence of death was carried out on Frederick Bussey, 23-year-old Regina-born youth, shortly after midnight in the hammer-slaying of 11-year-old Betty Playford here last Sept. 21.

Bussey made no final statement as he went to the gallows. He was executed at 12.05 a.m.

Late on Monday his counsel, Louis Isaacs of Toronto, said an appeal for executive clemency had been rejected.

The hanging, the first in Owen Sound in many years and only the third in the town's history, was conducted by Sheriff Fred T. Egener, and the sentence was carried out on a gallows erected in the jail here.

First Declaration

It would, however, amount to the first wages-policy declaration since the Labor government came to power in 1945. The government previously limited its intervention in such matters to collective bargaining between employers and unions. In these they appealed to the workers not to ask for major pay increase, in return for a promise to keep living costs down.

Living costs have been climbing, however, particularly since the decision late last year to freeze government food subsidies at the present level.

Stock Official Stands Trial

TORONTO, Feb. 4 — (CP).—William Shaw, for 20 years manager of the clearing-house of the Toronto Stock Exchange until his dismissal last year, was committed to-day for trial on a charge of stealing more than $30,000 in stocks and cash.

Through his counsel he waived his right to a preliminary hearing. Shaw was charged following an investigation by the Ontario Securities Commission last December. The transactions which led to the probe were said to have been made in the heavy trading year of 1945 when a large number of stocks occasionally piled up in the clearing-house. It is alleged that in the interval between sale of stocks by one broker and transfer to another, Shaw converted some of them to his own use.

The 48-year-old Shaw "has no statement to make at this time," his counsel said. Bail of $10,000 was renewed.

Advance Group Sent By U.N. To Palestine

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 4 (AP).—The United Nations Palestine Partition Commission will send an advance party into the Holy Land, possibly within 10 days.

A source close to the five-power commission said the party would go to Jerusalem first to lay groundwork for the partitioning of Palestine.

The commission made the decision yesterday but did not decide on the composition or date of entry of the group. It was stipulated, however, that the party would not include any of the delegates. A UN official said the move from here might be started within 10 days.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, the British delegate here, told the commission previously he would agree to sending ahead a small staff of one or two persons.

A UN press officer said the commission did not discuss the security of the advance party in making its decision. However, delegates planned to begin drafting a report today to the Security Council asking for military help in carrying out the partition plan.

In another move, the commission decided to notify the British Government that it regarded as unsatisfactory London's policy in respect to the entry of the commission itself into the Holy Land. In what was described as a strong letter, the commission asked London to reconsider demands that the UN body stay out of the Holy Land until two weeks before the end of British rule May 15.

Mother Leaps Two Storeys To Save Child

TORONTO, Feb. 4 — (CP). — Clutching her infant daughter, Laura, in her arms, Mrs. Augusta Caty, about 35, leaped from a flame-swept second-storey window in a downtown roominghouse yesterday as fire endangered the building.

The woman, who escaped with a broken wrist and pelvis was able to break the baby's fall. Hospital attendants said the little girl's only injury was a slight "singe" on the face.

Another child, four-year-old Jo-Ann Cottrill was rescued by Joe Ryan and George Malcko, employees of a nearby garage, who saw Mrs. Caty's leap and dashed inside the smoke-filled house to find the older girl.

Firemen said the fire started in a second-storey room and spread to three adjoining houses but it was brought under control before doing serious damage.

Mr. Ryan said it was so smoky inside the house that "I couldn't see a hand in front of my face."

"Then I heard the baby wail on the other side of the room. I tripped over something on the floor which I thought was a baby, but it was only a doll. Finally I felt the child in the smoke. I grabbed it and made by way to the window."

42 Felines Named As All-Canadians

UTICA, N.Y., Feb. 4—(CP)—Forty-two cats have been named to the 1948 all-Canadian cat rankings in their respective breed, color and sex classifications, Charles A. Kenny, published of "Cats Magazine," announced here recently.

The rankings are based on performance in shows in Canada and the United States during the current show season. Last year 18 Canadian cats were named.

Top-ranking Canadian cat for 1948 is the blue male, Maple Leaf Antoine of Khyber, owned by Mrs. S. A. Pugh of Toronto. Outstanding female in the selections is the tortoiseshell, Cairn Clowie, owned by Miss Evelyn Bradshaw of Toronto, which repeated its all-Canadian victory last year.

Highest ranking domestic shorthair is the silver tabby male, Ch. Laddy Boy of Cobourg, owned by Miss Grace Hinchcliffe of Toronto. This cat is the only known champion in the listings and is Canada's outstanding candidate to capture all-American honors this year.

All but three newly-crowned felines are the property of owners residing in Ontario, 19 of them in Toronto. British Columbia has two representative cats and Quebec has one. This marks the first time that these provinces have been placed in rankings.

Expect Power Shortage To Continue Till 1950

BRANTFORD, Feb. 4 (CP)—H. D. Rothwell, assistant to the general manager of administration of the Ontario Hyro-Electric Commision, predicted today the shortage of electric power would reach a peak in the fall and winter of 1949-50 and would decline thereafter.

In an address to the young men's section of the Board of Trade, Mr. Rothwell said that new sources of power would provide a backlog to east critical periods after that time.

Cobourg Council Defers Taxi Bylaw

COBOURG, Feb. 4 — (ENS). — Passage of a taxi by-law in Cobourg was delayed at the meeting of town council when Councillor Roy Dodge protested strongly against the by-law being given all three readings in one night. Council accordingly decided to defer the second and third readings of the by-law and to advise the taxi drivers that the text of it was available for them to read.

Councillor Dodge pointed out that the by-law had been prepared just last week and that it was unfair to the taxi business to rush it through. The usual procedure in by-laws is to introduce the by-law at one meeting in order that those concerned can see what it is about and at a further meeting to go over it clause by clause with final passage after a further interval. When the matter is urgent, it is sometimes passed on the same night as the first reading.

Councillor Harvey Brent commented that until the by-law was passed, the taxi licenses could not be issued. Councillor Dodge said that temperoary licenses could be issued as one applicant had been kept waiting for months. One taximan was present at the meeting. Councillor Brent pointed out that the taxi drivers knew that the by-law was coming up, and apparently only one was interested.

Mayor Joseph Smith declared that he didn't feel that council should have to take the position of going to the taxi owners and asking what they thought about it. On motion of Reeve Jack Westington and Councillor John Erskine it was decided to defer the matter.

Darwin To Become Big Tropical City

DARWIN, Australia, Feb. 4 (CP).—Work has begun on the rebuilding of this capital of the Northern Territory, which was wrecked by Japanese bombers early in the Pacific war.

The federal government intends to replace the tin shanty town that was Darwin with a modern tropical city worthy of being the front doorway to Australia by air from Europe.

Recommendations of an officer of the department of the interior, who was sent to Brazil specially to study tropical city conditions, have been incorporated in the design.

Shortage of labor and materials are holding up progress but the government authorities express confidence that air passengers landing at Darwin in five years' time will be able to enjoy all the comforts of a modern city.

Move 15 Inmates At Whitby Home

WHITBY, Feb. 4.—Fifteen inmates of the Ontario County Home have been removed to Orchard Inn, a tourist lodge at Rouge Hills, it was announced today. "This move is a temporary expedient to relieve the overcrowding at the home," said Deputy Reeve D. B. McIntyre of Whitby, a member of the County Home Board of Commissioners. Describing conditions here as very satisfactory, McIntyre said that board and lodging for the elderly guests is being furnished on a per capita basis under arrangements between the proprietors and county officials.

Accommodation for four other inmates has been secured in private homes at Beaverton and arrangements to house others were being made in Port Perry, he stated. While the chapel at the county home is being used as a ward, these moves have practically eliminated use of the upper storey for living space, it was learned.

Applications for admission still are being refused. The building has been described as a "fire hazard" by county council members in the past, and successive grand jury reports and recommendations of provincial inspectors have asked relief from the acute overcrowding. A special committee of Oshawa City Council has been named to discuss the situation with the Ontario County Council at this month's session.

Library Has 972 Members, 11,140 Books, Board Told

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 4 (ENS).—Chairman of the Public Library Board, Harry Townsend was re-appointed for the thirteenth consecutive year. Mr. Townsend has been a member of the Library Board for the past 26 years and has been an avid reader for 50 years. When he was about eight years old, Mr. Townsend said, he can remember his mother giving him the membership fee to the Mechanics' Institute, the nucleus of the present library, and he has been a registered borrower ever since.

Increase of 2,500

In her report to the board Miss Benor said the library has had an active year with a total circulation of 25,544, 2,500 more than 1946. There has been a steady increase since the last war, she said, but the circulation was not up to the 35,000 high of the depression years. In 1947, 25 books per registered borrower were circulated, making an average of nine per capita. There was a large number of new borrowers added, making a total of 722 adults and 250 children using the library.

During the year, 503 new books were purchased, 211 discarded, leaving 11,140 books on the shelves Most in demand are books of fact, on biographies, history and technical subjects.

During 1947 two exhibits were displayed in the library hall. One was 50 assorted paintings done by local artists. The other was a display of ceramics. Both exhibits won acclaim from the public and it is hoped to have others this year to increase interest in handicrafts. Libraries, she said, should re-examine and dispense the tasks they have assumed with the passing years.

Cobourg Halts Nickel Dodgers

COBOURG, Feb. 4 — (ENS). — Designed to get what Mayor Smith dubbed the "nickel dodgers" the police committee suggested erecting "no parking" signs on Division street north of the metered area at town council. Parking on Division street between Covert and James streets congest traffic, it was pointed out. Councillor Dodge objected that the ban was discriminating against doctors and others living on the west side of Division street. Councillor George Galbraith said that the parking there created a bottleneck. On motion it was decided to have the signs apply to the east side of the street only.

It was announced at the council meeting that an architect had been appointed to draw up plans for the recreation centre and that the public would have an opportunity to know all the details. Councillors Galbraith and Erskine were appointed to the community centre committee to replace councillors Kerr and Clarke who were members from last year's town council.

Danger from icicles overhanging the main street, was drawn to the attention of council by Councillor Brent. It was decided to contact the town solicitor to learn if there was any by-law in the matter. Council authorized a grant of $250 to the civic holiday committee. The request of the Chamber of Commerce for a $1,000 grant for the Chamber of Commerce was referred to the finance committee.

Council was notified by J. C. M. German, K.C., counsel for a number of contractors of the town that the business assessment was not properly spread with the result that some contractors were not paying business assessment and were in competition with those who were assessed. Council will investigate.

Press Freedom Statement Given

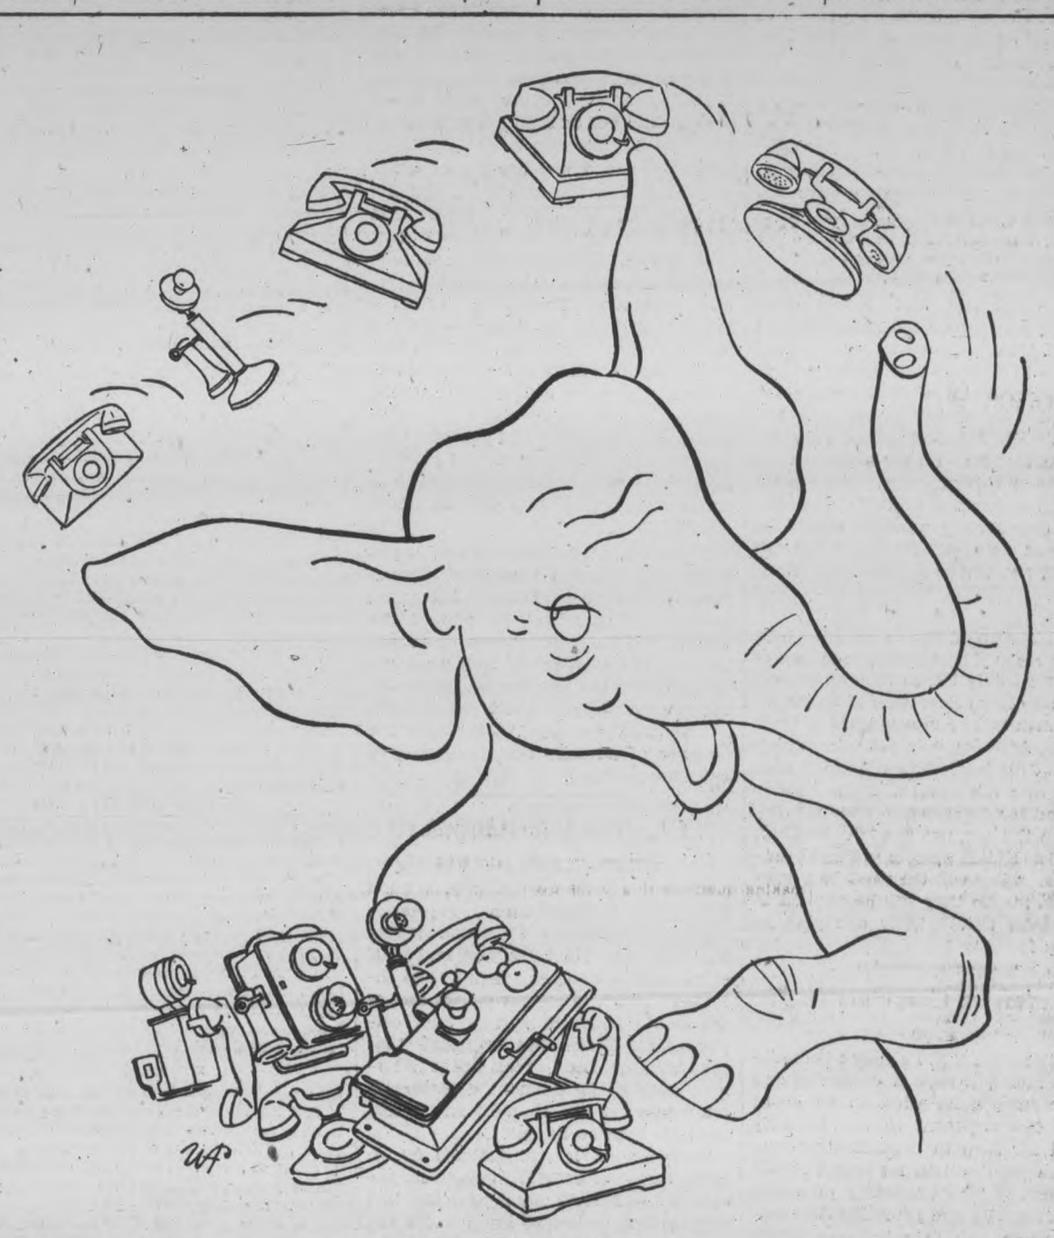
LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Feb. 4 — (AP). — A broad statement on the rights, obligations and practices involved in freedom of information was approved yesterday by the United Nations subcommittee on freedom of information and of the press.

George V. Ferguson, Canadian member of the sub-commission and editor of the Montreal Daily Star, was chief author of the statement, which now will go to the UN commission on human rights for further action.

The vote for the statement was 9 to 1. Y. M. Lomakin of Russia voted against it because, he said, it left out specific mention of restrictions against "war-mongering" and made no reference to the struggle against what he called the remnants of Fascism.

"Freedom of information is a fundamental right and is the touchstone of all the freedoms to which the United Nations are dedicated," the statement said.

"Its establishment is essential to the maintenance, increase and diffusion of knowledge, and the strengthening of it will give fresh impetus to popular education and the spread of culture.



"For news personnel above all, but also for everyone so far as practical considerations permit, this freedom includes the right to have the widest possible access to the sources of information and to travel unhampered in pursuit thereof, and also to safeguard all sources of information honorably used."

Permanent Fishing Season Dates

The Hon. Harold Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, spoke on Monday to the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters meeting at Niagara Falls. He announced himself as being in favour of permanent opening dates for angling seasons, and such an announcement coming from Mr. Scott can be considered Provincial Government policy in that matter. Anglers who have the perpetuation of their craft at heart will approve; summer hotel keepers will be more reluctant in their approval.

* * *

Fish hatcheries and money (the hatching program cost Ontario $280,000 last year) are but aids to natural propagation in natural surroundings. If the larger fish protecting the young are hooked too early, the young will not survive. Mr. Scott considers May 1st for trout and July 1st for black bass as the earliest fishing dates. The extra few days which a favourable spawning season occasionally provides should be considered as a gift from the gods to the fish, not to the anglers and hotelkeepers.

* * *

The latter would like to have the bass fishing season begin with the week-end nearest July 1st, so that Americans up for an early celebration of the Glorious Fourth will be unrestricted in their fishing. Actually, any year in which July 1st falls later than a Sunday does not provide the natural long holiday week-end for Americans. They will begin it on the 4th, not the 1st. Further, all tourists should welcome a fixed opening date. They will then not be gambling that maybe they will be allowed to fish, maybe not. They can plan in January for July 1st.

The Palestine Chestnuts In The Fire

The five-man U.N. Palestine Commission is facing a serious difficulty and doesn't know quite what to do about it. It has appealed to the Security Council for help in implementing the partition plan and in its report stated that there is "the possibility of a collapse of security and administrative services" when Britain withdraws unless the commission is given "adequate means" of enforcing its authority.

When the U.N. Assembly voted for the partition, on the recommendation of the Commission, there was no very clear idea about how the partition was to be achieved peacefully and successfully. There was probably hope that the occupying power, Britain, would pull the chestnuts out of the fire. Britain will not.

She made her position perfectly clear last summer. She would not help to carry out any plan which was not acceptable to both Jews and Arabs. Sir Alexander Cadogan has lately told the Commission that Britain would not allow Jewish or Arab militias to be formed while she retained the mandate, that she would not approve of the commission's arriving earlier than two weeks before the termination of the mandate (probably May 15), that Britain would not accept responsibility for the safety of the Commission if it arrived earlier, that she would not turn over the administration of Palestine in piecemeal fashion.

Is Britain being John-Bullish? She is being practical, with the political wisdom of many years of dealing with Palestine. The Arabs oppose partition. If Britain were to help the U.N. Commission to a greater extent than any other U.N. nation, it would be breaking faith with the Arabs, and would be involved in a bigger job than its military commitments in Palestine allow for. U.N. put the chestnuts in the fire and fanned it; it must be U.N. that pulls out the chestnuts and quenches the flames.

Rumours of Stalin's death have been coming from Stockholm. The rumour factory there, though it has laid off some of the hands it employed during the war, is still doing a brisk business.

The British Industries Fair

Britain continues to be the world's greatest customer. She must buy food for her people and materials for her craftsmen, and in order to balance accounts, must sell the products of her industry. Since the Great Exhibition of 1851 she has attracted buyers from foreign countries and promoted export by means of industrial fairs. The second British Industries Fair to be held in London and Birmingham during the first fortnight of May will be the latest of these.

Like the first B.I.F. held last year it is designed primarily for oversea visitors and buyers. In fact, show space is restricted to manufacturers who can show that they are actively engaged in maintaining or securing export markets. Moreover, they must be in a position to supply the market with the products they exhibit. One criticism of the first British Industries Fair was that buyers were ready to buy but their orders could not be filled. The situation is better now for most industries. A sign of the times will be the furniture section. In 1938 it was the largest single section; in 1948 it will be one of the smallest, partly because of scarcity of material, partly because the policy is to produce utility furniture for domestic use.

The London Times has issued a 50-page survey of the 1948 Fair, and the articles and illustrations show that British manufacture at its best is very good indeed. The best will be exhibited and the best will be exported—except Princess Elizabeth's diamond jewelry gifts to be exhibited in the National Hall at Olympia. The variety of the products is immense, from specimens of the older steel-making to the youngsters such as television (in which Britain led the world) and plastics. Last year textiles were given special prominence; this year the leather manufacturers will provide the major organized exhibit.

If proof is needed that Britain is not down and out, and that its craftsmen have not lost their skill and ingenuity, the B.I.F. will provide it imposingly. The visitors will be most impressed, we expect, by the evidence of industrial development in the last decade. Some developments will stand out particularly, but, as the Times says, "it is rather the ubiquity of advance that is impressive and encouraging".

Excessive Unemployment Insurance Payments

On January 30 we commented upon the new Unemployment Insurance regulation (Bulletin 5) which insists that employers pay 24c a week on behalf of employees who are exempt from insurance and who cannot collect any of the money which is paid by their employers for them. We suggested that the regulation had its roots in the notorious greed of government departments for money, rather than in any actual need for such an impost.

This opinion is strengthened by an examination of official figures. At the end of the 1946-47 fiscal year the Unemployment Insurance Fund had a net balance of $372,878,625.24; the Fund had paid out a mere $82,539,484.99 in benefits to unemployed persons. And it is significant that between September, 1930, and March 31, 1936—the worst of the depression—the Federal Government spent on works and direct relief only $204,838,007.90 — less than their present net balance!

A reduction in Unemployment Insurance payments is indicated, not a levy on employers for employees who can never benefit from it. The greed of this government agency has outrun its good sense.

The New World Almanac

The 63rd annual edition of the World Almanac, edited by E. Eastman Irvine and published by the New York World-Telegram has now been issued. It is a 912-page reference compendium for business executives, teachers, politicians, plain citizens and even editors. Canadian users of this work will find the American scene treated in greater detail than they might require, but there is a large amount of standard information, authoritative facts and figures on general matters, and a wide coverage is given to the international events of last year. The articles on U.N., the Marshall Plan, business and the cost of living are pertinent and useful for quick reference. The diversity of subject-matter is remarkable — attendance at colleges, motion picture prizewinners from 1936, Olympic records, the Gettysburg address. It is virtually a full hamper in a pint-sized basket.

A Hollywood designer says that in a few years the really fashionable woman will appear in a paper gown. If that is so it will be even more fitting to refer to her as "a neat package".

WEEKLY BOOK REVIEW

Three From England

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

JENNY VILLIERS by J. B. Priestley (Macmillan). It is difficult to find in this short novel any trace of the richness of invention and exuberance of style which established J. B. Priestley's reputation. From the time that he first became widely recognized as an author of importance (which was about 1929, when "The Good Companions" appeared) he was attacked by highbrows as a shallow writer who appealed to simple people by giving them the grotesques, the complex plots, and the broad jokes which had delighted them in Dickens; it was these very qualities, in my opinion, which made him important, for though Priestley was not profound as the highbrows know profundity, he had an understanding of life and people which was far outside the highbrow ken. Having achieved fame as a novelist, Mr. Priestley then turned his hand to playwriting, and although he dabbled somewhat innocently in theories of time which, by the time they had been converted to stage use, looked like simple claptrap, he still had the exuberance and the humour which gave zest to his work. But in "Jenny Villiers" the gusto which made his novels is missing, and the hanky-panky with time which beguiled him as a playwright is in full possession.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS novel is described as "A Story of The Theatre". It tells of a playwright, Martin Cheveril, who loses the disillusion and hopelessness which plagues him when he is permitted to peep into the past and observe the sad story of Jenny Villiers, an actress who died a century before the present day. The book is full of echoes. The plot somehow suggests the regeneration of Scrooge in "A Christmas Carol", and the scenes of the theatre in 1845 draw too heavily upon the Crummles scenes in "Nicholas Nickleby", and Pinero's play "Trelawney of the Wells". One of Mr. Priestley's plays is called "I Have Been Here Before"; readers of "Jenny Villiers" will say the same, and with justifiable annoyance.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE MUSEUM OF CHEATS, by Sylvia Townsend Warner (Oxford). This is the latest collection of short stories to be published by one of the finest writers in that form living today. Sylvia Townsend Warner puts more good writing and good sense and intelligent comment on life into one of her short stories than most of the young geniuses who are hailed every week in the Sunday book reviews are able to cram into their thousand-page novels. During the past twenty years the short story has assumed some curious disguises. There were authors who strove for "mood", and who sacrificed plot, syntax, and character to that end; very often their stories were so subjective that it was impossible even to discover what mood they were seeking to evoke. There were others who wrote what they called "genre pieces", in which they presented slices from the lives of their characters, much as a landlady might present a slice from the middle of a loaf of bread to a philosopher, bidding him to reconstruct the whole loaf from the evidence in his hand. There were short stories of every kind except the intelligible kind, and these mystifying pieces continue to appear in all the "advanced" magazines today.

✧ ✧ ✧

SYLVIA Townsend Warner has kept in the fashion, but she has not sacrificed everything to fashion, she has far too much intelligence and talent for that. Her stories are rich in mood, and some of them are undoubtedly "genre pieces", but all are thoroughly intelligible. The story which gives this book its title is a tale neither of mood nor genre, but it is an admirable piece of story telling, illustrative of fashions in thought. There is not a story in this collection (22 altogether) which is not admirable of its kind, and one or two are first-rate by any standard. If your reading-list is constipated with ponderous novels, put these short stories in it at once, labelled "To be taken as needed".

✧ ✧ ✧

THE MAN WHO MADE MUSIC, by Froom Tyler (Oxford). This is a romantic novel and rather a good example of its kind. I call it romantic because it deals with strange people and unfamiliar places, and because its author plainly dislikes what is prosaic. Briefly, it is the story of a musician named Brocket who seizes the lucky chance of a train accident to pretend that he is dead; he is discovered by an English conductor, who falls in love with Brocket's daughter and helps to bring some of the old man's last and finest music before the public. Described thus the plot sounds thin and hackneyed, and I must hasten to assure the reader that I am at fault in this, and not Mr. Tyler. He has used this plot as a peg upon which to hang an excellent discussion of the social obligations of a man of genius. Should such a man sacrifice other people to his own abilities, or should he stultify himself in order to live a conventional life? The question is not easily answered; flat Ays or Nays can never decide it. This is an absorbing and literate novel, and commendably economical in form.

Unconsidered Trifles

"I say, old man, have you change for a pound note?"

"Yes, certainly."

"Well, just lend me 10 shillings of it, will you?"

✧ ✧ ✧

"And what did you learn in Scripture lesson, dear?" asked mother.

"Oh, all about the Ten Commandos," replied Tommy.

✧ ✧ ✧

"I am going to kiss you before I go," said the young man who had outstayed his welcome.

"Do it now while I'm still young," replied the girl, wearily.

Letters To The Editor

A CASE THAT BREEDS COMMUNISM

Sir: After reading Doctor Carleton's letter in your issue of Feb. 2nd, I feel that he should be thanked for bringing the matter of the eviction of a family from 636 Frank St. to the attention of the public. It is indeed a deplorable case, and serves to show that there is a weakness in our social service setup. Apparently the various agencies were powerless in face of the law.

And outside of that shown by Dr. Carleton there was no righteous indignation to restrain the hand of the law. This matter has been put where it belongs—upon the shoulders of all citizens.

May I suggest that we all meditate a little upon the life of our Blessed Lord and as a result so take an interest in the affairs of our city, and see that this does not happen again.

All the preaching about the evils of Communism is of no avail while we allow such things to happen. This sort of thing breeds Communism.

EDGAR C. MOORE.

STONY LAKE ROAD CHANGED TO PROVINCIAL HIGHWAY

Sir: About this time of year two years ago, it only took about three weeks to get over 1,800 people, far and near, interested in the above subject, to give their signatures asking for improvements and development of the Stony lake road into a provincial highway, to have a bus service and give, to all those people, who gave their signatures and the thousands of tourists coming our way, that which, they so rightfully deserve and for which had been paid in patience, long enduring silence of taking reverses, on account of the dreadfull conditions of the road mentioned and in thousands of dollars by taxes, the latter having mostly gone elsewhere, to build for others who possibly never came our way.

It is time for the Provincial Department to take over all the road from the junction of Highway 28 and this Stony lake road instead of just from Hall's Glen to Carmel Church, and make a better extension into Havelock, thereby opening reserve territory and lakes nearer Havelock for better tourist business, thus making it a through road for tourists etc. interested in going farther east or west from Ottawa to Toronto, or reverse. It is better, to interest the tourists in travelling to see, learn and know Canada and not consider just fishing to see how many they can get for taking back home. There is this way of helping to conserve the fishing for sport.

Stony lake road section has been blessed with tourists, until most all land joining the main landing places, namely McCracken's and Crow's Landings has been occupied by cottages or business purposes and scarcely any section left for the parking of cars or even the pleasure seeker to have a spot, on which to stand or sit without intruding on private property. The roads entering both those landings are so narrow that there is no passage space, if cars are parked along the edge, that being the only place suitable for parking.

It is my opinion, the Highway Department should be asked to place suitable tile for drainage cover, thereby making a wide, level and safe place for parking of cars, all along the road section near those two main landings. Then, they could make a fill at both government landings, which would extend along the shore or farther out into the lake section, thereby making the chief public places on this side of this lake suitable to accommodate many sight seeking, pleasure seekers and boatman space, that people so greatly need and the business demands. If lake space can be filled by removing the many tons of boulders found along this Stony lake road, just the removal of those boulders would improve the appearance of the road, clear the shoulders for safety, aid in building a stone foundation for the highway and provide a larger, safer, more suitable landing place at McCracken's and Crow's Landings to accommodate the people for business, pleasure and parking. These are needed, just as much as the improved highway. Why let this section lose the tourist trade, it has taken years to attract for business and deprive the people of the section the right, space, and safety, to seek a little pleasure from their daily farm labour, by not having a suitable landing space at these two lake shore landings?

I think that every one along this section greatly appreciates the fact that we have a bus service to McCracken's Landing in the summer and most of all, the bus service carried on by Mr. Frank Coyle of Lakefield and the Nepheline Mine. That bus service would be greatly improved if permitted to continue on to Peterborough or make better connections with the bus service to that city from Lakefield. There seems to be too much monoplization of bus franchise by a few, regardless of the convenience, needs and the rights of the public. The rights of the public, the demands should be considered to make this Stony Lake bus service a paying business for the public and the owner. An improved Provincial Highway will increase the tourist business, be a great asset toward providing better advantages for profit, to keep the farmers on their farms, in this section, help to make the Nepheline Mine and truck and bus service profitable.

I know each signer for this proposed highway would join me in thanking Mr. M. Johnson of the County Council for having made the proposal at the last meetings to bring the subject to the attention of the Highway Department during the coming convention, that the mentioned portion of this Stony lake road be taken over by the Highway Department as a provincial. The co-operation of any other member of the County Council on this proposal will be greatly appreciated at any and all times.

Why should the main road through Peterborough County, leading to the most thickly populated tourist and farm sections in this county, remain longer in its present condition? The time is at hand for the County Council as a body to get back of this movement and do all in its power to see this accomplished. Consider such an achievement would aid in bringing about greater, more desirable recreational sections for improving the health of our own people, bring profits financially to all sections of the country and especially the villages and the only city of the county, as well as to the various lakes in the sections between Lakefield and Havelock via Stony lake.

Yours,
MRS. JOSEPH HAMILTON.
Stony Lake.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then was brought unto him one possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb: and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw.... But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils, but by Beelzebub the prince of the devils.

And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand: and if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?....

But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you. (Matt. 12: 22, 24-26, 28.)

Comment On Car Styles

A great many Canadians are making pretty sour remarks about the trend in North American car styles. Streets get more and more clogged with traffic, yet cars get longer and wider. The awful jams in traffic and in parking stations constantly takes a higher toll of scratched and bashed fenders, yet fenders and bodies constantly become more vullnerable and enormously more expensive to repair.

Most urban cars at least, most of the time, travel at very modest speeds, yet car design pretends that most of the time we travel more than a mile a minute on wide-open speedways.—Toronto Financial Post.

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER 21

On August 3, 1914, the day before the German army struck into Belgium, I spent part of the afternoon alone on a squash court at the Bath Club in Dover street, batting a small rubber ball against a blank wall.

A week or so earlier, in a flash of happiness, I had exclaimed in my diary: "I don't know how I should live without the Bath Club!" But the sudden fact of war made it seem the least important place on earth.

That afternoon I was lonely and frustrated. The war that would occupy the spirit and energies of my generation for the next four years had already confronted me with a unique personal problem: was I to be a soldier in the field with the troops, or was I to be kept in Britain as the Heir Apparent, not to be risked in battle.

Had I been any other British youth of 20 that question would never have arisen. In the normal course of events I would have enlisted and been sent to France and there, in all probability, I would have been killed or certainly wounded within a year.

But as Prince of Wales and next in line of succession to the throne, I was to discover that my trophy value exceeded my military usefulness.

In any event, my father, the King, in the midst of the crisis, paused long enough to tell me that I must wait in London until "suitable employment" could be found for me.

What this decision, on the eve of war, meant to me can be judged from the entry I made in my diary that night before I went to bed at Buckingham Palace:

". . . I returned terribly depressed as, of course, the only topic was the war, and I haven't the remotest chance of getting out with the Expeditionary Force. The knowledge that I must remain in London (for some time anyhow), totally devoid of a job of any desecription, is becoming almost intolerable. . . .

"Was out walking with Cadogan (my equerry) from 6.00 to 7.30, to kill time. I had to come in through the garden on account of the dense crowd which was airing its patriotism in front of the Palace.

The parents went out on the balcony just before dinner at 8.30 and twice again before 10.00 as fresh masses arrived. They sang and cheered the whole evening. . .

Such a relieving sign to feel that the people are backing everything up . . . Thank God the Government has decided that France shall not be deserted. Oh God! the whole thing is too big to be comprehended. Oh, that I had a job!

And this, the second night, August 4:

". . . At 10.30 came the news that Germany had declared war . . . A Privy Council was at once summoned for papa to sign our declaration of war, and as soon as this was known in the crowd outside excitement became intense.

"Then, amid an unparalleled demonstration of patriotism, the parents showed themselves at 11.00 before going to bed. But the people remained singing, cheering and whistling for another three hours and I was lulled to sleep by their fearful shindy at 1.30. The die is cast. May God protect the Fleet!"

Before enlarging upon the personal problem which the war injected into my life, I should say something about those crowds which for days and nights stood outside Buckingham Palace collecting, dispersing and reforming, filling the great rooms with their tumultous sounds.

I watched them often from my bedroom window and, reflecting today upon that scene across the void of two world wars. I believe that in the behaviour of those friendly, patient, hopeful and patriotic British crowds lies a key to many of the changes that have come over our times.

How different was the mood of the great masses of people this time. This time all the young men went forth to fight in a hard and cynical frame of mind; they had been raised on sombre tales of the mass slaughters on the Western Front; they had heard all about war from their fathers, its waste and folly and elusive victories.

In 1914 the holocaust lay ahead and unknown. The British people outside Buckingham Palace were of good conscience.

None of the stratagems of the crowd architects of the present-day mass state had been required to herd them there. They had been put in motion by the simple loyalties and uncorroded faiths of Britain's uncommonly fine common man.

On the fourth day my personal crisis was temporarily resolved:

". . . Then asked my father for a commission in the Grenadiers, stating that I could no longer tolerate being unable to serve my country, and dear Papa never hesitated a moment and immediately instructed Lord Stamfordham (his Secretary) to notify this to the War Office . . .

"It was a happy moment for me and now I am an officer in the Army and am going to do active service! I get away from this awful palace where I have had the worst weeks of my life!"

However, the question of what to do about me was only one of the private problems which the war suddenly thrust violently into the well-regulated life of the King and Queen.

It's hard to diagnose the disease without seeing the patient. But here is a meringue that will stay put. To 2 well beaten egg whites, add 3 tablespoons white sugar. Beat again till glossy. Fold in 1 teaspoon corn starch. Pile on the pie filling and brown in a moderate oven. The meringue will not run, weep or otherwise misbehave. It cuts like a charm.

F. Green's Rink Captures District 'Spiel

By HERB MARTIN

Dr. M. McCartney, W. A. Smith. J. Hall, F. Green, skip.

This is the rink that won the district competition for division 5, held at the local rink on Tuesday.

Playing bang-up curling all day, the Green rink made every shot count. In the first game they met and defeated Dr. R. Clark and then treated S. Lowe's rink the same way. In their final game against G. Braund it was a one-sided affair. The Green boys took an early lead and increased it as the game progressed. Braund conceded the game in the 10th end.

Go To Oshawa

They will now go to Oshawa this week to meet other divisional winners and should they be successful there, they then go on to Hamilton for the finals.

With rinks entered from Fenelon Falls, Lakefield, Lindsay and Peterborough, Umpire R. F. Downey sent the boys away promptly at nine o'clock on Tuesday morning.

In the first round there was some real close games, D. Charlton, Lakefield, winning his game against R. Best with his last stone of the game, and then in the afternoon he did the same thing playing against Bill Langdon, Lindsay.

The games were witnessed by a large gallery all day and many stayed right through until midnight. It was a great day for the curlers and spectators, and all join in wishing Fred Green and his rink the very best of luck.

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Got a letter yesterday from an old friend in Montreal, Jack Maunder, public relations officer for the CPR. Large Jawn will be recalled as a fine Lindsay gridder at one time and later sports editor for the Post. Quite well known in Peterborough, too. Once he borrowed our desk in the old Examiner after a hockey game. We gladly scrammed for an hour. Coming back we saw Jack heading down George St. You could hear him bellowing for a block: "Nuts to you and your generosity—I must have answered 500 phone calls for the score, and I still haven't written my story!" He speaks of other Montrealers like Rollie O'Leary, also formerly with the Post, and Fitz Fitzgerald and Ken McDonald, one-time Examiner employees.

A trio of OMHA playdown games listed for Lakefield tonight. At 7.00, Lindsay bantams meet the local Lions. At 8.15, Lindsay midgets mix it with the Morrow-Rotarians. And an hour later, it's Lindsay juveniles against the Legion-Trojans. Latter two teams drew 5-5 in the first of their two-game series, while Rotary won 10-5 to hold a five-goal lead, and Lions took a 4-1 win so have three tallies in the bank. These boys play fine fast hockey every minute they're on the ice—being the future OHA stars and maybe NHL material. We'd like to see them get a good crowd of fans from here this evening.

Down The Stretch

Legionnaires push off this p.m. for Kingston, and they still have a trip to Belleville when the schedule ends a week from Friday. But this Friday they're "at home" to the Petes in Lindsay, last clash of these clubs ere playoffs. Petes have finished their road trips except for a postponed tussle in Bella Villa. And they have another "home" joust in Omemee on Feb. 13 against Kingston. Top team at schedule's end sits it out while the next two battle in best-of-five semi-finals. Winner meets the top team then in best-of-seven finals before OHA playdowns commence.

* * * * * *

It no doubt has occurred to many local puck fans that one mighty potent Peterborough senior "B" club could be fashioned from the two present entries. Take the six best Petes and put 'em on the Legion lineup, or draft six Legion stars and place them with the Petes, and wouldn't you really have a hockey team, eh? Not too far off senior "A" calibre, we'd say, and almost a cinch for a provincial senior "B" title. Petes last year made a dandy showing in Ontario semi-finals, and this city was supporting two clubs in the same category then, too. But you can pick the six stars off each club — we won't do it, not out loud anyway. The guys missed might be miffed.

Rink Site Selected

The Park St. site down by the CGE was chosen last night as the spot for the secondary rink at a general committee meeting. Same fears of uncertain footing over the ex-swamp on George St. opposite the wharf as bothered the Memorial Centre Committee ruled out this first choice. So they'll waste no time arguing over sites—that has been the elephantine headache for officials of the proposed big auditorium—but will consider this matter closed. Finances will be the hefty problem now and that'll be tackled at a meeting of the financial and building committees next Tuesday night. Definite plans will be drawn up then and the campaign will be on.

Dick Ouimet was elected chairman of the general secondary rink committee last eve, with Mrs. Wm. Addyman vice-chairman, Bill Bennett secretary, and treasurer to be named. Building committee is headed by Ald. Doug Miller, aided by Ald. Hurrell Dodds, while Chairman Doug Vaisey will select his financial committee. Stan McBride is in charge of publicity. There is a lot of groundwork required as the whole committee realizes and plenty of plugging ahead. But those chosen for the job are enthusiastic and capable, and we feel they'll make real headway in the drive to obtain this rink for next winter. More power to them.

Togs Top Trundlers

Those Towne Togs are generally there or therebaouts when it comes to leading the Girls' Bowling League in scoring, even when they lose out on the evening. This week they had high pinnage of 3033 with best game of 1271. J. Brockley of Arcos led the threesomes with a 715 roll and M. Knights of Cardinals cuffed out a hearty 330 single. M. Bailey of Commandos was closest to the blind score. Competition is getting quite keen, and there was but one goose egg laid this week.

Spring Tosses Wrench In Olympics

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 4.—(CP).—A sudden outbreak of spring-like weather tossed a monkey wrench into the fifth winter Olympic games today, forcing a delay in the program.

A warm rain that began falling on this winter sports capital early this morning disrupted a schedule that included men's and women's figure skating, four unofficial ice hockey matches, the combined slalom and final heats in the Cresta (skeleton sled).

The women's figure skating competition, scheduled to be resumed at 1 a.m. EST, was postponed.

There were authoritative reports officials would meet later in the day to consider moving the event to an indoor ice rink, possibly in Paris.

Mayor Carl Nater of St. Moritz, chairman of the Swiss organizing committee, said the 10-day period of the games would not be extended. They are scheduled to close Sunday.

No Extension

"It will be impossible to extend the games," Nater, chairman of the Swiss organizing committee, said. 'We have the warmest early February weather we have had in 40 years. It is like that all over Switzerland and we cannot do anything about it."

Pools of water on one rink also forced postponement of the hockey match between the United States (AHA) and Canada. However, three other hockey contests —Italy-Poland, Britain-Switzerland, Czechoslovakia-Austria — were being played.

The weather as almost certain to cause a delay in the final feature of the men's figure skating event this afternoon—the free skating tests.

It seemed likely thta the day's skiing feature—the combined slalom—would go on as scheduled, along with the horse-riding event in the Olympic Pentathlon. There was no immediate report on the cresta run.

Wings Have 4-Point Lead Whip Black Hawks 4-1

By The Canadian Press

The Detroit Red Wings today enjoy a four-point lead over Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League race, thanks to an easy 4-1 victory by the Wings over the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks in the only game played Tuesday. Tonight four of the teams are in action, Toronto at Boston Bruins and New York Rangers at Detroit. The Leafs, who were tied with Detroit for the league lead for just 24 hours last week-end, weren't any too hopeful as they headed for Boston, where they haven't won a game since March of 1946.

The Detroit victory over Chicago was no surprise, since the Wings previously had won eight out of nine against the Hawks, but it was a scrappy game in which 19 penalties were handed out, six of them majors for fighting.

Harry Lumley, the Detroit goalie, was gunning for Detroit's seventh shut-out of the season but was thwarted when Red Hamill of Chicago scored the Hawks' only goal on assists from Metro Prystai and George Gee in the first period.

Scores Two

Jim Conacher scored two of the Detroit goals, Jim McFadden and Captain Syd Abel getting the others. Gus Bodner of Chicago was handed one of the major penalties in the first period along with Ted Lindsay of Detroit. Gaye Stewart of Chicago got two majors in the last period, and Abel and Gordon Howe of Detroit also served majors in that frame. No particular damage resulted from any of the fights.

For tonight's game at Boston the Leafs were not in very good shape. With Captain Syl Apps still out of action because of a bad knee, rookie Johnny McCormack who was brought up from the senior amateur Toronto Marlboros to fill in at Apps' spot was a doubtful starter. There's nothing wrong with Johnny, but he has already played in two of the three games he's entitled to on a trial basis without losing his amateur status.

Most immediate of the Leafs' worries was spidery Max Bentley, high-scoring forward who suffered an injured knee in Sunday's game against Detroit. Bentley was on skates yesterday before the Leafs left Detroit for Boston and the Leafs hoped to use him in place of Apps.

OLYMPIC FLAG STOLEN

The historic Olympic flag was stolen last night from its mast over the Olympic Stadium at St. Moritz, probably by an ambitious souvenir hunter.

Coin Machine Industry Boom Now Predicted

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—(AP).—The president of the National Automatic Merchandising Association believes that in five years the coin machine industry will grow to $2,000,000,000 proportions.

With the aid of vending machines, he said, employed women will be able to do their laundry during the lunch hour and housewives to pick up emergency groceries without leaving their apartment buildings.

Robert Z. Greene, New York, president of the Vending Machine Association, added these details to his predictions:

By 1952 there will be 2,300,000 coin-operated merchandising machines throughout the United States.

Daily sales of 10 cents a machine for penny and service devices, $1 for candy, $2.50 for carbonated beverages, and $4 for cigarets will account for a combined volume of $1,500,000,000.

Additional sales from devices such as stamp vendors, coffee, milk, ice cream, sandwiches, insurance, and groceries "will bring the total sales from automatic merchandising to well over $2,000,000,000 before 1952."

He foresaw automatic merchandising in the grocery field as ultimately reaching an annual volume of $100,000,000 through installation of machine in apartment buildings.

"Most of these sales," Greene said, "would be plus sales that otherwise would not be made. Now if a housewife finds herself out of beans or rice when preparing dinner, she isn't apt to make a special trip to the grocery, but will do without it.

Impulse Sales

"Most items sold through vending machines are impulse sales that otherwise would be lost forever," and the proper location of the machine can give that impulse a profitable outlet.

Asserting that 60,000 persons would be directly employed in operation and service of the machines, Greene said "I have never heard of one single individual losing his job because he was replaced by automatic merchandising."

He continued:

"Automatic merchandising will some day bring to retail distribution the same advantages the machine age has brought to manufacturing and agriculture. Until self-service was introduced into food markets, comparatively little progress was made in cutting costs of retail distribution.

"A sales clerk automatically becomes a supervisor and can devote his time to demonstrative selling. This will enable the merchant to pay more for less work."

He said a machine now on the drawing board will be able to form part of the store front at night, thus achieving late-hour operation and customer convenience without high costs.

"In England (prior to the war) there were over 200,000 cigarette machines that were rolled out in front of stores after the eight o'clock closing hour of tobacco shops. And today in Holland, Denmark, and age is not as extreme, a variety of Switzerland, where the food shortmerchandise is sold in this manner," he said.

Being A Coach Not All Roses

By HUGH FULLERTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—If you think you have headaches, listen to Neal Harris... Neal is the guy who took a leave from Albright College, Reading, Pa., to coach the Egyptian olympic basketball team and in a letter to colleague Ted Meier he relates some of his woes... They included having to set up coaching schools, convincing doubters, establishing three separate training bases and supervising them all and digging up some equipment... "All courts are out of doors, and sand," Harris writes. "The boys play in low tennis shoes or regular shoes with rubber soles. Right now we are using India soccer balls, which are about as round as an egg. I was hoping some coaches in the States would take pity on men and send a couple of rubber basketballs. We can't buy them from the States since there is strict enforcement of currency exchange and dollars here are as scarce as rain."... What, no cracks about officiating? This guy can't be a basketball coach.

Chilly Reception

When Oklahoma's swimming team defeated Colorado last week, the Sooners followed tradition by dunking coach Joe Glander in the pool although the temperature was 19 below zero outside... But Joe got even without half trying... Driving the team home, his car got stuck in a snowdrift and at last report, the squad was marooned at Raton, N. M., after taking a whole day to drive 24 miles.

Houston Huskies Trounce Omaha 7-5

By The Associated Press

St. Paul Saints challenge Minneapolis Millers tonight for first place in the United States Hockey League with the Saints needing a victory to share top spot. The Millers now lead by two points in the standings.

League standings were undisturbed last night as Houston trounced Omaha 7-5 in the only game scheduled.

The teams matched scores in the first period but Houston scattered four goals through as many players in the second period to take a 5-4 lead. All of Omaha's scoring in the second period was credited to Max McNab who accounted for three goals.

In addition to the game at Minneapolis tonight, Dallas plays at Kansas City.

Millionaire Builds Dream Place Near Top Of Laurentian Peak

By ALAN RANDAL

MONT TREMBLANT, Que., Feb. 4—(CP).—Here, on the top of the Laurentians' highest mountain, if you can forget for a moment the thousands of week-end skiers, two men must stand out—Joe Ryan and Father Deslauriers. It is a question which is the more important. But they are, if you want to call them so, the man with the pocketbook and the man with the prayer book. And, say what you will, they are the men who, in a skiing sense, made these mountains the paradise that they are.

Ten years ago a young man from Philadelphia climbed this highest of the peaks in the Laurentians. He had a hard time. It was so hard, that as he floundered in the five-foot deep snow, his party sent veteran guide Harry Wheeler back to get him.

Together they struggled to the peak of Mont Tremblant.

There, this man—and it was Joe Ryan, backed by a couple of millions of Philadelphia dollars — looked around and said, "This is the most magnificent sight I have ever seen."

Went To Work

And then he added, "But it is too hard to get up, I will fix it." He did that.

He built a chair-lift at a cost of more than $200,000, that takes 150-odd people up the mountain at one time on an endless chain of chairs. Besides this lift he sliced the trees and shrubs from what now is the famed "flying mile" ski run. And for other slopes he put in rope tows and tee-bar tows and built a village all his own, complete with church and hotel and sundry other buildings.

Now he is doing the same thing on the other side of his mountain.

It was 10 years ago that Father Deslauriers comes into the story. Like Joe, he too could ski. Unlike Joe, he had no money. But he had in his own quiet, soft-spoken way, influence.

He was a parish priest for 80 families and he saw in Joe and Joe's millions, considerable good for his mountain and he encouraged him to go ahead with the development that Ryan, a ski lover, envisaged.

Now, after spending $2,500,000, Ryan has hardly begun. You ask him how many buildings he has on his mountain and he doesn't know—'maybe a hundred." At least there is nothing like it in Eastern Canada.

Says Manitoba Not To Blame

WINNIPEG, Feb. 4 — (CP) — Manitoba's brand of senior hockey usually is shrugged off as pretty pale stuff by devotees to the western Canada senior hockey loop.

But they gave a chilly reception recently to a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association decision which permits Manitoba's representative in the Western Canada playoffs to bolster its roster.

The battle put up last year in the western finals by the lightly regarded Winnipeg Flyers may have caused the concern voiced by west-of-Winnipeg fans. Flyers extended Calgary Stamps in the series.

Anyway, Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith has cogitated and replied to attacks made by Dave (Regina Leader-Post) Dryburgh but Smith dosn't offer many alibis.

He agrees "that if Manitoba hasn't got a team strong enough to compete with other clubs in the country, then that is purely Manitoba's fault."

But Smith also thinks Dryburgh could have looked a a bit further ahead. "He could have explained that probably the main reason why the C.A.H.A. decided to strengthen the Manitoba team was because by doing so it hoped the series between Manitoba and the Western Canada league winners would be a financial success — which it otherwise might not be."

SKI CHAMP — Heikki Hasu of Finland, is shown after winning the ski jumping event at the winter Olympic games recently in St. Moritz. Having previously captured the cross-country ski race, Hasu became the holder of the combined championship title in the present international meet. Canadian and US ski jumpers did not place in the dual event.

Bancroft Sure Of Top Place

BANCROFT, Feb. 4 — (ENS). —The Apsley Aces lost on Monday evening to the league-leading Bancroft Trappers by a 10-4 score, which gave the Trappers seven wins in a row and are now assured of first place.

Trappers led by a 2-0 score at the end of the first frame on the goals by E. Brough and Foster. The homesters were leading by a 6-0 count at the end of the second and had added one more in the third before Howden scored for the visitors. The 6-foot 3 policeman added one more and Dunford added two more for the visitors in that same session. The goal-getters for Bancroft were E. Brough with three, N. Brough and Crawford with two each, while Walton, Foster and Kavanagh notched single counters. Caton in the Apsley cage was a standout.

The teams:

Apsley — Goal, Caton; defence J. Tucker, R. Tucker; forwards, Dunford, Howden, K. Watson; alternates, G. Watson, G. Tucker, Tanner, Thompson, Lockman, Smith and Jeff.

Bancroft — Goal, McGhee; defence, Flaglar, Carpenter; forwards, N. Brough, E. Brough, Kavanagh; alternates, Walton, Maxwell, Crawford, Whyte, Foster, Adam.

Czechoslovakia Beats Austrian Team 14-3

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 4.—(CP).—Czechoslovakia advanced into sole possession of first place in the hockey tournament being held in conjunction with the Olympic games when the Czech squad trounced Austria 14-3 on sofe ice today while Canada's game with the United States Amateur Hockey Association team was postponed.

Today's victory was the fifth straight for Czechoslovakia and gave them 10 points. Canada and Switzerland have eight points with four straight victories.

Switzerland earlier scored a one-sided victory over Great Britain to move into a three-way tie but the latter victory put the Czechs in front.

GOOD LOOKER TOO—Gretchen Merill of Boston who was supposed to be a great rival for Barbara Ann Scott finished seventh so far as she went in the compulsory figures at the Olympic Games. She is a Boston society girl and the main American hope, but like all the others she is trailing Beautiful Barbara.

Special Film Recalls Gold Rush

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4 — (AP) —California, which is planning a three-year celebration of the Gold Rush Centennial, will get a helping hand from Hollywood.

At least two films are being planned in commemoration of the State's infancy. Michael Curtiz will shoot part of "The 49ers" at Coloma, Calif., where gold was discovered. Then he will move on for further scenes in Colorado (this is treason).

Producer Harry Sherman is scouting the mother lode country for location of "Tennessee's Partner" with Joel McCrea. The Bret Harte story is rich in gold rush lore.

Daring Theem.

Frederic March's new film, "The Judge's Wife," is reported to treat a daring theme — mercy killing. There has been no publicity about the plot, but inside info reports that the Judge (March) ends the life of his hopelessly-ill wife (played by Florence Eldridge).

Ann Richards has been polling her Australian friends on the Americans they would like most to meet. Results: Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Albert Einstein, Douglas MacArthur, Lauritz Melchior, Irving Berlin, Bill Mauldin, Spike Jones, Jack Kramer, and Richard Byrd.

Biltmores Dump Rockets 4-2; Dutchmen Win

By The Canadian Press

Bill Sherry's Guelph Biltmores haven't got much of a chance to make the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs but it looks as if they intend to have some say where some of the other clubs will finish.

Biltmores dumped Galt Rockets 4-2 last night at Galt and prevented the Rockets from moving into third place ahead of Barrie Flyers. In the home city Saturday, the seventh-place Guelph squad handed Barrie their worst defeat this season, 9-5.

Guelph has four games left to play but they are 3½ games away from sixth and last playoff berth —in which are found St. Catharines Teepees who must lose all their remaining games to give Guelph a chance. Unfortunately, for Guelph, these games include a meeting with Toronto Young Rangers—but if Young Rangers decide to flex their muscles.

The rejuvenated Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen continued their steady climb up the senior ladder by defeating Owen Sound Mercurys 4-3 at Owen Sound to break the fourth-place tie with the Mercurys. The Dutchmen are three points behind the third-place Stratford Indians.

At Galt there were further complaints of "easy" refereeing, as boarding and elbowing were frequent.

Guelph goals were scored by Ed Bolan, Glen Sonmor, Ralph Ewing and Lorne Ferguson. Galt Marksmen were Harold Hopper and Sam Mulholland.

Road Budget For Otonabee Totals $35,000

Otonabee township will not be responsible for damage done "by the snowplow to cars left parked on township roads, and that a notice to this effect be published in The Peterborough Examiner."

This decision by the council was embodied in a resolution by Councillor R. Stewart, seconded by Deputy Reeve Harry McIntyre. Insurance policies covering hired trucks and road liability were renewed by the council with A. E. Wilson & Co. through their agent J. M. Hope.

The road superintendent, Mac Short, reported some trees had been cut on the road allowance without permission. Reeve W. W. Dawson and Mr. Short were instructed to interview the persons in these cases.

Reeve Dawson and Councillor Percy Davidson were authorized to engage an assessor for the township. Thomas Weir has been clerk, treasurer, tax collector and assessor, but has resigned as assessor. His appointment in the three other positions, the duties of which were all Mr. Weir is able to carry on, will be confirmed in a bylaw he was asked to prepare.

Dorsey Finds Canadians Make Responsive Audiences

A crowd of more than 2,000 packed the Summer Gardens Tuesday night to hear Tommy Dorsey and his world famous orchestra in a one-night stand. Equal portions of sweet and hot music combined to give a balanced program that pleased fans addicted to either extreme. Responding to the enthusiastic applause of the dancers, the orchestra gave its full talent to round out an evening of top-flight musical entertainment.

Catching a breather at the end of the strenuous session, Tommy Dorsey expressed his appreciation at the way in which Peterborough people had received his band. Asked if it were true that Canadians were less demonstrative than their southern neighbors when acclaiming guest orchestras, he replied: "Not at all. Canadians are very enthusiastic. Often in the States the audience is too blase; most youngsters have seen so many big-name bands they are no longer appreciative."

Just after the clock struck nine, a well-built man, slightly taller than ordinary, and clad in a dark blue suit appeared among the orchestra. As he sauntered toward the microphone at the front of the stage the first soft strains of "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You," became audible. At the conclusion of that theme — now synonymous with the name Tommy Dorsey — the gathering throng whistled, cheered and clapped in a burst of spontaneous welcome. And the evening was on.

For three hours the orchestra played with scarcely a breathing space between the numbers—faster than a juke-box full of Dorsey records and with the pantomime of accomplished showmen thrown in for good measure.

As often happens, many of those in attendance were more interested in watching and listening, than dancing. A half-moon of tightly-packed spectators stood around the stage most of the night to get a close-up of the famous orchestra in action.

Standout performer was "Ziggy" Elman, for years one of America's top trumpeters, and believed by many to be the hottest trumpeter playing today. At no time did Ziggy appear to be working very hard, but when he rose for solo parts with the same effortless ease, he struck the clearest and richest trumpet notes of the evening.

But the performer who nearly stole the show was the little colored trumpeter, Charlie Shavers. A top showman recently chosen by the magazine "Downbeat" as one of the three best trumpeters now playing, he gave his best at all times. Trumpet solos, vocal solos, and his regular place in the horn section of the orchestra, kept him hopping during the entire session. "Everything's Jumpin' At the Fat Man's" was an outstanding piece: and his vocal reminded the audience of Cab Calloway.

Gordon Polk of the Town Criers proved to be one of the crowd's favorites. Sporting a crew cut, he mugged and clowned drawing gales of laughter at his performance.

As the evening progressed the large crowd felt less inclined to be just an audience and increasingly began to step to the accompaniment of "The Sentimental Gentleman."

Speaking to the Examiner later, Tommy Dorsey said they had included four Canadian cities on their present tour: Toronto, Peterborough, Niagara Falls, and London. The band was preparing to shove off for Niagara Falls as soon as they had finished their one-night stand in Peterborough, he said.

Asked who in his band had received top rating in the recent "Downbeat" poll, he said three: Ziggy Elman, trumpet; Charlie Shavers, trumpet, and Buddy Franco, saxaphone.

Enough recordings had been made recently to last for two years he said commenting on his reaction to the Petrillo ban. Between Dec. 19 and Dec. 25 his band had made 39 sides; and some bands had made more.

Arab Legion Fires On Convoy

JERUSALEM, Feb. 4 — (Reuters). — Five Jews including one woman were known to-day to have been killed by fire from troops of King Abdullah's Arab Legion on a Jewish convoy near Haifa last night, it was officially reported to-day. Fifteen Jews were also stated to have been wounded.

Jewish sources said the convoy was fired on from the Arab Legion camp outside Haifa after a bomb had exploded in Haifa, killing four Arabs and wounding three yesterday.

An official government report said, however, that the Arab Legion was fired on by Jews in the convoy and Legion men then returned the fire.

Six Jews were wounded when an armored bus in which they were travelling in Haifa to-day was ambushed in the Khalisa quarter, and raked with gunfire it was officially reported.

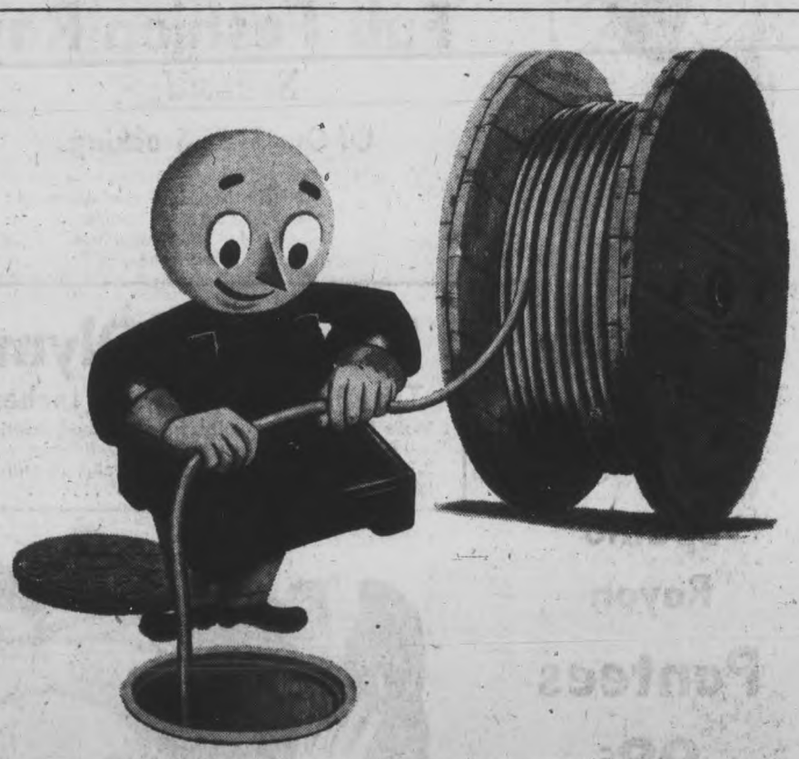
Senate Group To Study Immigration

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 — (CP). — The Senate yesterday approved a motion to revive its immigration committee with an enlarged field of invstigation into that subject and heard two Liberal Senators approve the government policy of selective immigration.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) said the new "job-sure" immigration policy under which jobs are found for immigrants, methods of the past. In moving was a far cry from the old mass for revival of the committee which has made immigration studies for the last two sessions, he said it might want to enlarge its scope now that the scene had changed. The Senate approved.

Senator Thomas Vien (L—Quebec) also complimented the government for its selective immigration policy but he had a word of warning. It was true, he said, that Canada was capable of a much larger population, but she should be careful as to who she allowed in. If the doors were opened too wide, some Canadians might find themselves displayed persons.

Complete Success



Senator Roebuck said that the main immigration problem now was making the pathway to Canada "more humane, efficient and sensible."

About 10,500 displaced persons had reached Canada, he said, "a

STEAK FOR 41 CENTS A POUND—Three weeks ago the butchers of St. Helens, Oregon, started a price war while the residents reaped the boon of low meat prices. At the thick of the battle they were giving hamburger away with a dime tossed in to pay the customer for cartage. The battle has diminished somewhat in intensity with hamburger now selling three pounds for $1.00; pot roast 39c a pound; steak 41c a pound, and pork sausages 45c a pound. The word has spread to neighboring cities and new customers are thronging in. Meat is now coming into St. Helens by train to supplement truck shipments. Above is a typical crowded butcher shop.

Safeguarding telephone wires for trouble-free Service

THE WORK of burying telephone wires or placing them in overhead cable continues year after year. Today, over 4 million miles of telephone wires, 95% of our total, are in cable, safer from storms. Service interruptions caused by weather are fewer, and still our constant aim is to provide even better service.

Not only is our service becoming more dependable, but it's growing, too. We are filling orders for telephones just as fast as new equipment is available. More telephones plus more dependable service — and always at the lowest possible cost — mean greater telephone value for every user.

Lorne Reynolds On Jersey Breeders' Board

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—(CP). —A move to boost sales of trademarked Jersey milk featured yesterday's meeting of Ontario Jersey breeders in annual convention here. Members asked directors to appoint a salesman for such milk.

Some criticism was aimed at directors, members claiming there had been too much concentration on show values and too little on the milk side of the Jersey industry. It was felt a salesman promoting sales of the trademarked product would aid the organization considerably. It receives a premium for such sales.

C. D. Graham, Ontario Deputy Minister of Agriculture, told the annual banquet members should set a three-point program—quality, lowering the cost of production and taking advantage of the most modern methods of marketing.

Stresses Youth

Importance of youth was brought out by the deputy minister who asked that leadership be provided for young men in agriculture. One method of cutting production costs, he said, is conservation of pasture lands and maintenance of soil fertility.

Directors and heads of organizations at their meetings, he continued, should outline in principle plans for the coming year, while members and small member organizations should carry out the plan. Breeders should be realistic and not take prices of the last few years as a yardstick for measuring the value of their stock or products.

As has been the case with most dairy groups, the Jersey men listened attentively while J. W. Fawley of Caledon urged them to support the Dairy Farmers' Association and any other group which would maintain barriers against the manufacture, importation and sale of oleomargarine At last night's meeting it was announced that the B. H. Bull farm of Brampton won 22 of 64 awards for butterfat and milk production records in Dominion competition last year. Certificates were presented to owners of championship animals last night.

Delegates elected to represent the organization on the Ontario Cattle Breeders' Association were: Maurice Beatty, Milton; Alfred Bagg, Edgley; John Bull, Brampton; Dr. W. W. Sherwin, Orono, and Hayes Woodley, Alberton.

Board of management named was F. S. Papple, Brantford; J. H. Grisdale, Iroquois; G. Silcox, Iona; J. Featherstone, Oakville; R. Macfie, Appin; John Batty, Brooklin; Harry Collins, Woodstock; John Bull, Brampton; Lorne Reynolds, Peterborough and Alfred Bagg, Edgeley.

The annual report showed a surplus of $22,854.

The application was received Monday night by the Council from Major G. Lanctot, Deputy Minister, and was referred to the Finance Committee. He wrote that the pictures were of national as well as local interest, and asked for "the loan of the negatives."

Sentences Too Heavy

WINNIPEG, Feb. 4—(CP)—Mr. Justice A. K. Dysart suggested yesterday in the Manitoba Court of Appeal that imposition of heavy sentences as a crime deterrent was an "unsound principle." The judge made this observation during an appeal against a two-year penitentiary sentence imposed on Del Robert O'Brien, 22, for attempted robbery of a fruit store. The three-man court of appeal reserved judgment.

Refuse Appeal In Libel Case

TORONTO, Feb. 4 — (CP). — The Ontario Court of Appeals yesterday refused an application by 16 members of the CCF party for permission to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada for a new trial of the libel action they brought in 1944, concerning an advertisement on the Toronto civic elections that year, against M. A. Sanderson, the Reliable Exterminators Ltd., and the Globe Printing Company and C. George McCullagh, publisher of the Globe and Mail.

At the original trial actions of 14 of the plaintiffs were dismissed. Damages of one cent each were awarded the two others, Prof. G. A. Grube and Eva Sanderson.

The plaintiffs were all candidates in the 1944 civic elections and action arose from an advertisement placed by Mr. Sanderson, since deceased, and published Jan. 1, 1944, in the Globe and Mail.

Original appeal for a new trial was dismissed by the Ontario Appellate Court in 1946.

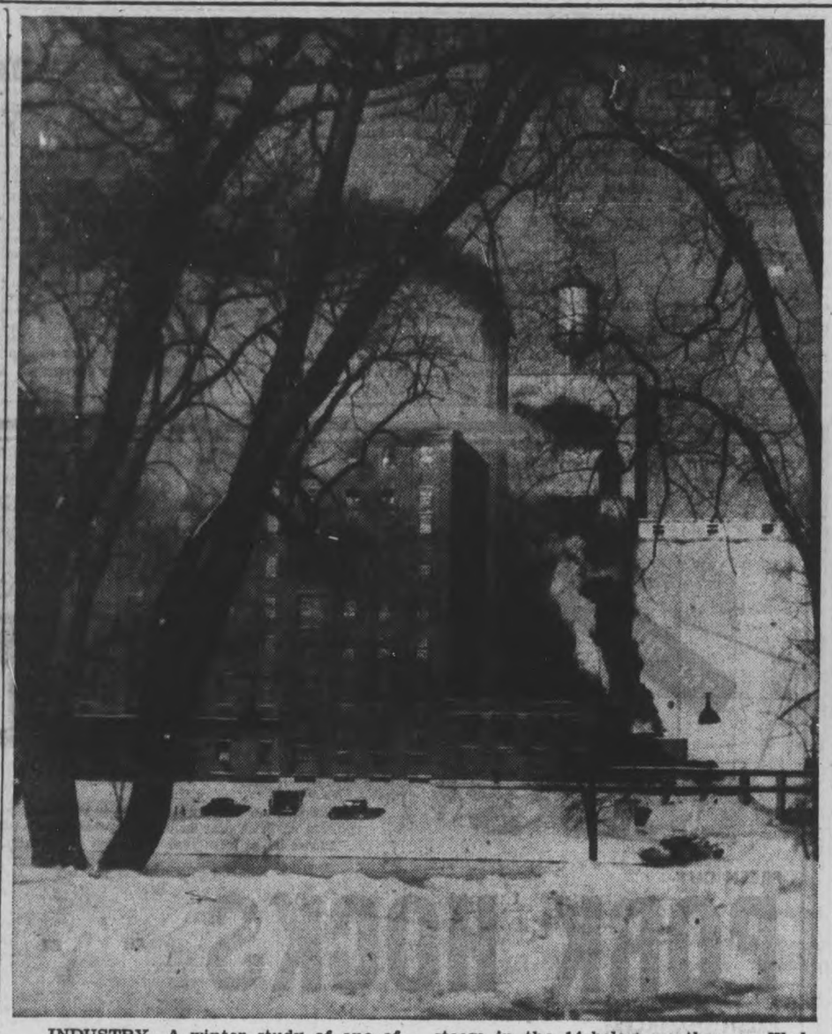
Clothing Ignites Woman 76; Dies From Burns

Flaming clothing that could not be extinguished before severe burns had been suffered resulted in the death this morning of Mrs. Isabella Mitchell, 76, of 181 Romaine St. She died in Civic Hospital at 8.25 a.m. due to what were described as "very severe shock and burns."



The accident occurred just after 8 p.m. last night. Mrs. Mitchell and her brother-in-law, Mr. George Mitchell, were sitting in the kitchen at the table. When she attempted to pass between the table and a two-burner electric stove mounted on a stool, about two feet from the floor, her clothing caught fire.

She was almost instantly enveloped in flames and Mr. Mitchell required a rug as well as the use of his hands to finally extinguish them. By this time she had been severely burned.

Mrs. Mitchell was still conscious when the ambulance arrived to take her to Civic Hospital, where she died almost exactly 24 hours later.

The Fire Dept. were called but the kitchen was undamaged. Her clothing was the only thing ablaze.

The former Isabella Craig, she was the wife of the late William James Mitchell, Hamilton, Ont.

Theatre Guild Presents The Dover Road

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

The second of the series of three plays which the Kinsmen are bringing to Peterborough was given in the Collegiate Auditorium on Tuesday night by the Canadian Theatre Guild; it was "The Dover Road" by A. A. Milne.

Because of its wit and charm this play has been a favourite since its first appearance in 1922; since that time it has been performed countless times by professional and amateur companies. It is not, however, an easy play to do, and its effectiveness depends chiefly upon the actor who plays the part of Mr. Latimer — a role which was played in the original production by the late Henry Ainley, if I am not mistaken. Dennis Murphy, who played Latimer with the Canadian Theatre Guild, was successful in giving us Latimer's charm; he was not so successful, however, in conveying the strength and mastery which is implicit in the part. Latimer must dominate the other characters so subtly that they do not know that they are dominated, although the audience is fully conscious of it. Mr. Val Carey, who played the lesser role of Dominic, the butler, gave this impression of power in reserve very strongly, and although he lacks some of Mr. Murphy's charm he might have been more fortunately cast in the leading role.

Mack Inglis, the producer of the company, gave his accustomed witty performance. Miss Cosey Lee was well suited with the role of a foolish runaway wife, and Miss Lynne Speece and Charles McBride contributed the charm of their youth to the play.

If a word of criticism may be offered, it is that the pace of the play was unaccountably slow. Milne's comedy does not permit close examination; charm and not philosophy is its strong point. A greater sense of movement in the direction, without any hint of rush, would have cut ten minutes off the playing time which—if the play had begun at the advertised hour and the intervals had been a little shorter, would have dismissed the audience before eleven o'clock.

'Mild 35 Below In Arctic' Delights Lindsay Man

LINDSAY, Feb. 4 — (ENS). — Thirty-five degrees below zero may seem like pretty cold weather to people in Southern Ontario, but where Army Signalman F. H. Waite of Lindsay is now stationed, such temperatures constitute a mild spell. Mr. Waite has been stationed in Aklavik, Northwest Territories, since Jan. 4, and in a letter to A. F. Worby, formerly of Lindsay, and now of Trenton, he tells of weather conditions that should prove comforting to people here who find 10 below a bit hard to take.

"Our arrival at Aklavik was marked, or rather marred, by the coldest recorded day up until then, at 42 below," writes Mr. Waite, whose wife accompanied him to the Arctic outpost.

"Subsequently it went to 52 below on Tuesday. At present it is a very mild 35 below, when all inhabitants run around in their shirt sleeves or sunsuits."

Coal $40 a Ton

Rigorous Arctic weather is not the only thing people in the Far North have to face. They must also cope with high living costs, due chiefly to long transportation routes, which make prices here seem almost insignificant. For instance, Mr. Waite says coal costs $3 a bag, or $40 a ton. The freight rate for other goods from Waterways, Alberta, by boat is $125 a ton. Ancient movies are shown at the Aklavik hotel twice weekly at "a buck a shot" to quote Mr. Waite.

"Our sole contact with the outside at this time of year is by aircraft. There are two scheduled trips in monthly," the letter continues, "and the only means of transportation here is by dog team. I haven't heard a teamster yell 'mush' at a dog team yet. To make them go, the driver just yells 'hurrah' and from then on directs them by yelling gee or haw as to horses."

Mr. Waite, who is connected with a radio station at the outpost, says their activities include the operation of a commercial broadcasting station for the district.

Taken all around, the Waites report they are quite enthused with the North, and point out that having their house served with electricity is an important factor in making it more like home.

In charge of the headquarters will be Inspector E. V. McNeil of Mount Forest, who will assume his duties next week.

Gas Shortages Cause Shutdown

The effect of the unprecedented cold snap especially in Ohio and Pennsylvania has reached this county's major mining industry at Blue Mountain, according to Mr. H. R. Deeth, vice-president of American Nepheline Corp., Lakefield. He says that American glass and pottery plants which are large consumers of natural gas have been forced to close due to lack of flow.

The large storage bins in Lakefield are filled to their 4,000-ton capacity and can fill orders as soon as word is received that the ceramic industry is again in normal production. The management has found it necessary to close mining and milling operations at Blue Mountain until mid-February on that account.

Badly Burned Indian Taken From Tent

Back in the north-west corner of Ontario, north of the Echoeing River country, the Dominion-Provincial survey party is cutting the last 160 miles of line across the Land of Little Sticks. Their very existence in this unhospitable country depends on the planning of every move, weeks in advance, of the 16-man crew. To veteran surveyor Ed Gauer, assisted by John Pierce of Peterborough, rests the responsibility of surveying the "line" accurately as well as overseeing the welfare of white and Cree helpers alike. The job is controlled by the time element of the winter season and they are obliged to work seven days a week until it is completed.

On Saturday night, Jan. 20 they threw up their tent camp and planned the following day's work by the light of a hissing gas lantern. Their portable radio transmitter was not functioning and they were unable to hold their nightly radio "skeed" with the Manitoba forestry radio station at Lac du Bonnet air base several hundred miles to the south. The service ski plane would arrive on Sunday at a lake nine miles away. A new cook had taken charge of the mess and the weather promised to be fair. They would accomplish a good day's work on Sunday.

The next morning found them rolling out of their sleeping bags in the dark, dressing quickly and stoking up the stoves with dry tamarack to take the frost out of the tents. The new cook had the breakfast steaming on the tin plates, porridge, flapjacks, bacon and gallons of steaming coffee. Everyone was accounted for in the mess tent except Angus Thomas, a Cree dog driver.

Tent Burning

Suddenly, one of his native pals yelled out a warning and dashed outside followed by the whole crew, one of the Indian tents was burning, Angus was inside. By the glare of the blazing flimsy structure, they tramped the blazing canvas into the deep snow and hauled out the sleepy Cree who had already received bad burns on his hands, face and head.

Angus was rushed to another tent and given first-aid treatment and made as comfortable as possible. The accident could easily have been fatal to the Indian but as it was, it created a chain of events that were very serious to a remote group of men in the wilderness. Except for the clothing each native wore, the flash fire destroyed bedding, moccasins and extra clothing and the camp was combed for every extra bit of apparel to temporarily replace the loss. With the radio set inoperative, they were unable to advise the southern airbase of their plight but fortunately, a distress signal made of boughs on the ice had been arranged previously with the pilot.

Mr. Gauer cancelled all work plans for the day to get Angus Thomas to the plane-rendezvous lake, nine miles away. Due to heavy snow it would have been impossible to drag the injured man on a toboggan in time to meet the aircraft and it was decided to choose another lake six miles away.

Mr. Pierce was left in charge of the patient and could only apply moist bandages soaked in baking soda solution, keep the tent warm and the Indian well covered. His temperature dipped and his attendant was hoping against hope that shock would not set in.

All this was accounted in letter from Mr. Pierce to his wife in Peterborough. That the letter arrived, testifies that it was brought out by plane and Mrs. Pierce may have to wait several more weeks for the following letter telling how Angus Thomas was eventually moved to hospital at the "Steel." In the meantime the survey work is going on the party will chalk it up to another "experience" in their line of work.

HAROLD ROBSON

Harold Robson Ex-Reporter Dies In Toronto

Harold Robson, Examiner reporter some years ago and its first staff photographer, died early this morning in Toronto. He had been critically ill since Christmas week, and had previously been in uncertain health from the first years of the war.

Mr. Robson was born 44 years ago in the village of Hamley, near Stoke-on-Trent, Staffordshire, England. He received his education in that district, and took up newspaper work on the Staffordshire Sentinel.

In 1926 he came to Canada and while visiting Peterborough was so favorably impressed that he decided to try to find a place for himself here. He applied to the city editor of The Examiner, and thereby began a connection with this paper and its staff which remained unbroken in spirit even after Mr. Robson had moved into other interests. He was not only an exceptionally reliable and competent reporter, but he had also broader news appreciations and instincts that directed him to many feature articles of his writing for The Examiner. Mr. Robson's pleasing personality won him many friends around town and elsewhere whose remembrance of him was expressed in letters to his bedside during his illness.

Liked The Militia

As a young man in Stoke-on-Trent, Harold Robson joined the South Staffordshire Regiment of the British territorial militia, and was one of its sergeants before coming to Canada. That military experience and association bent his interests in that direction for the rest of his life. He joined the Prince of Wales Rangers, and at the outbreak of the Second World War he tried to enlist in several units, but was rejected at Kingston on medical grounds. His illness was evidently then in its incipience. When the Rangers were mobilizing he became its

2 Get Reformatory Terms One Year and 8 Months For Roy Studio Break-in

Two youths received reformatory sentences of one year and eight months, respectively, when evidence was heard on the breaking, entering and theft of camera equipment from the Roy Studios here. Lionel Devine, 23, received the one-year term and an additional four months indefinite. Henry David Billings, 18, was sentenced to eight months definite and three months indefinite.

Both had pleaded guilty to the charges previously and had been remanded until today. Billings had also pleaded guilty to breaking and entering Selkirk's Men's Store.

Another two young men, members of the photographic crew with the sentenced youths, are charged with receiving stolen goods. Their trial is continuing this afternoon.

Actg. Det. Sgt. John Stevenson, only crown witness, briefly recounted the details of his investigation in both case. The Roy theft had occurred early in the morning of January 25 with loss of cameras and equipment valued at more than $1,200. All this had been recovered, the witness said. Some items had been pawned in Toronto by Billings, but all had been redeemed by the Studio at a cost of about $95, he added.

Outlined Progress

Det. Stevenson also gave details of the charge on the Selkirk break-in. A penlight, found inside that building, had led to the accused Billings, he said, when it was traced by a name on it to a 12-year-old boy in Toronto who used the YMCA building there regularly. Billings had been living at the "Y" at the time of its disappearance.

The Selkirk loss had been three suits, an overcoat and a dressing gown.

In the sentence to Billings, he was sentenced the same time for each charge, to run concurrently.

Keith Rankin and Barry Bremmer, the two charged with receiving stolen goods, have pleaded not guilty. Part of the crown evidence was given this morning, and the trial will be continued this afternoon. The two are represented by W. J. A. Fair.

This morning's hearing was highlighted by the dispute between counsel on statements of the accused made to Sgt. Stevenson. Mr. Fair's objections to this statement — which was orally made after the standard warning had been given — were recorded, but the statement was permitted.

In his evidence, Det.-Sgt. Stevenson stated Bremmer had told him that he had known nothing of the Selkirk break-in and said that the four members of the party had read the account in the Examiner together. Bremmer had asked Billings where the suit had been obtained (Bremmer had purchased the suit from Devine, who said he had received it from Billings). At the question, said witness, Bremmer said that Billings had just laughed. This had given him the idea that the suit had been stolen, Bremmer had told the detective.

The accused had been wearing the suit in question when he had been arrested, the witness said. Mr. Fair again objected that this statement could not be made by the detective witness. The discussion on this point led to a lengthy exchange between Crown and defence counsels.

Under questioning by defence counsel Fair, Det. Sgt. Stevenson admitted that Bremmer had been "very helpful" to the authorities in the Roy Studios investigation.

The trial was resumed at 2.30 this afternoon.

Rink Committee Selects Park St. Site

The Park St. property at Lake St. was the unanimous choice of the secondary rink committee last night as the site for the rink project. The property on George St. opposite the wharf was ruled out because of the uncertain footing of this former boggy ground.

Dick Ouimet was elected chairman of the general committee, with Mrs. William Addyman vice-chairman, Bill Bennett secretary and treasurer to be named. Ald. Doug Miller will head the building committee with Ald. Hurrell Dodds vice-chairman. Doug Vaisey was chosen chairman of the finance committee and will form his own committee. Stan McBride is publicity chairman.

A meeting will be held next Tuesday of the building and financial committees and a definite start then made so that the project may be completed before next winter. CGE Club 72 has already announced staging a big dance and turning the proceeds over to the committee treasurer to go toward a secondary rink. Further progress will be announced from time to time.

January Had 17 Cold Days

January laid a colder hand on Peterborough than it did a year ago as corroborated by James Harrison, official weather recorder.

Maximum temperature last month was 37 deg. on the 12th and the low was 22 deg. below zero early on 23rd. The average for the month was 10.9 degrees.

Compare those frigid facts with their fellows for January 1947:— Maximum a year ago was 41 degrees on the 27th, a reminder of a January thaw which apparently missed the north temperate zone entirely this year; minimum was 19 below zero on New Year Day; the average for the month was 15.42 degrees.

During the month just departed 17 days were below zero, with an unbroken stretch of 23rd to 31st registering in the section of the mercury column under the "O" mark.

In January 1947 only ten days of the month dipped below zero. Last month there were two days, the 23rd and 30th, on which the maximum temperature remained below zero.

Snowfall a year ago was 21½ inches and last month 21 inches, which with 1.49 inches of rain was equivalent to the a total of 3.59 inches.

Diamond Ring Found At City Incinerator

City Employee Pleads Not Guilty To Theft Of Ring From 'A Person Unknown'

A diamond ring belonging to "a person unknown," found in a garbage heap, and lost again has all led to the arrest of William Joslin, Douro, an employee at the city incinerator plant, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of theft of the ring when he appeared Tuesday before Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court.

Both Magistrate Philp and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry agreed that the case was an unusual one. The accused—a young man—gave no evidence on his own behalf and asked only one minor question of one of the crown's four witnesses.

According to the testimony of Thomas Medland, a fellow worker of the accused, it all started January 17, when the accused found a diamond ring among the rubbish being processed at the incinerator. Medland related how he had accompanied the accused to two city jewellers to have it appraised for its value, and, if possible, sold.

The trip had not been successfully concluded with a sale. During the selling jaunt, he said, the accused had kept the ring in his pocket, not worn it.

On the following Monday, January 19, Joslin had left the work to go to Toronto.

Benjamin Abramsky, 482 Gordon Avenue, and Frank P. Gishman, 680 Reid Street, who had been approached by the accused with the ring for the evaluation and purchase, gave their estimates of the value at $200 and $180 respectively. It is a natural gold engagement ring with one diamond, they said.

Witness Gishman added that the accused had requested him to advise anyone reporting a loss of a ring to contact the accused. The witness also stated that Joslin had offered to sell him the ring for $65, after being told that it was probably worth $180.

Both men said that Joslin had told them the facts about the way in which the ring had come into his possession—that he had found it in garbage. Both stated that they had refused to buy the ring and had advised the accused to report the matter to the police or advertise for the owner.

Roy J. Thompson, superintendent of the city sanitation department, related that on January 19 the accused had asked for some advance pay money, as he had to go to Toronto "where he said his father was very sick." This is not the custom of the city, witness said, and the accused had been paid his wages due to that time. (In the only statement made by the accused later, and not under oath, he said that he had not made the Toronto trip because of illness of his father, "but it was the only way I could think of to get money.")

Before Joslin's return, Mr. Thompson continued, he had learned of the finding of the ring, and when Joslin came back, he had questioned him. The accused told him that the ring had been lost. Joslin told Thompson that he had not taken the ring to Toronto, but that it had become mislaid somewhere in Peterborough.

Magistrate Philp reserved judgment on the case until February 7.

Damage Of $125

The car of Norman G. Hunter, 1209 Simcoe St., Oshawa, received damages of about $75 when it was struck by that of William Gray, Lindsay, about 1.30 this morning. Hunter will be charged with failing to stop at the sign at Reid and McDonnel streets, where the accident took place. According to the report of PC V. A. McConnel, Hunter had been travelling west on McDonnel and crossing Reid, without stopping, when the other car struck him. Damages to the Gray vehicle are estimated at $50.

Elusive Bargains In London Can Be Found At Leather Lane

By SHAUN McQUILLAN

LONDON, Feb. 4—(CP).—For those looking for the elusive bargain in post-war austerity, London's leather lane market, which closely resembles an Eastern bazaar, bears the best fruit. Situated off Holborn Viaduct, 10 minutes' bus ride from the swanky West End, vendors in this snug but shabby lane sell anything from a piece of fish or an old song-hit to pocket-size aerials for a shilling or two. Nearby, in Hatton Garden, diamond merchants hunch over deals in small fortunes.

"Let me show yer 'how ter save yer clothes and coupons wiv a new meffod of patchin' 'oles and tears," shouts a street-trader, waving a packet in the air. Another, who urges you to "'ave a go" at his novel lucky dip, culls many half crowns (50 cents) from the pockets of those who don't believe the quickness of the hand deceives the eye.

Techniques Varied

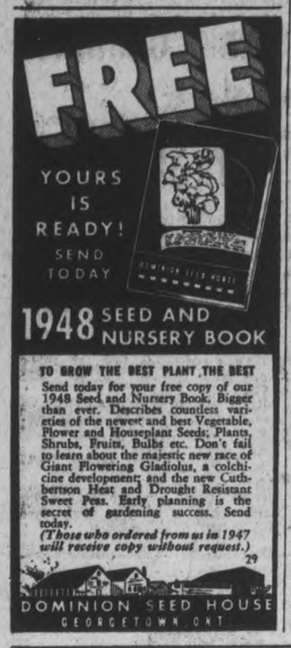
To some of the traders business depends largely on eloquence, and techniques are many and varied. There is the sentorian-voiced Cockney, surrounded by a lunch-time crowd, who tells you in no uncertain terms why such-and-such a horse will win tomorrow's 2.30—filling a new pauses with animated diagrams in the middle of the road.

If you are impressed you pay a "small fee" for an envelope containing the names of "cert" winners for the next week or so.

Then there is the perky little chatterer sitting on the curb who tells you the economy of a new-type potato-peeler will pay for itself in a week. He doesn't mind if you don't buy his ware because "I can sell 'em a 'undred times over," and follows his up with an offer of "me special reduced price of a bob." (20 cents).

Audiences dwindle rapidly when a card trickster passes his hat around after a slick demonstration, as does the group of sceptical watchers of a former merchant seaman who tears up telephone books and whose stomach withstands all attempts of four husky men to squeeze it in a tug-o'-war.

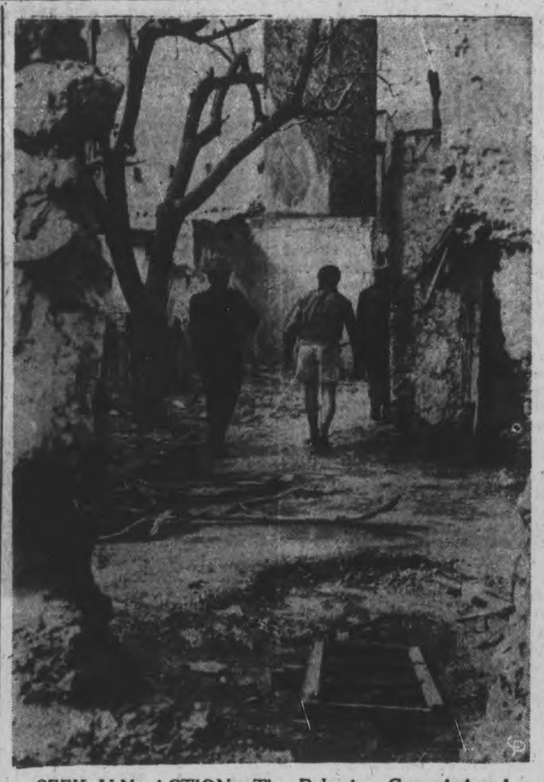
Spivs Too.



Standing in doorways and lounging outside cafes; furtively looking about them and talking in undertones; passing things shiftily from hand to hand then sidling away into side-alleys again are the "spivs" and black marketeers. Some are well-dressed; others look little better than hoboes.

Most of the trading, however, is orthodox. The fruit, fish, drug, flower, hardware and chinaware stalls far outnumber the buskers and something-for-nothing boys.

To those who amble daily through the market, Leather Lane is just the place for the odd watch component long out of date, a tasty lobster, fresh flowers, an obscure second-hand book, your future from the stars—and a fascinating hour.



The similarity to an Eastern bazaar is offset only by the complete absence of price haggling. You either buy at the dealer's figure or you don't buy.

Some strollers just stand, others stand and buy, and the majority stand and look.

SEEK U.N. ACTION—The Palestine Commission have appealed to the United Nations Security Council at Lake Success, N.Y., for quick action to avert impending catastrophe in the Holy Land. Meanwhile, there are reports in Jerusalem that the Irgun Zvai Leumi, extremist group of the Zionist underground, is preparing for an offensive beyond borders of the proposed Jewish state in Palestine. There are rumors that Irgun hopes to co-ordinate with Hagannah, Jewish defence army.

Senators' Dignity Injured By Quip

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 — (CP). — Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader in the Senate, suggested last night that a couple of talkative colleagues "hire a hall" and promptly found himself in hot water.

His statement was prompted by an exchange between Senators Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) and Thomas Vien (L—Quebec) who saw them up on their feet several times after each had delivered a speech on immigration.

Senator Haig suggested that if they wanted to have a personal debate they hire a hall.

Senator Vien protested that such comment was "unbecoming and unwarranted."

Senator Haig grinned.

No Sign Of Plane

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 4 (AP)—Searchers reported finding no trace yesterday of a British plane missing since Friday with 29 aboard. A faint hope that there were survivors was raised earlier in the day when a search plane spotted a liferaft in the Atlantic 275 miles northwest of Bermuda.

HID SEAL FROM NAZIS — Wearing on his arm the tattooed seal of the USA, which he managed to keep hidden from his Nazi masters, Johannes Koch is shown as he returned to the US just 10 years after he sailed away with his American wife and son on what he thought would be a brief visit to his native Germany. After arriving in Hamburg in 1938, Koch, who had taken out his first US citizenship papers, was told by the Nazis that he could not leave the country. He was put to work in a shipyard and later forced to serve in the German army, surrendering to the British in the capture of Hamburg.

Threatens Foes of Seaway

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP).—Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep.-Wis.) angrily threatened reprisals yesterday against Senate foes of St. Lawrence seaway legislation.

Demanding that they "show a little reciprocity," he shouted on the Senate floor:

"Otherwise, you'll have a fight on appropriations for your inland waterways until hell freezes over."

Wiley's blunt warning came after Senator John McClellan (Dem.-Ark.), attacked the legislation on the ground that it should have been submitted as a treaty, not as a bill. Passage of a treaty requires a two-thirds majority of the Senate.

The legislation would authorize a deep-water channel from the Atlantic to the Great Lakes, and a big hydro-electric plant on the St. Lawrence. Canada would share in the project.

The proposal, in treaty form, was submitted to the Senate in 1934. It received a majority but not the two-thirds required.

Senator Alben Barkley (Dem.-Ky.) said the undertaking would be "economically wise."

"I cannot," he added "accept the argument that (it) will be injurious to other means of transporation—any more than was the building of the Panama Canal."

For Bad Winter Coughs, Mix This Syrup at Home

This well known recipe is used by many thousands of housewives, because they have found that it gives them an effective, dependable medicine for distressing winter coughs. It's so easy to mix—anyone can do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for effect on throat irritations.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all and takes but a moment. No cooking needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey instead of sugar syrup.)

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle and fill up with your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough syrup, unusually quick-acting and dependable, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, satisfying relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

Pinex Saves You Money. Fast Relief. Easily Mixed.

Abbott Makes Statement About De Palma

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 — (CP). — Finance Minister Abbott in the Commons yesterday made a statement on the status of $50,000 bail put up by Albert Edward de Palma, Toronto promoter, wanted in New York on charges of violating United States Security Exchange Commission regulations.

"I have made inquiries and I find that the circumstances in this case so far as the Foreign Exchange Control Board was concernd, are as follows:

"Following De Palma's arrest in the United Stats, United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company, Toronto—which is a branch of an American company of the same name—advised us that De Palma had applied to the American company in the United States for a bail bond of $50,000.

"The board agreed to this arrangement on condition that in the event of a claim against United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company under the bail bond there would be no commitment on the part of the board to approve a transfer of the collateral security which might be forfeited by the Canadian branch to the head office of the company in the United States.

"As De Palma now has evidently forfeited his bail, the position would appear to be that the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company will forfeit the Canadian dollar collateral which will become part of the assets of the Canadian branch.

"The amount may not be transferred to the parent company in the United States in United States dollars or otherwise without the board's permission and in accordance with the condition notified to the company. It is not intended to authorize any such transfer.

Want To Raise Deer License Fees To $50

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 4.—(CP).—Boosting of non-resident deer hunting licenses from $25 to $50 was called for by P. K. Ketcheson of Napanee, to the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters here yesterday.

He said United States "pot-shot hunters" had shipped 1,600 deer to American cities through International Falls, Minn., in one week last season.

This venison subsequently turned up in restaurants in Chicago, New York, Detroit and other U.S. cities, he said. The Federation wants to stamp out this attempt to circumvent laws pertaining to sale of game after it crosses the border.

H. V. Sutton, Windsor, was elected president of the Federation. Other officers are: Past president, W. Austin Peters, Kingston; vice-presidents, Harold Franklin, Dunnville; O. B. Harris, Brantford; W. W. Wilson, Kitchener; secretary-treasurer, R. J. Hannam, Hamilton.

Butter Versus Margarine 2-Ring Congress Circus

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—A congressman produced a cow named Rebecca in the House of Representatives today.

And another congressman put on a chef's uniform, seized a long-handled spoon and stirred and stirred some white stuff in a bowl until his face went red and his tie came loose.

In other words, the butter vs. margarine argument broke out all over the place—in a two-ring circus atmosphere.

First, Rep. Edward Mitchell (Rep., Ind.,), the man in the chef's hat, gave a luncheon to put steam into a campaign he and some other members are waging for repeal of various taxes on margarine.

They're especially against the 10-cents-a-pound tax on colored margarine. It's just one more burden on the housewife, Mitchell said, if she has to mix in the coloring matter herself.

And he proceeded to demonstrate how hard it was, before an audience of senators, representatives and women's club delegates.

"Whew," said the congressman. But the bowl of margarine had turned, under his vigorous stirring, from white to butter-yellow.

He held out the stirring spoon invitingly. Miss Muriel Farris of the League of Women Voters nibbled at it.

"Mmmmmmmm," she said

Produces Cow

Then Rep. Reid Murray (Rep., Wis.) produced his cow — on the floor of the House.

Rebecca was a foot-high, two-feet-long plastic cow. Murray called her "the foster mother of the human race."

What this country needs, he declared, is not more margarine but a strong dairy industry—and Wisconsin, he noted, produces one-eighth of all the country's milk.

As for food prices, he said:

"If the housewife really wants to save money, she can use dried whole milk powder and save $25 to $30 a year."

Then Murray passed around glasses of milk made from the powder with water added.

"Mmmm," said a fellow congressman.

Rebecca and the margarine industry were running neck and neck in the home stretch.

Operation Diaper Planned For Married Vets Attending University Of British Columbia

VANCOUVER, Feb. 4 (CP).—"Operation Diaper" lies ahead today for married veterans at the University of British Columbia.

The UBC branch of the Canadian Legion has flung down the gauntlet to all Canadian universities, challenging their Second Great War veterans to a Dominion-wide "beautiful baby" contest.

Wires have gone out from the Campus Legion to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Lady Alexander, Veterans Minister Gregg, C. B. Price, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, Progressive Conservative Leader John Bracken, and CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell, requesting their services as judges in the contest.

The UBC Legion at a meeting yesterday passed a resolution expressing the belief that their members' babies were "not only the most beautiful babies at UBC but also at all the universities in Canada."

"The branch challenges anyone doubting this opinion to submit proof to a national judging committee," the resolution said.

The challenge follows last year's boast that UBC campus belles outshone Western Canada's most beautiful women in open contest. University experts on feminine pulchritude believe the boast made good when Marion Albert of Vancouver captured the Western campus crown.

Explain Business In Easy Terms

By The Canadian Press

Many business men today are stressing the necessity of business telling its story in easily understood terms.

The Investment Dealers' Association of Canada is starting a correspondence course for staffs of member firms as part of an educational program designed to explain the investment industry to the public. The Association also urges that firms should tell their story, not only to shareholders, but to employees and the people of the communities in which their plants are located.

J. Gerald Godsoe, executive vice-president of the British American Oil Co., Ltd., in an address last night to the young men's section of the Toronto Board of Trade, stated:

"Annual reports and financial statements should be simplified. The archaic phraseology and terms of the past should be thrust overboard or expanded to the form of every-day, commonly-understood language."

Instead of terms like assets liabilities, surplus, reserve, depreciation, he suggested, for general information, such language as:

"What we own"; assets which can be quickly turned into cash to provide funds for wages, salaries, materials and supplies"; "money borrowed by mortgaging our assets and future earnings to expand our business and create additional jobs."

Earl Of Derby Dies Suddenly

PRESCOT, Lancs., England, Feb. 4 — (CP). — The Earl of Derby, 82, bluff, Lancashire peer who was a friend of the royal family and one of Britain's leading racehorse owners, died today from heart failure following a bronchial cold.

Son of a former Governor-General of Canada, he took an active role in public life until 1944, holding cabinet offices as postmaster-general and war secretary before the First World War, directing recruiting during the conflict and serving as ambassador to France from 1918 to 1920.

But it was as a three-time winner of the Derby that his countrymen knew him best. He had noted successes in other classic races and his winnings amounted to about £845,000 (about $3,380,000).

His heir is his grandson, a Grenadier Guards officer born in 1918. Lord Derby's eldest son, Lord Stanley, who was dominion's secretary, died in 1938 at the age of 44. The younger son is Col. Coliver Stanley, holder of many Conservative cabinet posts.

Seek Missing Man For $60,000 Estate

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 5.—Herbert Alexander Ross, who disappeared into eastern Canada many years ago, or his children, are being sought to claim a $60,000 estate of which they never heard but are legal heirs.

This became known here today when Walter C. Cox, probate genealogist, 208 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, who specializes in tracing missing relatives to settle estates, took over the hunt with only scant clues on which to proceed.

"Ross, born in 1884, and who therefore would be 64 if still living, is believed to have settled in Canada somewhere between the east coast and including Ontario province," Mr. Cox said.

"Should it develop that Ross is deceased, then his children would succeed to claim, if they can be located. If he did not marry, and died without descendants, then other relatives may inherit the money, beginning with his brothers or sisters or their descendants."

Use and Beauty Combined In Gothic Architecture P. D. Scollard Tells CWL

"In the construction of the Gothic cathedrals, use and beauty were combined, a building meant for use only was considered hideous. The workmen of that age strove for beauty, and, in consequence, loved their work. Many a worker of today, chained to the monotony of the assembly line, despises the labor by which he earns his daily bread."

Mr. P. D. Scollard, president of the Lions Club, speaking on Tuesday evening at a largely attended meeting of St. Peter's subdivision of the Catholic Women's League, held in St. Mary's School, based an informative and extremely interesting address on the glories and achievements of the 13th century.

Outlining the history of what has been termed earth's greatest hundred years, Mr. Scollard referred to the splendid schools of a time when the attendance at Oxford University alone was larger in proportion to the population than throughout the whole of Ontario today. He spoke of the great guilds in arts and crafts and of the magnificent cathedrals built then in England, in which "even the hinges were works of art." These churches were the "stone books" of the illiterate, where scriptural happenings and events in our Lord's life were depicted with faithful detail.

St. Thomas Aquinas, who first promulgated the theory that matter is indestructible, declaring "there is nothing at all that can be reduced to nothingness," lived in that age. Contemporaries were Roger Bacon, who prophesied a time "when carriages will be made that, without the aid of any animal, will run with remarkable speed." Dante, Giotto, St. Francis of Assisi, St. Dominic, St. Bonaventure and men of science, Volta, Galvani and Ampere, followers of the mighty Saint Francis, "proud to wear his shroud at their death."

Great women of that potent century included St. Clare, follower of M. Francis and organizer of the "Poor Clares," vowed to abject poverty and good works; St. Elizabeth of Hungary, the world's first settlement worker; Blanche of Castile, mother of St. Louis, who declared that she "would rather see her son dead at her feet than know he had committed an offence against God and his neighbor."

An expression of appreciation of Mr. Scollard's thought-provoking address was voiced by the president, Miss May Grady, and supported by the third vice-president, Mrs. P. J. Cadigan.

During the routine business session of the league, it was decided to hold a St. Patrick's tea on March 17 at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. F. P. McNulty, to be convened by Miss Lillian Hurley.

Junior League Packs Clothing

February meeting of Catholic Junior League was held Monday evening in St. Mary's Convent with the president, Miss Gladys Perdue, in the chair.

Miss Thelma Lucas, corresponding secretary, read letters of thanks for Christmas baskets and a letter from the Diocesan convener in connection with National scholarships.

Mrs. R. Hull 3rd vice president gave a detailed report of the contests, delivery, and cost of the Christmas baskets and thanked all who helped in this work, especially Mrs. D. McKenna for arranging and packing and Miss Margery McNulty for delivery of the baskets.

Two large cartons of new and used children's clothing were collected to be sent to Britt, Ontario. Ten suits of warm underclothing were sent in January.

In the absence of Miss Louise Hickey, Miss Margery McNulty reported that the sick and visiting committee had visited St. Joseph's Hospital and the House of Providence and distributed magazines and chocolate bars to patients who had no friends or relatives in the city. A motion was made that $2. per month be appropriated for the purchase of candy and fruit, and magazines that had been read, would be donated from the home of the visiting member.

Miss Barbara Hickey in the absence of Mrs. J. Dunn of the Citizen's committee reported that they had attended a meeting of the Film Council at the Public Library and submitted a list of films available to the program committee.

Final plans for the Bingo to be held on February 9 in the Brock Street Summer Gardens have been made and members are urged to make their returns of ticket money to their respective committee head by February 8.

Miss Barbara Rose delighted the members with her recitation of "Kid Stuff" and "Benny".

Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Lynch and her committee.

Mrs. H. J. Parnell Addresses WA

Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors, February meeting of George St. WA was conducted by Mrs. E. Wand, president. Mrs. H. J. Parnell, a member of the Salvation Army, was guest speaker. Her subject was "A Happy New Year" and she spoke on the five different roads which are mentioned in the New Testament. 1, the road to Damascus, which she explained is the road to spiritual awakening; 2, road of the Good Samaritan, which means service and opportunity; 3, road to Jerusalem, meaning we should walk with courage; 4, road to Calvary, symbolizing love and sacrifice; 5, road to Amas, meaning friendship. "All five roads lead to one centre which leads to heaven," she said, and concluded with a wish for every happiness and success in the new year.

Mrs. Ralph Braund, guest soloist, contributed "Hold Thou My Hand." She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Murray Thomas.

Appreciation to the guests was expressed by Mrs. L. M. Richardson.

Miss J. Schaeffer's group took charge of the devotional period. Scripture was read by Mrs. C. Hurl and Mrs. E. Rosborough led in prayer.

Mrs. W. K. McGee gave a report of a visit to the Film Board and outlined the films of interest which are available for programs.

During the business meeting which followed, the president asked all who could to attend the Health Week banquet at Kawartha Club Wednesday night, where Dr. Bates is the guest speaker.

Auxiliary Aids Clothing Drive

February meeting of Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox United church was held in the church parlors Monday evening with an attendance of 19 members and one visitor.

Mrs. J. Donaldson presided for the opening exercises. Roll call was answered with favorite hymns to be used throughout the year. Mrs. C. Ross gave a talk on Temperance using a quiz on alcohol. It was decided to take part in the clothing drive through the church effort.

Very interesting reports of the Peterborough Presbyetrial held in Mark St. church were brought by Mrs. E. McIlwraith for the morning and afternoon sessions and by Mrs. S. Frey for the evening session.

Mrs. J. Donaldson read a poem entitled "Gandhi" by Mr. Wilson MacDonald. Fourth chapter of the study book was taken by Miss P. Kidd assisted by Mrs. D. Menzies.

Worship service was in charge of Mrs. A. Pitchford assisted by Mrs. R. Bowen and Mrs. G. Morrison. Mrs. Pitchford gave a short talk on the appreciation of the Bible. The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. R. Bowen.

A short social time followed with Mrs. J. Donaldson conducting a quiz.

Of Interest to Women

Women of Eire Create Patent National Body

By MICHAEL O'MARA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DUBLIN, Feb. 4 (CP). — The Women's National Council of Action has held its first meeting here and some feminists think the organization may prove "the strongest weapon the women of Ireland ever had."

Three hundred delegates attended the session, representing total estimated membership of 300,000 members of "all organized women' societies" in Eire.

The "women's parliament" is, its sponsors say, a non-political, non-sectarian body organized for the purpose of "co-ordinating the efforts of all Irish women and women's organizations in the face of steadily worsening social and economic conditions to defend the interests of the producer and consumer, and to work for better social and economic conditions for the community as a whole."

At its December sitting the parliament issued a statement warning the government that Eire's present harvest might prove inadequate to the country's needs and demanded that prices tribunal be established to keep down mounting cost to the housewife of scarce commodities.

In appealed to the government to stop exporting food and to restrict the influx of tourists in order keep prices down and foodstocks up. Rationing of milk, meat, eggs and potatoes was also suggested.

Emergency Measures

These were other "emergency measures" suggested in the food crisis:

1. Establishment of municipal restaurants where simple meals at "reasonable prices" would be served.
2. Provision of hot mid-day meals for all school children.
3. Establishment of producer-consumer markets in every city and town.
4. Prohibition of all luxury imports—automobiles, wines and the like—with priority instead given to importation of fertilizers and agricultural machinery.
5. Introduction of "utility" clothing, footwear, furniture and household requirements, with strict price control based on cost and a fixed margin of profit.

The delegates also called upon the government to provide subsidies to the Eire farmer for his 1948 harvest, designed to cut retail prices by 30 per cent.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

OVERLY DEVOTED WIFE, MOTHER
Woman Makes Mistake In Giving Up Life Outside Home Environment

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a sister who is married to a fine man. She has a beautiful home and two lovely children. She devotes her entire time to her family. Goes nowhere. Has no friends. And she claims that the ideal mother should have no interests outside of her home, that her husband and children should fill her life completely. Don't you think she is wrong about this?

Dorothy Dix SISTER

ANSWER: Yes. I think your sister will find out to her sorrow when her children grow up and leave her. She will be a lucky woman if she even has her husband left to her in her empty house, for there is nothing that drives a man out of a home as quickly and surely as having a wife who has grown dull from staying in it too much.

There may have been a time when husbands and children were satisfied with a wife and mother who was nothing but a wife and mother, but that time is past. A wife and mother has to be a pal and comrade and able to go all the gaits to satisfy the modern demand of a family.

Stay-At-Home Does Family Injustice

Futhermore, the woman who stays put in her own house and has no social contacts does her husband and children a great injustice because she does not make for them a place in the sun they have a right to expect her to make. A popular wife is one of the best business assets a man can have. And a mother who has kept her friends and her place in society can open the right doors for her children when they are grown.

The woman who counts it unto herself for righteousness because she has narrowed her interests down to the four walls of her home, and who boasts that she never goes anywhere and has given up all of her old friends, makes a fatal mistake. The wise wife is the one who lives as full and broad a life as she can.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: How much should a married girl tell her mother about her husband?

ELIZABETH H.

ANSWER: I think a wife is guilty of a great disloyalty to her husband when she tells her mother of her husband's little faults and weaknesses, or any of his personal peculiarities that she discovers in the intimacy of married life. These should be sacred to her, and if she really loves her husband she will view these with a tender forgiveness just because they are his.

A wife should give her husband a square deal and treat him as she would like to be treated. She knows very well it would make her furious if her husband displains that her husband never confides in her, has only herself to blame. She blabbed everything he told her to Mother and Mother broadcast it to her friends.

The only time that a married girl should talk freely to her mother about her husband is when she is singing his praises about how good and kind he is, how happy she is and how much she loves him.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have been married three years. My husband and I love each other dearly and we get along beautifully except on one point—amusements. I am gay and I love parties, movies and a good time. He is quiet and likes to stay at home all the time. Which of us is right?

DISCONTENTED

ANSWER: Neither. And both. It is equally bad for a young couple to run around too much, or to stay at home too much. Every married couple need outside society; they need friends and amusements, but they should take them in broken doses.

The wife should remember that her husband works hard all day; that he comes home mentally and physically worn out, and that the peace and quiet of his own fireside is the thing he craves most in the world. The husband should remember that just being married to him isn't a perpetual picnic for his wife. She needs something else. Something outside the home. Something amusing, diverting and that she can look forward to.

Why not strike a compromise on the amusement question? Why not make a bargain with your husband that you will stay at home with him for six nights a week, if on the seventh he will take you out stepping? If you can hit upon this plan, I think you both will be happier. Try it.

Mrs. L. Quackenbush Regent Of Lakefield IODE Chapter

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 4 (ENS). — The annual meeting and election of officers of the Catherine Parr Trail Chapter IODE was held at the Curry home Monday evening Mrs. A. W. Turner, Regent of the Municipal Chapter IODE, presided for the election of officers as follows:

Regent, Mrs. L. Quackenbush; first vice-regent, Mrs. W. J. Charlton; second vice-regent, Mrs. C. Robertson; secretary Mrs. A. Buchanan; treasurer, Mrs. J. McKerchar; educational secretary Mrs. T. Chaplin; Echoes secretary, Mrs. J. Arnott; standard-bearer, Mrs. E. Orr; councillors, Mrs. W. W. Leonard, Mrs. J. Huddart, Mrs. P. Darling, Mrs. W. O'Brien, Mrs. E. Anderson, Mrs. B. D. Weaver, Mrs. C. Hunter.

Mrs. W. J. Charlton gave a brief resume of the year's work. There are 41 members, with the attendance averaging 17. Two scholarships were donated during the year, $50 to the High School and $25 to the Public. Money was also set aside for the purchase of curtains for the Town Hall when it is renovated.

Mrs. W. Lee gave the treasurer's report which showed balance of $559 in both accounts.

Mrs. W. O'Brien announced a tea and bake sale will be held by the Junior Chapter at the Curry home on February 14. Mrs. Quackenbush reported the Chapter had a successful year. It was decided to hold a combined hard times barn dance and box social in the near future.

Mrs. Turner in a brief address asked on behalf of the executive that the members give them all the loyalty possible, and if they had any criticism to make, make it at the meeting. The big object of the Order is to assist with education. Thirty-five per cent of money raised during the year should be spent on education, 15 per cent should be spent in assisting families requiring assistance. Thoughtfulness should be the keynote of the IODE. Suggestions were also made for making life more enjoyable for the elderly people.

Lunch was served.

St. Andrew's WMS Meets

HASTINGS, Feb. 4 (ENS). — Mrs. Reta Johnston was hostess to St. Andrew's WMS for the monthly meeting. Opening devotions were in charge of the president and Mrs. S. W. Fife read the Scripture. Mrs. J. C. Taylor presented the month's topic "The Great Commission."

THE STARS SAY....

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, February 5

An exceptionally important and possibly thrilling day is likely, in which dubious, complicated and dramatic events or ventures gain by patient, persistent, shrewd and far-seeing vision, in which well-organized plans and procedures may negative certain difficult and critical situations. While ambitions are high and the impetus to go far is quickened, yet unforeseen entanglements or distintegration must be reckoned with and met astutely. These may involve personal relations, in which all manner of domestic, sentimental or even romantic interests have reaction on practical plans and business affairs complicating and confounding. A strict and practical course may win out.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may pull difficult situations from dubious, thwarting and upsetting complications by a strict attention to the more matter-of-fact and enduring objectives, drawn from rigid and demanding constructive programs by the lure of exceptional factors or events, in which personal, sentimental or domestic affiliations may have power to undermine or disrupt long-term values. A sudden event, a dramatic gesture, or strange intervention might lure from "straight and narrow" considerations for a sudden and unpredictable journey into fresh fields or by paths of high adventure or romance, with dire reaction on funds and more urgent objectives. The choice may be difficult and disconcerting.

A child born on this day may possess a rich endowment of skills, qualities and inclinations ever working dramatically "at sixes and sevens."

Boy 13 Shot Boarder To Save Mother

HALIFAX, Feb. 4.—(CP). — Johnny Saccary, 13-year-old son of the woman charged with murder of Philip Douglas Shiers, 33, told a packed, tense court room yesterday that he had fired the shot from four feet away that dropped the army veteran in the snow outside his mother's cottage at nearby Enfield Dec. 27.

At previous sessions of the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Kathleen Saccary, four witnesses had testified that the 34-year-old widowed mother of five children had admitted that he shot Shiers, a boarder in her home. Shiers died in hospital after being struck in the back by a blast from a 20-gauge shotgun.

On the witness stand, the boy said Shiers was advancing toward his mother with the armature of an automobile generator raised above his head in a threatening gesture.

"Were you scared?" asked defence counsel Leonard Fraser.

"I was afraid my mother would be killed," Johnny said.

The boy was not held by police and the Crown had no comment on what the next move in the case might be. The hearing will resume Thursday.

Johnny described how he had run past his mother and Shiers into the house, got the gun, put a shell in it, went outside again and "when I saw Shiers going after my mother I shot him."

SOMETIMES THE MATADOR LOSES —Most bullfights are one-sided affairs, differing only in the technique of the matador as he flirts with the horns of the bull while fooling the animal into venting its rage upon the capa (cape), behind which the man does his fancy evasive footwork. But occasionally, as in this case, the bull refuses to be fooled. And that is just too bad for the matador. The matador in the above series of photos, made in the bullring at Mexico City, is Antonio Velazques. The first picture, top left, was made at the instant that the bull, having hit the cape, swung head and cape into the body of the matador. Lower left, Velazques goes down, shows flying in the air, and the bull blinded by the enveloping cape, stands over him. Top right, the matador is out like a snuffed candle, and the bull has fun tossing the cape. Meanwhile, members of the matador's entourage have rushed into the ring to distract the attention of the animal from the fallen man. Lower right, Velazques is carried from the ring.

Organization Of Peace Campaign Launched By Canadian WCTU

Organization of a peace campaign among the international groups, organizations, and religious communities was launched by widely scattered Women's Christian Temperance Union branches at the beginning of the year. The Canadian body with Mrs. E. Wand, Peterborough, as superintendent of the Peace and International Relations Committee has lent its active support.

With advisory literature from United Nations headquarters in Ottawa available, the Canadian WCTU has started to contact the other national branches of their world-wide organization to arouse public opinion to force the governments to "demand peace, international jurisdiction, the recognition of equal rights of all people to independence and freedom, immediate measures to be taken banning total war, and ultimately to abolish war altogether."

Heard From Sweden.

Already the Canadian branch has heard from the Swedish campaign committee, WCTU, and correspondence emphasizing the value of co-operation has been exchanged.

In her letter to the Canadian committee the Swedish chairman, Mrs. Vera Robert-Akesson further explained the purpose of the campaign: "...it is meant to bring about a rising of the people all over the world to protect life on earth, civilization and humanity. It is natural that such a movement cannot take up the difficult international problems of to-day, but it will show the only sure way of solving them—not through war but through treaties. It will assert that war never solves the problems but only creates new and worse troubles ... join the action of peace without taking consideration to what may disjoin and disunite. Only through united action can we hope to gain our aim."

The Canadian branch under its president Mrs. John H. Wickson, Toronto, has started to organize on a national, provincial and local basis.

Makes Progress Toward Recovery But Europe Still Needs Help

GENEVA, Feb. 4—(AP).—Most economic experts here believe Europe is making great strides toward industrial and economic recovery. But, they add, she still desperately needs help. Delegates and officials of the United Nations' Economic Commission for Europe are optimistic about the commission's success in planning European self-help across all political differences. They cannot estimate, however, how long it will take the continent to overcome the ravages of the war.

A general reluctance to forecast the rate of progress appeared due, in part at least, to uncertainty over many vital factors. These include future harvests, possible industrial unrest and the extent of American aid.

Under the Marshall Plan, as enunciated by the United States Secretary of State, the European countries are required to do what they can on their own and together to put Europe on its economic feet. The commission's planning, however, is distinct from the Marshall Plan.

A full analysis of Europe's present economic position and prospects now is being prepared by the Economic Commission's research division, headed by British economists. The report is expected to be ready for publication early next month.

Nicolas Kaldor is maintaining close secrecy about the conclusions of his survey. They are being drawn from data supplied by nearly every European country, including members of the commission.

Sweden's Professor Gunnar Myrdal, the commission's executive secretary, declines specific comment on the status of Europe's economic recovery pending publication of the survey.

He has, however, referred frequently to 'considerable progress' made during the last year both in actual production and in self-help measures.

One senior member of the commission's secretariat said that even if European production developed to a point above the highest pre-war level, Europe still would be in desperate need.

Although most delegates and members of the secretariat share the general optimism they all agree Europe still is far from self-sufficient in food and essential raw materials. And due to the present shortage of hard currency she cannot carry on without outside help.

Two Ohio Newspapers Fight To Get Radio

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—(AP).—Two Ohio newspapers contended today the Federal Communications Commission exceeded its authority in rejecting their applications for radio stations. They asked for reconsideration.

The applicants are Mansfield Journal Company and Lorain Journal Company. They objected specifically to a tentative commission finding that if these papers obtained radio licenses in their respective communities, "competition in the dissemination of news and information would be suppressed, and pressure would be exerted on advertisers to enter into exclusive advertising contracts."

Asserting that such a finding is not supported by the evidence taken in public hearings, and that it is "damaging to the good reputation of the applicants."

Can Retain School

OTTAWA, Feb. 4—(CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada ruled unanimously yesterday that the Central Jewish Institute of Toronto may retain its Avenue Road premises as a school or nursery despite a municipal bylaw, an Ontario Supreme Court judge's ruling, and judgment of the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Sign Wage Agreement

TORONTO, Feb. 4 — (CP) — Wage increases averaging 10 cents an hour to the 1,300 employees of Monarch Knitting Company's five plants, highlighted the first master agreement to be signed between the company and Textile Workers of America (CIO-CCL). Agreement terms were announced last night by Robert L. Markon, executive assistant of the company, and Sam Baron, Canadian director of the union. The contract established a schedule common to the Toronto, St. Catharines, St. Thomas and Dunnville plants.

McGregor, OBE, DFC, has been appointed president of Trans-Canada Air Lines, it was announced recently following meetings of the board of directors of the Canadian National Railways and the TCA. He succeeds H. J. Symington, CMG, KC, who relinquished the post last November. Mr. McGregor, the first combat flier of World War Two to become president of an air line, was also made a member of the board of directors of TCA, succeeding J. A. Wilson, CBE, who has retired.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

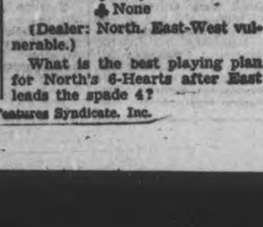
HOLD-UP IS REPEATABLE

THERE are two main purposes for which the hold-up play is used. One is to produce late-enough communication between the two hands of your own side. The other is to cut off late communication between the two hands of your opponents. On some deals it is advisable to use repeated holdups in two or more suits, with the idea of thus taking a number of late tricks which would outnumber the earlier tricks you might take.

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT

Edward N. Marcus, Boston's top tournament competitor, in the West, drew Lee Hazen, most brilliant bridge player among New York lawyers, on this deal in the individual masters' championship. It was a good thing for each he had the other for a partner, as a fine score resulted for them.



When the diamond K was led, and Mr. Hazen saw that dummy, he realized that setting the contract at all would probably be a good score. He played the 9 on the lead. The J was won by South's A, then the heart J sent through, Mr. Hazen playing the 2. When the heart 3 was returned, he put on the 8 to hold his A, the Q falling to the K. The spade A now won and the 6 was led, Mr. Hazen playing low again and letting the J win.

South now decided that an even break of spades was a better try than the club finesse, so he led the spade 5. When West discarded a club, he put in the 8, the 10 winning and being followed by the K to kill the Q. Now East took the heart A and led the diamond 10, the Q, 6 and 3 taking three tricks to set the contract, after which South got the last trick with the club A.

The defenders' hold-up plays are what really put the blocks to South.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

What is the best playing plan for North's 6-Hearts after East leads the spade 4?

Girl 14 Awarded Guide Gilt Cross

TORONTO, Feb. 4 (CP)—Fourteen-year-old patrol leader Betty May Val Alpen of Esquimalt, B.C., has been awarded the Gilt Cross by the Dominion executive of the Canadian Girl Guides, it was announced today.

Betty was in a rowboat last May 11 when she noticed that four-year-old Garry Fanthorpe had fallen into the water and over his depth after cutting his foot. She jumped into the water and rescued the boy.

Harold Robson

Orderly Room Sergeant, remaining with the unit through its period of early training in British Columbia. Although he had been accepted for orderly room duty, Mr. Robson had ultimately to retire from the unit as its work became more active and rigorous, and medical requirements extended to his category of service.

Mr. Robson joined the purser's staff as junior officer of the "Princess Alice" in the merchant service on the Pacific Coast, but eventually had to abandon that work. He went into radio, assisted by his newswriting experience, and joined the staf of CBC in Winnipeg, later coming east to their Toronto station. Illness forced him finally to give up that connection and after an extended period of rest he went to the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests for a time, his last employment.

Mr. Robson was with The Examiner ten years interrupted by one of his two absences on return visits to his home in England. His father, a chemist, died 18 months ago; his mother died at his birth. Mr. Robson is survived by his wife and his twin sister, Miss May Robson, who came to Toronto to be with him when his illness took a more serious turn after Christmas. He also leaves an uncle in New York city. Mr. Robson was a member of the Anglican Church.

The body is being brought to Peterborough on Thursday and will rest at the Belleghem Funeral Home, Hunter St., from where the funeral will be held. Funeral announcement later.

Senate Group

very small percentage" for a country such as Canada to take in 2½ years of peace.

Senator Roebuck said that the system of bringing in D.P.S. for pre-arranged jobs had been a "complete success" and cited the experiment in bringing in 4,500 Polish veterans for farm work.

Senator Vien did not think that Senator Roebuck put enough stress on Canada's own problems of rehabilitation and demobilization. Other countries had founded on a policy of non-selective immigration. He noted that some immigrants, even under the present tight laws, had had to be sent back and declared that precautionary measures would avoid future regret.

Cheque Bounces Youth 20 Faces Charge

Feature of the hearing against 20-year-old George Douglas, 330 Water street, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, was the evidence of the younger brother of the accused, Walter Douglas, 19. The charge is in connection with the alleged passing of a cheque for $8.50 which "bounced" when presented by the Park street druggist who had cashed it.

All evidence was heard this morning. Douglas, who has pleaded not guilty, was remanded for judgment until Feb. 6.

Richard Jones, assistant accountant at the Bank of Montreal here, testified that the account could not be traced at the Cooksville branch on which the cheque had been drawn. It had been signed "George Green."

The brother, Walter, stated that his brother had tried to cash the cheque in a beverage room and had asked the witness to try to cash it for him, after the beverage room employees would not do it. He had finally been successful in cashing the cheque at the McLeod Drug Store, Park street, he said, and had turned the money over to his brother later that night. He said that George had told him at that time that the cheque was "bad."

On receiving this information, the witness said he had notified police. A few days later, when his brother gave him another cheque signed with the same name, he had turned it over to the police. This second cheque was entered as an exhibit with the first.

In cross - examination, the accused questioned his brother at some length on his own past record, which included a reform term at Bowmanville and other similar occurences. However, when the accused remarked to the magistrate that "he seems to have quite a record himself," Magistrate Philp interrupted him and told him: "Don't make speeches to me."

George Foster and Don Chambo, youths who were with the brothers in the beverage room at the time of the first appearance of the cheque, substantiated Walter Douglas' story of that event.

William Clarke, acting detective, recounted his actions in taking the accused into custody. He had found a chequebook of the Cooksville bank on Douglas' person, he said, and during a later search, also found a second partly-used chequebook which the accused was attempting to conceal in his hand.

Giving his own evidence, the accused said that, while he was working in Cooksville shortly before Christmas last year, he had met a man at Port Hope whose name he later learned to be George Green. Douglas said that he had sold a small radio to Green, settling the price at $29. "Green" had paid him $2 at that time, $5 later and taken the radio with him. When he decided to return to Peterborough, the witness said he had contacted Green and asked him to send the balance to him by mail. The cheque in question and the second cheque—which was for $10.38 had been received by mail early in January, he said.

The accused argued that he had received and cashed the cheque in good faith that it was genuine and added:

"I lost a good radio, too."

A second charge against Douglast, one of vagrancy, was also remanded until Feb. 6 when judgment will be given.

Expect 100,000 At Old Home Week

LINDSAY, Feb. 4 — (ENS).—"There are a number of former Lindsay residents now living in Peterborough who are trying to organize themselves to help advertise the Lindsay and Victoria County Old Home Week," Reeve H. H. McFadden told members of the Old Home Week committee at a meeting Tuesday night. Speaking of the matter of advertising the event, Mr. McFadden said he believed that former residents in many other centres would rally to help spread the word. Several at the meeting felt that an immediate advertising campaign was needed to ensure the success of the celebration on July 1 to 10. Committee chairman D. McQuarrie sugested there might be some way former Lindsay people in Peterborough could be included in the plans for advertising Old Home Week here. He said about 100,000 people are expected in Lindsay for the celebrations.

NOTHING UNUSUAL

The Ontario Attorney-General's Department said yesterday that imposition of a fine, rather than a prison term, is not unusual in a case of dangerous driving resulting in a fatal accident. The department was commenting on the fact that Leland McCracken of Haliburton was fined $50 and costs at Lindsay Monday on dangerous driving charges arising from a highway accident in which Ray Sholler was fatally injured.

Hockey Team Home Without Playing Game

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 4 (Reuters)—A hockey team sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, which has been here 21 days without having played a single game, will return to the United States tomorrow.

Cost of the trip, undertaken in the hope of representing the United States in the fifth winter Olympics, was estimated at $18,000. The Amateur Hockey Association, a rival American organization, is representing the United States in a tournament which the International Olympic Committee has declared unofficial.

Jimmy Sloan, a member of the A.A.U. party, criticized George S. Dudley of Midland, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association; (Bunny) Ahearne of the British Ice Hockey Association and Dr. Fritz Kraatz, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, saying "they are trying to organize an ice hockey closed shop in Europe."

Dudley has supported the A.H.A. team in its bid to represent the United States.

It was demonstrated recently at the Firemen's Training School for the benefit of officials of the fire and police departments, hospitals, industry and first aid groups.

Teachers Aid In Making Nation Healthy

Education today has broadened beyond the world of the classics and the world of the three R's as it seeks not only to impart so-called "book knowledge" but also to mould mind and body to the end that life for the individual and the community can become happier and healthier.

John Stuart Mill in the 19th Century used the word "education" to include everything which "helps shape the human being." It would seem that this English philosopher was ahead of his time, but his idea about "education" finally has taken root.

Not the least of subjects added to the broadening curriculum is health — personal and public health. School boards and teachers are becoming increasingly alive to the value of good health, both to the individual and the community. Health subjects have a regular place in most courses.

And, provincial departments of education have undertake to officially endorse the annual NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK observance. For instance, these departments co-operate by distributing to certain public school grades the League - prepared booklet "Heroes of Health." Besides containing health information of general interest, this publication carries brief biographies of men and women who in the past have done much, through work, study and discovery, to improve the health and welfare of their fellow human beings.

It has been stated that health is everybody's business. This is especially applicable to members of the teaching profession who are in the exceptional position where they can do much about the business of health. The teacher of today has the greatest opportunity of any individual working outside the intimate family circle to shape the lives and minds of human beings — and good health has plenty to do with living.

Teacher, of course, should continually emphasize to their pupils the value of good health, but they will have a chance to really go "all out" on the subject during this fourth annual NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK.

Cabinet Ministers 13 Years In Office

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Feb. 4 (CP)—Indicative of the stability of New Zealand politics in recent years is that six members of the cabinet now are in their 13th consecutive year in office. Five of them still hold their original portfolios.

All six were members of the first Labor government which come to power in 1935. Four of the members of the original cabinet have died including the first Labor prime minister, M. J. Savage. He was succeeded in 1940 by the present prime minister, Peter Fraser.

Of the remaining members of the original cabinet, two have retired from parliament owing to ill-health and one, Frank Langstone, who was for a time New Zealand high commissioner in Canada, has resigned from the cabinet owing to differences over government policy, but is still a member of parliament and of the Labor party.

A large-sized leather belt with scabbard attached and containing a hydrant-wrench were lost Monday morning by the Fire Department while on the way to Monaghan Road or on the way to East City. While of no practical use to the finder they are required by the Fire Department. Finder is requested to contact the department for return of this equipment.

Rambling Reporter

WRONG NUMBER

Anyone with a lot of time on their hands and a penchant for statistics could have fun figuring out the total number of subscribers listed in the new telephone directory which has just been distributed. To guage the size of this effort, it can be pointed out that there are from eight to nine thousand entries for the city of Peterborough and an additional 35-40 exchanges listed as well. The city score was marred by one error, to date, Parks Photo Studio, listed at 2162 instead of 5162, and two ommissions of subscribers' names. The Bell management hopes they will hear of no others.

LOCKE IN BEDROOM

Three-year-old Douglas Long, Charlotte St., was the subject of much concern on Monday; but the most nonchalant person about the whole matter was young Douglas himself. In some manner peculiar to children of his age, he drank a glass of ginger ale and then went to his bedroom and bolted the door. The catch on the door is a tricky one, and he was unable to open it later. His mother, like all mothers, was very worried at this accident and after giving him instructions how to open it, and even tempting him with candy if he would try harder, she telephoned the fire department for aid. The hook and ladder boys accepted this job without so much as raising an eyebrow in surprise, for they get some queer assignments in the course of a day's work. Putting the ladder up to the bedroom they finally took off the storm window and prepared to enter to rescue him after an imprisonment of nearly an hour and a half. At that psychological moment he pushed back the catch and opened the door himself. While firemen took down details of the exploit Douglas eyed them coldly and 'hoisted' the remainder of his ginger ale. —D.W.

Says Baby-Sitting Too Trivial For Course

TORONTO, Feb. 4 — (CP). — Dr. C. C. Golding, Toronto's director of education, said today it would be "a nice thing" for high school girls "to know how to behave when in charge of babies."

But he said a course in baby-sitting "borders a bit on the trivial."

Dr. Goldring was commenting on a London, Ont., dispatch in which Dr. G. A. Wheable, superintendent of London schools, said it would be a "good thing" if a baby-sitting course was added to the curriculum of secondary schools in that city.

"Of course," said Dr. Goldring, "it would be a nice thing for girls to know how to behave when in charge of babies . . . but this idea borders a bit on the trivial. It would be adding to an already-crowded curriculum to fit girls for something that is quite temporary.

Alfred Barber President Labor Council

Alfred Barber was elected president of the Allied Labor Council for 1948 as nomination and election of officers was the special order of business at the regular bi-monthly meeting held in the Union Hall Tuesday night.

Officers are: A. Barber, president; F. LeBarr, vice-president; W. R. Cambers, recording secretary; R. Harvey, corresponding secretary; A. E. Borland, treasurer; J. Whalen and W. Twigg, trustees; H. Dormer, M. Chambers and B. Rosebush, executives; A. Symmonds, sergeant-at-arms; and J. Beggs, past president.

The council decided to support the campaign to raise $10,000,000 for the starving children of Europe and Asia. And to give full support to the prices campaign being sponsored by the Housewives Consumers' Association. Petitions will be secured and circulated through the shops of the affiliated unions. The council also pledged support to the building of the secondary rink.

It was also decided George Gimblett Jr. be given an honorarium in recognition of his past services to the council.

German Strike Ends Peacefully

FRANKFURT, Feb. 4 — (AP). — Western Germany's biggest strike since pre-Nazi days ended at midnight, but union leaders threatened even more drastic action unless German officials improve the food ration.

An estimated 3,000,000 strikers began returning to work this morning after a 24-hour "hunger" walkout which crippled business and industry in the entire British zone and in the American-zone state of Wurttemberg - Baden. There was no violence.

The strike was not directed against the occupation powers but against German officials, whom the workers blame for today's short rations.

William Kleinknecht, Wurttemberg-Baden's union chairman, warned that more drastic measures would be taken unless the German food administration takes steps to:

1. Distribute the available food supply more equitably.
2. Stamps out widespread black marketing and hoarding.
3. Compel farmers to turn in their crop quotas for rationed distribution.

Unicameral Body For New Zealand?

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Feb. 4 — (CP).—A committee of 13 members of New Zealand's House of Representatives is considering the desirability of making it the sole legislative authority in the Dominion.

This is the sequel to an opposition move several months ago for the abolition of the upper house, the Legislative Council, which is an entirely government-nominated body. The move was not approved by the government which carried an amendment for the formation of the committee which comprises seven government members and six from the opposition.

As abolition of the upper house has not been part of the Labor government's platform for a good many years, it is thought unlikely that the committee will favor single-chamber legislature, but some reform will be recommended. A measure to make the Legislative Council elective has been on the statute books for many years but the necessary order making it effective has never been gazetted.

The strength of the Legislative Council is not fixed, but at present consists of 36 members who are appointed for seven years. About 30 of the present council are Labor supporters.

Fined In Road Death

LINDSAY, Feb. 4 — (ENS).—Leland McCracken, Haliburton, has been convicted by Magistrate E. A. Gee of dangerous driving, following an accident on the Minden-Haliburton Highway in which Ray Sholer was killed. McCracken was fined $50, and costs. Evidence showed McCracken and two others were returning to Haliburton from Minden when the station wagon in which they were riding skidded near a corner and turned over three times on the pavement.

Red Cross Plans $3,000,000 Drive In March

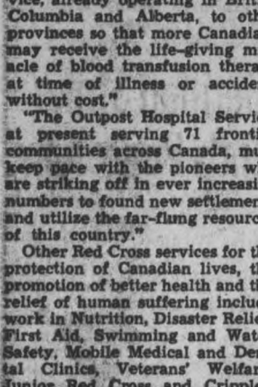
TORONTO, Feb. 4 — With emphasis on the urgent need for kindness and neighborly help to relieve human suffering, the Red Cross will open a national appeal for $3,000,000 on Monday, March 1, to carry on its peacetime work in Canada, it was announced today by Arthur L. Bishop, chairman of the Red Cross national executive committee.

"The Red Cross is a symbol of unfailing help at time of trouble in almost every country of the world, "Mr. Bishop pointed out. "The work of the Society in Canada is the expression of human kindness by which one neighbour lends his hand to another, and is the agent through which citizens of every creed may work for the betterment of national health and the relief of human suffering."

Mr. Bishop referred particularly to the Society's health and medical service. "Much remains to be done in this country to bring modern medical aid within reach of all," he said. "This year the Red Cross hopes to extend the free national Blood Transfusion Service, already operating in British Columbia and Alberta, to other provinces so that more Canadians may receive the life-giving miracle of blood transfusion therapy at time of illness or accident, without cost."

"The Outpost Hospital Service, at present serving 71 frontier communities across Canada, must keep pace with the pioneers who are striking off in ever increasing numbers to found new settlements and utilize the far-flung resources of this country."

Other Red Cross services for the protection of Canadian lives, the promotion of better health and the relief of human suffering include work in Nutrition, Disaster Relief, First Aid, Swimming and Water Safety, Mobile Medical and Dental Clinics, Veterans' Welfare, Junior Red Cross and Crippled Childrens' Hospitals.



"Next month the Society will turn once more to the people of Canada who have never failed Red Cross in the past, who will, I am confident, support Red Cross again in its great humanitarian efforts on behalf of our Canadian people. "Mr. Bishop concluded.

Moral Misconduct Interferes With Fight Against VD

In the case of venereal diseases, prevention means an understanding that conduct and not medication lies at the core of the problem, it is stated by the Health League of Canada in a NATIONAL SOCIAL HYGIENE DAY message.

"National Social Hygiene Day" is a feature of the broader observance, "National Health Week," which is sponsored by the Health League in co-operation with federal and provincial departments of health and provincial departments of education.

The Health League statement says that despite all that medical science has done and is doing to control VD, the scourge is still with us. The fact that in at least one large Canadian treatment clinic — since the advent of quick cures — one-third of the patients are repeaters would tend to prove that syphilis and gonorrhea are no longer purely medical problems.

Defeating Science

Medical science, it would appear, has far outstripped moral teaching in the fight against venereal diseases. The lack of widespread attention to this teaching is actually defeating science in the anti-VD war. The treatment of these diseases with sulfa drugs and penicillin has had spectacular results, and because of such spectacular results, and because of such speedy cures, there are people who in the absence of moral restraint, have lost all fear of risking infection.

Believing that those people are among those whose moral training was inadequate, the Health League this Social Hygiene Day is emphasizing that venereal-disease prevention dies in character education — in an understanding that only the highest of moral standards will ultimately defeat this world-wide scourge.

The venereal diseases are curable — but they are preventable only in conduct between the sexes remains on a high plane.

To protect the innocent, the Health League advocates complete pre-martial medical examinations, including a blood test for syphilis. In the belief that syphilis, detected and treated before marriage, will prevent many tragedies, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Prince Edward Island have made obligatory these pre-marital blood tests.

Woman Clips Fox With Stone, Kills It

NORTH SMITH, Feb. 4 (ENS) —Hunters and trappers who spend much time in the woods have their own stories of almost unbelievable incidents and encounters in their search for game, but this one is different. A Smith township resident was disturbed late Wednesday night by the barking of her dog and commotion on the verandah. Hurrying downstairs and outside she discovered a fine fox battling the dog.

Having nothing at hand but a stone on the verandah, which was used as a door-stop, she joined in the dog-fox fight and was able after much effort to help the dog kill the fox as he lured his assailant toward the woods, apparently hoping to escape.

Downeyville News

The deep snow in the woods has been a delay with the farmers getting out their wood and they can't get into the swamps as there is no frost in the ground and the wood supply will be very scarce.

Messrs. Earl Herlihey, Alvin Perdue and Thomas Herlihey have recently had telephones installed.

Mr. Fabian O'Neill has returned after spending a month in Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Jos. O'Leary and Mrs. Ed. Curtin, who have been seriously ill are showing signs of improvement.

Messrs George Hehlihey, V.S., and Clem Guiry, both of Toronto, spent a few days here.

Marmora Chief D. Lavender Resigns Post

MARMORA, Feb. 4—(ENS)—The resignation of William D Lavender as village constable of Marmora becomes effective on February 29.

It was on January 9, 1940, he received the appointment, being selected from among 16 applicants in succession to Major Percy Gray upon the latter's enlistment in the Second Great World War. As a police officer Mr. Lavender has been popular and regret at his retirement from police duties is being voiced by many residents. Applications for the position of constable with which is associated other duties closed Monday.

In the performance of his duties over the past eight year, Bill has figured in some interesting cases. The two most notable were: On April 3, 1943, in company of Provincial Constable R. S. Patterson then stationed in Madoc, three men who were travelling in a car at eighty miles per hour following robberies committed at Gananoque, Kingston and Napanee were halted about a mile west of Marmora, two being arrested at the time and the third being apprehended by another police officer later.

On November 30, 1945, Constable Lavender arrested a thief hailing from Toronto who had broken into F. N. Marett's store, making the arrest while the man was hiding in a well-house.

The retiring officer was a member of the Kawartha Police Association for two years and when the Quinte Police Association was formed in Belleville three years ago, transferred to that body. He came to Marmora in May, 1936.

For the past six years, he has been people's warden at St. Paul's Church and a member of Marmora Public School Board. Also he has been a member of the Marmora Agricultural Society. His resignation has followed his purchase of the Service station recently operated by W. J. Cantelon on No. 7 Highway, at the eastern limits of the village. In addition to running the service station, he will also operate a lunch counter.

Five changes of residence are being effected today as a result of his new venture. W. J. Cantelon is moving to Picton, W. D. Lavender moves into the vacated residence to permit the Misses Sullivan to occupy the former Lavender home. Doug Stocker moves from the Kelly apartment house to the Spencer apartments now vacated by the Misses Sullivan to permit Mrs. M. Taft to move to the Kelly apartment house. Later on, Mrs. M. Campbell is moving into the residence vacated by Mrs. Taft.

Auto Workers Plan To Battle Communists

WINDSOR, Feb. 4—(CP)—A campaign against Communists and sympathizers in the coming local elections across Canada of the United Auto Workers (CIO) was opened today by Local 240.

A statement issued by John A. Duncan, vice-president of the Ford Office Workers Local, on behalf of the executive board, said the rank and file has gone on record as urging all UAW members to "vote out of office, or defeat in bids for office, any and every Communist, Communist sympathizer or fellow traveller."

Nominations and elections will be held during the months of February and March. The statement stressed the importance of union members attending their nomination meetings and exercising their right to vote.

"These two months are very important to every union in that it presents an opportunity to allow the membership to make a democratic election work within the union."

Students Score Hit With Variety Program

OMEMEE, Feb. 4 (ENS)—Students of Omemee High School gave the community two hours of pleasant entertainment Friday evening in Coronation Hall. The first half of the program consisted of various numbers, followed by a one-act play entitled "Kidnapping Betty."

Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, chairman, praised the quality of entertainments given on previous occasions by both public and high schools and stressed the advantages of education in local schools over mass education in larger centres.

The boys' PT exercises were skillful and at times breath-taking.

A group of eight girls put on a humorous little skit "Hats of Other Days" with piano accompaniment by Margaret Graham. A larger group of girls sang three catchy choruses "Whistling Farmer Boy", "Land of Spain" and "Aloha," directed by Mrs. Williamson, music instructor.

The girls drill, an intricate routine, was staged by 16 girls in sailor uniforms.

Between numbers, piano duets were played by Joan and Dorothy Smith.

The cast of the play was as follows: Dan Fielding, Cyril Pogue; Nat Meadows, Harold Brooks; Betty Meadows, Betty Green; Sally Perkins, Norma Skuce; Dan's Aunt, Ethel Laidley; Dan's sister, Janet McGuire; Dan's hired man, Macdonald Sandy; stage managers, Thaxter Shaw and James McGuire.

Living Costs Up 21 Points During 1947

Near All-Time High Of July, 1920, As Index Soaring

OTTAWA, Feb. 5—(CP)—The pointer of Canada's cost-of-living indicator was trembling on the edge of a new high today.

Steadily thrusting upward, the official living-cost index registered a new post-war peak for December and was threatening the all-time mark registered in the boom period after the First World War.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics yesterday announced the December index as 148.3—up 2.3 points from a month before and showing a rise of 21 points for all of 1947. It was crowding the 150.6 peak of July, 1920. The index is calculated on the standard that the 1935-39 average equals 100.

It appeared likely today that the January index would move past the former high, since the December figure did not take into account the prices of meats developing out of higher British contracts for Canadian products. These advances will materialize in the January index report.

However, it was in foods that one of the major December advances developed. The others were in house-furnishings, services and miscellaneous items.

The total jump of 2.3 points in December compared with an increase of 2.4 in the previous month.

The food index for December moved from 178.7 to 182.2, butter and vegetable prices being largely responsible.

House furnishings and services leaped from 154.9 to 158.4. Clothing went up two points to 161.2. Rentals, under control, stayed unchanged at 119.9.

The statistics bureau also reported that during the week ended Dec. 26 prices on farm products advanced from 130.9 to 133.7, on the basis that the 1926 average equals 100.

Aid For Woman Started Brawl

WINNIPEG, Feb. 5. (CP)—A witness in the hearing of a murder charge against Frank Ferraro, 33, of Belleville, testified yesterday that a night club brawl in which taxi driver Hugh Scott was killed was the outcome of an attempt to aid a woman struck by a man.

Stephen F. Donaghue of Red Lake, Ont., said that he was in a party with Ferraro and two girls and that "bad language" was being spoken at a nearby table. Donaghue said that he went to intervene when one of the men at the other table hit a woman.

Donaghue said he was struck and knocked down and that when he came to his "senses" he saw two men from the other party—Scott and Howard J. Scarff—laying on the floor. Donaghue testified at the preliminary hearing in provincial police court that at one stage he saw Ferraro trying to help Scott up.

Ferraro's hearing was adjourned to Feb. 10.

Iroquois Chiefs Call On Members Of U.N.

LAKE SUCCES, NY, Feb. 5 — (CP). — A group of Iroquois Indian chiefs including Melvin M. Johnstone of the Grand River Reservation in Ontario, are scheduled to call on members of the United Nations Secretariat tomorrow.

The visit was arranged by Rev. Emery Kocsis of the Hungarian Baptist Church, New York representative of the Defence League of American Indians. Johnstone is secretary of the League.

Kocsis, who spent six years as a missionary worker at United States and American reservations, said the delegation wished to interest the UN in Indian problems and might make Indian chieftains of some of the delegation leaders and secretariat members.

CANADA, PAKISTAN, INDIA CHAT AT U.N.—The camera caught General A. G. L. McNaughton, centre, president of the U.N. Security Council for the month of February, in conversation with Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan, left, of Pakistan, and N. Gopalaswami Ayyangar, of the Dominion of India. Interest attaches to the Security Council's problem of settling the dispute between India and Pakistan since General McNaughton, a third Dominion representative, is presiding over the discussion. Canada's delegate expressed the wish that the memory of Mohandas K. Gandhi might inspire efforts to reach a settlement.

German General Leaps To Death Before Trial

NUERNBERG, Feb. 5—(CP)—Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz, who surrendered to the Canadian army in Holland in May, 1945, committed suicide in Nuernberg prison today shortly before he was to go on trial for war crimes.

The 64-year-old Wehrmacht veteran, who surrendered his forces to Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, commander of the 1st Canadian Corps on May 5, 1945, two days before the German surrender was signed, eluded his guards and leaped from the top tier of cells to the tiled floor of the prison rotunda.

He died in hospital shortly after.

As Blaskowitz lay in the hospital, his comrades were taken into court for the opening of the prosecution's case against them.

He was the ninth suicide to die in the Nuernberg jail since Hermann Goering and other war crimes prisoners were brought here in November, 1945.

Baskowitz commanded the armies of occupation in Czechoslovakia in 1939 and in the same year became governor of Bohemia.

He was heading the Twenty-fifth Army when the army surrendered to the Canadians.

He was indicted last November with 13 other German war leaders, on charges of crimes against peace and humanity. He was arraigned Dec. 30 and pleaded innocent.

Fire Drives Mother, Baby Into 28 Below Zero Cold

BANCROFT, Feb. 5—(ENS).—The two-storey dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Mountney, Hastings St., Bancroft, was burned to the ground at nine o'clock this morning. Mrs. Mountney reported that shortly before nine o'clock she smelled smoke in the house but could not determine where it came from. After searching in other rooms she returned to the kitchen where the smoke had become so dense that it drove her out of the house. She carried her eight - months - old daughter, Carol, into the 28 degrees below temperature to a neighbor's house, and was unable to save anything.

In a matter of seconds the house was enveloped in flames. Though the local fire department and neighbors fought the fire in the sub-zero weather, it was soon seen the house was doomed. The Mountney's car in a garage adjoining the house was all that was saved. Two other children, Fay, 11, and Kay, 8, had just gone to school when Mrs. Mountney first noticed the smoke.

Arrives Too Late

Mr. Mountney moved to Bancroft two years ago and is employed by the Department of Highways. A telephone message brought him home soon after the fire started, but on his return there was nothing left of his house but charred and burning timbers on the ground.

The house is partly covered by insurance and the damage is estimated at more than $2,500. Neighbors quickly came to the rescue in the matter of clothing.

Fire Damages Boat Factory

Fire believed to have started from overheated stovepipes damaged the newly-completed premises of "Avocraft Ltd." makers of cedar-strip boats, to the extent of $2,000-$3,000 Wednesday afternoon. It is located on the River Road about a mile and a half south of No. 7 Highway, in Otonabee.

Damage was mainly confined to the second storey of the wooden building, the ground floor was unaffected except for water damage.

Firemen and neighbors joined forces to extinguish the blaze. When the supply of water provided by the booster pump began to fail, a bucket brigade was formed to carry water from the pump of Arthur Kelly on the adjoining farm.

At no time was the outbreak spectacular, most of the burning was confined to the interior of the upper storey. The fire travelled slowly under the eaves and proved difficult to cope with. Eventually, the building was disconnected from the back kitchen of the owner, John Brazier, by chopping a large section of the roof away.

After this safety measure had been taken and additional help arrived, the roofing was ripped away and buckets of water, stirrup pumps, and the booster pump were used to extinguish the flames. It had burned for a period of three hours—from 2 o'clock to about 5 p.m.

Will Give 45 Companies Small Supplies of Gas

WINDSOR, Feb. 5 (CP)—Forty-five companies in western Ontario, 24 of them in Windsor, were allocated small supplies of gas today which, it is estimated, will permit the return to work of approximately 5,220 of the more than 25,000 idled by the shortages of the past two weeks.

The Windsor companies were notified last night they would get 12,000 cubic feet of gas daily, even though it placed an added strain on the supplies of Windsor Gas Company. While this is some help, it is a small percentage of the normal industrial load in this area. The total industrial gas consumption in the city is in excess of 2,000,000 cubic feet daily.

The gas relief plan was announced jointly by A. R. Crozier and Mayor Arthur J. Reaume this morning, following a conference in the mayor's office. Mr. Crozier arrived last night and was to meet this afternoon with industrial leaders to discuss future supplies of fuel, chiefly gas.

The 24 companies given gas in Windsor were not named by the controller, but the number indicates that practically all those affected, including the larger plants, will get at least some gas. It does not mean, however, that re-employment will begin today. Some adjustment will have to be made in production plans before idle employees are called in.

"The supplies are being allocated for use in such a way as to provide the maximum employment," the statement explained. "In Windsor, it should mean the re-employment of between 2,000 and 3,000 men.

The controller was optimistic about the return of normal supplies by Tuesday of next week, but the optimism was conditional upon moderate weather.

Red Wings Manager Gets Suspended Term

DETROIT, Feb. 5.— (CP). — Manager Jack Adams of the Detroit Red Wings today was under suspended sentence in traffic court for his part in a three-car collision.

Adams was found guilty of following too closely behind the car ahead of him.

A car driven by Joseph Sefernick, 30, struck the car ahead. Sefernick's car was in turn struck by Adams' auto. Sefernick was also given suspended sentence.

Flaming Jet Warms Drill Crew

Was Drilling Well For Hugh Stewart On The Keene Road

A vein of natural gas, tapped Tuesday on the Hugh Stewart farm on the west side of the Keene Road, south of the CNR, in Otonabee township, was flaming and rumbling this morning significantly of both quantity and pressure behind it.

Peter McNeeley, 250 Barnardo Ave., well driller, employed by Mr. Stewart to locate water, first noticed a strong odor of gas at 70 feet. At a depth of 107 feet on Tuesday the flow was so heavy and steady that the gas was readily lighted. The jet burned without interruption throwing off ample heat to warm the drilling crew in the February weather. It was finally snuffed out with earth thrown in on it.

"Natural gas is out of my line," Mr. Stewart said this morning, confirming the report of the find. "I was trying to get a supply of water, and engaged Mr. McNeeley to do the drilling. We had no thought of gas until the drill began to bring up the strong odor from around the 70-foot level. Most of the work has been through solid rock, and I understand that is one of the conditions in which gas is found. The quantity of gas has made quite an impression on Mr. McNeeley, and this afternoon I hope to have Mr. J. Allen Wilson of Otonabee, and possibly Mr. E. R. Wilson go down with me to see what they think about it.

"You can hear the gas gurgling down in the well, evidently trying to get through the water, and so far it has been a strong flow. Mr. McNeeley said the vibration was noticeable all the way from 70 feet to 107."

On Keene Road

Campbell Dairy Co. previously owned the property and in other years it was known as the Eagan farm. It is on the old Keene Road, turning south from No. 7 highway at the Mark Burnham home. Mr. Stewart said he was unable to get information locally that would help him in regard to gas veins. He is likely to get assistance in Toronto, and Mayor Ovens mentioned to him an authority, the Mayor of Windsor.

"It is the second farm south of the C.N.R. crossing, and is north of the Redmond place," Mr. Stewart said.

Mr. Allen Wilson said he was not surprised when he heard of the gas strike. There have been intimations from time to time of gas locally at some level, but drilling was never projected to sufficient depth to determine definitely whether it was in quantity.

Mr. Wilson and his brother, E. R. Wilson, have a geophysical machine used in the locating of minerals, and also oil and gas.

Mr. Allen Wilson explained that rock pressure was a weight factor in forcing flow of gas.

Liked Cigars Fine

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 5 — (CP).—Jan Sibelius, Finland's great composer, liked the cigars fine. His letter of thanks for a Christmas gift of a box of cigars was received this week by Eugene Lang of Belleville, devotee of Sibelius' work and lover of classical music. Mr. Lang said the letter was written with a charcoal pencil.

Canada Gives 5 Billion To World Nations

OTTAWA, Feb. 5 — (CP). — In the last seven years, Canada has contributed more than $5,000,000,000 to European countries and members of the British Commonwealth in outright gifts, various forms of relief and credits and loans. This was disclosed yesterday in the Commons by Finance Minister Abbott in a detailed written reply to a question by D. C. McCuaig (CCF-Maple Creek).

This is the first time that these details have been officially released in such complete form and they come at a time when the United States Congress is deciding on the European recovery program under which Canada may be asked to make further contributions.

At present, it appears that any further contribution would be in commodities, but the US may still request this country to participate to some extent with further credits. Mr. Abbott, however, said last fall Canada could not advance further credits.

The figures given to the Commons yesterday showed the outright gifts were $1,000,000,000 to the United Kingdom, $19,382,079 in wheat to Greece and $2,211,070,000 to nine countries under the mutual aid section of the War Appropriations Act.

Break-Down

The break-down for the nine mutual aid countries was $91,119,000 to Australia; $5,518,000 to the British West Indies; $26,597,000 to China; $23,629,000 to France; $12,000 to Greece; $18,826,000 to India; $15,278,000 to New Zealand; $159,113,000 to Russia and $1,870,978,000 to the UK.

Mr. Abbott said that the mutual aid figures differ from those published in the final report of the Mutual Aid Board due to the elimination of the costs of goods on hand and declared surplus at the end of the war.

Total amount loaned to last Dec. 31 was $2,090,609,299, although the amount authorized under various Acts of Parliament was $2,554,000,000. The remainder presumably will be taken up this year by the nine countries involved.

The largest loans were to the U.K. with one for $700,000,000, which has all been taken up and another for $1,250,000,000, of which $963,000,000 has been taken.

Other Loans

Belgium has taken $67,000,000 of $100,000,000 loan; China $32,640,088 of $60,000,000; Czechoslovakia $12,067,982 of $19,000,000.

Barbara Ann Scott Captures First Contest For Olympic Championship

Must Win Free-Style Figure Competition Before She Claims Crown; Dick Button From US Takes Men's Title

By JACK SULLIVAN

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 5—(CP).—Amid full-throated applause from a colorful crowd, Canada's Barbara Ann Scott skated gracefully today to the threshold of the Olympic throne which Norway's Sonja Henie occupied from 1927 to 1936. Looking trim in an all-white costume topped by a bonnet trimmed with red, and wearing sun glasses, the 19-year-old Ottawa skater finished the five compulsory figures—first half of the ladies' figure-skating championship—in top position among 25 women from 11 countries, the Olympics press office announced.

The free-style figures which conclude the event will be skated later this week.

Dick Button of Englewood, NJ, and skier - housewife Gretchen Fraser of Vancouver, Wash., won championships, vaulting the United States into a probable fourth place in the team standings now topped by Sweden. Button, 18, won the men's figure-skating event and Mrs. Fraser, 28, placed first in the women's special slalom.

The ladies' compulsory figures were resumed today after only two of five figures were tried on Tuesday. Competition was cancelled Wednesday because of mushy ice.

Unofficial Total

The press office released no point total but Miss Scott's unofficial point total was 858.4.

In second place in the official listings was Jeannette Altwegg, British champion, and in third spot came Eva Pawlik of Austria. Bridget Adams of Britain was fourth. Jirina Nekolova of Czechoslovakia, a guest of Barbara Ann at Ottawa last summer, was fifth and Gretchen Merrill, blonde pin-up girl from Boston, was sixth.

The official press office standings gave only the first six competitors.

At the conclusion of the compulsory figures, skated in a rink behind a swank hotel in this Olympic town, spectators chorused "she's in" as Barbara Ann skated under the stands amid tremendous applause from a colorful crowd of 300. Miss Scott smiled but said nothing.

She was congratulated but said she considers herself "in" only when the official point total is known for the compulsory figures.

The Ottawa girl's performance dominated this seventh day of the Olympics, as Switzerland forged ahead of Sweden in the race for team honors.

The Olympic gold medal is the only title Barbara Ann hasn't won.

She now faces the free-skating test, considered her strongest point, and nothing but an unforeseen accident—such as a spill—could rob the petite ice queen of the championship.

De Valera Leads In Early Election Returns

Dublin, Feb. 5 — (CP). —Sean MacBride, leader of the newly-formed Clann Na Poblachta (Republican Party, today was elected in Dublin's southwest district giving his party its first success in the Eire general election.

Prime Minister Eamon De Valera's Fianna Fail (government) party had taken a slight lead by securing four parliamentary seats against two for the opposition Fine Gael party with one each held by the Independent Farmers and the Republicans.

Reuters News Agency earlier had reported that Prime Minister Eamon De Valera's Fianna Fail party was moving strongly and might gain a big over-all victory. This followed the winning by Fianna Fail of an East Donegal seat—the first decided—in addition to one not contested.

At the same time Reuters said the new Clann Na Poblachta (Republican) party headed by Sean MacBride "so far has made a poor showing."

Gen. Richard Mulcahy's Fine Gael re-elected J. A. Costello in Dublin South and D. McMenamin in another East Donegal seat. Speaker P. Fahy of Fianna Fail was the candidate returned by acclamation.

Clann Na Poblachta candidates finished at the bottom of the list of eight candidates in East Donegal.

EDINBURGH, Feb. 5 (Reuters) —Tall, attractive Miss Catherine Parr Strickland, 29-year-old heiress and huntswoman, was married quietly in an Edinburgh registrar's office yesterday to her former stableboy, James Stuart Fairbairn, 29-year-old trail guide in Banff National Park, Alberta.

After a honeymoon in Scotland, the couple will fly to Canada to settle down on a Western ranch.

Fairbairn gave his address as Kamasakas Ranch, Sebbe, Alta.

The bride's father was the late Louis Fauquier Strickland, staff captain in the Canadian Army.

Halifax Taxi Driver Shot At Wheel Of Car

HALIFAX, Feb. 5 — (CP). — With the lower part of his face blown away by a shotgun blast, Leonard Mattatall clung to life in hospital here to-day while police held a man suspected of shooting the 21-year-old taxi driver at the wheel of his car shortly after midnight.

Mattatall was found wandering aimlessly in a dazed condition around his car 10 miles from the harbor town of Dartmouth.

His face was a mass of blood, and particles of flesh were splattered on the car window beside the driver's seat, indicating that the shot was fired at close range.

Police did not divulge the name of their suspect.

Jos. T. Tully Awarded Herd Prize

Only 33 Herds Win Holstein Award Since First Presented

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—The highest honor bestowed by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, the master breeders award, was presented to two breeders and the government-operated Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa during Wednesday's annual meeting of the association. The two breeders were W. C. Good of Brantford, and Joseph T. Tully, RR 1, Peterborough.

Since it was first presented in 1930, only 33 herds in Canada have received the award. Mr. Good qualified with six XX bulls, six very good and 17 good plus cows. All of the females had production records at least 20 per cent above the amount required for the Dominion Record of Performance qualification, and, in addition, Mr. Good has one very good and 14 good plus cows that have not yet fulfilled master breeder production requirements.

Mr. Tully, a farmer in Otonabee Twp. claimed his award on a record of having bred seven class XX bulls, seven very good, one gold medal, nine good plus, and two excellent cows. All have records at least 20 per cent above requirements, and Mr. Tully also has one very good and three good plus cows that have not yet fulfilled the requirements. Just 38 years old, he is one of the youngest men ever to qualify for the master breeder award.

The Central Experimental Farm award was presented by W. R. Reek, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, to George W. Muir, Dominion animals husbandman, who is in charge of the herd. The experimental farm herd qualified with 13 XX bulls, one excellent, two very good, seven gold medal, 20 good plus and 22 excellen cows. The herd was established in 1911.

Extra Bull Award

This year's class extra award for the bull with at least 45 per cent of its daughters born three or more years prior to the date of application rated at least good plus, went to Armac Sylvanus Pathfinder, owned by E. J. Meagher of Oakville. Sylvanus was born on June, 1938, on the farm of R. S. McKinnon at Maple, and sold to Mr. Meagher when only five months old. Glen Rejects Appeal Of Seven Aliens

OTTAWA, Feb. 5 (CP)—Seven aliens—five of them from Germany — who entered Canada on fraudulent British passports are to be deported as soon as possible and immigration authorities are on the watch for others attempting to gain entry through the same illegal channels.

Resources Minister Glen announced yesterday that he had rejected the appeal of the seven against deportation and at the same time disclosed government knowledge that other aliens were "attempting to effect admission to Canada by the same illegal means."

The illegal immigrants were arrested in Toronto several weeks ago. Their arrest followed a tip-off from United Kingdom authorities and Mr. Glen said they would be deported as soon as arrangements can be completed for their return to their countries of origin.

The persons involved are Maniek Kuper, Morduch Szyja Szulc, Israel Cholewa and his wife Giny, Arthur Magat, Alter Abramowitz and David Fajtlowicz. Mr. Glen said they had reached Canada on false passports obtained from a "person who, for a substantial sum, offered to obtain entry documents and secure their admission to Canada."

Deal With Same Man

Two of the aliens had come from Britain via the United States and five had come from Germany via France and Newfoundland, entering Canada by air. All admitted having been approached by the same person who promised to arrange Canadian entry documents. These documents were British passports obtained by illegal means in the names of British subjects born in the British Isles. Admission to Canada was gained by presentation of these documents at the Canadian port of entry.

In turning down their appeal, Mr. Glen pointed out that all the aliens had "knowingly" paid for false passports to gain fraudulent entry to Canada. In view of the many displaced persons in refugee camps waiting patiently to get transportation to Canada, he said it would be "unthinkable" to allow these aliens to obtain an advantage by fraudulent means over others still in displaced persons camps.

Pair Kidnap Lindsay Taxi Driver

TORONTO, Feb. 5 — Kidnapped in his car by two men who gave him "the fastest ride of my life," Elwood Moynes, Lindsay taxi driver, was forced to accompany the pair to Toronto last night and was dumped out in the Don Valley Roadway district after being robbed of $5. The men, one of them armed with a gun, also took a valuable railway watch which Moynes bought recently for $92, but they handed it back when he pleaded with them.

Moynes tolk police he answered a call to the Kent Hotel in Lindsay where he picked up the two men. They told him to drive out to No. 7 Highway. When he reached the outskirts, one of them drew a gun and ordered him to move out from behind the wheel.

"They knew the roads and that was the fastest ride I ever had," Moynes told police. "They drove aroumd by Sunnyside and then headed north. When we reached the Don Valley Roadway they ordered me out of the car after taking my driver's cap. Then they drove off."

The taxi owner, who has been in business for himself only three weeks, made his way to a near-by house and telephoned police. He described the man with the gun as being between 35 and 40 years old, 6 feet tall and dark-complexioned. His companion was about 25, stocky build, wearing a dark overcoat and no hat.

Doctor's Trial Set For February 13

DETROIT, Feb. 5—(CP).—Dr. Henslee E. Tann, 41, stood mute before Recorder's Judge Gerald W. Groat yesterday when arraigned on a charge of raping a 25-year-old Sarnia women in his office two weeks ago.

Judge Groat entered a plea of not guilty and set trial for Feb. 13. Tann protested that the date of the rape trial would conflict with his trial on a charge of abortion due to come up Feb. 16. Judge Groat rebuffed him, however, and told him to obtain legal counsel by Monday or have one appointed by the court.

Bond of $25,000 on the rape charge was continued. Tann also has $30,000 bond on the abortion charge and another charge of obstructing justice which arises from a previous abortion case in which he was acquitted.

It's OK For Adults To Play Golf On Sunday But Boys Can't Play Hockey, Board Decides

LINDSAY, Feb. 5—(ENS)—"It does not give school children consistency of thought to be prohibited from playing hockey on Sunday when they see their elders out playing golf and other games on the Sabbath, said Mr. J. F. Wood, principal of Victoria Public School, in addressing the Lindsay Board of Education Wednesday night. His comments followed an announcement by W. S. Battersby, principal of the Central School, that many persons residing near his school had complained of children playing hockey on the school rink on Sundays. One Board member suggested a sign be erected prohibiting hockey. "Then if the children ignore the sign, no one can say we haven't done our part," he added.

"You can't bring children up that way," declared Mr. Wood. "If this Board makes a law and then allows children to break it, then they are teaching the children disrespect for law and order. The Board should not engage in such practices. If you are going to make a law you will have to see that it is kept."

"Then what will we do with the rink," replied Mr. Harold Woods, "put a tent over it?"

It was decided to erect the signs.

Union Leaders Learn Verdict During Day

ST. HERAME, Que., Feb. 5 — (CP)— The fate of Mrs. Valdimar Bjornasen, 29, and Azellus Baucage, 42, United Textile workers of America leaders who have been on trial for more than a month on a charge of seditious conspiracy, will probably be known today when the case will be given to a court of King's bench jury.

Mrs. Bornasen, also known under her malden name of Medeleine Parent, and Baucage, respectively provincial organizers and busines sagent of the U. T. W. A. were arrested togehter with R. Kent Rowley, National Union organizer, during last spring's strike at the Lachute textile mill at Ayers Limited.

They were accused of seditious conspiracy and intimidation. Rowley was granted a separate trial by Mr. Justice Philemon Cousineau on the grounds that his background was mixed. He will be tried later. If Baucage and Mrs. Bjornasen are found guilty they are liable to a penitentiary term of nine years.

The lengthy strike was featured by several incidents between strikers and provincial police who were protecting willing workers. Baucagen, Mrs. Bjornasen and Rowley were arrested several times.

The strike ended in the early summer when a number of willing workers went to kork under the protection of police.

The case has hinged on the crown's claim that the accused are Communist sympathizers and that their actions and speeches before and during the strike were part of a deliberate pattern to incite trouble.

Alexander Describes Tunis Drive Complete Example Of Annihilation

LONDON, Feb. 5 — (Reuters) —Field Marshall Viscount Alexander's own story of the achievements of United States, British and French troops which, under his command, swept the Germans and Italians from North Africa in 1943 and cleared the way for the invasion of Southern Europe was published today.

Lord Alexander, now Governor-General of Canada, tells of the 1,800-mile desert advance which ended the threat to Egypt and of the Tunisian campaign which was "an unusually complete example of the battle of annihilation" in a dispatch sent to the British War Office in May last year and now released.

When, on May 7, 1943, United States troops entered Bizerte and British troops entered Tunis, Rommel's African army was finished and the way was clear for the invasion of Sicily.

"Never before had a great army been so totally destroyed," Lord Alexander declares. "A quarter of a million men laid down their arms in unconditional surrender; 663 escaped. Immense stocks of arms, ammunition and supplies of all natures were the booty of the victors. Our own casualties in the final battle were less than 2,000 men."

First Success.

Lord Alexander describes the Tunisian campaign and the sweep across Cyrenaica and Libya which preceded it as "the first wholly successful campaign against the Axis."

It was remarkable because it produced "a new instrument of victory in the form of the close collaboration between the Allies which was to be not only a battle-winning but a war-winning factor." . . .

Lauds Eisenhouwer

Lord Alexander attributes much credit for the success of the Anglo-British fighting partnership to Gen. Eisenhower, his immediate superior.

He said of the commander-in-chief: "My relations with Gen. Eisenhower were of the happiest and I value them both for personal reasons and from the point of view of the task in hand: he backed me up in every possible way and I knew that I could in all circumstances rely on his complete understanding, sympathy and support."

Lord Alexander reports favorably on the late General George Patton who before his dramatic role in the European fighting which was to follow was at this time serving under the British Field Marshal as a corps commander.

Under Gen. Patton, United States troops had "recovered from the natural depression caused by the early setbacks . . . they had absorbed with great rapidity. The benefits of the intensive training to which they had been subjected were now showing in hard mountain fighting. . . . "

Legends which developed around his opposite number in the fighting, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, were not justified, Lord Alexander declared. "There was "an exaggeration of his undoubted qualities which tended to have a depressing effect on our own troops, however, much it may have appealed to the newspaper reader at home . . . "

The timetable for the Tunisian campaign was decided at the Casablanca conference of President Roosevelt, Winston Churchill and the combined chiefs of staff in January, 1943. There was much fierce fighting before it was won.

In Full Swing

In March, the battle for the Tunisian plain was in full swing. Rommel, a sick man, said unless he won this battle his last hope in Africa was gone.

He lost it. By April 11 Allied troops had occupied the coastal plain. The final assault was launched at the end of April and Tunis and Bizerte were entered on May 6.

"I found . . . I had Bizerte and Tunis eight days before the allotted date and that all resistance ceased in Africa with two days yet to spare."

Boost Output Of Hatcheries Plan For 1948

LINDSAY, Feb. 5.—Increased output at the two fish hatcheries in the Trent district is planned this year. The Trent district office's quarterly report says the Department of Lands and Forests has this end in view as it plans for the new season.

The report notes that there are two hatcheries located in the district which supply fish for restocking purposes. They are the Codrington hatchery in Northumberland County and the Deer Lake hatchery in Belmont Township, Peterborough County. The former propagates speckled trout and brown trout, for which a heavy demand exists, and the latter propagates bass and maskinonge and takes care of the distribution of pickerel eggs.

Codrington is planning for greater output as is Deer Lake. Contraction work at the Deer Lake hatchery is near completion and increased facilities will provide for a great increase in the distribution of maskinonge and bass, the district report states.

2,042 Patients Given Treatment

COBOURG, Feb. 5.—Two thousand and forty-two patients received treatment at Cobourg General Hospital in 1947, it was reported at the annual meeting of the hospital board, and, of this number, 640 were out-patients. Treasurer J. R. McIlwraith read reports showing a very successful year. Total revenue was $58,254.53; expenditures were $59,860.41, after providing for depreciation; leaving an operating deficit of $1,605.88. President A. C. Hodgetts presided and was re-elected, as was the secretary-treasurer, Mr. McIlwraith. George S. Mitchell is vice-president.

The president explained that hospital salaries were up $5,000 above the previous year. He also reported that nurses have been put on eight-hour duty, instead of the former 12-hour system. Bed capacity is severely overtaxed, Mr. Hodgetts said. Plans are to winterize an upper balcony in order to provide space for five more beds.

Druggist Dies

COBOURG, Feb. 5—The funeral of Albert J. Gould was held Wednesday. Prior to his retirement, he operated a drug store for 36 years here. Mr. Gould was born in Grafton on March 24, 1870, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Gould. He was prominent in the activities of the Methodist and United Churches, was one-time chairman of the Cobourg Board of Trade and served on the school board. He was a member of St. Lodge, AF&AM, and St. John's Chapter, RAM. He was also a charter member of the Rotary Club. Surviving are his widow and two sons, William and Charles.

Italy Requests U.S. Warships To Keep Away

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP). —United States warships operating in the Mediterranean may largely avoid visits to Italian ports for the next few weeks—on Italian advice.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi, diplomatic sources here said today, has told United States Ambassador James C. Dunn that such a course might be wise in view of political conditions in Italy.

Communists, fighting De Gasperi's government, have denounced the presence of American fleet units.

Similarly, the use of Italian ports was protested by Russia last week as a violation of the Italian peace treaty. The United States jected the protest, saying Rome had approved each warship visit. The Italian Government publicly announced that this was not true.

De Gasperio's latest move is regarded not as a change in Italian policy but simply a step toward quieting political disputes over the issue.

Italy is scheduled to hold national elections in April.

The Italian development was one of several bearing on American anti-Communist policies in the Mediterranean area and Southeastern Europe.

The State Department accused the Communist Government of Romania of preparing "to wipe out the last vestige of democratic opposition."

On the Middle East situation State Secretary Marshall said in response to enquiries at a press conference that he had received a report that about 150 or 200 Communists were in parties of Jews seeking immigration into Palestine recently. He said he did not know from what source the information came.

Marshall was asked whether he saw any evidences that the Russians had recently become less "intransigeant." He said he had not.

Plan To Increase Reforesting In Trent Area

LINDSAY, Feb. 5.—An intensive reforestation program is anticipated in the Trent District which centres on Lindsay during the coming season. This is reported today by the Trent District of the Lands and Forests Department in its quarterly report.

In addition to the 600-acre acquisition by the Victoria County forest, part of which will be planted this season, activity will be in evidence in the Northumberland forest and around the Ganaraska project. Thinning operations are now being carried out in the three district county forests in Durham, Northumberland and Victoria.

Like Victoria County forest, the Northumberland unit has also added acreage to their holdings. The Ganaraska project, which is located in the upper waters of the Ganaraska River, has now several hundreds of acres acquired for purposes of reforestation and water conservation, the report states.

The importance of reforesting waste land is stressed in the report which says in part: "It provides for future supplies of wood products, located in areas close to markets; and is also a great assistance in the control of water runoff during the spring and fall

Shotgun Explodes Kills Driver Of Car

BRANTFORD, Feb. 5—(CP)—Edward John Hutton, 42, was killed early today when a shotgun exploded in his automobile. Police said Hutton was taking the gun to be repaired when he reached into the back of the car for a crank and apparently struck the gun causing it to discharge. The full charge struck him in the head, knocking him from the car.

Coroner A. J. Craven said it was not likely an inquest would be held.

Discarded Orchid Root Brings Man $5,000

BRAMPTON, Feb. 5 (CP)—Bill Perrett, who nurses 1,000,000 orchids at a local greenhouse, told today how he turned a three-penny piece of root into $5,000.

When he was buying orchids for a former English employer, the dealer threw him a piece of root, left on the greenhouse floor after his order was filled.

"You can have it for thrupp-pence' the dealer said. Bill agreed.

Later, he threw the apparently root on the roof of his home and it produced three orchid plants of a very rare orchid plants of a very rare type, which he sold for $5,000.

Veterans' Pensions

The Prime Minister's pre-Christmas announcement that war veterans' pensions would be increased by $10 a month in the cases of 100 per cent. disability and proportionately less for others has been decried. Major-General Pearkes, a Conservative M.P., says it is too little, considering that the cost of living has risen by 43 per cent. The Canadian Legion has asked for a 25 per cent. increase in pensions. Even with a $10 increase, a fully disabled veteran of the rank of lieutenant or lower would draw only $85 a month ($157 if married with a family of three).

• • •

The people of this country do not want disabled veterans treated in a miserly, miserable fashion, and the Government will probably scrutinize the whole pension system carefully before introducing amending legislation.

• • •

The problem is vexingly difficult. Does a pension to a childless war-widow encourage her not to try to earn her own living? Do pensions to partly disabled men put a premium on their not getting well—are such pensioners afraid of recovering good health and having their pensions reduced? A veteran who is physically and completely disabled has a right to depend on the state for his subsistence, a good adequate subsistence. What about the others? What about men whose disability is less physical than mental? Psychosomatic medical practice is only in its first stages, but already doctors realize that many physical ills are basically mental, even the ills of persons who are not recognizably neurotic.

• • •

It is now standard medical practice in Britain, the United States and Canada not to recommend pensions for ex-servicemen who have neuroses. The Canadian Director-General of Treatment Services says that "if you grant a pension to a neurotic you may handicap him for life". Some veterans use nervous or neurotic illness, usually quite unconsciously, to escape responsibilities, and many of them were neurotic before they donned uniform, in spite of careful medical selection of recruits.

• • •

Before Parliament authorizes general large increases in pensions it will have to consider their effect on the pensioners' health, character and future usefulness as citizens.

The Harlot-Doctrine Of Expediency

Two very curious items of news have been brought to our attention during the past week. The first is a statement made in San Francisco by Dr. Chilton Bush, the head of the Division of Journalism at Stanford University. Dr. Bush says that newspapers ought to use public opinion polls "to prevent editorial errors of judgement" and continues: "A publisher is smart to take a poll before he gets his neck out too far; polls provide a better idea of acceptance of newspaper policies". The second item is a report in Time that a man called Albert Sindlinger has perfected a means of producing best-selling books; each book, in its first draft, is "sampled" by audiences of average people in several parts of the U.S.A.; their criticisms are collected, the changes which they suggest are incorporated in the finished book and lo!—a best seller!

These ideas are too horrible—too unspeakably repulsive—for us to write of them in anything but the strongest terms. Mr. Sindlinger's scheme may lead to the production of best-sellers, but it is the antithesis of the great art and mystery of writing. We do not believe that it could even result in the production of good popular entertainment on a low level. The fresh viewpoint and the original idea do not survive such mauling, and the general public (except for that portion of it which takes reading as some people take dope and drink, to dull the senses) likes freshness and originality when it is not called upon to provide those things for itself. Great authors, original geniuses and prophets—we name Thomas Mann, James Joyce and Bernard Shaw as examples—would never get a hearing under the Sindlinger system, which is designed to enable people to go on hearing what they already know, and to stifle anything which at first hearing seems uncomfortable to them.

As for Dr. Bush's theory of journalism, it sounds to us like a particularly degrading and joyless form of prostitution. The idea that a newspaper should espouse only those opinions which are acceptable to a majority of its readers is mystically and transcendentally disgusting. A newspaper which lacks the courage to express an opinion which it believes to be right is not a newspaper, but a rag, and it achieves its highest usefulness not when it greets the eye of the reader but when it is used for wrapping garbage. Great newspapers, and strong newspapers are based upon the courage and integrity of their editorial opinion; no paper can be always right, but it can be always honest. And does anyone deny that it is better to be wrong and honest, or right and unpopular, than it is to follow a policy of base expediency?

We rarely encroach upon the field of theology in these columns, but we should like to ask this question: When Dr. Bush and Mr. Sindlinger stand before the Judgement Seat of God on the Last Day do they think that they will be judged according to public opinion polls and the harlot-doctrine of expediency, or by sterner standards?

How Does This Compare With "O Canada"?

From time to time harsh things are said about O Canada. The best part of its tune is said to be stolen from Mozart, and the remainder is condemned as pedestrian; it is said to be too long; the complaint is made that it has no official and nationally acceptable words.

As a matter of interest, we print herewith an English translation of the new national anthem of India:

The finest country in the world is our India,
We are its nightingales, it is our rose-garden;
The highest mountain-range, the neighbour of the sky,
Is our sentry and our protector;
In its lap play thousands of rivers
Which make of it a garden that is the envy of the world;
Religion does not teach us to bear enmity towards one another,
We are Indians and our country is India.

This is not really so far from O Canada; the same strain of hyperbole is discernable in it, the same rather large claims, the same polite acknowledgement of religion as the backbone of the nation, the same lack of self assurance. Of the sound of the poem in Hindustani, or its tune, we have no idea.

Perhaps the secret of great national songs is that they are not written with conscious intent. They grow, and as they grow they change, until at last they are perfect expressions of national feeling. Give Canada and the new India plenty of time—a few centuries or so—and their national songs will be better.

Comics From Copenhagen

Several times each week this newspaper is offered a new comic strip, but until this week we had never had an offer from Denmark. The letter came from Copenhagen, and was couched in English which was not quite as idiomatic as the writer thought; it offered us a strip for children about two little bears, called Bim and Bam. "Most little children have a little bear which takes part in the busy play of the day and which sleeps together with the child on the cushion in the night", said the latter. We proceeded to examine the specimen sheets of Bim and Bam with keen interest.

We reproduce herewith, omitting nothing, the text accompanying one group of six pictures:

"Look, a cigar", says Bim, "I want to taste it". And Bim smokes like the chimney and he blows the smoke into Bam's face. Ha, ha, what fun it is. But what is this? Bim is ill, he is quite dizzy, he vomits, and now comes Bam's turn to laugh.

Nothing exports so poorly as humour; even fine wines do not suffer so great a change when crossing the sea. The only fun that we can find in Bim and Bam is of the unconscious sort.

"Bim and Bam do not take up much room and it will easily be possible to find a weekly space for the two little rogues" says the letter, hopefully. No, gentlemen, not today. That frail form of communication, the comic strip, is not yet on a fully international basis, and our readers are not quite ready for Bim and Bam.

If Ontario really wants to be original it can cause a sensation by naming the Union Jack as its provincial flag.

The Examiner's London Letter

By J. D. CAMBRIDGE

THERE are faint but unmistakable signs of Spring in London, or at least the foretaste of it. The florists and street flower sellers already have large supplies of daffodils, tulips, and mimosa, which I am told come from the south of England, Cornwall and the Scilly Isles. Along the Strand and at Charing Cross station they nightly urge me to "buy some for the missus". For that matter, you need not go down to the very south to find flowers growing. My neighbour last Sunday was proudly showing me crocuses in his garden already in blossom. But he did admit it was unusually early for them. On week-ends there is a great bustle in the local gardens as the tired businessmen relax with spade, fork, and gardener's handbook, preparing their gardens for the spring planting. The days are becoming notably longer now, and already disputes are raging in the correspondence columns of the "Times" as to the earliest migratory bird to be seen in England. To diverge for the moment,—several people have also written in claiming that they have seen butterflies, but from the tone of the correspondence, I would gather that this is about as rare an occurrence at this time of the year as it would be in Peterborough.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANOTHER harbinger of springtime is the annual spring fashion salons of the Incorporated Society of London Fashion Designers taking place this week, with the export market in mind. The exhibitions are for the press only at this time, and those allowed to see them are pledged not to give exact details or full pictures of any specific garment until after the 1st of March. My wife was able to attend several of these, and she lists the following general observations which I give for the ladies who may be interested: "...sloping shoulder line, long, full skirts with lots of pleats, frilly petticoats, nipped-in waist, accentuated with hip and stomach padding, and general silhouette more rounded and feminine." To quote the explanatory notes of Molyneux, "...in many models a definite Renoir silhouette of the 1870s...." Apparently we are headed back to the days of our grandmothers in fashion at least. It is emphasized that the models shown are for export only, so they will probably appear on George Street before they are seen on the streets of London.

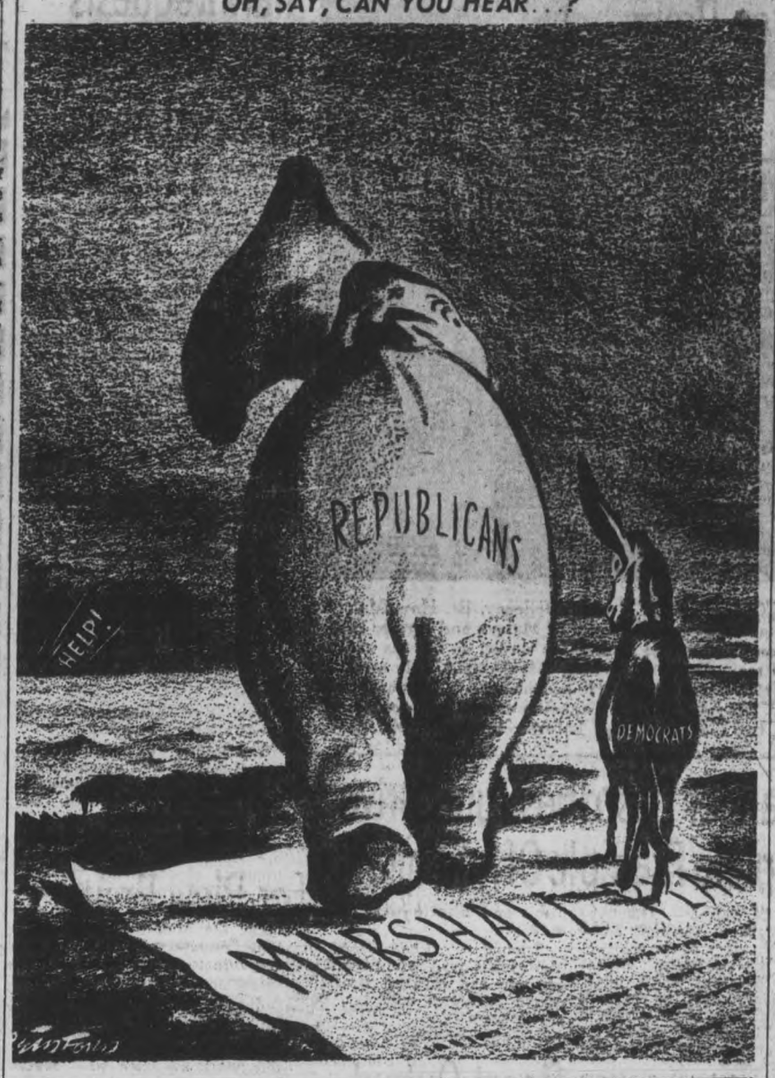
✧ ✧ ✧

THE London papers have given considerable space to the devaluation of the French franc, which is viewed with much alarm by British Treasury officials, particularly the clause on the free market for gold and the hard currencies. Inevitably, these moves bring up the question of devaluing sterling, and on the stock market at least there was a suspicion that such British action was within the realms of probability. The "Evening Standard" reported on Monday that the market value of gold stocks had increased by $80 millions, and British government securities decreased $400 millions on the day. All this on paper only of course. Cripps' prompt statement in Parliament that the government did not contemplate devaluation allayed fears somewhat, but only future events can tell if the pound can be held at its present level.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT is greatly to Britain's advantage if she can avoid devaluation. In the simplest terms, it means that everything you buy costs more, and you receive less for everything you sell, and for a nation buying more than she sells, this is not a good thing. The one advantage,—easier to sell abroad in competition with dollar countries,—is not a factor as long as the present ready market exists for nearly all goods. There are many who think that this stage is nearly ended, and real price competition will begin soon. If they are right, the question of devaluation will become very important indeed.

✧ ✧ ✧



THE sad story of a Christmas present should be told here. It illustrates the plight of Santa Claus in the modern world, to say nothing of how the population groans under taxation. Out of the goodness of her heart my mother sent me a leather grip as a Christmas present, a simple sturdy bit of luggage that should give me years of wear. I do not know exactly what she paid for it, too much no doubt, but let us call the purchase price 100%, the last point where a private profit is made. The first visitor intrudes at this point, or rather before it is even bought, in the form of Canadian taxation regulations, charging her 8% sales tax and 25% luxury tax, as luggage is so classified. (If she had lived in Montreal there would be an extra 4% Provincial sales tax.) Not counting the postage and loving care in packaging it, she has paid 133% before I receive it. To my horror, I receive not the parcel, but a bill from the British Customs demanding the 125% purchase tax required on leather goods under British law. In vain I protest I am not a resident here, I did not buy or ask for the gift, I will be using the grip here for only a fraction of its life, and then removing it from this green and pleasant land forever. The Customs here, as in most places in this world, are firm! I must pay 125% on the 133%, or in all, the taxes now amount to 8% plus 25% plus 175%. The 100% grip has now become 308% grip. There is one final little touch I like: one snilling "examination fee" is charged, or in other words, they charge me to charge me.

Weep Santa, Weep,
For the world's disarray,
—Officialdom's banished
Every joy away.

THE moral of the story? Only send your friends in Britain food parcels, on which no duties are charged. It has even been whispered in my presence that clothing parcels have been known to get through without charge, but Customs assures me that this was a mistake. A much nicer mistake than was made in my case.

OH, SAY, CAN YOU HEAR...?

Against Class War

(TORONTO SATURDAY NIGHT)

THE latest encyclical of Pope Pius is a rebuke which is far from being confined to the strikers and fomenters of discord in Italy. It is an appeal to the end that class hatred may be replaced by "collaboration, concord and peaceful work." It is not likely to have much effect upon professed Communists, who have a rival religion to Christianity, and who even in Canada express themselves in language of devotion to Marshal Stalin quite as fervent as that uttered by the most ardent follower of any other religion to the head of his church. But it might and should have some effect upon more moderate Socialists, and notably upon the followers of the C.C.F. party in Canada.

For there is no doubt that the doctrine of the class war is preached quite as emotionally, if not quite as dogmatically, by a good many Canadian Socialists as by Messrs. Tim Buck and Stewart Smith. To say that profits are in themselves immoral—as is preached by almost every Socialist in the country—implies that the class which is in receipt of those immoral profits is an enemy of the classes which do not receive them. It implies that that class performs no service to society either by the provision of capital or by the direction and management of enterprise. From this it is only a step to the conclusion that society should possess itself of these immoral profits and distribute them to the other participants in the productive process, and that this can be done without any loss of production because the profit-receiving classes are making no contribution to production.

The only difference between this and Communism is that the Communists propose to extinguish the claims of the profit-takers by outright confiscation, while the Socialists propose to extinguish them by replacing them with government bonds at a very low rate of interest, which could from time to time be made still lower until it eventually disappears. (If savings continue to be allowed to accumulate and there is no investment outlet for them in private enterprise, they can only be lent to government, and the rate can then be anything that government likes to pay.)

The Vatican, unlike some of the Protestant communions, is committed to the proposition that profits are not in themselves immoral, and that the Marxian doctrine of the class war is unsound. That the receipt of profits imposes great moral obligations on the receiver is not denied by any Christian body, but that is an entirely different proposition. Nor is it denied by any Christian body now, we suppose, that the state is obligated to prevent the "exploitation" (a very vague word) of non-profit takers, whether workers or consumers, who are in a specially disadvantageous position, and to ensure to its more helpless members, especially the very young and the very old, a standard of living compatible with the national standard of decency. But this is not Socialism, it is humanitarianism, and its operations are limited by the fact that under a non-Socialist system capital must still be provided and managed by private savers, and therefore the remuneration available to these providers and managers must continue to be sufficient to induce them to go on saving, providing and managing. Any economic policy which ignores this consideration is either consciously Socialist or is unconsciously paving the way for Socialism by advocating the destruction of the profit-taking class; and that is the class war against which His Holiness protests.

We wonder whether it would not be wise, as well as Christian, for some of the Protestant bodies in Canada to voice a similar appeal for the abandonment of class warfare and the substitution of collaboration and concord.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit.... And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all. But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal.

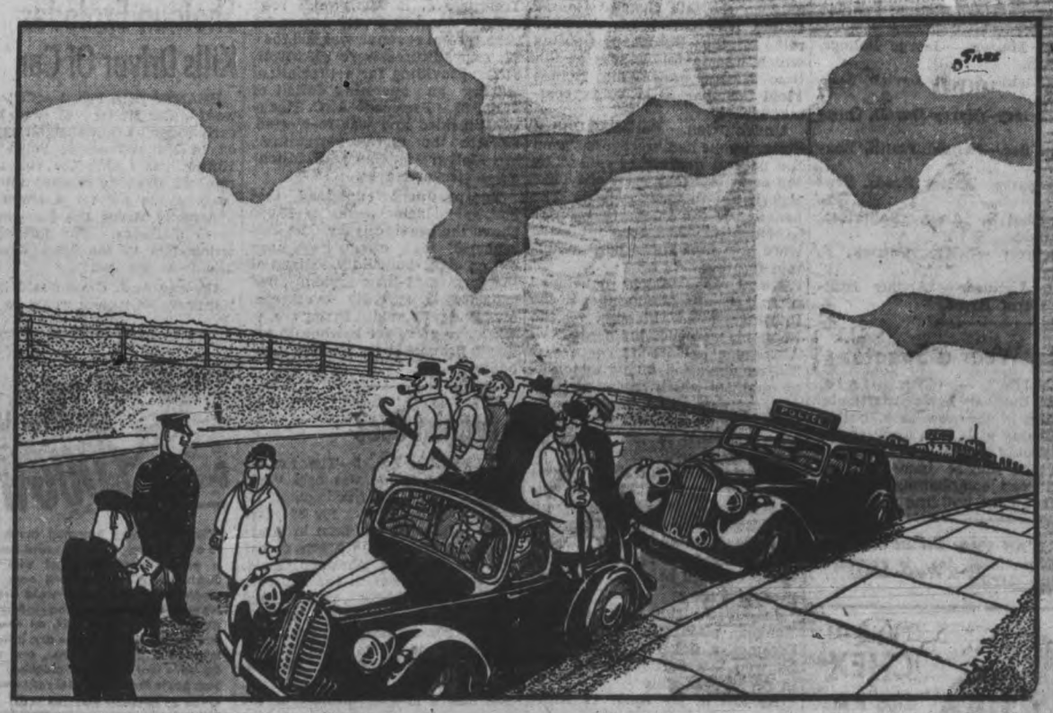
For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit; to another faith by the same Spirit; to another the gifts of healing by the same Spirit....

But all these worketh that one and the selfsame Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will. (I Cor. 12: 4, 8-9, 11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ ...Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. (Eph. 4: 7, 13.)

Letter To The Editor



COMMENT ON SOCIALISM

Sir: About three years ago Blair Fraser of Maclean's magazine asked the three leaders at Ottawa if they would answer some questions. They all said they would. One question was asked Mr. Coldwell, "How long will it take to put your platform into operation." He said it might take a century. Now the C.C.F. want an uninterrupted term in office to put their platform into operation. What does that mean. They will have to control the vote, they are going to take over industries, utilities, banks and farm land. They will put the farms into community farms, so they will have all the voters working for them, that way they hope to control the vote, or a large number. When you have the majority of the people working for the government, you may get 25 per cent. of them to do a good day's work, the balance will not. That is socialism. Under that system there is no initiative to produce and don't forget that it is the countries of private industries that are feeding the countries of Europe. When you take the initiative away from any man to run his own business or a number of men to invest their money in industry, or a farmer to own and operate his farm and make money and be independent you are killing the very best that is in the human being. When the C.C.F. take over any industries, they will have their valuator; he will set the price, the owner will not have any say in it. Harold Winch the C.C.F. leader in B.C. made this statement in Calgary: "When we get control at Ottawa we will use the police force and the military to force the people to submit to our platform." Do you want that kind of government if you do vote C.C.F.

And don't forget that socialism is just a half brother to Communism. Socialism will take away your property, Communism takes away your freedom.

Opposition Barrage Continues Against Price Committee Probe

By GEORGE KITCHEN

OTTAWA, Feb. 5—(CP).—A spirited debate on the rising cost of living today rolled into its fourth day in the Commons behind a continuing barrage of Opposition criticism over the Government's failure to provide a proposed investigating committee with powers to make recommendations.

The discussion yesterday produced its second formal division in two days when the Chamber voted 115 to 87 to sustain Speaker Gaspard Fauteux in a decision ruling out of order the second amendment moved by the CCF group to a Government motion for the establishment of the 166-man committee.

The amendment, moved by M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, urged the House to express the opinion that the situation demands not a committee but Government action to restore price ceilings and subsidies.

Criticizing the Government for failing to provide the committee with powers of recommendation, Mr. Coldwell told the Chamber he thought Opposition members would be "justified" in refusing to participate in the make-up of the committee.

Sharp Denunciation

Sharp denunciation came, too, from John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), who urged the Government to "give the Canadian people a lead, not the promise of a committee rendered impotent, powerless and emasculated in advance." As it stood, the committee would serve as nothing more than a "delaying" organization.

Other speakers included J. L. Gibson (Ind.—Comox-Alberni).

At the Commons opening Revenue Minister McCann said compulsory savings collected by the government during the war are being retained against arrears in income tax payments under the authority of an order-in-council passed Jan. 8.

Added Payments

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said farmers who sold feed grains before the price ceilings were lifted last October will get additional payments from grain companies and pools.

As the prices debate got under way, Mr. Coldwell charged that the government was using the prices committee as a means to "shelve its responsibility" for high prices. It already, in fact, possessed the power to deal with the problem, but had made no effort to use it. He added:—

"I make this statement, that under the circumstances that exist in this House the members in the Opposition would be quite justified in saying to the government: 'We are going to be no party to this manoeuvre; we are not going to participate in a committee of this description'....

"And I say that we should not be a party on this side of the House to allowing the government to hide behind a parliamentary committee."

Mr. Diefenbaker said all Opposition parties wanted action on the cost-of-living question but all they got was a committee which would be "hobbled" and "restrained," which would have "power to be powerless," which could "postpone and procrastinate."

Mr. Gibson suggested the government tackle the problem by "drastically" cutting the eight-per-cent sales tax and exploring the possibility of using subsidies as a "purely emergency measure."

King No Longer Asks Guarantee From Senators

OTTAWA, Feb. 5. —(CP). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King said yesterday in the Commons he could not recall when he stopped asking persons being appointed as senators to agree to support senate reforms.

Replying to a lengthy question placed on the order paper by Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), Mr. King said:

"Perhaps I can make the circumstances clear if I were to remind my honorable friend, the when the Liberal administration came into office in 1921 there were very few Liberals in the senate. And there was a very strong Opposition. Some of the measures which went from the House of Commons to the Senate were defeated there by the Opposition; and the Government here felt, as the British Government did in 1911, that something in the nature of a Parliamentary Act might be necessary in order to ensure that our social and other legislation would not be defeated in the Senate, indefinitely.

'It was that kind of thing which was in my mind when I spoke with different gentlemen before they were formally appointed to the Senate and got their assurance that, in circumstances of the kind, they would support legislation for Senate reform that might come to the Senate from the House.

"There is nothing in the nature of a written pledge. There was no pledge made to the Government as a government. It was an undertaking that was given to myself, as one who was responsible for nominating members to the Senate. How many there were whom I received that assurance from, I cannot say at the present time. Nor am I in a position to say just when I ceased to raise that question. It did not become important later on, when we had a majority in the Senate, and were in a position to see that our own legislation went through."

2 Children Die, 10 Missing In Four-Building Blaze

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Feb. 5—(CP).—Bodies of three adults and two children burned to death in a fire that gutted four two-story buildings and a number of barrack rooms in Port of Spain slum district Wednesday were recovered by firemen. At least 10 other sons, mostly children, are missing and two others are in hospital with severe burns.

Firemen continued to rake the embers for remains of the missing persons. It had not been definitely established how many had been trapped by the blaze.

The fire was believed to have started in a leather goods shop. The alarm was raised when Fitzroy McLean and Bootilal Ramchan, employees in the shop, ran screaming into the street with their clothes afire.

McLean collapsed and a passer-by beat out the flames with his hands.

The blaze, apparently fed by some highly inflammable substance, engulfed the entire area within a few minutes. Residents began streaming from near-by buildings.

Passers-by rescued a number of children and an elderly woman from the top story of one building.

Stairway Collapses

For a time the flames threatened to spread to the opposite side of the street and water had to be diverted to buildings there when the roofs caught fire.

Four buildings were gutted and another six were damaged.

Benjamin Sandiford, who rescued two children, said he was in the upper storey of one of the buildings where a woman and three children lived.

He assisted two of the children down the stairs and called to the woman to follow him.

The stairway collapsed suddenly, he said, and he jumped to safety, leaving the woman and child behind.

The building destroyed had been scheduled for demolition under a slum-clearance scheme.

Six other buildings were levelled in a fire yesterday, but no one was injured. They included a grocery shop, rum shop and four bars.

McCready Unmasks The Mask But Marvel Recovers His Hood

The Masked Marvel was neither masked nor marvellous against strong Earl McCready in the main bout at the Brock Arena last evening. The Aurora farmer actually ripped off his mask, though it didn't identify the Marvel, who promptly covered his face with a towel till the referee returned his mask. Bert Maxwell explained later: "He doesn't have to unmask until he's beaten, and the other side lost on Ben Sharpe's fall."

It was an odd match with the Mask taking on Sharpe and then McCready, when he won over big Ben. The latter, at 237 pounds, was taller than the Mask, but the mystery man scaled 257 pounds and he was plenty strong and also employed illegal tactics throughout. He was highly unpopular while Ben drew a lot of applause, especially from the bobby-soxers. And Ben made it a scrap, more than holding his own at times, but he couldn't cope with the combination of villainy and strength, and finally ruthlessness when the Mask pounded away unmercifully at Sharpe's bad knee—wrenched recently—till Ben had to concede the fall. It lasted 19 minutes, and the big crowd saw a lot of hot action.

Earl Better

McCready took over then and actually out-pointed the Marvel most of the way. The Mask again started it off rough but found he had a tough nut to crack in 240-pound McCready, just back from a New Zealand tour. Earl has always ploughed in and he did it last night, roughing it up, too, and slamming the referee out of his way when he got peeved. They were out of the ring at times and they slammed each other about hard, but McCready did most of the punishing, and he had the whole house with him strongly when he yanked off the mask. He was in position to win half a dozen times—including after the bell—but the powerful Marvel just escaped each time. It was an exciting joust all the way to the time limit.

Nanjo Singh, the 230-pound Hindu, won the semi-final in 21 minutes from 225-pound Mario Renaldi with his "cobra" hold. Mario argued afterward that it was a choke hold, but it apparently was strong pressure on both sides—not the front of the neck, an uconscious grip. The Hindu, quite unpopular with the crowd, used everything but the Indian rope trick (and he did play the ropes at times) in a rough showing, while Renaldi fought back furiously to give him plenty of trouble at times. It was a pretty open match with a lot of wrestling served up, must of it the rough variety, and the fans liked the action.

Wee Willie

Wee Willie Davis, the 265-pound Hollywood movie villain, won the prelim from Don McIntyre, 226, after smacking his back on the ring apron (when both were out of the ring) and then slamming him into the ring turnbuckle and flattening him. It was a torrid tussle throughout with the huge and unpopular Davis doing everything he could think of to end it soon. But his fighting opponent lasted 24 minutes with a fine display in the red-hot scrap—in and out the ring—before he finaly succumbed. The fans roared almost continuously as the pair battle it out back and froth, paying no never mind to referee's warnings.

PCVS Cagers Victors Over Trinity

The PCVS Senior A and Junior A boys' basketball teams combined for the fourth time for exhibition games, defeated the Trinity College School senior team at the PCVS gym yesterday afternoon, 39-31. The score almost duplicated the one of the game played at Port Hope a few weeks ago between the same two teams—that one was 39-21.

As in the first game at TCS, the first half was close and keenly contested. The home team combines went to the rest period ahead this time 18-16. McKee and Thompson produced the majority of these 18 points with two and three baskets respectively. Gaunt with three, Williams and Wismer with two each, led the TCS attack.

Had The Edge

A third quarter superiority again spelled victory for the PCVS team as TCS was outscored 11-4 after the rest. The last quarter was all even with 20 points evenly divided between the two teams. McKee with three more hoops and Northcott with two, plus Lee's field goal and two successful free throws accounted for most of the home team second half scoring. Gaunt and Williams had two hoops each for TCS, while Wismer had a hoop and two free throw scores.

The teams:

PCVS: McKee 10, Welsh 2, Richardson 4, Connell, Lee 6, Northcott 4, Morrison, Thompson 6, Sergeant, Dinsdale, Grafstein 2, H. Dibben 5. Total 39.

TCS: Williams 8, Vernan, Wismer 8, Bascom, Rogers 4, Spencer, Sweeny, Watts, Gaunt 11, Emery, Snowdon. Total 31.

Lions Advance In OMHA With 12-3 Win

Lions eliminated Lindsay 8-2 (and 12 to 3 on the round) on Lakefield ice last night in their OMHA bantam playdown series. They hopped in from the first faceoff and put on the pressure, with Ferguson picking a corner early. McCormick drove one from the blue line to hit the post and McGrath cuffed in the rebound.

Dawson of Lindsay scored on a long shot and Spencer combined with Pammett to tally for Ray Pammett's pack. It was 3-1 to end the first and they also had a 3-1 margin in the second chukker. Ferguson got the first one again and McGrath added another on a power play. McCormick counted his second point and later tallied once more. Brown bagged the Scugog tally in a scramble. Play roughed up and Pammett was gated but got back in time to break away and hoist one into the net corner. Tempers flared and penalties were passed out to Ferguson, Pammett, Lockwood and Brown.

Lindsay: Goal, MacLeish; defence, Finney and Stockler; centre, Trotter; wings, Dawson and Brown; alternates, Lockwood, Burns, Race, Hutton, O'Neil, Hickson and Morton.

Lions: Goal, Delahaye; defence, Stewart and Byrne; centre, Pammett; wings, Langhorne and Spencer; alternates, McGrath, Ferguson, Scriver, McCormick, McGillen and O'Brien.

Such A Rink Needed

It is hoped that the Peterborough public will really aid this project financially. Already CGE Club 72 announces a Feb. 12 dance with all proceeds going to the rink committee. But a hefty sum is required if it is to be a 1948 realization. The city certainly needs more than the one auditorium—and the Community Centre will be used for other winter spectacles than hockey, such as ice follies, etc. So, even when it is built some years hence, it will not come close to accommodating all the city and district hockey teams, and all the skaters, too. The Brock St. rink served its purpose 10 and 15 years ago (even then being crowded) but the city has grown more than 10,000 since then. And will likely continue to grow. So we certainly require two covered rinks in a city this size.

Petes play Legionnaires at 8.30 tomorrow eve in Lindsay, their last scheduled OHA senior "B" fixture ere group playoffs commence. It is a natural, as all these clashes between the local feuding clubs are. And there should be another big crowd on deck for the duel, which is sure to be a scrap from start to finish on good ice. Legion reckon they've got to crack that Petes' jinx before playoffs and it might as well be now. Both sides play for keeps and serve up a lot of streamlined hockey. Don't pass this one up.

Saints Take Legion

Following their 6-3 reverse in Kingston last night, the Legionnaires have to pull up their socks and get in there. They are still in second place but just one game ahead of the Saints and a tilt and a half in front of Belleville. It's a great scramble for the second and third playoff spots, while the Petes are showing their heels to the pack at present. Legion battled hard all the way against a bolstered Saints' squad but couldn't make it. Bud Goodfellow (a rough hombre) felled Bill Crowley near the finish of the fray and a free-for-all broke out, with Referee Speedy St. Louis having a tough time quelling the young riot. Some talk of a protest over the affair.

Lions bantams and Rotary midgets moved into the second round of OMHA playdowns last night in Lakefield as they eliminated Lindsay opponents in rather decisive manner. Lions took their round 12-3 and the Rotarians rubbed out the Scugog lads 18-7 in two tussles. Fine stuff, fellows, keep up the good work. They don't know what comes next on the list, nor when. No word received this morn on the Trojans' tilt, and it could be that they lost. We're always suspicious when no card is turned in. PMHA fixtures resume tomorrow p.m. at the Bowl d'Ashburnham like this: Morrow Club bantams vs. Northenders at 7.00, Trojan midgets vs. St. Peter's at 8.15, and Kinsmen juveniles vs. Marines at 9.15.

His Face Denuded

Lot of excitement at the Brock last night in the mat show as Earl McCready out-pointed and unmasked the Masked Marvel. But the huge Marvel covered his face till his second, Wee Willie Davis, threw him a towel which he put over his head until he got his mask back. He had previously pinned Ben Sharpe and lasted the limit with Earl, so didn't have to unmask. McCready said after: "I said I'd beat him and unmask him and I did one—and should have won, too. I promise to do both if I meet him again, and I never break a promise." If they're re-matched here, it should be quite a scrap over the distance, as Earl had to share his hour with Ben last p.m. Nanjo Singh did a "cobra" on Mario Renaldi in the semi-windup, and Wee Willie Davis, at 265, took Don McIntyre in the prelim. Willie is a movie villain at Hollywood, being in three pictures in the past six months. He and Mike Mazurki pick up nice do-re-mi as movie villains when they aren't the mat variety.

Kingston Takes A 6-3 Win Against Legion

KINGSTON, Feb. 5—(CP)—Kingston Saints playoff prospects took on a brighter hue last night as they downed a battling Peterborough Legion team 6-3 in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior "B" game last night.

Kingston took a two-goal lead in the first period on goals by Jack Aitken and Cameron. Peterborough came out battling at the start of the second session and tied the game up when Hicks and Rochetta tallied.

Tom Goodfellow banged in the next Kingston marker at the 7:15 mark of the second period, only to have the game knotted up again by Parnall seconds later.

Took Lead

At the 12:45 mark a Catlin to Cameron play gave the Kingston team a goal lead to end the scoring in the middle frame.

Kingston clinched the game in the third period, banging in two goals without a reply by a fighting Peterborough squad.

With only 56 seconds remaining in the game B. Goodfellow tangled with Crowley of the Legionnaires and dropped him to the ice. Players of both teams engaged in a general free-for-all and referee St. Louis had trouble restoring order.

It is understood that a protest will be filed with league heads as a result of this attack on the Peterborough player.

MARCHWELL, Sask. — (CP) — More than 60 men of this village on the Manitoba border have pledged not to shave from New Year's Day until Easter as part of a beard-growing contest to help raise funds to replace the town hall which burned last fall. If they default they'll be fined $5.

PRE-LENTEN GAIETY—With more than two years of peace under their belts, the people of France can now turn more wholeheartedly than ever into the season of pre-Lenten gaiety. Flyers Tied For First Place At Olympics, Whip U.S. Team

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 5 (CP). — Canada, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia were tied for first place in the hockey tournament held in conjunction with the Olympic Games after all three teams kept intact their unbeaten records in to-day's games.

Canada's RCAF Flyers handed the United States Amateur Hockey Association team a 12-3 trouncing for the Americans' second defeat and Switzerland downed Sweden 8-2. Czechoslovakia was idle to-day, after taking their fifth victory yesterday. Canada previously defeated Sweden 3-1.

Each of the three leaders now have 10 points for five victories. In the event of a tie at the conclusion of the tournament the winner will be decided by the highest quotient of goals scored over goals against. Canada, with only five goals scored against them in the tournament for 54 scored against other teams, currently holds this type of lead.

In a second-division game today Britain defeated Poland 7-2. It was Britain's second victory against three losses and brought them into a tie with Poland who now have two victories for four losses.

The defeat of the United States team virtually put them out of the top competition. They now have three victories against two defeats for six points, four behind the leaders.

Leads Offensive

Walter Halder led the Canadian offensive today with six goals — four of them scored in brilliant solo efforts.

In the fast, hard game, Bruce Cunliffe was the spark plug for the Americans. He tallied two goals and played a good all-around game. But the Canadian defence, which had yielded only two goals up today, was too tight.

Halder scored his first after 30 seconds with a waist-high shot from a difficult angle. George Mara added another close in and Halder made the third for Canada shortly after Cunliffe had scored for the United States.

The Canadians made four goals in less than six minutes at the start of the second period to sew up the game. Halder made two of these. Mara and Lecompte made the others.

To start the third period, Stanton Priddy of the United States netted one in 20 seconds in a scramble at the mesh. Halder promptly came back with two single-handed goals after taking the puck the length of the rink.

Cunliffe got a long shot for the Americans and then Shroeter and Mara, with two long ones, made it a rout for Canada.

High-Flying Leafs Dump Crippled Bruins By 4-2

By The Canadian Press

The high-flying Toronto Maple Leafs cleared another obstacle in the team's bid for the National Hockey League pennant that had them stymied since March 6, 1945. The Leafs, winless after 16 games at Boston ice, came through yesterday and handed the crippled Bruins a 4-2 defeat to move within a game and a half of the league-leading Detroit Red Wings who were held to a 4-4 stalemate by New York Rangers in the only other Wednesday night game.

TURF MAN DIES—The Earl of Derby, 82, ex-cabinet minister and one of the world's prominent sportsmen, died at his country home.

The Leafs' victory was no surprise, since Boston's Milt Schmidt was sidelined with a leg injury. However, the Leafs were forced to exert themselves to overcome their never-say-die adversaries who grabbed a two-goal lead in the contest, before Toronto's scoring power found the range.

Jimmy Peters, traded to Boston by Canadiens earlier in the season, was the big gun for the Bruins as he blasted goals past big Turk Broda in the first and second periods. But Toronto, scoring all four markers in the second period with Howie Meeker, Bill Ezinicki, Max Bentley and Ted Kennedy performing, ran rings around the Bruins in this session. Boston settled down in the stretch drive and again took over control of the play, but the stout Leaf rearguard proved too effective.

Slug It Out

The highlight of the contest was a lusty exchange between Don Gallinger and Gus Mortson in the first period. Both were waved to the sidelines with major penalties.

Scoring twice in a wild third period New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings ended the game in a disputed deadlock.

Ted Lindsay notched two goals for Detroit to move his season's total to 25 while Buddy O'Connor also picked up two markers to increase his leading point total to 46 points, five more than his nearest rival.

Don Raleigh and Edgar Laprade notched the other New York goals while Syd Abel, Red Kelly were the Detroit marksmen.

Abel's goal which came in the last half minute of play with Detroit playing four forwards and without goaler Harry Lumley, gave the finishing touches to a closely contested game.

The tail-end Chicago Black Hawks tackle the Montreal Canadiens at Montreal tonight in a contest that Dick Irvin's boys hope will put them in sole possession of the league's fourth berth. Canucks tied with Bruins will have the opportunity as that is the only game scheduled.

Tigers Trip Marlies In 1-0 Triumph

By The Canadian Press.

George Redding's Hamilton Tigers to-day have a four-point lead over Joe Primeau's Toronto Marlboros in the OHA Senior A race, thanks to Tigers' 1-0 victory over the Marlies last night at Hamilton.

It was Tigers' third victory in four starts against the Toronto Maple Leafs' farm club, and it was their last scheduled meeting before the play-offs.

The junior games were also decided and the teeter-totter on the top rung levelled off again when Windsor Spitfires climbed into a top-place tie with Oshawa Generals. The Spitfires swamped the ninth-place Toronto St. Michael's Majors 9-3 at Windsor, for their 25th victory in 30 starts, and Stratford Kroehlers defeated Toronto Junior Marlboros 6-2.

The game at Stratford shoved Kroehlers into a tie with Barrie Flyers for third place, a point ahead of Galt Rockets and a long 15 points behind the top-place clubs.

Failed to Click.

At Hamilton both teams drove for 44 minutes before Clarence Shillington scored on Howie Harvey in Marlies net. Toronto put six forwards with 10 seconds left but failed to click on the final face-off.

The close-checking tilt at Windsor brought out 15 minor penalties and four majors. The Spitfires took a one-goal lead in first period and moved into a 4-2 lead at the end of second.

Gord Haidy led the Windsor marksmen with four goals with the other counters scored by Doug McKay, Marcel Pronovost, Max Quackenbush, Jack Taylor, and Jimmy Uniac. Toronto snipers were Ed Hannigan, Joe DeCourcy, and Bill Oberholtzer.

The Kroehlers were sure they had a shutout in their hands for the first 53 minutes of play, but Bobby Hassard and Ray Timgren scored two quick ones for Toronto in the game's final minutes.

Joe Beda with two goals led Stratford, while George Armstrong, Dinny Flanagan, Frank Candle, and Clare McMinn tallied the others.

Gershwin's Hit "Rhapsody" Tops In Sales

By CHARLES HONCE

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 (AP). — Are you still playing, singing or listening to the music of George Gershwin?

The chances are that the answer is yes, since Gershwin's music is more popular today—almost 11 years after the composer's death —s than ever before.

Can it be possible that the one-time Tin Pan Alley tunesmith who died at 38, will turn out to be the United States' most enduring composer?

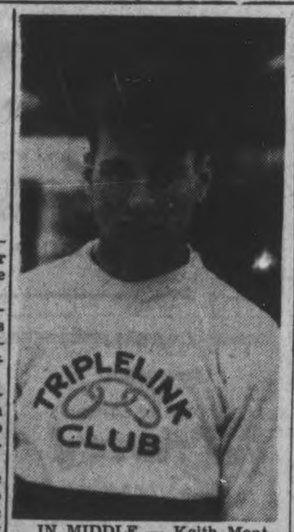
The long-haired boys may be expected to hem and haw or to record a prompt no! But the record of Gershwin's continuing and increasing popularity is something you don't just casually shrug off. The fact remains that probably the most widely known and popular modern composition by an American is a Gershwin work.

The number is "Rhapsody in Blue."

The subject is particularly apropos at this time because the "Rhapsody" will have a birthday on Feb. 12 — its 24th. Curiously, that is pretty close to the age of the composer when he hurriedly turned it out on commission from Paul Whiteman in 1924.

The "Rhapsody" placed both second and third on "Billbord's" recent compilation of 1947's "top selling classical record albums over retail counters," based on weekly reports from 1,000 retailers.

Led The Field



The number one item was Rachmaninoff's "Concerto No. 2 in C Minor," but as the total points scored for second and third places top the Rachmininoff number, it can be said that Gershwin actually led the field. The second-place recording was that of the Philadelphia orchestra, directed by Eugene Ormandy and with Oscar Levant at the piano. The third-place recording was by the man who started it all—Paul Whiteman.

Gershwin died in Hollywood of a brain tumor on July 11, 1937. He was born in Brooklyn Sept. 26, 1898, and so would have been only 49 today.

It is idle to speculate what heights he might have scaled had he been spared for 11 more years of composition. Probably it is enough to say that in a comparatively brief career he was able to win a unique place in American music. However, it is worth noting that while his "Second Rhapsody" (1931) is a comparatively minor effort, and his "Cuban Overture" (1934) is no great shakes among his larger works, he actually was at the peak of his powers in his last major production. This was the folk opera "Porgy and Bess" (1935).

At the time of Gershwin's death, critics debated whether his eventual fame would stem from the musical comedy stage or the concert hall. The question is pretty well decided now. The evidence is on the side of the concert hall.

The record shows that such orchestral works as the "Rhapsody," the "Concerto," and "An American in Paris," and the "Porgy and Bess" music are head over heels in front of the greater part of the work Gershwin did in musical comedy.

IN MIDDLE — Keith Montgomery of the Triple Link junior OHA club is in the middle of a controversy between Petes and Legion as to his services. He has played two games so far with the Petes, as well as on the Lakefield TVL team, and expects to see junior "B" action again shortly.

Ice Anglers Get Whitefish

ALLANDALE, Ont., Feb. 5 (CP).—With meat prices climbing beyond family budgets, about 40 people in this district follow a sporting method of augmenting daily protein rations. Sitting in snug little huts, they spend their spare winter days pulling whitefish out of holes in Lake Simcoe's frozen surface.

Every winter, at the beginning of January, they haul their runner-mounted huts out over the lake and choose their spot. It's a heavy job to pull the plywood or framed-canvas huts a mile over the ice, but fishermen are clannish folk and usually work in groups. While the wind howls across the ice they sit in comfort on home-made benches, warmed by a tiny coal-stove set on a built-in shelf on the wall, about a foot above the ice.

One group has a trick of its own for luring fish onto hooks. Into a coffee can with holes punched in the bottom boiled rice is placed. They they lower the can, upright, down to the bottom and with a sharp tug on the line, upset the can, scattering the rice. The whitefish gobble the rice and occasionally the fishermen's hooks, baited with salted minnows.

Like many other sports, ice fishing has its hazards. As long as the weather is cold and there is a 10-inch floor of ice under the hunt no one worries, but a sudden thaw can be disastrous. And signs of a blizzard are the fisherman's cue to get off the lake in a hurry.

A fair day's catch is about five whitefish, which can be sold at good prices, or go to the home table to keep down the cost of living. But the profit motive is not a compelling one for many of the fishermen, who will often present part of their catch to non-fishing neighbors.

Bisons Edge Ramblers 2-1; Hornets In Tie

By The Canadian Press

Pittsburgh Hornets and Buffalo Bisons continued today to pace one-two at the top of the American Hockey league's western division as the teams started down the home stretch.

Hornets kept ahead of Buffalo by tying Cleveland 2-2 last night but the charging Bisons whittled the lead to one slim point by nipping New Haven Ramblers 2-1.

In the only other game Philadelphia edged Washington 7-6.

Hornets were forced to come from behind a 2-0 deficit at Cleveland in order to earn a deadlock, the fourth this season between the two clubs. Jack Hamilton and Stan Kempt fired goals in the third period to knot the count after Fred Thurier and Bob Solinger had given Barons an early lead.

Buffalo also had to come from behind. Jean Paul Denis potted a goal at the halfway mark of the opening period but from then on goalie Chuck Rayner was unbeatable. Bisons finally hit the scoring column in the third period with Doug Lewis and Tommy Cooper counting.

Canadian School Evolves Its Own Style of Skiing

By LUCIEN LACHAPELLE

STE. MARGUERITE, Que., Feb. 5—(CP).—The Canadian Ski School this season rounds out its first decade of operation and is well on its way to evolving a peculiarly Canadian style in skiing. This has been recognized by the Canadian Amateur Ski Association which heeded the request of several Canadian ski organizations and established The Travelling Ski School being carried on in Northern Ontario and Manitoba.

After years of experimentation, Canadian teachers have developed a ski style easily adaptable to Dominion slopes—either in east or west. It has been evolved over the years from the famed Alberg, parallel, French and Swiss techniques, and, as now taught, is said to greatly benefit beginners, amateurs and "play by ear" skiers.

One valuable thing about the CSS courses is that a westerner holidaying in the Laurentians and taking lessons there can, when he goes home, find an instructor who can pick up the same trend of teaching.

One-Week Course

An aspiring instructor goes through a one-week course every season for three seasons or more before he is accepted by the Canadian Ski School as a qualified instructor.

Considerable influence on the development of ski technique has come from Louis Cochand of Ste. Marguerite, chief examiner of the C.S.S. and three other Quebecers —Luggi Foeger of St. Jovite, Fritz Loosli of Lac Beauport and Emile Allais of Valcartier. These three men are expert instructors and the combination of styles they now teach some day will be recognized as purely Canadian.

"For the first time, would-be instructors really know and understand what we are talking about," Foeger said in commenting on this winter's school course. "Its really something."

The skiing manual as evolved by the Canadian Ski School and the Canadian Ski Instructors' Alliance is largely responsible for this understanding.

In a short foreword the manual states that from it there should develop a distinct technique adaptable not only to downhill, slalom, cross-country racing and jumping, but also to touring, the type of skiing which gives the maximum of pleasure to the greatest number of people.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

Barbara Ann Scott, Canada's cover girl, has "at least two ardent admirers," but "she is no more engaged than I am," Mrs. Clyde Scott said in an interview yesterday at St. Moritz.

But the mother of the world's champion figure skater qualified the last part of her remark with: "As far as I know."

Barbara Ann who will be 20 on May 19, has no thought of turning professional, her mother said. Next week she defends her world title, won last year at Stockholm.

The leader of thousands of amateur athletes across Canada came out bluntly yesterday at Montreal with the opinion that any idea that the Olympic Games ever had a chance to promote goodwill among nations is "ridiculous and we ought to drop that notion entirely."

George C. Machum, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, told the Canadian Press the Games should be looked upon "solely as a test of comparative athletic ability, and let it go at that."

"If goodwill should accrue, so much the better, but its failure to materialize should not be deplored and too much should not be expected."

Two Oshawa Curling Club veteran skips, Al Parkhill and Bill Gifford, will play their deciding game at Oshawa to-day to see which rink will represent this district in the single rink provincial play-offs at Hamilton on February 12.

Winner of eight rinks, meeting at Schumacher Saturday for the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario curling championship, will go to Copper Cliff Feb. 16 for a series with the Northern Association's champions to decide the Northern Ontario representative in the Dominion championships at Calgary, secretary E. O. Wallis of the McIntyre Curling Club said yesterday.

On Monday Premier Drew is expected to open the week-long 18th annual bonspiel of the T.N. O., at Schumacher.

Stan Leonard, one of Canada's top professional golfers, said yesterday at Vancouver that he and Bobby Locke, South African star, may tour western Canadian cities after the Canadian open is finished in September at Vancouver. "We will likely hit Victoria, Edmonton, Calgary, Saskatoon and Winnipeg," said Leonard

Plan $6,000 Purses At Norwich Stakes

TORONTO, Feb. 5 — (CP). — The International stakes, made up of the three-year-old Dan Patch Pace and the International three-year-old Trot, will be held at Norwich, Ont., July 7, by the Norwich Driving Club, it was announced last night during the meetings of the Canadian Trotting Association and the standard bred horse Society.

The races will be for purses estimated at $6,000.

All directors of the standard bred Society were re-elected with H. E. Hatch of Toronto as president; J. W. Brown, New Liskeard, vice-president; and Dr. J. S. Ferguson, Chatham, honorary president.

Ray Powell Leads Pla-Mors To 9-4 Win

By The Associated Press

Ray Powell rocketed into second place in individual scoring in the United States Hockey League as he led the Kansas City Pla-Mors to a 9-4 victory over Dallas Texans last night.

Powell, who was sixth at the end of the previous week, fired in three goals and added four assists.

Doug Baldwin also scored three at Kansas City last night in the Pla-Mors' victory and Johnny Harms sent the disc into the nets twice for the winners.

Minneapolis Millers continued a winning streak at the expense of St. Paul's Saints in the only other game. The Millers went into a 1-0 lead on their home ice and skated off with a 3-1 decision on the basis of two goals in the final period.

Bus Wycherley and Stan Smith fired in the third-period clinchers for the Millers. St. Paul's only scorer was Mitch Pechet.

Tonight's schedule sends Kansas City to Omaha in the only game.

600 Skaters Attend HespelerRinkOpening

HESPELER, Feb. 5.— The Hespeler Memorial Arena opened its doors Wednesday night — but there were no official opening ceremonies.

The $130,000 structure, most pretentious of its type in the district, remains without an artificial ice plant and a natural ice surface is being used. Some 600 pleasure skaters took advantage of the opening.

The municipally owned arena intends to have some sort of ceremony with installation of the delayed artificial ice equipment — perhaps in two or three weeks. The arena seats some 2,500 and it is expected that it will serve OHA and other circuit teams from Wellington and Waterloo Counties. Outside of Galt, it will be the only artifiical ice arena in the district.

Meanwhile, OHA intermediate and junior schedules have been disrupted through holdup of the ice equipment at the border. The project was started last winter.

F. O'Toole High With 313 In Mercantile

In the Mercantile League Bowling League play this week, Tip Tops swept A & P 4-0 and Braund's No. 2 blanked Prudential by default. A 3-1 win was racked up by Maher's over City Hall, as New Centre broke even with Lift Lock, and Loblaw's divided points with Braund's No. 1. High pinnage went to Braund's No. 1 with 2859, two pins better than Tip Tops, and New Centre had high single game of 1083. Bill Saunders of Tip Tops led in triples with 713 while Florence O'Toole hit a smashing high single of 313 for A & P.

The games between Loblaw's and Braund's No. 1 were close, Loblaw's winning the first game by four pins and the third by seven. Braund's margin in the second stanza gave them the game and pinnage to split even. Results:

Hall Of Fame For Golfers Too

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 — (AP) — Golf's hall of fame had been a dormant affair until the Golf Writers' Association recently began a poll to pick the golfer of the year . . . nevertheless, a committee, named some years ago listed Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Francis Oumet, Chic Evans, Tommy Armour, Alexa Stirling Fraser and Jim Barnes as eight golfers who belonged among golf's "immortals." . . . the project is about to be revived and this corner offers the suggestion that it should not be limited to United States golfers — after all, golf is a Scots game — and that machinery should be set up to elect such golfers as Jim Vardon and Ted Ray . . . come to think of it, South Africa's Bobby Locke may be a candidate whenever his competitive career ends . . . off his record last summer and this winter, Bobby may be the first foreign player to win the United States Open title since Ray did it many years ago.

Sports Before your Eyes

Babe Zaharias Didrickson insists the only golf tournament she will enter this year is the titlists event at Augusta, Ga., unless she is ruled eligible for the United States Open. So far the only answer from the U.S. Golf Association has been that entry blanks aren't ready yet.

Gordon McCrea Gets Build-up In Crooner Role

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 5 (AP).—You may have thought that the crooner cycle was on the wane but not so for Gordon McCrea. He is due for a stellar build-up at Warners.

The singer got a movie break in the 17-day "Fighting Terror" in which he doesn't warble a note. He'll play a lead in "Rise Above It," a musical version of "Brother Rat" and portray Marilyn Miller's first husband in "Silver Lining" opposite June Haver.

Confusion Department.

Barry Fitzgerald's agent denies the Irish star has been set for the biscuit biog, which report came from a Warners source.

Judy Garland won't be playing Sophie Tucker, as Sophie hoped. The part obviously calls for a bigger (physically) gal . . . Dick Powell has been mentioned to replace ailing Charles Boyer in "Cairo Incident."

James Stewart will open in "Harvey" in New York March 28, play it for a month and return for "You Gotta Stay Happy" with Joan Fontaine.

Yvonne in the News.

Hurd Hatfield escorted Vancouver's Yvonne DeCarlo to Martin Block's 13th anniversar party, but don't take the combination seriously. Hurd will do the Yehudi Menuhin film, "Delirium," and may go to Italy for a Columbia picture . . .

Walter Huston is being boomed for an Academy Award for "Sierra Madre," but his supporters will have to wait until 1949. Because Warners released the film here a few days after the Academy deadline. Maybe hey did not want home competition for their hopeful epic, "Life With Father."

Canadiens And Wings

Canadiens beat Leafs 2-1 and Wings knocked off Rangers 8-2 in Trojan puck play last night. Dunn and Kennedy counted in the first fray for the winners with Griffin, Dunn and Merritt getting assists, while Frizzelle scored for Leafs. In the other tilt, Wings' goals were garnered by McDougall (3), Pagett (2), Lundy (2) and Bailey. Batley had three assists, McDougall two, and Herbison, Pagett and Bloom one each. L. Clarke got one for Rangers from Dummitt, and Johnston got the other from [illegible].

JUST BEFORE 1914 — The Duke of Windsor in training (left) at Aldershot, just before war was declared in 1914 and as a subaltern in the Grenadier Guards just before his departure for France.

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

Our German connections inevitably gave rise to awkard situations; and my parents' behaviour was an object lesson in public manners; for they never sacrificed kindliness and simple humanity to the passions of the moment.

One situation involved by father's first cousin by marriage, the First Sea Lord, Admiral Prince Louis of Battenberg, who had been born in Austria of a German father.

A public clamour arose. It was said that it would be iniquitous and treasonable thing to leave the Royal Navy under a German, but my father, incensed over what he considered a slander upon one of Britain's finest technical naval officers, not to mention his own cousin, fought hard to save him.

The smear campagn was taken up by the popular Press and finally reached the floor of Parliament.

In the end "Uncle Louis" had no alternative but to resign. I called upon him at the Admiralty while all the fuss was going on and the hurt showed in his tired, lined face.

'This is indeed an ignominious end to a lifetime of loyal service to the British Navy," he said. "but I shall not allow this to embitter me against my country of adoption."

The King stood by him to the end.

My Army commission was signed by my father. On being gazetted to the Grenadier Guards, I was posted to the King's company of the 1st Battalion, stationed at Warley Barracks, Brentwood, Essex.

This was a special honor, since my modest five feet seven inches failed by a conspicuous margin to meet the minimum height of 6 ft. required for officers and enlisted men of this company. I was a pigmy among giants.

For five weeks I trained hard with the battalion. We took long route marches, and fired on the ranges. And with the newest ensigns and recruits I paraded under the sergeant-major for "squad drill on the square."

Back at Wellington Barracks in Birdcake-walk in London, the sudden granting of 48-hour leave was a sure sign that the battalion was going overseas.

But my immediate transfer to the 3rd Battalion Grenadiers, stationed at the same barracks, confirmed my earlier suspicions that I would be left behind.

It was a terrible blow to my pride, the worst in my life.

I went at once to see my father at the Palace, and, trying to conceal my bitterness, I asked why this had to be.

My father answered that it was not his fish but Lord Kitchener's. "Lord Kitchener," he said, 'does not want you in France just now."

Lord Kitchener was Secretary of State for War. Face to face with this immense, fierce-looking man, one would have said that all the slow, stubborn purpose of Britain was concentrated behind his somewhat florid countenance. He listened to my case.

"What does it matter if I am killed?" I insisted. "I have four brothers."

Kitchener's steely blue eyes met mine. He answered: "If I were sure you would be killed I do not know if I should be right to restrain you. But I cannot take the chance, which always exists until we have a settled line, of the enemy taking you prisoner."

As an ensign commanding a platoon, or at most 40 men, I would have put a lower valuation upon myself.

Resigned to "West End duties," I reported to the 3rd Battalion. By now my drill was sufficiently good for me to go on "King's Guard," and the adjutant accordingly passed me "off the square."

Then for two months, I took part in the guard mounting ceremonies which had thrilled me as a smal boy, and at the end commanded the detachment which guarded my father.

But now with the British Army hanging by a thread at Ypres, the fulfilment of a childhood dream seemed to have lost some of its point.

For the casualty lists had begun to appear, and I found the names of my friends, including brother officers in the Brigade of Guards with whom I had trained only a few short weeks before.

My equerry "Willie" Cadogan was killed with the 10th Hussars; father's equerries lost their lives about the same time, causing me to exclaim in my diary, "I shan't have a friend left soon."

Against the background of these incredible sacrifices my efforts therafter to find an honorable place in the fighting were of small importance, except to myself.

Eventually, on November 16, 1914, at my father's direction, I was sent overseas as a junior staff officer attached to the General Headquarters of Field Marshal Sir John French, Commander-in-Chief, British Expeditionary Force.

It was no doubt a lucky thing for the British Army that not many soldiers were sent off to war in quite the same way as I

The last order my father gave me was that I should in no circumstances go into the fighting nor travel the roads behind the front alone.

After a mean Channel crossing to Boulogne and a bleak drive to St. Omer I reported to Sir John.

St. Omer is a small provincial town in the department of Pas de Calais. With my soldier servant, Finch, now in the khaki of an enlisted man, I shared a small house with half a dozen staff officers.

At St. Omer I had my first look at war—the Headquarters view. We were about 30 miles from the fighting, out of earshot of all but the heaviest artillery bombardments.

Sir John French had surrounded himself with older officers and friends who instinctively thought of war in terms of the skirmishes and bivouacs of the Boer War.

They liked their food and comforts, and in the opinion of us young subalterns were often out of touch with what was actually happening in the line.

I well recall my father's incredulous expression when, during his first visit to the troops in France in late November 1914. Sir John assured him the war would be over by Christmas.

Montreal Girls Beat Thugs 'With No Holds Barred'

MONTREAL, Feb. 5. (CP) — Montreal girls are fighting it out first—no holds barred — with purse-snatchers and gunmen and then screeching for the cops only after the bewildered thugs have fled.

Mrs. Agnes Dunn was walking along the street yesterday when a man brushed her and tried to grab her purse. She bit him. By the time she thought of yelling the man was a block away.

Miss Mary Coughlin varied the attack, but the result was the same with another would-be snatcher. She swung a lusty left.

But the star performer was Miss Beverley Shulman. When she answered the door bell last night a man, with pointed revolver, tried to force his way in. "I'll shoot," he said.

Miss Shulman socked him on the jaw. He came back for more and they grappled. She got her hands free and scratched him all over the face. That slowed him up. Then she kicked him in the stomach. He went stumbling groggily on his way.

Said Miss Shulman: "He was certainly afraid."

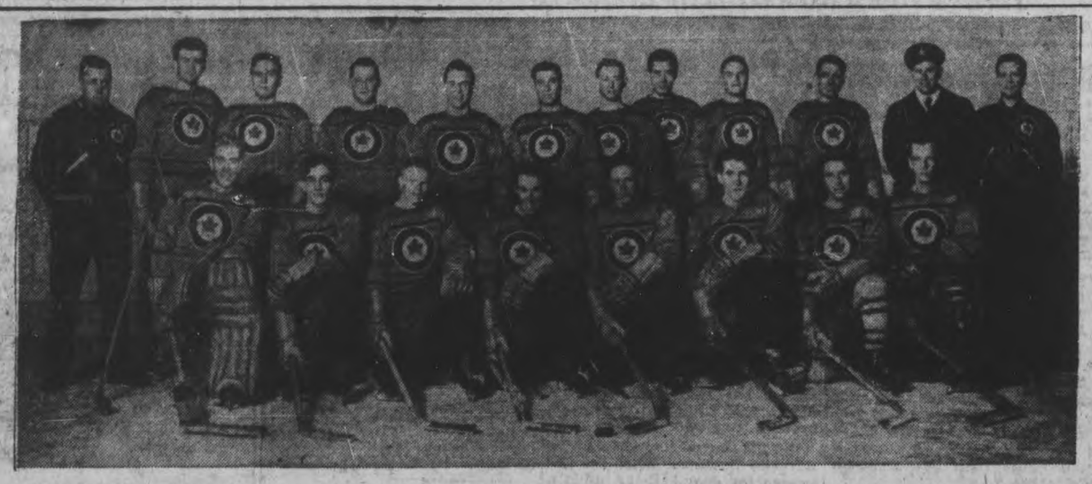
Quick Lease Nashua Plant Being Sought

Ald. P. J. Anglesey, chairman of the industrial development committee, gave the members of the council a fleeting progress report on the factory owned by the city and recently vacated by Nashua Paper Co.

It had been transpiring that pressure is being applied for quick lease of the north half of the plant. Canadian Sealright remain in occupation and use of the part which they had rented from Nashua Paper Co. With the consent of the council the lease was transferred to Sealright.



Ald. Anglesey informed the finance committee as it was putting away its correspondence relating to George St. store leases that Mr. Sam J. Whitehouse, manager of Sealright, wanted to get a tenant in the vacant part. Canadian General Electric Co. would like to move in, but the council has been hoping that Timken-Detroit would renew the application which they had made late in 1947. Their immediate coming was tied up by the Dominion government's U.S. exchange measures, particularly in regard to oil burning equipment and machinery.

Incidentally, it was said that the rent of the factory block, Aylmer, Lake, Bethune and Perry Streets, was $1,500 a year payable by Sealright who have subleasing right.

Ald. Anglesey informed the members of the council as they were getting into their overcoats around 11 p.m. that he had told Mr. Whitehouse the council would make rental allowance to him in the proportion of any days vacancy of the factory building as a result of the council's waiting for a definite report from Timken company.

One of the stores under the market hall on George Street, according to the information under the aldermanic arms, has a frontage of 13½ feet and yields the city $1,800 a year in rent.

"Maybe we ought to ask for bids on the factory, too," said one of the aldermen. Apparently they were telling Ald. Anglesey they were approving any promise he made to Mr. Whitehouse.

Dismiss Charges Against 2 Toronto Men

Charges of receiving stolen goods were dismissed Wednesday afternoon against Keith Rankin and Barry Bremner, Toronto youths, who faced the charges in connection with the conviction Wednesday morning and a prior guilty plea of a fellow photographer, Henry David Billings, 18, who had pleaded guilty to theft from the Roy Studios and breaking and entering Selkirk's Men's Wear. It was in connection with the Selkirk break-in that the two had been arrested.

The accused had admitted wearing suits taken from the Selkirk store. They had been arrested while attired in them. Rankin had been arrested at the police station when he had come to visit Billings there. The fourth member of the photographic crew was Lionel Devine who was sentenced with Billings on the Roy Studio charge.

Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in dismissing the charges, stated that the essential point that the receivers had knowledge that the goods were stolen had not been proved.

In evidence given by Billings and Devine, it was brought out that the two accused youths did not suspect the source of the suits they accepted.

In their own evidence, they emphatically denied knowledge that the suits had been stolen at the time they received them.

British Children Thrived Despite War Experiences

LONDON, Feb. 5 — (CP) — Britain's average school child emerged from the Second World War taller and heavier than his pre-war counterpart and with his health unimpaired, Sir Wilson Jameson, chief medical officer of the Education Ministry, said in an official report.

Shortages, air raids, evacuation, separation from parents and homes, and existence on a rationed diet "profoundly affected the lives of 1939-45 school children.

Evacuation revealed many "disturbing facts," said the report, such as anti-social habits in mothers and children. And there was a rise in venereal diseases and illegitimacy.

But the report adds,, "it must be made plain these social evils are less widespread than in former generations."

Few Ill Effects.

Children stood up to bombing with the same courage as adults, and London County Council doctors found them less affected by it, though "some scars will remain."

What was it that bolstered the children, kept them well-nourished, increased their weight and cut the death-rate? The report lists three main causes:—

1. "The brilliantly successful food policy," such as the increase in school milk, school meals and extra rations.

2. The wartime improvement in wages.

3. The "remarkable" freedom from influenza and other infectious disease and the lower virulence of these diseases.

Average returns of 1,500,000 schoolchildren aged between five and 14, medically examined in 1944 showed that in height, compared with 1939, both boys and girls increased ¾ to ½ an inch, and in weight 1½ to two pounds.

The report, saying "we should take an optimistic view of the situation," added:

"We can say with confidence there is no positive evidence of a decline in the health and physique of children during the war years."

Believes Crash Inevitable On Food Prices

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 (AP)—President Truman said today prices are rising so alarmingly that a crash is inevitable unless something is done to halt them.

For his part, Truman said he will keep telling Congress he needs authority to impose price controls.

Talking to a press conference the President brought out charts prepared by the budget bureau.

He said these show steady rises in the prices of commodities, food and all other items. Rises which have come since he asked for stand-by price and rationing authority in a message to the special session of Congress last November.

A reporter asked Truman what about the "nose-dive" yesterday of prices on commodity and stock markets. (The price movement continued downward today.)

The President said the price situation still is alarming.

Then he was asked what the sharp break in commodity and stock prices indicates.

Truman said he has no comment, that he did not know enough about it yet to express an opinion.

Canadian Olympic Team Proving To Be No Push-over

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 5. (AP) — The big test of the hockey tournament at the fifth Winter Olympics, which lacks official sanction but nevertheless will carry considerable prestige for the winner, is expected tomorrow. Canada and Czechoslovakia are scheduled to play a morning game, with Poland drawn against Britain, the United States against Austria and Sweden against Italy.

The schedule has been rearranged in the last few days because of postponements caused by soft ice but tomorrow's card is expected to remain intact.

Since the first puck was dropped in the nine-country, 36-game tournament last Friday, Czechoslovakia has been favored to win a competition which was a Canadian monopoly until England knocked the Canucks out of the 1936 tournament with a surprise victory.

Canada hasn't been beaten before or since in Olympic play, but expert opinion here has been that the Flyers were one of the less powerful teams Canada has sent over. The Czech squad, on the other hand, has been rated highly.

Now things look different. The five straight victories rolled up by Canada, and the ease of her victory today, make it look as though the Canadians are no set-ups after all. They appear to be Czechoslavakia's main threat, since the third undefeated club — Switzerland — barely beat the United States 5-4 while Canada's margin over the US was nine goals.

The RCAF'S two siege guns have been Halder and Mara a pair of Toronto stars who flirted with professional offers several times in their careers. The husky broad-shouldered Halder, tabbed as a comer before he left high school, has 16 goals and five assists for five games while Mara has 13 goals and eight assists for an identical point total of 21.

Other important games facing the three undefeated leaders in the tournament, which ends Sunday, include Saturday's scheduled Switzerland-Czechoslovakia game and Sunday's contest between Canada and Switzerland.

A line on the relative strength of the leaders can be taken by comparing their performances against different teams. The only clubs which all three have faced are Sweden, Britain and Italy, and these were the results:

Against Sweden — Canada 3 Sweden 1; Czechoslovakia 6 Sweden 3; Switzerland 8 Sweden 2.

Against Britain—Canada 3 Britain 0; Czechoslovakia 11 Britain 4; Switzerland 12 Britain 3.

Against Italy—Canada 21 Italy 1; Czechslovakia 11 Italy 3; Switzerland 16 Italy 0.

Against Poland, which will not play Switzerland, Canada registered a 15-0 shutout and Czechoslovakia took a 13-1 triumph.

Experts Disagree On Effect Of Stock Break

CHICAGO, Feb. 5 — (AP). — Experts disagree over how yesterday's sharp break in commodity, stock and bond prices will affect the American housewife's pocketbook.

Business men and government officials were studying these developments closely:

The price of wheat bought for future delivery fell the legal daily limit, 10 cents a bushel, at Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City.

At New York, 1,200,000,000 share — biggest decrease since May.

The price of bonds fell generally, with railroad issues hardest hit.

Cotton prices at one time dropped $6 a bale, but final prices at New York were from $3.55 lower to 35 cents higher.

The Associated Press commodity index, listing market prices for lard, cottonseed oil, crude rubber and other goods, showed the sharpest drop since September.

In Washington, signs were visible of a general tightening of bank credit. Federal reserve bank loans in leading cities dropped $34,000,000 in the week ending Jan. 28.

Some trade experts predicted a general "deflationary trend," some said the price drop was just temporary — and most said they just didn't know.

Morin, Lakefield, Mrs. Dora H. Huffman, 629 Charlotte street, Hilliard Zinston, 1049 High street, James Conroy, 498 Sherbrooke, George Solmes, 469 Gordon avenue.

Russell Yates, 539 Waterford street, was fined $15 and $2.50 costs when he pleaded guilty to careless driving.

Ernest McFadden, 336 Braidwood, pleaded guilty on a charge of stealing $20 from the Louis Cafe Wednesday night. He was remanded for sentence until Feb. 7.

Edward Crandell, 373 Queen street, was fined $5 and costs of $2.50 when he pleaded guilty to failing to observe a stop sign. A charge of careless driving against Crandell was withdrawn.

Rural Teachers' Pay Disgrace—Brockington

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—(CP).—L. W. Brockington, former chairman of the board of governors of the CBC, in an address to the Ottawa branch of the General Alumni Association of Queen's University, said last night that "in many parts of Canada, particularly the rural districts," teachers' salaries were "a national disgrace."

He predicted that "in a few years" there would be "far too few teachers in Canada to carry on the task of education." Teachers could not be blamed if failure to attract "noble and devoted men and women" to the profession endangered the future of Canada's children." It was the thoughtlessness and apathy of "ordinary easy-going citizens of Canada" which allowed teaching to remain a "Cinderella" among the professions.

Of Queen's University he said he doubted "if any other university has given as many great names to Canada."

He expressed his gratitude at being given the rectorship of Queen's and paid a personal tribute to Dr. R. C. Wallace principal of Queen's who attended the dinner meeting.

Ramsay Elected Survey Head

OTTAWA, Feb. 5 — (CP). — J. H. Ramsay of Fredericton was elected president of the Canadian Institute of Surveying today as the organization concluded its 41st annual meeting. He succeeded Arthur O. Gorman of Ottawa.

H. E. Seeley of Ottawa was chosen first vice-president and W. Humphreys of Winnipeg, second vice-president. W. L. MacIlquham was re-elected secretary-treasure.

Ontario representative elected was J. A. S. King of Brantford.

At today's closing session, delegates heard papers delivered by Mr. Holloway, Alberta Provincial Director of Surveys, and H. E. Beresford, Manitoba Director of Surveys.

Mr. Holloway, desrcibing Alberta's newest oil field in the Leduc area, said it was "pretty well assured" that the field eventually would supply $300,000,000 worth of oil which otherwise would have had to be imported from the United States.

"In these days of dollar shortages, this is no small benefit to our naitonal economy," he declared.

The tea drinking habit was largely responsible for the development of fine English porcelain.

Organized Groups Blamed For Trouble

TORONTO, Feb. 5 (CP)—Joseph Salsberg, Labor-Progressive member of the Ontario Legislature for Toronto-St. Andrew, just returned from a 12-week tour of Europe, in a press conference said there was "no strong feeling of dislike between the great majority of Jews and Arabs."

Mr. Salsberg, who said he was sent to Europe by Jewish organizations in Canada to study problems of Jewry overseas, said the killing in Palestine "is being done by hired and organized gangs, backed by certain groups who are secure in the feeling they will not be let down by Britain, who refused to vote on the Palestine settlement when it came before the United Nations."

Five Black Marketeers Start Jail Sentence

DETROIT, Feb. 5 —(AP). — Five men convicted last year of running of $3,000,000 black market used car conspiracy began federal prison terms today.

The five lost their appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals last October, but were given until now to settle their personal affairs.

In custody were John D. Lovins of Paducah, Ky., sentenced to 18 months and fined $10,000; John C. Nelson of Paducah, 18 months and $10,000; Henton Farley of Benton, Ky., 18 months and $10,000; Noble Dick of Murray, Ky., eight months and $5,000, and Gordon Ivey of Benton, 30 days and $2,000.

Ben Fishel of Cairo, Ill., was convicted on similar charges and has begun a two-year sentence in Illinois. He was fined $65,000.

Campaign Against Jackers Pays Maritimes Dividends

FREDERICTON, Feb. 5 (CP).—New Brunswick's campaign against jackers—hunters who kill deer illegally by dazzling them with lights—has paid dividends. Launched by Lands Minister R. J. Gill "in the interests of conservation," the drive reached a peak with enactment of new legislation decreeing that any person convicted of jacking must serve a jail sentence from two to four months and also pay a fine ranging from $50 to $200. Previously no jail sentence was provided and New Brunswick is the only province making imprisonment mandatory for the first offence.

During the hunting season provincial game wardens, operating in two-man "night patrols," kept up a steady campaign against illegal hunters.

By working in pairs, the Lands Department reported, the wardens were able to converge on an area by picking up the lights and were most effective in rounding up the jackers.

During the fall season 11 jackers were brought to justice and sentenced. Several appealed but lost.

Approve Results

Looking over the first results of their drive, department officials reported they were "satisfied that the amendment has been a determining factor in cutting down the prevalence of jacking."

Wardens have power to confiscate automobiles used by the jackers along with any other equipment. And if fines are not paid additional jail sentences can be imposed.

Jackers who operate on a wide scale, the department reports, often use car headlights to dazzle their quarry.

Ironing Board Used In Escape From Fire

BUFFALO, Feb. 5 — (AP). — Three persons escaped from their burning apartment last night by crawling on an ironing board to an adjacent building.

Edward C. Robinson, 38, told firemen a downstairs exit was blocked by smoke when he first smelled it in his second-storey apartment.

He "stuck" the ironing board out a bedroom window so that the other end rested on a rear porch of a nearby home. Robinson, his wife, Evelyn, 35, and their son, Edward, four, then crawled on the six-foot board. It was 18 feet above the ground.

Firemen said damage to the apartment would amount to "several thousand dollars."

VOLUNTEER EFFORT—Orillia has lots of snow but not enough water for the town's electrical generating plants on the Severn River and at Minden. Last week, Leonard G. McNeice, chief engineer of the municipally owned power supply, suggested jolting power-wasteful householders with one-hour interruptions of service. Since then, the town has voluntarily saved 16,000 kilowatts per day.

Council Refuses Responsibility For Plow Damage

DOURO, Feb. 5 (ENS). — The township of Douro will not be responsible for damage to cars and trucks parked on township roads if there are any collisions from snow-cleaning operations, it was decided at the February meeting of Douro Council. It was reported that much difficulty had been encountered by the snow-cleaning crews in this regard. The Council also moved that if the habit continued, offending cars and trucks would be impounded.

During 1947, $12,867.39 had been spent on township roads, it was reported, and a request for the balance of the provincial subsidy was authorized.

Edward Humpage, Peterborough, was appointed auditor.

Clinton Young will represent the municipality on the Urban Planning and Development Board of Peterborough.

Municipal officers for 1948, are: Member of Local Board of Health, A. J. Moher. Livestock Valuators, E. Moloney, E. Garbutt, J. Allen and W. McKeiver. Pound Keepers: F. Scott, W. The following accounts were ordered paid: General Township Accounts; Douro Municipal Telephone System, officers' calls, $2.94; K. Leahy, one perforator, $2.00; Registrar of Deeds, search re fire area, 50c; Municipal World treasurer's supplies, $2.87; J. J. Leahy, salary as relief officer for month of January, $4.50; P. G. 700-POUNDER IS FARMER'S "DREAM COW"—The proud looks on the faces of Glen Rehn, Andover, Ill., dairy farmer, and "Rog," his 5-year-old Jersey cow, are justified by the cow's remarkable production record for 1947. Official production records for 363 days show that Rog produced 11,143 pounds of milk and 717.5 pounds of butter fat. A cow which will produce 500 pounds of butterfat annually is generally considered good but a 700-pounder is the dairyman's "dream cow." Rog, who was raised on the Rehn farm, has the impressive registry identification of Volunteer Triumph Empress Number 1338374. Rog's best single month of production was May when she yielded 1,218 pounds of milk and 82.8 pounds of butterfat.

To Probe Life In Ocean Depths

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 5 (Reuters). — Mysteries of life 8,000 feet below the surface of the ocean will be explored by an expedition which will conduct the first large deep sea research in the western waters of the north Atlantic this summer.

Starting in June this year the expedition will be under the auspices of the Chicago Natural History Museum in collaboration with the Bermuda biological station. Dredges and dragnets will be used to explore the ocean depths.

Doctor Dugald Brown, director of the Bermuda station, said that because of the great depths from which animal life and fish will be brought in some cases, it will be impossible to keep them alive although they will be transferred to special high pressure tanks as soon as possible.

It is hoped, however, that certain parts such as hearts will be still alive and available for study under conditions equivalent to the two ton per square inch pressure of the great depths.

During this summer and next work will take place a few miles off Bermuda but three years will be needed to assess the results. It will be the first intensive study since 1880, Doctor Brown said.

French Farmers Biggest Hoarders

PARIS, Feb. 5— (Reuters). — The individual record for deposits of 5,000-franc notes now being called in by the government was Wednesday night believed to be held by a farmer from the north of France, who came to Paris to turn in 9,200 of them—46,000,000 francs worth (about $217,000 at the new rate of exchange).

At Dijon, a vineyard owner turned in 21,000,000 francs (about $97,220) in 4,200 notes of 5,000 francs each.

The farmers are estimated to hold nearly two-thirds of the 300,000,000,000 francs in 5,000-franc notes in circulation.

A farmer living near Paris burned about 1,000 of the 5,000-franc notes outside a bank instead of depositing them inside, shouting to the crowd: "So much less money for the finance minister."

One-Party State

SOFIA, Feb. 5 — (AP). — Bulgaria became virtually a one-party state Tuesday night under the iron guidance of its Communist premier, Georgi Dimitirov. About 200,000 bulgars heralded the change by parading past a reviewing stand where Dimitrov stood, flanked by a Russian general. They shouted themselves hoarse acclaiming the 65-year-old chief of state.

Labrador Doctor Has Tough Service Route

MONTREAL, Feb. 5 (CP). — Does winter make you long for the warm, bright sunshine which tans the skin of the southerners? If it does, just think of Labrador's "Man of Mercy" and you'll be quite satisfied with the so-called cold winters of Canada's city zone.

Dr. Tony Paddon, former lieutenant-commander in the Royal Canadian Navy, will soon hitch up his dog-team — he sometimes wears out three dog teams during one season — and make his 1,000-mile winter "tour" of rough country to visit his estimated 2,500 "patients" scattered in outposts of Labrador.

The doctor, born in Labrador 33 years ago, is the son of the late Dr. Henry Paddon, who worked in co-operation with Sir Wilfred Grenfell on the Labrador coast for more than 40 years.

Riding by sled for a month, at times for distances of 400 to 700 miles between stations without meeting any human being, he lives mostly on bread and tea. Always provided with emergency rations, he has never gone hungry for any length of time.

During the Second World War, Dr. Paddon served as a ship's surgeon. Now posted at the Grenfell Mission, where he is in charge of all medical work, he has visited Montreal to lecture to medical classes. In summertime he cruises along the coast aboard the hospital ship Maraval.

One of his most gruelling experiences was the time his guide became snow-blind.

"He lay on the sleigh for a month as we travelled, and listened as I described the terrain, and he told me what to do and where to go. His knowledge of the country was uncanny."

Examiner Presents Agnes Logan Green

Another interesting program has been arranged by Agnes Logan Green for presentation by The Examiner tonight at 9.30 o'clock over CHEX.

During the first part of the program Mrs. Green will play the expressive theme and variations in F minor by Haydn.

From the romantic composers Mrs. Green has chosen Brahm's delightful Intermezzo in C major, a Nocturne by Chopin and Mendelssohn's melodious "Duetto."

Interesting 17th Century music will be a transcription by Alfred Moffat of two short dances by Henry Purcell who was the outstanding figure of early English music.

Mrs. Green will also play Poulenc' Movement's Perpetuels, composed in 1918, a short Toccata by Bach, and Busoni's transcription of Bach's organ chorale Prelude "Awake the Voice Commands." This latter composition has been heard in part as Mrs. Green's theme music during the past three seasons of recital broadcasts. In response to many requests from listeners, Mrs. Green will play the chorale in its entirety on this program.

IS THAT PALE YOUNG GIRL YOUR DAUGHTER?

Parents should not ignore the depressed moods, the listless, tired air, the pallor, headaches, fickle appetite—the crying spells—so many daughters exhibit during those years when they are passing into womanhood.

If her health at this stage is not maintained by a sufficiency of good rich blood, all kinds of weaknesses may arise to make her later life unhappy.

So should you notice any of these disturbing signs in your daughter, lose no time. Get some Dr. Williams Pink Pills at your druggist. They are wonderfully effective in helping to build up iron-impoverished blood and have helped to transform thousands and thousands of sickly, pale daughters suffering from simple anemia into happy active girls full of vitality and high spirits, hungry for meals, glad to help with the housework, attractive to others. Right now simple anemia may be undermining the strength and resistance your daughter needs so badly. Don't wait—get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

Veteran Actor Delights Large Audience

On Wednesday night a large audience gathered in the lecture hall of Knox Church to see "Cameos of the Drama" presented by Mr. Dickson Kenwin, an actor well known to Canadian audiences; the presentation was sponsored by the Men's Club of the church.

Such a performance as Mr. Kenwin gave imposes heavy demands upon the actor. He began with several passages from the plays of Shakespeare, passed almost without interval to a series of character sketches from Dickens, followed this with a sustained humorous monologue and ended with a stirring version of the dream scene from Leopold Lewis' melodrama "The Bells." This is a heavy evening's work, but Mr. Kenwin captured the full attention of the audience upon his first appearance, and he held them in the hollow of his hand until the end. Not only the intrinsic interest and excellence of his material, but the skill and personality of the actor brought about this highly satisfactory consummation. In voice and gesture he was everything that could be desired; his characterizations were quickly and deftly painted in broad, telling strokes; and although he reached considerable heights of tragedy during the course of the program there was an unassuming and seemingly impromptu air about the performance which added greatly to its effectiveness.

The highlight of the evening, perhaps, was a reading of the first and second Ghost scenes from "Hamlet"; Wolsey's Farewell from "Henry VIII"; a brilliant little sketch of Uriah Heep from "David Copperfield," and a grim colloquy between Fagin and Bill Sikes from "Oliver Twist" were also outstanding in a program which never fell from a high level. To the student of drama the scene from "The Bells" was a fascinating reminiscence of Sir Henry Irving; in this Mr. Kenwin was ably assisted by Miss Fern Carveth, whose scream earlier in the evening (when Sikes was murdering Nancy) was an unexpected thrill.

SOUTH RIVER ROAD FIRE—A serious fire was averted Wednesday afternoon by efforts of the city fire department and bucket brigades when flames were controlled from spreading from Avocraft, Ltd., woodworking shop to manager John Brazier's adjoining house. He estimated the damage would be from $2,000-$3,000. The Top photo shows the general view of the burning shop, and on the Lower photo, neighbors are shown rushing water buckets from Arthur Kelly's well, next door to the blaze.

Plan Permanent Centre For Handcraft

A permanent leathercraft centre where people can go to practise their hobby or receive instruction from a trained supervisor will be established at Dixon House.

Eight qualified teachers will take turns instructing those who register. To date 30 people have applied and it is hoped by those in charge that this move of allowing hobbyists to attend whenever interested will make leathercraft more popular.

Effective Feb. 9 a schedule of afternoon and evening periods of instruction will be observed. Teachers will be present from 1:30 to 4 p.m. for adults, and 4 to 5:30 p.m. for children, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. In the evenings adults only may attend from 7:30 to 10 p.m., on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday. Wednesday evenings will be for teachers only.

It is pointed out that these specified periods indicate when teachers will be present. Those who wish to practise or work without instruction may attend whenever they wish.

Enrolment at Dixon House will commence next week.

Plan Mass Breakfast Flight Of 25 Planes To Gil-Mar

LINDSAY, Feb. 5—(ENS).—This district is due for an air invasion on Sunday, February 8, when a flight of 25 planes, some probably trailing gliders, are scheduled to land on Sturgeon Lake east of here at 9 a.m. and will probably take part in air manoeuvres.

Known as the "breakfast flight," the first of its kind in Ontario, the planes will be representative of flying clubs across the province, including the Buttonville Club, London Flying Club, St. Catharines Flying Club, Toronto Flying Club, Oshawa Flying Club, planes from the Leavens Brothers field at Toronto and many others.

The flight, sponsored by the various flying clubs in co-operation with the government, will have Gilmar Lodge on Sturgeon Lake as its objective. Pilots will land their ski-equipped craft on the lake and eat breakfast at Gilmar. At 11 a.m. the planes are due in the air again to return to their various bases. This may be the forerunner of similar flights to tourist resorts in the Kawarthas and the Haliburton Highlands.

Robson Funeral Set For Friday

J. R. Marshall Re-elected Board Chairman

John R. Marshall was re-elected on Wednesday night chairman of the Board of Governors of the Peterborough Civic Hospital at a meeting held in the Council Chambers. Other officers and committee chairmen are: Melville Johnston, vice-chairman; T. T. Rodger, chairman of the finance committee; I. F. McRae, chairman of the property committee; Dr. G. S. Cameron, chairman of the school of nursing committee; J. R. Marshall, chairman of the building committee. John Hornal was appointed secretary.

Members of the property and house committee are Warden James Humphries, Mayor W. G. Ovens, Vernon Selkirk, and J. L. Welsh. Finance committee: W. C. Ackerman, W. G. McIlomyle and Alderman Adam Sands; committee of school of nursing, Mrs. S. J. Graham, J. D. Fitzpatrick and Dr. A. D. Howson. With Chairman J. R. Marshall the building committee consists of Reeve Melville Johnston, I. F. McRae, T. T. Rodger, Dr. G. S. Cameron and Alderman Sands.

Food Costs Up

In reading his report, the treasurer T. T. Rodger explained that the reason the hospital had been unable to operate within the confines of the revenue was largely due to the sharp advance in price of many commodities. Milk and butter had risen considerably and the hospital's need of these items is indeed large. Accounts receivable stood at $43,640.06 and shows $3,466.74 higher than at the same date a year ago, but the report showed that the total operating revenue for 1947 rose by more than $50,000 above the 1946 level, a situation which normally does create a higher volume of accounts receivable.

An excess of expenditures over revenue for the Civic Hospital of $5,643.19 was shown. Total revenue for 1947 was $321,742.32 and expenditure $327,385.51. Net revenue from patents was $258,-831.70 for the Civic Hospital and $8,976.59 for Queen Mary Hospital. Grant from the city council was $46,518.74. In the statement of expenditures the following items were outlined: Administration expenses, $6,936.11; dietary, $45,916.61; housing, $11,296.73; power plant, $14,201.57; laundry and bedding, $4,979.35; drugs, $20,916.52; and medical, surgical and sterile supplies $20,288.84.

Queen Mary Hospital also showed an excess of expendiures over revenue to the amount of $1,618.68. Dietary and food cost $3,047.97; salaries $9,061.68; drugs, $2,196.21. Total expenditures were $17,476.06, while the revenues amounted to $15,857.38. Of this figure the grant from the city was $7,105.20 and revenue from the board and nursing was $7,-859.54.

Statistics for the Civic Hospital and Queen Mary mainly were as follows: 4,352 patients were discharged from hospital during 1947, 4,087 from the main branch and 265 from Queen Mary.

During the year there were 167 deaths and 23 stillbirths. Of the deaths, 28 infants died under one year, 34 were classified as surgical deaths, 103 as non-surgical deaths, and two as maternal. Of the discharges and deaths reported from the main branch the following were given in the report:

Husky Male KO'ed By Girl Hockey Player Butted In Stomach By Pile-Driver Female

After the cushions and aspirin have been doled out for a couple of days, members of two C.G.E. drafting sections will be ready to interview and consider offers from Toronto Maple Leafs, following their spectacular display of hockey, Wednesday night. Induction Motors drafting section challenged and defeated Switchgear drafting (so the referee and a few players say) by 6-5.

The two teams were evenly matched. Both had some English players who had never been on skates nor played hockey before, while Switchgear had three girl forwards who had neither seen nor played in a hockey game, nor looked at a rule book. The girls had one up on the male rookies—they might not know which goal they were shooting at but they could stand up and skate.

Two of the girls had plotted their defence in the afternoon. One was to "hit him high" and the other to "hit him low" when the charge began. Apparently pursuing this plan with vim, one saw a man rushing up with the puck. Putting her head down, she sailed forward. She connected, and the victim was out cold for two or three minutes before he got his wind back. There was only one flaw—she hit a man on her own team.

During another melee, one of the girls who had just returned to the ice, failed to realize the teams had changed ends during her absence. Seeing a loose puck, she grabbed it and sped down the ice, lovingly escorted by her opponents. When she got just in front of the enemy goal, an I.M. player knocked it neatly in.

According to the grapevine, the English rookies were told before the game their only hope of making their weight felt would be to throw gravel in front of the enemy as they zipped past. However in spite of their new acquaintance with skates and the game, they stood up amazingly well, skated up the ice and a few times connected with the puck.

A few red hot fans might have been a little surprised to see a burly player stop to pick up a girl forward or rescue a hockey stick, as the play swept on, but nobody seemed to mind.

Anyone want to sign on some promising talent? Apply at C.G.E.

Lineups:

Induction Motors—Goal, Kenneth Woods; defence, U. Waterman, Morley Geraghty; forwards, R. McQuaig, E. Warner, Bob Strong, R. Downing, Colin Jack, Ab Hutchinson, Ray Bishop.

Switchgear Drafting — Goal, Howard Boucher; defence, Fraser Dunfield, Rod Reed, Ron Potts; forwards, Ernie Morris, George Tanter, Walter Dunford, Joan Phillips, Betty Jackson, Wilma Bomhower.

A collision at the corner of Charlotte and Reid Streets caused on Wednesday slight damage to the car of Stanley Harding, 383 Dobbin avenue, and that of S. M. Drew, 343 McDonnel Street. PC C. J. McGillen investigated.

MECCA FOR MOTORISTS

One gas station in the city adjacent to the CGE plant has no intention of conforming to the accepted revised prices for gas as quoted at 38 and 40 cents per gallon. Gas at this station retails for 35 cents and 37 cents and authentic reports reveal that cars have been lined up for several blocks in order to cash in on this saving.

NORWOOD ICE HARVEST

William Chamberlain and his men started cutting ice on the Norwood mill pond Monday and found it was of excellent quality and 23 inches clear. By Wednesday the cold weather had "made" an additional three inches. The yield, which is to be sold to village householders and businesses, is expected to be 4,000 blocks. Last year a cutting surplus was supplied to Havelock.

THE CLERK'S MINUTE

City Clerk Outram's minute of the council's Morrow Park proposal Monday night was: "That the City Solicitor be directed to study the whole question of Morrow Park and the Morrow Trust, and report to the finance committee February 9 on the means the council may adopt to secure the freer use of the grounds."

DROP IN BIRTHS

The new year opens with fewer births than in the first month of last year. The statistics at the city hall for January 1947 were: births 154, marriages 21, deaths 41; and for last months: births 132; marriages 21, and deaths 52.

"RECENTLY REDECORATED"

The Peterborough City Police Station interview is beginning to look more and more like a pleasant little hotel. Guests of the force who are brought into the guard room for routine search and so on should be impressed with the efforts the authorities have made to make their stay a pleasant one. Most of the ground floor is now being painted in a bright ivory-and-brown color scheme. One officer, cynical beyond his years, remarked: "And then, most of them don't appreciate it."

Will Adjudicate

SARNIA, Feb. 5. — (CP).— Robert William Speaight of London, England, a British actor, will adjudicate the final Dominion Drama Festival in Ottawa, April 26 to May 1, Festival Chairman D. Park Jamieson announced today.

To Use Propane As Fuel; No Oil Available

Immediate changes in plant, product and price have been ordered for the city's gas department by the Utilities Commission.

"If we're going to stay in the gas business" was their expression of emergency as they decided to switch from the customary ingredients of coal, coke and fuel oil to propane, one of the first by-products in the cracking of gasoline

The last straw was the stoppage of the flow and supply of fuel oil. It has been an increasing threat of recent months, and towards the end of 1947 the Utilities Commission realized that some drastic action would have to be taken—"if we're going to stay in the gas business."

The Trinidad company from which Peterborough had been obtaining its fuel oil for gas-making summarily took the Utilities off its customer list in circumstances which left no immediately alternative sources. It was hoped that some influence might be exerted here or there to get oil, but the whole distributing market is adverse to the buyer. The Commission suspected that it was being sacrificed by a company which was diverting the Peterborough oil to other channels for higher prices.

The price of coal has continued to advance in recent months, and wages in the gas business have had to keep step with the rest of industry.

At the end of January, R. L. Dobbin, manager, said the Commission had 11,000 gallons of oil on hand. "We might get through February holding the gas to 450 BTU's. Two cars of oil would carry us through March. We've got to get oil within 30 days."

Contract Let

Rising costs of gas had turned the Commission's thoughts to some change in production months before the oil trouble was encountered. They had consulted D. M. Thorburn, Toronto, of the Salem Engineering Co., Pennsylvania, agents for gas-making equipment. He had been here several times toward the end of 1947, made extensive investigations, and prepared a lengthy report on the gas plant and its prospects. The Commission finally accepted his recommendations this week, and gave to his company the contract for the revamp-

Healthy Nation Can Eliminate Poverty

Dr. Gordon Bates Tells Meeting Of Health League

"In helping to build a healthy nation, we are assisting in the solution of the greatest problem facing mankind — poverty," declared Dr. Gordon Bates, General Director of the Health League of Canada, speaking Wednesday night at the annual dinner of the Peterborough Branch of the League.

The speaker stressed the educational aspect of the work, and the primary importance of that section of the development of a healthy Canada. In a democratic country, he pointed out, political considerations often tend to keep back health measures. For example, he cited the case of the eight other provinces having no laws making the pasteurization of milk compulsory. At present, in some cases, the deciding factor is that the rural voters would oppose such a move.

However, Dr. Bates said, as this was a manifestation of a democratic system, we must believe that the will of the majority is right. Thus, to bring about desirable legislation, it is necessary to educate the public to the advantages of such steps. If the public does not demand these things, it does not deserve them, he said.

This is perhaps the principal aim of the Health League of Canada. Doctors, as a small group with little political influence, cannot do the work alone, he stressed. For this reason, the League has attempted to gain the support of large, influential groups by educating them to the benefits of a health nation. He cited such groups as women's national organizations, churches and service clubs.

Each Has Responsibility

This work is carried on, he said, by means of various publications to members, teachers, school children and for distribution and with an effective press release establishment. He mentioned particularly the assistance which had been given the movement by the press and radio.

"It is not enough to leave these things to governments—it is up to you and me," he told his audience.

"As a voluntary organization, the Health League is a true expression of a democracy."

In outlining the development and growth of the League, Dr. Bates emphasized the important part which volunteer groups have played in the development of health services in Canada. Such a volunteer group of enthusiasts had been responsible for the establishment of the federal Department of Health in 1919, and prevented its dissolution in 1925. In 1935 the League itself was formed under that name.

Mentioning the threat of venereal diseases and the battle against them, he pointed out that until quite recently, public discussion of that subject was regarded with distaste and that even today, facts in regard to syphilis and gonorrhrea are not generally known. The problem must be approached along "broad social lines."

In the fight against diphtheria, which has been strikingly successful in large cities like Toronto, he pointed out that the League had led a major part of the work, by educating the public to the value of toxbid. He mentioned the annual "Immunization Week" sponsored by the League.

In the field of industrial health, he said the League is endeavouring, through the co-operation of management and labor, to have every industrial establishment properly equipped with health measures.

The meeting was attended by representatives of many city groups—service clubs, nursing services, church organizations, civic bodies.

George Barns, chairman of the Health Week program, was in charge of the meeting. The meeting was the highlight of a full week of speakers to clubs, groups and schools being carried on by the League in Peterborough.

Alderman Grant Miller, representing the City Council, expressed the thanks of the city for the work of the League here.

Chairman Barns gave a brief outline of the Health Week program. It includes church mentions, radio addresses, school talks and addresses to public and quasi-public groups all through this week.

Dr. R. A. Kelly, Medical Officer of Health, introduced the speaker, who was thanked by J. E. Girven, president of the local Branch.

Mr. Girven mentioned in his brief report on the year's activities that the full year's program had been financed by membership fees, of which 50 per cent went to the national organization.

Ground Control Radar Units Aiding Pilots

EDMONTON, Feb 5 (CP). — First of the "G.C.A." or ground controlled approach units purchased by the RCAF to help pilots to land when visibility is poor is in service at the station here, where Canadian airmen are understudying Americans in the use of the equipment, bought in the United States.

GCA was used extensively by the United States Air Force and the RAF during the Second World War, and is one of the few radar devices which has had an extensive peacetime application.

It's not difficult to recognize the unit here. It consists of two large vans on one of the runways. They actually are combined trucks and trailers, gaudily painted in a red-and-white checkerboard pattern.

The unit can be moved to any runway, depending on wind direction. The forward section houses two generators which power the trailer holding the radar and communications equipment. The highly technical apparatus which makes up the unit lines two walls of the trailer.

Most of the operating now is done by USAF technicians. Several Canadians are working with them. The unit can be manned by a team of two operators and one mechanic. One of the men, known as search controller, probes for aircraft up to 30 miles away. On a specified pattern he brings the pilot of the aircraft in to the final approach, roughly 10 miles from the airfield.

Orients Aircraft

From these the second or final operator takes over. He orients the aircraft, giving it its position right or left of the runway's centre line, and corrects its elevation where this is above or below the proper guide path.

GCA enables pilots to receive highly accurate alterations for correct altitudes and headings. Experienced operators can direct a pilot to a runway until his wheels are ready to touch down when a field is blanketed by fog or, as the airmen say, "soaked in."

Operators can visually pick up an incoming aircraft, which is represented on a lighted screen. By grid rings operators can tell exactly how far a plane is from the runway.

Plane-to-ground contact is established orally by wireless. The pilot is told at what height and on what headings to fly. Once he is being brought in, he is directed to say no more unless he fails to hear the operator's voice.

The operator keeps up a steady stream of chatter, giving small corrections of degree headings and rate of descent. All this while he follows the white speck on his screen.

If it should happen that the pilot fails to hear the operator, he says so, then pulls up to a prescribed height to come in for another approach.

FIRST WOMAN TO HOLD JAP CABINET POST — Shown supervising her daughter Ryo's piano lesson, is Mrs. Chiyo Sakakibara, a Diet member of the Social Democratic party and the first woman in Japan to hold a cabinet seat. She took over the seat of vice-minister of justice in sucession to Haruki Satake, who resigned. On taking the job, Mrs. Sakakibara, mother of three daughters and a son, said that she wants to blaze the way for the political advance of Japanese womanhood. She is 49 years old and before her entrance into Japanese politics, was a piano teacher, reporter and teacher at a women's college.

MP's And Reporters Complain About British Press Conferences

By JAMES McCOOK

LONDON, Feb. 5—(CP).—Press conferences, generally looked on as a United States invention, have increased and multipli 1 in Whitehall to the point that members of parliament—and some reporters—have started to complain. Critical members of parliament say the press conference is a convenient method of allowing Ministers to avoid making announcements in parliament, where they would be subjected to questions by the Opposition.

Correspondents, many of whom have no seat in galleries of either the Commons or Lords, welcome opportunities to meet Ministers face to face and have policies clarified.

But even the seekers after news grouse that press conferences with some ministers represent no more than the collection of a long mimeographed statement and a friendly smile. Attempts to carry the minister beyond the written word often are fruitless. This being so, they contend a messenger boy to collect the handout would serve just as well.

Some ministers, like Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, make their conferences a semi-public class in economics. Sir Stafford, a firm "stonewaller" when he does not wish to answer a question, retains his boyhood trait of delighting to explain and expound, reputed to have bored the family tenants when he was young. His conferences usually are considered more useful than those of his smiling but hard-to-pin-down predecessor, Hugh Dalton.

Brings Experts

Food Minister Strachey has to deal with correspondents who know intimately the impact of stern rationing. He faces them with the backing of an array of ministry experts available for consultation on difficult questions.

Fuel Minister Gaitskell, who holds the tail of one of the government's most tigerish portfolios, seldom meets the press en masse. Lord President Morrison is one of the few to enliven his conference with wit.

Prime Minister Attlee gets along without formal meetings with the press, leaving this to his press adviser, Philip Jordan, who learned his art as a British representative in Washington.

Also Receive.

Ministers who like press conferences agree they receive as well as give. Irritations among reporters are apt to represent irritations among the general public. If press conference audiences are doubtful and find government statements unclear, the department concerned takes the lesson to heart.

When members of Parliament complain that they should first be told of government policies, ministers answer that Parliament has long adjournments and they must have facilities to keep the public informed.

The conclusion of everyone concerned is that press conferences, long or short, informal or casual, have, like Parliament, come to stay.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 5 — (CP). — Mrs. Ceinwen Harvey, 41, whose two-year-old son Billy and her granddaughter, Pauline, four, were rescued from their burning home by firemen, yesterday was fined $50 for leaving a boy at home alone while she was in a hotel beverage room.

Ceylon Citizens Celebrate Independence

COLOMBO, Feb. 5, (AP)—The lion flag of the Sinhalese nation was raised Wednesday at the birth of the new Ceylon dominion after 130 years of British rule.

The raising of the flag, in continuous use for 2,000 years until the British troops came to Ceylon, was accompanied by the boom of guns, firecrackers, huge processions and countrywide celebrations.

Ceylon, a 25,000-square-mile island off the coast of India, is the third new dominion carved from the Empire since the war and the second British possession to receive self rule in three days. The other dominions are India and Pakistan. Malaya's self rule was proclaimed Sunday. Burma also has received its independence.

The 6,500,000 Singhalese have been ruled by Portuguese, Dutch and British for 351 years. Their island is rich in tea, rubber, cinnamon and orchids.

First official ceremony was the swearing in of Governor Sir Henry Moore as Governor-General. Prime Minister D. S. Eenanayake then broadcast to the country.

Special religious ceremonies were held in Buddhist and Hindu temples and Moslem mosques. School children in white paraded to the temples singing freedom anthems, and a huge procession led by richly ornamented elephants marched to pay homage at the statues of dead patriots.

Big parties were arranged by hotels; wealthy citizens entertained lavishly, and cocoanut palms formed arches over the humblest dwellings.

The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, representing the King, are expected this week for the inauguration of parliament Feb. 10.

Offerings through the envelopes were also higher than last year.

Gen. Franco Firmly Entrenched U.S. Aid Helps Spain Prosper

By HENRY BUCKLEY

MADRID, Feb. 5 (Reuters). — As Spain enters 1948 with the position of General Francisco Franco strengthened indirectly by recent developments in the Mediterranean area in particular and the international situation in general, Franco circles here are optimistic.

They do not expect to be included in the Marshall Plan or to get official help from the United States, but they believe private credits may be made available to Spain in the next year or so by means of United States banking houses working with the Spanish banks.

Reports of substantial American aid already given to Spain are founded, in concrete fact, only upon help given by the U.S. in making available machinery for the construction of long runways at the Madrid, Barcelona and Seville airports. This work will take these airports suitable for the use of heavy four-engined transport planes.

The main obstacle to United States aid to Spain at present appears to be the American desire to ensure first, that the aid shall not be squandered and, second, that it shall not be used to sponsor state-run ventures in Spain.

Considering the devastating effect of the civil war, and the vast difficulties in reconstruction caused by the Second World War the Spanish economic situation is sound.

Note circulation is about four times the level existing before the civil war; but it is a controlled inflation. Although prices are up about five times compared with 1936 and food is still short, supplies are improving.

Jobs Plentiful

Unemployment is negligible except for the normal seasonal agricultural unemployment due to lack of mixed farming and concentration on one or two crops only over large areas.

Industrialization is going ahead, but a century of indifference to commerce cannot be made up in a few years. Spain today has a nucleus of young business men and technicians who believe that they are capable of running the country.

These are mostly warm supporters of General Franco. But they want social peace and see the necessity for at least a mild dictatorship for 10 years or so in order to complete the revolution in Spain's transport and industrial system.

Spains chief bottleneck is transport. More than anything else she needs steel for railroad truck and rolling stock. Coal production, for instance, has been raised in a few years from 7,000,000 tons to 12,000,000 tons. But the railroads are now incapable of handling any more coal — so production has to stay put.

In the political sphere, the two most active opposition groups today are the Communists and the Monarchists. Of the other parties, the moderate groups of Socialists, Republicans and others are split into many factions and have little strength.

General Franco himself continues to maintain his personal situation on a reasonably solid basis. Exceedingly thorough, he moves very slowly, studying every step for months ahead. he does not by any means rely on force alone to keep him in power. At present he has no rival with much chance of success whether inside Spain or outside.

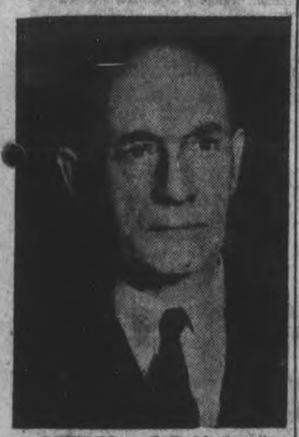
Over-all, it would appear that Spain is not likely to have any major internal upheavals for some years to come unless direct interference from abroad or the impact of events outside Spain should provoke disorders within.

Tried Rain Making Now It Won't Stop

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 5 (CP) — Unhappiest man in Sydneys abnormally wet season is "rain-maker" C. S. Richards.

Every day he gets a large batch of letters and telegrams blaming him personally for the rain that has fallen practically every day since he began experimenting with "dry ice" on clouds to produce artificial rain.

Richards has been accused of modern witchcraft "that has got out of hand," and with having perverted the laws of God, thus bringing misery to the rest of the people.



Although he has denied publicly that his simple experiments have anything to do with the present cycle of bad weather, he still gets hundreds of abusive letters and telegrams from superstitious correspondents.

Richards received much publicity when he began experimenting just before the rain started over two months ago.

The Council for Scientific and Industrial Research was conducting similar tests at the time. The Council will continue when the natural rain stops.

Accident Fatalities

CHICAGO, Feb. 5 — (AP). — Accidents hit the United States a more crippling blow in 1947 than the atomic bomb inflicted on Hiroshima. The accidents tally shows: killed—100,000 (compared with Hiroshima's 78,150). Injured —10,500,000 (equal to the combined population of New York and Chicago).

RETIRES — C. R. Mackenzie, superintendent of pensions for the Canadian National Railways, since 1932, who has retired after half a century of railway service. His duties brought him into close contact with the many thousands of workers on the Canadian National system from coast to coast and particularly with those whose long service with the company had earned them pensions. The number of pensioners, men and women, on the CNR now totals 13,600.

Price Break On Market Causes Alarm

By The Canadian Press

Yesterday's break in prices of United States commodity markets and stock exchanges and the inclination to view it wth alarm is a reminder that you can't have things both ways at the same time.

People want lower prices when they go to the grocers, but have a disposition to get jittery when the price structures threaten to fall.

Probably no one really wants a drastic break in prices, but rather a stop to present increases and a comfortable easing back.

This is very difficult to accomplish and many take the view that once commodity prices start on the downgrade a general recession is at hand.

The more optimistic view is that continued heavy European demand, supported by the European recovery program, supplies a brake which will stop any runaway drop, and gives a breathing space in which to make orderly plans.

One explanation of what happened yesterday states it simply as this:

A sudden spurt of grain offerings by farmers knocked down grain prices in Chicago. Other commodity markets fell in sympathy and the stock exchange joined the parade. Those offering this explanation feel the break is only temporary.

Deflationary Trend

Other opinion sees a definite deflationary trend and holds that "current prices cannot be maintained."

Whatever happens to the present drop it is a fresh indication of the uncertainty which traders have persisted in feeling and which has resulted in stocks selling far below the prices which their earnings seem to justify.

What happened yesterday in brief:

Chicago grains fell the limit permitted in a single trading session; Winnipeg followed suit; other United States commodities fell with widest losses in lard, cotton-seed oil, eggs, soybeans and cotton fixtures; Canadian commodity markets showed no visible reaction; New York stock exchange had its sharpest slump since last May with issues off $1 to more than $5 a share; Toronto industrials weakened and mining stocks slipped in heavy trading; selected industrials retreated mildly in Montreal.

HAMILTON, Feb. 5—(CP).—Identified as John Bernat or Bernatawicz, 30, formerly of Windsor, a patient lay in hospital today with a leg fracture below the knee which police said the man suffered when he leaped from a window of the Essex Packers plant here last night.

Bernat has been charged with shoobreaking with intent but will be in hospital for a month or six weeks.

Police said the plant's watchman surprised two men trying to steal a small safe and that they pushed the safe out of a window and jumped after it. The second man escaped.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Patrol Leaders course held on Monday evening showed about 40 per cent attendance and was enjoyed by all. Scouter Fred Ford acted as Scouter for the evening. Two subjects were dealt with, Walt Ryan doing well. The evening was under the charge of Field Commissioner Art Jackson, assisted by District Cub Leader Shorty Preston of Kingston.

Doug Cooke attended to the sing-song and PL Johnson of All Saints had charge of the refreshments. One of the highlights of the evening was the presentation of Bronze Arrow badges to PLs Doug Cooke, Bob Fitzgerald, and Jack King, Scouter Pete Domonik assisting. The highlight of the evening came when PL Doug Cooke was presented with his King's Scout and Pathfinder badges. Scouter Fred Ford did the honors.

The Cub Leaders course held on Tuesday evening was rather disappointing in the matter of attendance, but the enthusiasm more than repaid for that shortage. Miss Green spoke to the gathering on the boy from 8 to 12, giving many sidelights on the work of the school teacher and the present trend of home and school working together to a common end. District Commissioner E. Wolff was present for the evening and was called upon to present to Scouters Kernahan and Wilson their Part 1 certificates. Scouter Earl Westman proved to be the kingpin of the evening's activities.

The cyclorama dates have been set for Friday and Saturday, May 7 and 8, in the evening on Friday and afternoon and evening on Saturday.. It is understood this event will be held in the Drill Hall at the Exhibition Grounds. All boys are requested to make various articles toward the success of this show. The officers in charge are doing their best to get all data out and visit every troop and pack in the city.

To Hold Carporee.

The camporee will be confined to Peterborough, Lindsay, Lakefield and Cordova Mines, as of last year. Owing to pressure of business first bulletins have not been mailed, but every patrol is asked to plan to join us in this annual affair. The dates are May 22, 23, 24.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Westman on the addition to the family. It is a Cub.

Our sympathy goes to Scouter Cy Davis, Mrs. Davis and family in the sudden death of their brother.

Best wishes for a speedy recovery goes to Scouter Marion McCarthy who is confined to St. Joseph's Hospital with a chipped vertebrae. Latest report is that she is resting comfortably. A few cards from the Cub folk would help to pass the time away.

St. John's Pack.

We were glad to have with us this week Akela Shorty Preston of Kingston. Scouters A. Ingham, Pete Dominik, and Gord Clegg. Mr. Clegg spoke to the boys on the Cyclorama and asked them to get working on craft displays. Baloo was also back with us. Bobby Kingston is within one step of his second Star passing model on Friday evening, leaving only signalling to conquer.

We are glad to welcome All Saints' Troop back in the news column, and wish many more would come in. Good Scouting, Art.

All Saints' Troop.

All Saints' Troop (5th Peterborough) met this week. The Wolf Patrol won the Honor Patrol Flag with the most points. A game of ball throwing, which was played in teams, was enjoyed by all. Later instructions were given by the Scoutmaster A Rose, on the compass. After a game of tug-of-war the meeting came to a close.

St. Andrew's Cubs.

Twenty-one Cubs were present when Bruce Rosebush led the Pack in the opening Grand Howl. Following inspection a game of Man the Ship was played to get warmed up. The Monkeys stole Mowgli, so we had to play the Hunger Dance of Kaa the Python. After Kaa went to sleep we practised somersault, skipping, leapfrog, book-balancing, etc., in preparation for parents' night. Richard Atkinson sang a solo, "Sweet Little Susie." Akela gave a talk on the Promise and Good Turn. These Cubs can really sing. Bob Merrett led in the closing Grand Howl. Murray Hynes pased his first-aid badge.

St. Paul's Pack.

St. Paul's Pack held its weekly meeting at the Jungle Friday evening. Prayer by Sixer A. Eastwood followed by inspection and collection of dues. Games played were hopping snakes, pick the pond, knot relay. Baloo gave the Pack instruction on semaphore. A viist to the Jungle was made by Cub Commissioner Clegg and Scouter Dominik.

Akela gave a talk on homecraft to the Pack. The Cubs will meet at the YMCA on Friday night at 6:45, due to the decoration of the church. Akela McLeod wishes all sick Cubs a speedy recovery. The meeting closed with prayer.

Name Casgrain In Hectic Session

QUEBEC, Feb. 5. (CP)—A six-day sitting week faced the Quebec Legislative Assembly today after a turbulent night meeting climaxed by the naming of Liberal member Leon Casgrain former Attorney General.

Mr. Casgrain who has represented Riviere du Loup in the provincial lower House for 21 years was called to order by name shortly before adjournment at 11 p.m., and soon after Premier Duplessis had given notice of sittings every week-day.

The premier told the desk-thumping, shouting members the assembly would sit "every Saturday and every Monday" as well as the days in between.

Earlier in the evening when Liberal Leader Adelard Godbout had told the assembly the principle of a company taxation bill concerning the town of Bauharnois was "bad" because it involved tax commutation, Hon. Paul Beaulieu, trade and commerce minister, charged while supporting the bill that the opposition party encouraged Communism.

Naming Mr. Casgrain last night was the first of the present session and the first time for the Riviere du Loup member who was chairman of a committee of the whole House reported Willie Morin (L.-Quebec Entre) to the speaker.

Mr. Casgrain protested that he had been unable to fully understand the committee chairman's verbal report, and thought it was false.

He remained on his feet for several seconds while speaker Alexandre Tache motioned to him to sit down and finally Mr. Tache said:

"I call to order Mr. Leon Casgrain, member for Riviere du Loup."

Mr. Casgrain was deprived of the right to speak for the few minutes that were left before adjournment. There was no motion for an expulsion which sometimes follows the action of identifying a member by his name instead of as a representative of an electoral division.

Called To Order

Mr. Casgrain, 56, and sharing with Premier Duplessis the longest unbroken term among members was called to order as Albert Groudreau (Un-Richmond) attorney-general during the Godbout administration from 1939 to 1944.

Fear Church Fire

NEW HAMBURG, Ont., Feb. 5—(CP)— Fire which started in the basement of Zion Evangelical church here early today, had gained such headway when it was discovered shortly after 8 a.m. that firemen were afraid they might not be able to save the building. The brick church is the largest in the village.

Councillor Edward Stick, who lives next-door to the church, discovered the fire in the furnace-room, but was unable to extinguish the flames with pails of water.

The Baden and New Hamburg fire departments were summoned. A $10,000 organ, installed 10 years ago, was partially destroyed.

Rev. Clayton Becker, is pastor of the church, renovated in 1919.

LEAP YEAR IS GIRLS' CHANCE

Maidens Should Know How To Convince Men They're Worth Marrying

A group of young women, who are determined to take advantage of their Leap Year privileges, ask me how they shall pop the question to their steadies and find out whether their attentions are with intention or not.

Dorothy Dix

"It isn't that we are not attractive to men," they say. "We are. But our trouble is that we don't attract them to the altar. They take us to dances and shows and out to dinner and they tell us how beautiful and attractive we are, but they never say: "Will you be mine?" And we are tired of playing around and we desire some sure-fire method for getting our men."

Right you are, daughters, and I agree with you that there is no use in wasting your powder on men who are always dodging the main issue, which is matrimony. The foxiest thing that men ever have done was to put out the propaganda that it was unladylike for a woman to take any part in a courtship, and that no matter how much she wanted a man she had to wait until he told her that he wanted her. That is the reason there are so many old maids.

Girls Most Important Right

Curiously enough, although women have gotten every other right in the world, they have never gotten the right to pick out their mate and pop the question, which is the most important right of all. But, inasmuch as they have this privilege only once in every four years, it is not strange that they are awkward and confused about how to go about it. They don't know whether to be bold and forward, or timid and deprecating, or determined, or weepy.

Different men require different methods, of course. Undoubtedly there are thousands of men who really never get up the spunk to propose to the girls they would like to marry. They choke on their Adam's apples when they try to tell a girl they love her. The undercover treatment is best for such cases. The girl should just assume the matter is settled and begin every sentence with "when we are married," and sure enough they will be married before he knows it.

If you are in love with a practical businessman, sell yourself to him by telling him what a good cook you are, and what clever bargains you drive, and how you make your own dresses and trim your own hats, and how you can save him money by marrying you. If you can produce a pie that you say you made with your own hands, he will say "yes" every time.

If you have set your affections on a vain man and want him for keeps, don't be sparing with flattery. Tell him how handsome and clever and wonderful he is. Make his perfections your theme song that you play upon as upon a harp with a thousand strings, and he is yours for the taking.

If the man of your desires seems a little lukewarm, your best move is to burst into tears after you have told him how you adore him and how he is breaking your heart with his coldness. If you can manage to sob on his shoulder, you've got him. Few men have the nerve to say "no" to the women who cry for them.

These are only a few of the many proposals by which a girl can get her man. Try 'em, and if one fails, don't be discouraged. The latest statistics show that there are 7,200,000 marriageable men against 6,400,000 women, which leaves a good working margin for the sweeties who want husbands.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, February 6

An exceptionally productive and brilliant state of affairs, with the energies keyed to splendid initiative and concentrated performance and with the mentality spurring the energies and faculties to very aggressive and direct action. Under such concentrated and constructive urgings, projects of unusual scope and significance may be executed with skill and ingenuity. In the midst of this culmination an overweaning ambition may spur to speculative or high-powered action in which the element of chance has power to unstabilize going programs or to turn the tide into channels of loss, disaster and regrets. Strange undercurrents could disrupt solid and well-laid plans. Keep alert to sneeces.

✧ ✧ ✧

If It is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may start out with very direct and concrete endeavors put over exceptionally brilliant and ambitious coups, under the spur of quickened initiative, fine ideas, dynamic enterprise and attack. Large projects of long-term and productive soope seem to flourish with spectacular force, when a subtle twist, a curious "hunch" or exalted aspiration, in which novelty, skill and ingenuity combine to make desired objectives secure. But then an undercurrent of the crafty, subtle and even sinister seems destined to knock the props from under the best-land and cleverly executed plans. Such may be traced to high places, and may be circumvented by alerted suspicions and soundly established procedures.

A child born on this day is endowed with exceptional skill, ingenuity, faculties and energies, but its dynamic course may be nullified by sinister events.

Welsh Musician B. Treharne Dies

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 — (CP).— Bryceson Treharne, 68, Welsh-born composer and former music editor for the Boston and Willis Music Companies, died yesterday. He also was a pianist and once taught at McGill University in Montreal.

During the First World War, Treharne was interned by the Germans for he was in Munich in 1914 when the war began. He was evacuated to England in the spring of 1916 in an exchange of prisoners of war. Shortly thereafter he came to New York.

While in prison he composed more than 200 songs.

In 1924 the composer left New York to become a lecturer at McGill, where he received a Doctor of Music degree. In the three year he was in the Canadian city he was also organist and choirmsater of the American Church there. On his return to this country he began his 20-year association with the Boston Music Company.

Born in Merthyr-Tydvil, South Wales, Treharne attended the Royal College of Music as a scholarship winner, studying under Charles Hubert Parry, Walford Davies, and Charles Villiers Stanford.

Besides the songs, Mr. Treharne composed three cantatas, "A Song of Spring," "England, My Mother," and "The Banshee," which was performed at the Welsh Eisteddfod in 1938.

Mrs. M. Stokes presided for the devotional period and introduced the guest speaker, Rev. E. J. Whan of Park St. Baptist church.

Rev. Whan centred thoughts of his listeners on "Dorcas and her deeds." This Biblical character by her unselfish devotion to God exemplified the highest type of service.

"God has greatly used women in lifting the standards of life," he said. A Godly mother exerts a great influence in the building of the home, of the church, and lastly, the character of those with whom she comes in contact.

He counseled his audience to unite against the onslaught of evil and concluded by wishing the organization the highest and best that may be in store.

A duet was contributed by Mrs. H. Turner and Mrs. E. Johnston. Rev. F. W. Craik offered prayer.

Mrs. G. Harris, president, conducted the business, when various reports were received. Mrs. B. Seabrooke related whta had been done by the sunshine department and numerous letters of appreciation for kindly remembrances were read by Mrs. E. Johnston, corresponding secretary.

Home and School

OMEMEE

The Home and School Association meeting Monday was well attended, the High School having the best representation of parents present.

Miss Lamb reported the findings of the Rhythm Band committee. The committee's recommendation was approved and the secretary instructed to order the required instruments.

Cashing soup accounts was discussed, and it was agreed that a more convenient method than used last year should be adopted. To this end Mrs. C. G. Shaw was appointed to receive the bills and forward them to the Board of Education, receive one cheque to cover all, make the necessary distribution.

The president, Mrs. R. Clifford, referred to the campaign of the Canadian Federation of Home and School Associations to raise funds to aid in the education of European children. She said $25 would be the share of the local association. On motions of Mrs. A. Stephenson and Mrs. H. Green, it was decided to hold a Valentine tea and bazaar to raise the money. Mrs. H. Green was appointed convener to arrange for the tea. Mrs. A. Stephenson will be in charge of bazaar.

The remainder of the meeting took the form of a euchre party.

200 Attend Nurses' Dance In Residence Auditorium

Valentine cherubs with messages of welcome marked the way to a good time Wednesday evening in the spacious new auditorium of St. Joseph's School of Nursing residence, where the students' annual formal dance was held. Twin hearts pierced with a silver arrow centred the stage and large bows of red and streamers decorated each pillar. Huge balloons suspended above the dancers were gaily festive. As party-mixers, Gallagher's orchestra played popular old tunes for the grand march and Paul Jones dances.

Prizes were given for novelty numbers, winners being Miss Pat McDermid of Toronto and Mr. Tommie Thompson for the birthday dance, and Miss Mary O'Brien and Mr. Thos. Cavanagh for the spot dance.

Receiving the guests were Dr. and Mrs. H. N. Young, Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Young, Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Fitzpatrick, Dr. and Mrs. J. Ralph Clark.

With The Girl Guides

1st St. Andrew's Brownie Pack

An enrolment ceremony took place Saturday when Wendy Collins and Elizabeth Pridham of the Fairy Six made their promise to Brown Owl and received Brownie pins. The mothers of these two new Brownies were present to watch the ceremony.

During the meeting the following tests were passed:

Union Jack, Katherine Lewis, Sharon Hutchinson, Gail Bastable; posture, Katherine Lewis; darning, Jean Lasenby.

The Brownies who are working on their golden hand were taught the meaning of the National Anthem.

Tickets were distributed for the Valentine tea, which is to be held on Saturday, February 14.

1st St. Andrew's Guide Company

The meeting began with the usual patrol corners. Barbara Jones explained what the Guide promise meant and was successful in passing. Eleanor Gilders passed her hand signals. The first-class Guides went to All Saints' company on Friday night to pass the thrift test and are awaiting results.

During campfire, which was in charge of the Bluebird patrol, Beverly Payne read a poem and a charade was presented by the patrol.

It was announced that there would be a church parade on February 22, and ten Guides were chosen to represent St. Andrew's Guide company in the choir at this service.

3rd All Saints' Brownie Pack

The attendance at this pack on Friday night was not as large as usual, due to the severe weather. However, the Brownies who braved the cold enjoyed the relay game, which was taken by Cadet Phyllis Whyte, and were kept busy working on their tests. Linda Thompson was successful in passing her promise and law, and Phyllis Hutchinson passed her darning test with a very neatly darned sock. The golden hand Brownies practiced tying a parcel.

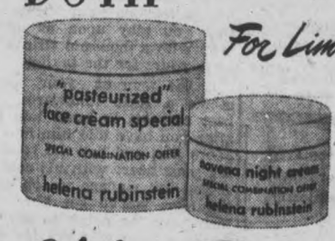
3rd All Saints' Guide Company

This company had a large attendance in spite of the cold weather, and the following tests were passed: Useful article, Doreen Hutchinson; Guide laws, Edna Nice; health rules, Edna Nice.

During the meeting an enrolment ceremony was held when Oryce McIlraith, a former Brownie, made her promise to captain and was welcomed into the company.

Plans were made for a sleigh ride to be held this coming Friday.

4th Salvation Army Guide Company



A group picture of the Cubs, Scouts, Guides and Brownies was taken on Friday night, after which the Guides worked very hard and passed the following tests:

Promise, Annabelle Saunders, Beverly Wright; flag, Jean Ward, Margaret Parnell, Betty Hegadoren; knots, Margaret Parnell,

Love Is More Important Than Movies Beauty Says

BY BOB DUNNE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 5 (AP) Hollywood is still hounding Miss America of 1947 but the tall Tennessee beauty persistently declines all offers because "love is more important.

"I only want to be a successful doctor's wife," says the nation's beauty queen Barbara Jo Walker. This continues to amaze movieland and thousands of screen hopefuls.

Barbara's latest rejection slip went to David O. Selznick who asked her to discuss a contract with him in New York, all expenses paid, of course.

The producer received a courteous reply of refusal to this effect: "I'm simply not interested."

Her attitude is simple and, the way Barbara tells it, quite convincing:

"I have no desire to lead the type of life that you must in Hollywood. I have my own ideals and private life is what counts."

Barbara has made no attempt to capitalize on the Miss America title. Although she averages about four personal appearances weekly, these are generally connected with charity. She has signed no advertising endorsements.

Education The Goal

Why did she enter the contest? Only for the $5,000 scholarship fund. That award may be employed for any educational purpose. Last month she used some of the money to buy a piano to help with her music studies. She also will take graduate study in French and English through the fund.

Despite the many trips she's called on to make--fashion shows, carnivals, charity balls--she manages to keep pace with college classes at Memphis State here.

Taking books on the trips helps and she explains, "I got ahead (through summer courses). Now it's easy.

Currently Barbara had a schedule calling for nine hours weekly study. The busy beauty finds time, for sorority work and roles in dramatic productions. Her interest in the stage goes no further.

She plans to teach school after she'd graduated this spring. Later she'd like to become that successful doctor's wife." He's John Hummel, of Charleston, Mo., who recently completed medical school at the University of Tennessee here.

There's just no place on the program for Hollywood.

Polio Upsets Tourists In New Zealand

AUCKLAND, N.Z., Feb. 5 (CP)—Although New Zealand is basking in one of the best summer seasons for many years, some of the most popular beaches are deserted and holiday resorts have never kunown so many reservation cancellations.

An outbreak of infantile paralysis has caused many beaches near the larger cities to be declared unsafe by the health authorities owing to danger of infection from polluted waters. Bans have been placed on children mingling in crowds.

As the North Island is much more seriously affected than the South Island, inter-island travel by children has been stopped. All schools were closed several weeks early for the long summer vacation. Other stringent precautions imposed include the prohibition of children from sports events, picture theatres and other places of entertainment. Motor camps and other places where children might gather at holiday resorts are also banned to children under 16.

Many businesses have been seriously affected. Picture theatre proprietors report that business has not been so slack for 20 years. Holders of concessions for seaside ice-cream and soft drinks are on the verge of ruin. Popular holiday resorts which are usually fully booked a year ahead have choice accommodation vacant.

Instead of flocking to the popular centres, holiday makers are seeking isolated cabins or are camping as far away from other people as possible.

As a result of the precautions taken the epidemic is being kept to much smaller proportions than was thought possible earlier in the summer. The outbreak is worst in Auckland and there have been several deaths there, but in other parts of the country the epidemic has been checked and held within minor limits.

Of Interest to Women

ON SHOPPING TOUR—Anne Rhynchuck, 23, has been in the hospital for eight years as a result of an accident when a bullet lodged in her spine. She is now able to leave and hopes to take a job. This week she went on her first shopping tour in Toronto and bought her first new clothes in eight years.

Paralyzed For 8 Years Girl 23 Has New Hope

TORONTO, Feb. 5—The "new look" for Anne Rhynchuck, 23 year-old paraplegic, means more than the ballerina skirt she bought on Wednesday. There is new hope, a new future tied up in the latest styles. Anne's trip to a downtown department store here in a Red Cross car marked the first real shopping trip in her life, the first new clothes she had in eigth years.

The Red Cross branch of Sudbury, her "foster-home" town, gave Anne $150 to buy a new wardrobe, but the real story of Anne Rhynchuck starts long before that.

Of Ukrainian parentage, Anne was left an orphan in Toronto at the age of three. A home was found for her in Sudury.

Twelve years later she was working as a waitress in a Sudbury cafe when a man blundered in with a revolver. In the skirmish that followed, a bullet ricocheted off the restaurant wall and caught Anne in the spine.

The bullet is lodged in Anne's fifth spinal vertebra today.

Brought to Toronto

Unable to move, she lay in Sudbury hospital for a year. Then Rev. A. Roberecki of St. Josophat's Church in Toronto, who shared Anne's Ukrainian background, heard of her. He brought Anne to our Lady of Mercy Hospital in Toronto. In time she regained the use of her arms; but in spite of doctors and consulation no hope that she would ever walk again was offered her.

In October, 1946, Father Robercki brought a new visitor to Anne's bedside—Dr. A. T. Jousee, supervisor of Lyndhurst Lodge, national hospital for paraplegic, himself partly paralyzed. Together he and Father Robercki arranged for Anne to visit Lyndhurst Lodge daily, to be fitted for leg braces, trained in the use of crutches, wheelchair and compensatory muscles.

Anne can "walk" a little now on her crutches. She manages her wheelchair expertly. She is studing typing and short-hand and will soon be ready for a job.

In all those long eight years Anne never had any new clothes People were kind, of course, giving her a coat or a dress only slightly worn. But as a women of 23, her own tastes and yearnings for fashion had never once been answered.

Mrs. G. Quinn, Red Cross Hospital visitor, understood that need. As a friend of veteran and civilian patients at Lyndhurst Lodge for years, Mrs. Quinn knew Anne, admired her courage and cheerful vivacity. She wrote a letter to the Sudbury Red Cross

Wednesday Anne had her answer. With $150 tucked in her purse, Anne and Mrs. Quinn went shopping. For Anne it was her first sortie into a department store.

First they bought lingerie Then sweaters in soft pastels. Then blouses, one for every day, one best. Slacks, too, practical for Anne's gymnasium work. Finally a full ballerina skirt with the "new look", navy blue, and a matching double breasted jacket and grey red shortie coat to wear over all.

As the Red Cross drivers helped her into the car to go home, Anne held fast to her packages. She turned to Mrs. Quinn and and smiled. "You know," she said, "I'm so lucky!

There are many like Anne in Canada, veterans and civilians in need of sympathetic understanding and practical help. On March 1 the Red Cross will launch an appeal for $3,000,000, so that no Canadian may suffer needlessly for the want of a neighborly hand and friendly assistance.

Shrove Tuesday and Pancakes Linked

The story of how Shrove Tuesday and pancakes go together is an interesting one. The pancake is really a relic of unleavened bread. It is the old shriving cake, and is typical of Lent. The surviving observance of the day is supposedly based on the symbolical value of the things that go into the pancake. Flour represents the staff of like, milk is a token of innocence, eggs are a desirable form of Lenten food, and salt represents the influence of a wholesome life.

The history of Shrove Tuesday tells us that the fat used in frying was specified too. Housewives had to save enough grease to fry their cakes from the chops or cutlets eaten the day before Shrove Tuesday and it was considered bad luck to use any other. All good housewives, therefore spared no expense or exertion in obtaining the fattiest cutlets possible and carefully drained off the grease.

Pancake Bells in olden times used to toll on Shriving Day in England to tell the people to prepare their batter and fry their cakes which were eaten before midday. In the afternoon or evening, everyone went to the church to be shriven or absolved from their sins.

In the middle ages the original pancakes were eaten hot from the pan and with only salt to give them savor.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Outline Geneva Meet

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 5.—(AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was called to speak before the United Nations Economic and Social Council today. She appears as chairman of the UN Commission on Human Rights to present a report on her group's recent Geneva meeting.

The 18-member council decided to hear her after over-ruling objections from White Russia. Delegate Leonid Kaminsky contended the council had had no time to study the commission's work and it would be premature to listen to Mrs. Roosevelt now.

The council turned to the human rights discussion after hearing Britain and Russia exchange political accusations. Britain charged Russian activity in Eastern Europe made the Soviet Union an "expanding imperialist power." Russia called the accusa- said Britain was using the counti on a "monstrous falsehood" and cil for "hostile propaganda against the Soviet Union."

The Security Council, meanwhile, scheduled more debate on the India-Pakistan quarrel over Kashmir. Philip Noel-Baker of Britain was expected to offer some plan to bring the two dominions together.

Plan Discussion

The Palestine Partition Commission planned a discussion of the composition of an advance party to be sent into the Holy Land, possibly within 10 days.

The commission decided yesterday to negotiate with Britain for an RAF field at Aquir, near Jerusalem. It was considered possible the UN group might establish headquarters there.

Meanwhile Russia was reported yesterday to have informed the UN that Soviet economic production is back to pre-war levels.

While the Soviet report to the UN secretariat contained no information not already published, UN officials said this was the first time Russia had supplied the UN with production data of any kind.

FUTURE WAELTH

Canada Able To Expand Mexican Trade

OTTAWA, Feb. 5. —(CP), — Prospects are bright for a big expansion of Canada's trade with Mexico, Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, deputy resources minister, said Wednesday told the annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Surveying.

Dr. Keenleyside, former Canadian ambassador to Mexico, declared that the possibility of more than $100 million worth of trade per year between the two countries was opening up as the result of Mexico's new industrial development. The pre-war figure was $3 million.

A fortunate aspect of the trade outlook between the two counties, he said, was that each country needed more of the goods produced by the other.

As the result of Mexico's industrial revolution, there was the basis for "a very substantial and profitable trade" between the two countries. He hoped to see it expand at the end of Canada's present period of dollar-saving import restrictions.

Denies Claims

Dr. Keenleyside disparages claims in some quarters that, by selling capital goods to a country building up its industry, Canada would be shutting of her market for consumer goods in that country. The whole history of industrialization in the western world indicated the opposite, he said.

It would be greatly to the advantage of Canada to contribute to the industrial development of Mexico. Under such development, Mexicans would be better off and would be able to buy more from the Dominion.

Dr. Keenleyside addressed a meeting of the institute on the opening day of its two-day annual session.

During the day, the surveyors heard papers delivered by Major James A. H. Church of Halifax, on the training of war veterans as land surveyors in Nova Scotia, and by C. D. Brown of Winnipeg, on his experiences as a surveyor.

Red Revolution Plan For Quebec Premier Warns

QUEBEC, Feb. 5 — (CP). — Premier Maurice Duplessis, long an outspoken and bitter foe of communism, warned Wednesday that an assault by Communists will be made in 1948 "on the democratic institutions of Quebec and Canada."

He said plans for the "revolution in 1948" have been reported by government agents who attended Communist meetings and last year a chart was seized giving last details of a plan to take over key points in Montreal.

The premier spoke his warning to a delegation representing L'Union Catholique des Cultivateurs (Catholic Farmers' Union) and urged "all good citizens to unite with the government of the province to stand up to the situation created here by the Communists."

Mr. Duplessis said the seized chart gave details of the number of men needed and listed the buildings to be taken over in Montreal—the city hall, provincial police headquarters and hydro-electric stations. Key to the code, he said, was found in a brief case belonging to the late Michael Buhay, Communist alderman in Montreal.

Warning also against apathy or minimizing the seriousness of a possible Communist thrust, the Premier said that in the Hungarian general elections, the Communists received only 10 per cent of the vote, but were so strongly organized they were able to seize power.

Mr. Duplessis also recalled the government's introduction in 1937 of the anti-Communist padlock law—a measure to close places of Communist activities—and said he had been invited to explain the law before the Justice Minister in Ottawa when attempts were made to have the act disallowed.

He said the Russian spy trials, resulting from disclosure of an espionage ring in 1946—could have been avoided had the federal authorities prevented use of telegraph and post to Communists for propaganda purposes.

NEW FIGHTERS LEARNING LESSONS OF WAR — Combined operations, which played a decisive part in all the final victorious campaigns of the recent war, are being taught to present members of all branches of the services at the Combined Operations school at Fremington, North Devon, Eng. Navy, army, marine and air force men are all under instruction in all the ramifications of amphibious assault. Here identification boards are worn by officers in the "H.Q. Ship" at Fremingham as they study a map of the "operational area." The boards give the men undergoing the course a clear idea of the responsibilities of each part of the unified command.

British Get Good Paper From Grasses In Sudan

LONDON, Feb. 5. (CP)—Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, said in the House of Commons that investigations are being continued into the use of Sudan papyrus and grasses for making pulp and paper.

"Tests indicate that Sudan grasses can be used as a paper and board raw material," he said.

Sudan papyrus produced a well-digested pulp yielding a pale brown paper of excellent strength and quality. The pulp bleached readily, producing a white paper of similar character and high quality, Mr. Wilson said. Only one mill test had been carried out and merchantable paper was produced from about 10 tons of dried papyrus.

"In its raw state papyrus would be used in the United Kingdom by those mills normally pulping esparto and home-grown straw. So long as supplies of these materials are adequate, as they are at present, it is unlikely the mills will be prepared to use any alternative materials unless it is commercially economic," he added.

No serious consideration had yet been given to the possibility of large-scale pulping operations in Africa.

"The whole question of using African grasses as paper and board raw material is under consideration by the primary products committee, which has been set up by the Colonial Office as the authority chiefly interested as regards British territories in Africa," said Mr. Wilson.

14 Nazi Officers Stand Trial At Nuernberg

NUERNBERG, Feb. 5—(AP).—United States prosecutors opened their case against 14 German military leaders today—the 12th and the last war-crimes trial to be held here. They accused Germany's professional soldiers of rearming for war even ebfore Hitler.

The chief prosecutors said this last case might "well prove of greater importance to Germany thany any other."

Being tried by an all-American court are three field marshals, one admiral and 10 generals. They are charged with crimes against peace and humanity. The top defendant is Field Marshal Wilhelm Ritter von Leeb.

One of the 14 accused killed himself shortly before the trial was to begin. Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz jumped 30 feet from a high catwalk to the tile floor of the prison rotunda.

Brig.-Gen. Telford Taylor, chief United States war crimes prosecutor, told the court in his opening statement that the army men guided the old German Reichswehr until it became a hard-striking, aggressive weapon.

He asserted that German generals were leaders in breaking the Versailles treaty in the 1920's. He said they embarked on rearmament—"it was not invented by Hitler." The whole thing was part of a common plan having to do with eventual war.

He did not mention that the general staff—as a unit—was acquitted by the international military tribunal in the first Nuernberg trial, from April, 1945, to October, 1946.

5 Barely Escape Burning Home

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 5 — Bruce Charlton, 15, getting up early Wednesday to cover his delivery route, discovered his home ablaze, and roused five other persons who might have been burned in their beds had he not sounded the alarm. All escaped from the inferno which engulfed the four-room frame cottage at 214 York St., with only the clothing they wore. Some saved only the pyjamas they were sleeping in.

In hospital is Bruce's stepfather, Peter Trefonavich, 42. He suffered painful burns to his hands, arm, neck, head and foot as he rushed to haurl pails and saucepans of water at the advancing flames. His condition is not serious.

Only other casualty was the family pet, "Trudy," a 3-months-old collie dog, last seen cowering in fear against the wall of the smoke-filled living room.

The little frame cottage was almost destroyed by the fire as it burned "like a matchbox," according to Bruce's brother, George, 17. The rented cottage was insured, but the contents, completely destroyed, were not insured. Damage was estimated at about $5,000.

"Dad woke me and then went back to sleep," recounted Bruce. "I dressed and started to the back of the house, and then I saw the flames. I ran back and told dad and the others, and then went next door and woke them up and asked them to phone the fire department.

Fire was believed to have started from an electric heater left on in a back kitchen to prevent water pipes from freezing in the near zero weather.

George Charlton joined his stepfather in fighting the losing battle, and when he saw that the house was doomed he ran to his bedroom to try to save some clothing. "It was full of smoke and I couldn't see where anything was," he said. "Then I saw the doorway was blocked by the fire, so I smashed the window with my fist and climbed out in my pyjamas." He suffered a gash on his neck from the jagged glass. "As soon as the fire broke through the kitchen I knew it was no use. The place burned like a matchbox," said George.

A boarder, James Chaffe, 15, helped fight the flames. He escaped with his pyjamas, pants and shoes.

When efforts to quell the blaze proved futile Bruce ran to wake up his mother, Mrs. Trefonvich, 43. She had been ill for several months and had taken a sleeping tablet four hours earlier. She rushed to the front door with her 6-year-old grandson, John Watson, and pushed him out to safety. Then she returned for a blanket to keep him warm.

Onus Is On Driver

MONTREAL — (CP). — The green light doesn't necessarily place a motorist in the right, a superior court justice ruled here. The judge held a plaintiff one-third responsible for a collision because he proceeded on the green light while the defendent's car was crossing the intersection.

THE FIRST CLOCK

Ancient man kept time by measuring shadows cast by trees, cliffs and other objects.

ALWAYS TOGETHER—Charles and John Tubb, above, 25-year-old twin brothers from Maidstone, Kent, England, believe in doing things as a team. This time it's immigration. En route to British Columbia to become lumberjacks they are shown as they arrived in Montreal. Inseparable since birth, the Tubbs joined the Royal Navy 10 years ago and served together. They are seeing Canada for the first time.

Find MacArthur, Press Disagree About Controls

TOKYO, Feb. 5. (AP) — The controversy between Gen MacArthur and some American news correspondents over how far and when they may travel brings up two broader questions.

How much authority should an army exercise over reporters gathering news, and what facilities should be available to the reporters?

The 56 accredited correspondents of six countries now working here actually have no specific status. For practical purposes, they have most of the privileges of military personnel and the army's civilian employees. This is possible, say MacArthur's aides, because of his special dispensation.

This means correspondents are able to purchase articles and food at army post exchanges and commissary, obtain transportation for limited payment, and live in houses commandeered from the Japanese and renovated at Japanese government expense. For such houses, correspondents pay a rental in dollars to the army. (Average, $100 monthly.)

Other non-official civilians like bankers and traders are required to obtain such facilities from the Japanese.

Military officials have told correspondents that they have no more status here than "a man selling a shirt," and that their "privileges" could be taken away from them at any time (by MacArthur's command).

More Control

The army organization here is an expansion of its usual peacetime establishments — with, however, infinitely more authority and direct supervision over the American civilians present.

The counter-intelligence corps maintains a continual surveillance over all foreigners, as well as Japanese. It is known that files are kept on correspondents, and their "reliability" is graded in these records.

Anti-black market restrictions include a maximum allowance of 75 gallons of gasoline a month, and specific limits on the value of food purchases.

The army has a blanket rule that any member of the occupation receiving three "delinquency reports" for rules infractions can be removed from this war theatre. This blanket rule has not been applied against correspondents, but has affected some officers. Because of a multitude of rules, most residents acquire three delinquency reports quickly.

Military officials have refused to "make any more exceptions" for correspondents in matters involving such regulations as ration maximums.

WA, Guild Financed Redecorating, Repair

BETHANY, Feb. 5 (ENS). — Annual vestry meeting of St. Paul's Church was held on Monday. Rev. T. S. Gault presided. Miss Laura Morton was elected vestry clerk. A. H. Padgham, the treasurer, presented the financial report. The Synod allotments and assessment were paid in full. All church commitments were met, leaving a balance of $113 in the general fund. Mrs. G. L. Jarvis reported the Women's Auxiliary had a successful year, paying their pledges in full and raising $420 for redecorating the church. Mrs. Charles Smith reported for the Ladies' Guild. They paid for overhauling and repairing the furnace. They also sent parcels of food and clothing to three families in Portsmouth, England.

The wardens elected for 1948 were: Rector's warden, G. L. Jarvis; people's warden, Noel Wood; lay delegate to Synod, Robert Morton.

Up To City Council

SARNIA, Ont. — (CP). — Mayor W. C. Nelson has received a letter from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, which is to erect some 300 homes here this year, asking that cost of lots be reduced. The cost is up to city council since the property where the project is planned is city-owned.

SOME MAKE YOU WORK

SOME DEFENDERS have the habit of always coming in with their winning high cards at the first opportunity, thereby making it easy for you to utilize your own trick winners for maximum results. Others, however, don't ease your path in that way. They like to make you work for whatever you get, knowing that once in a while you will not work in the most efficient way. But which is more fun—getting your good scores through the defenders' ineptness, or through your own meritorious performance?

This was one of the last deals played by the late Dr. Arthur L. Pulver, one of New York's most enthusiastic duplicate devotees. Most other pairs reached the same contract in a game conducted at Pearl Martyn's Winthrop Hotel club, and in nearly all cases the spade 4 was led. One inexperienced declarer got himself set at once by putting in the Q. When the K won, West returned the diamond 2 to the A to set the contract.

In other cases the play went about parallel. The spade A won, then the heart K, A and Q and the club A, K and Q, discarding two spades and a diamond, whereupon the diamond 8 was led. East at all tables except the doctor's came in with the A, making the rest easy after the club J was returned and ruffed. The diamond K and Q furnished discards of North's last spade and club, leaving two trumps for the finish.

Against Dr. Pulver, East played the J on the diamond 8 lead. The Q won. Then a low diamond was ruffed, taking out the A, and the club 6 ruffed in dummy. The diamond K then brought a discard of Dr. Pulver's last spade and he was sure of his contract, giving up a single club to East at the windup.

390 Juniors Receive Crests

Some 390 school children, members of the Junior Ski Club, will receive crests from the Recreation Commission, Thursday afternoon, suitable for decorating windbreakers or ski jackets. They are round crest about two inches in diameter with blue markings on a white background. In the centre is the figure of a skier in action.

The Junior Ski Club is the product of the combined efforts of the Board of Education, which approved and supported the plan, the Recreation Commission, which finances it, and the Peterborough Ski Club which provides the instruction.

Instruction takes place at Kemp's Hill and the plan has proved to be a popular one. Apart from the fact that skiing is a healthy outdoor activity, it gives promise of developing some top-flight skiers from this district for the future.

Those registered are between ages of seven and 16, consisting of 90 girls and 300 boys. All age groups are well represented.

To Use Propane

ing of the gas plant to conform with the needs of propane gas use.

The Commission also placed a contract order for a supply of propane. Cost of plant changes are estimated at approximately $40,000, possibly up to $5,000 more than that amount. Switch to propane gas calls for two storage tanks, 10 feet in circumference by 660 feet in length, costing $12,000 each. Equipment for controls and compression will add another $10,000 to the amount.

In Liquid Form

Propane is received is liquid form, and can be held in storage. Apparatus for its change to gas will be installed, and the quality of the gas will be raised from 450 British Thermal Units to about 700, per cubic foot of gas. With better heating efficiency, the cubic foot of gas will be more economical to the domestic consumer even at the increase in rate or service charge which the Commission will have to apply for the rest of this year. The full effect of the economy at which the Commission is aiming its new plans will not be felt by the public until probably the middle of the year or later than that. It is understood that certain automatic control of apparatus in the new equipment will be accomplished.

Mr. Thorburn advised the Commission they could hold the old plant four or five years as a standby, but in the end will amount merely to scrap value. As to propane, he said that the more crude oil that was brought into this country for reduction to gasoline, the more propane would be available for domestic sources. Substantial increase in that direction had taken place.

The gas plant has been giving the Commission serious concern for the last six months or more. The present action has been undertaken for the advantage of the domestic and industrial gas consumers in Peterborough, and eventually, when the new gas comes into regular supply, it is believed that costs and prices will adjust themselves satisfactorily.

Health League Lays Plans On Education

Everyone knows it is possible to eliminate communicable diseases and to build a people taller, stronger, longer lived, more efficient and happier. The knowledge and the means are available, but medical science needs the aid of an informed public opinion if its goal — the defeat of disease — is to be reached.

The intelligent and earnest participation of the people is essential. And, somebody or some organization must create the required public opinion — must give the lead to health-minded people whose support is required.

That is why there is such an organization as the Health League of Canada — a body of volunteers which for more than 28 years has been devoted to a program of health education, especially in the field of disease prevention, and to the support of the official departments of health. The aims of the Health League are:—

To prevent illness, conserve health, and prolong life; to encourage public support for all wise health legislation; to enlist the co-operation of the public in official and profession efforts to control communicable disease and to improve public sanitation and health; and to conduct a broad and continuing educational campaign to promote personal, family and community hygiene throughout Canada.

The Health League of Canada is the Dominion's leading voluntary health education agency — it is a people's movement. The Health League believes it is just as worthwhile, perhaps more so, to prevent suffering as it is to alleviate it.

One of the means used by the League to awaken the apathetic to a realization of the value of health and the appalling costs of sickness — much of which is preventable — and untimely death, is sponsorship of NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK — which is held annually during the first week of February and in which officials department of health and education co-operate.

Throughout the year, the Health League carries on specific programs relating to immunization, venereal-disease control, restaurant sanitation, nutrition, industrial health and pasteurization.

Senate Studies Seal Bill, Water Power

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—(CP).—The Senate's attention swung from water power to seals yesterday as it gave consideration to a variety of legislation.

It gave first reading to a bill which would clarify the right of the government to construct power projects on Crown lands, a reflection of the state's power project for gold mining on the Snare river in the Northwest Territories.

Second reading was given bills which would:

1. Give residents of the Northwest Territories the right to appeal to the Alberta Appeal Court's decisions of their stipendiary magistrates, and speed up the procedure for preserving game.

2. Include members of the interim military forces and certain merchant seamen among those entitled to make use of veterans' insurance policies.

3. Cut membership from five to one on the board of review which considers the right of dishonorably discharged war veterans to get gratuities.

4. Re-appoint the Montreal and Toronto firm of G. A. Touche as auditors for the Canadian National Railways.

5. Give a legislative basis to the provisional agreement between Canada and the United States under which fur seal fishing is prohibited in the Bering sea and parts of the North Pacific and the U.S. gives Canada 20 per cent of the kill on the Pribiloff Islands.

6. Increase the capital stock of the Eastern Trust Company and reduce the capital stock of the Trust and Loan Company of Canada.

7. Shorten the name of the Ruthenian Catholic Mission of the Order of St. Basil the Great in Canada.

Most of the bills were referred to committee for more detailed study.

Will Leave Canada

WINNIPEG, Feb. 5 — (CP). — After almost year of trying to obtain passage, 1,500 Mennonites from the prairies were disclosed last night to have been successful in chartering a vessel to take them to Paraguay where they will continue their own way of life. The S.S. Volandam, a one-time troopship, will sail May 16 with the Mennonites, most of whom are from Manitoba. Smaller groups are expected to leave shortly after.

Victoria Girl Best Aussie Horsewoman

MELBOURN, Australia, Feb. 5 (CP). — A Victoria girl, Miss Kathleen Lucas, recently won the most coveted award for women riders in Australia. This was the Garryowen perpetual trophy for competition at the Melbourn Royal Agricultural Show. It was first given in 1934 to commemorate the death of a noted Australian horsewoman, Mrs. Violet Murrell who was burned to death with her husband trying to save her favorite horse, Garryowen, from a fire at Mordialloc, Victoria.

Twenty-two-year-old Miss Lucas is one of the youngest competitors ever to win the award; she scored 90½ points out of a possible 100 for expert riding, perfect costume and excellent mount, after a gruelling two-hour test in the arena. Any woman who wins the award can fairly be said to be the best horsewoman in Australia.

Pay $5,000 Too Much To U.S. Army Captain

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. (AP) — A typographical error in the office army register has cost the government $5,000 in overpay to an army officer, but the House armed service committee voted unanimously today to let the officer, Lt.-Col. James Y. Parker, keep the money.

As a captain, Parker, serving in the Philippines, was captured by Japanese troops in May, 1942. When he was freed from a prisoner-of-war camp in Japan in September, 1945, the army register listed him as a major, and he was paid for that rank.

Subsequent investigation showed that through an error Parker's promotion had not reached the adjutant-general in 1942, and that the register listing was wrong. So Parker had been paid $5,000 more than technically he had coming.

Plan Expansion South Isle Of New Zealand

INVERCARGILL, N.Z., Feb. 5 (CP)—Local bodies in the South Island of New Zealand have decided to campaign for bringing immigrants, tourists, industries and overseas air terminals to the south to counteract the flow of population to the North Island.

A major population shift to the north has been in progress in New Zealand for many years. Settlement began in the North Island early last century but the Maori Wars, which were largely confined to the north, and the discovery of gold in the south soon produced a much larger population in the South Island.

During most of the formative years of the new colony the South Island was the dominating partner, centre of much of its wealth and source of a great part of the finance for fresh development in the north. The south was also looked on as the educational and cultural headquarters of the colony. In 1861 the South Island, with a population of 296,355, had 60 per cent of the country's inhabitants.

Yet the dominance of the south has steadily declined. Early in the present century the populations of the two islands became equal. The North Island has steadily gone further and today has 1,146,292 people, against 556,006 in the South Island. With 67.3 per cent of the population and a large proportion of the country's industries, the North Island today completely overshadows the South.

Warmer Climate

Varied reasons have been given for the remarkable change. The one most widely accepted is that the warmer climate of the North Island has proved more attractive. The North Island is nearer other centres of population and the establishment there of more fully-developed ports and the terminals of overseas air services has tended to hasten the flow of population to the north. Gold in the South Island is largely worked out and once-populous mining towns are now deserted relics of the past.

But the South Island still has tremendous potentialities and some organizations there already see a turning in the north-flowing tide. It contains ome of the best land in the Dominion and huge areas of native forests which are as yet practically-undeveloped. Even more important it has enormous scope for hydro-electric development. Few of its swift-flowing rivers have yet been harnessed, while its large mountain lakes situated in areas of high rainfall offer scope for development which could make the South Island the powerhouse of the Pacific.

The Aluminum Company of Canada Ltd., has already been investigating the possibility of harnessing one of these lakes to produce a huge power output for aluminum manufacture. South Island interests are confident that in time the island will become a vital industrial centre for the whole Pacific and will again overshadow the North Island whose potentialities for hydro-electric development are limited.

A South Island publicity organization has been created to attract tourists and to make manufacturers better aware of the possibilities of the south and a campaign is in progress to secure a larger portion of the assisted immigrants being brought out from Britain by the government.

CHANGE OVER TO STEAM — A changeover from gas to steam ovens for certain painting operations allowed the Ford Motor Co. to recall 600 of its 6,200 idle employees yesterday. About 25,000 workers have been laid off in Western Ontario centres because of unprecedented gas shortage. The nearly empty natural gas reservoir (left) is part of Ford plant at Windsor. In background are twin smokestacks of powe rhouse. At right is one of the gas-operated heat treatment ovens now out of operation in the plant, with auto gears awaiting treatment.

"Extinct" Tree Found In China

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 5 (AP).—Seeds of a tree—believed extinct for 100,000,000 years — have arrived at Harvard's Arnold Arboreum and soon will be shipped to botanical gardens in the United States and England.

Up to two years ago the metasequoi, a type of fire tree, was known only from fossil remains. The first living specimen was found in February, 1946, by Chinese explorers in a remote valley of central China.

The seeds were obtained later by an Arboreum expedition which located 100 more metasequoias described as more than 100 feet high with 7½-foot trunks. Although cone-bearing, the tree loses its leaves in winter.

Dr. E. D. Merrill, Arnold professor of botany at Harvard, said today that the seeds, resembling rolled, dried corn kernels, may not germinate in this climate.

To find the best growing conditions for the age-old tree, he is sending seeds to the following gardens and institutions:

University of California, Berkeley, Calif.; Seattle, Wash., Arboreum; University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N.C.; Duke University, Durham, N.C.; Park Department, Los Angeles, Calif.; Huntington Arboreum, Passadena, Calif.; Morton Arboretum, Chicago; Fairchild Tropical Gardens, California Grove, Fla.; Golden Gate Park, San Francisco; The Royal Horticultural Society, London, and Royal Botanical Gardens, Kew, England.

BARBARA SCORES AGAIN—Acme of skating perfection, beautiful Barbara Ann Scott, Ottawa, captured the Olympic figure skating title at St. Moritz, Switzerland, today. She already holds the world title and the European title. Miss Scott is the first Canadian to ever win the Olympic figure skating crown. This victory is one of the most outstanding achievements in modern sporting annals.

Barbara Ann Scott Olympic Champion

Canada's Sweetheart Brings Title To Dominion For First Time In History

Skater Turned In Almost Perfect Show As Other Rivals Tumble; Has No Desire To Become Professional

By JACK SULLIVAN

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 6—(CP).—Canada's Barbara Ann Scott today won the women's figure-skating championship at the fifth winter Olympics, climaxing a success story perhaps unparalleled in Canadian sport history and bringing to the Dominion its first Olympic skating title. The 19-year-old Canadian girl, with a characteristically polished performance, scored marks ranging from 5.3 to 5.9 in the free-figure phase of the championship. Six is perfection.

The official announcement came after Barbara Ann's flawless form in the free figures made it certain that the judges would confirm the unofficial figures.

Most of the other competitors in the field of 25 from 11 countries were just going through their paces in sunlet Olympic stadium after Barbara Ann, skating "unlucky 13th" in the bulky field, gave her graceful exhibition.

The Olympic Press Bureau announced unofficially that Eva Pawlik of Austria had placed second to Miss Scott, with Alena Vrzonova of Czechoslovakia third, Jirina Nekolova of Czechoslovakia fourth, and Yvonne Sherman of New York fifth.

Wearing her blonde hair pageboy style above a flaired white fur dress in which she appeared for the first time, Barbara Ann was her usual steady self over a difficult ice surface which spilled several of her rivals, including Gretchen Merrill of Boston, Suzanne Morrow of Toronto, and Eileen Seigh of Brooklyn, NY.

The estimated 5,000 spectators in the big, open-air stadium cheered lustily as Barbara Ann skated off.

Drew Names Saunders Hydro Head

Will Take Over Job On March 1; To Resign Mayoralty

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—(CP). — Stocky, dynamic 44-year-old Robert Hood Saunders will give up the mayoralty of Toronto to become chairman of the province's largest publicly-owned enterprise, the $400,000,000 Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

Premier Drew made the announcement last night, effective March 1, and Mayor Saunders in announcing his acceptance said it had come as a surprise. "I heard only two days ago that I was being considered for the position," he remarked.

Mr. Saunders replaces Dr. Thomas H. Hogg, who resigned as Commission chairman a year ago at the request of Premier Drew. The Premier at that time had charged Dr. Hogg with failing to keep the government advised on vital Hydro matters.

The Hydro chairmanship is believed to carry a salary of $15,000.

It now is up to city council to appoint a successor to Mr. Saunders in the mayoralty, which pays $10,000. Mr. Saunders has just got rolling on his fourth term as mayor.

When the mayor tenders his resignation city council will likely appoint a successor from among the present four-man board of control, with Controller Hiram Emerson McCallum, vice-chairman, the probable choice. Council then will have to appoint an alderman to fill the vacant board of control seat, and another citizen to replace the alderman on city council.

High Qualifications

In announcing the appointment Premier Drew said "I am convinced there is no man in Ontario with higher qualifications for this extremely important work....

"The chairman will be responsible for administration and policy, while Richard L. Hearn, general manager and chief engineer, will have full responsibility for the management and direction of the engineering and business affairs of the commission, subject to decisions on policy by the chairman and the board."

Premier Drew also said that in urging Mayor Saunders two days ago to accept the post "I impressed upon him the fact that in this position he would have an opportunity for public service of the utmost importance to the people of every part of Ontario, at a time when the activities of this great organization will be expanding on a scale and at a speed never approached before."

Premier Drew noted that Hydro's current five-year expansion program calls for development of 1,100,000 additional horsepower from projects now under construction at a cost of nearly $300,000,000.

Take Over Ownership

LONDON, Feb. 6—(AP).—Fuel Minister Hugh Gaitskell announced in the Commons today the Government will take over ownership of Britain's electric utilities April 1. Legislation nationalizing Britain's entire generating and distribution system was passed by parliament last year. The cost to the Government for the 190 private and 370 municipal plants is estimated in the neighborhood of $1,400,000,000.

De Valera Loses Majority But Likely In

DUBLIN, Feb. 6 (AP)—Thomas L. Mullins, secretary of the Fianna Fail (government party) said today Prime Minister Eamon de Valera lost his dail (parliament) majority by a slim margin in Wednesday's general election.

But Mullins said the prime minister would be able to form a new government with the support of Labor and Independents.

Complete returns from three-quarters of Eire's 40 constituencies showed De Valera's Fianna Fail could not hope to obtain the 74 seats needed for a clear majority in the 1047-member dail.

However, William Burke, general secretary of the Fine Gael Party, De Valera's chief opposition, conceded the prime minister had a "fairly good chance" of extending his unbroken 16 years of rule with the support of the minority groups.

The latest official returns issued by the government information bureau gave the Fianna Fail 55 of the 117 seats thus far determined.

The Fianna Fail led the dail, dissolved last fall, with 76 of the 142 seats.

During the campaign De Valera said he wanted no part of a coalition government.

"Mr. de Valera still has not thought of a coalition," Mullins said, "He will pursue his long standing independent Fianna Fail policy and I am confident the Independent National Labor members will voluntarily support him in the interests of a strong, stable government.

Sean MacBride's year-old Clann Na Poblachta (Republican Party) slipped into fifth place from a tie for fourth on the basis of the new returns. This party forced the general election by taking two by-elections last fall. MacBride had predicted it would win 40 seats. Today it was sure of six.

Greek Vessels Ordered To Sink Unknown Subs

ATHENS, Feb. 6—(AP)—The Greek navy ministry today ordered its warships to attack and sink all unidentified submarines in Greek territorial waters.

The order followed the reported appearance of two strange submarines.

One was reported between the Peloponnesus and Crete, and another off the coast of Preveza, in the Ionian Sea. Preveza is primarily a supply port for Epirus.

Troop and supply ships now are being escorted by destroyers and corvettes equipped with depth charges.

Official sources said one submarine reported was said to have attempted to make contact with a caique (fishing vessel) and approached her, but submerged before reaching the vessel.

The ministry of public order said a guerrilla band of 80 to 100 fighters clashed wtih gendarmerie units of Pyli village on Mount Parnes, only 11 miles from Athens. The mountain is clearly visible from Athens. Three of the 15 defenders of the Gendarmerie station here were listed as missing after a battle which continued until early this morning.

Report of the skirmish on Mount Parnes is the first of a band of such size in the Athens area.

Expect Report On Education

TORONTO, Feb. 6—(CP).—The report of the Royal Commission on Education is expected to be completed in time to have recommendations before the 1949 session of the Ontario Legislature, Premier Drew today told a conference of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves.

Representatives of Ontario municipalities met with the Cabinet to present a brief, asking for financial assistance for hospitals, education and social service costs.

Premier Drew told the association it is anticipated that consideration of the Royal Commission report will "emerge with a school system that will be acceptable to all our people."

The system to be drafted out of the report will be one which "will leave no sense of unfairness to any people in the province," the Premier said.

Educational grants in the province will be four times as great as 1943, when his government assumed office, Premier Drew said. Educational grants that year totalled $8,351,000, while last year the amount totalled $28,775,000.

Actually the Government now is assuming more than 50-percent of the cost of education.

Says Britain Blocks Partition

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 6—(AP).—The Soviet Ukraine today accused Britain of obstructing the partition of Palestine. Vassily A. Tarasenko, Ukrainian delegate on the Security Council, charged that the position taken by Britain was contrary to the United Nations Assembly's decision to split the Holy Land into Jewish and Arab states.

In his first formal press interview since taking a seat on the council Jan. 1, Tarasenko said:

"The position taken by Great Britain on the Palestinian question is contrary to the resolution of the General Assembly, since such a position not only does not assist in carrying out this resolution, but is putting the drag on it."

He did not elaborate on the accusation.

Britain has declined to permit the UN's five-member Palestine commission to enter the Holy Land until two weeks before the tentative British withdrawal date of May 15. She also refused to comply with a General Assembly recommendation that a major Palestine port be opened by Feb. 1 for Jewish immigration.

Tarasenko made the statement in replying to questions submitted in writing by the Associated Press. As to whether his government favored either a big-power or small-power international force being assigned to carry out the partition scheme, he said:

"I have nothing to say (on this question) at the present time."

Meanwhile the security council scheduled two sessions today in efforts to reach a solution on the India-Pakistan dispute over Kashmir.

The case has been before the council for three weeks.

If Gas Shortage Continues Oshawa Plant Will Close

WINDSOR, Feb. 6—(CP).—Provincial Fuel Controller A. R. Crozier, following a 2½-hour conference yesterday with Windsor civic and industrial leaders, reconvened the meeting today in an effort to devise means of meeting future gas shortages. A measure of relief to 45 Western Ontario companies, idled by the prolonged gas shortage, was given yesterday but it amounted to only a small part of normal consumption.

In most of the 24 Windsor plants it did not mean the rehiring of any substantial numbers of workers. The larger plants did not re-open their production lines.

"If we don't get gas by the end of the next week, it will mean closing our Oshawa plant and the unemployment of 5,000 in that city," D. K. MacDonald, manager of the GM engine plant, said today.

Fuel Controller Crozier has stated that there is a possibility of plants returning to normal employment by next Tuesday "if weather forecasts for the next week remain as they are now."

The plants do not operate on week-ends and favorable weather might allow storage of enough pressure to resume gas to industries. Unemployment in western Ontario was estimated today between 16,000 and 22,000.

By next Tuesday, the earliest hope for re-employment, most will have lost 14 days pay of the last 16 working days.

A check of Windsor plants alloted gas, showed the total returned to work up to the present is fewer than 500 and far short of the predicted 2,000 to 3,000 announced yesterday when the order went into effect.

Mr. Crozier explained that the 124,000 cubic feet was being made available, but he did not know exactly how it would be used by the plants. Some, he explained, might not accept it as sufficient for their operating needs.

Canadian Airman Sets Speed Record

MORETON VALENCE, Gloucestershire, England, Feb. 6 — (Reuters) — Canadian - born Squadron Leader Bill Waterton this afternoon broke the air speed record he had set up earlier in the day for 100-kilometre closed circuit flight with a new speed of 542.9 miles an hour. The record is subject to confirmation.

Waterton, went around the circuit this afternoon in six minutes and 52 seconds.

Earlier he established a record of 515.89 miles an hour around the same circuit completing the flight in seven minutes and 13 seconds.

The previous record was 496.88 miles an hour, set last August by Group Capt. John Cunningham in a De Havilland Vampire jet fighter.

Peterborough Man Chased By Playful Plane On Ice

PICTON, Feb. 6 — (CP). — It's no fun to play tag with an airplane — just ask Pilot Bud Ayrhart and his passenger Sid Pellow of Peterborough.

They are just back from Nicholson's Island, which is a mile off the western tip of Prince Edward County, after being chased around the ice by the aircraft that took them there yesterday.

Equipped with skis the plane had delivered them safely on the ice near the island. Ayrhart left the motor idling and soon after they were amazed to see their craft following them.

Starting first in a slow circle, it gained speed, and wherever the men turned it seemed to be right after them. Then hitting a rough patch, it crashed and burned.

The island is only a mile from shore, but due to the treacherous ice conditions on the crossing, Ayrhart and Pellow had to stay. When the pilot failed to return, a second plane was set out from Campbellford and rescued both.

Pellow had been waiting for three weeks to reach the island, where he has a job, and his wife intended to follow him on a later trip.

Held In Kidnapping

TORONTO, Feb. 6—(CP)—A 27-year-old armed man, suspected in the abduction and robbery of a Lindsay, taxi driver earlier this week, was arrested shortly before 11 a.m. today and is held for questioning. A squad of officers searched the midtown area for a second man who eluded capture.

Ellwood Moynes, the taxi driver, reported to police Wednesday night that he was kidnapped by two men who forced him to drive to Toronto and dumped him out of the cab in Toronto after robbing him of $15.

Ignores Kuhn Escape

MUNICH, Feb. 6—(AP)—Dr. Josef Mueller, Bavarian minister of justice, today brushed off the escape of Fritz Kuhn as inconsequential. He said too many people were imprisoned in Germany for "politics" only. Imprisonment without trial was breeding "eventual enemies."

Kuhn, deported leader of the German-American Bund in the United States, strolled out of the prison at Dachau Tuesday and hasn't been seen since. Investigators have been unable to turn up a trace of him.

Headlong Price Plunge Halted

CHICAGO, Feb. 6 — (AP). — The headlong plunge of commodity prices showed signs of touching at least a temporary bottom to-day.

Wheat futures again reached the maximum allowable decline of 10 cents a bushel, but found enough buying to recover slightly. Corn skidded the daily limit of eight cents for the third straight day. Oats were down a lesser amount.

Some balance came back into the stock market, where prices held just about even.

Cotton futures after dropping heavily recovered to show narrow gains at noon on the New York Exchange.

The erratic movements of commodities other than grains lent encouragement to analysts who see this week's break in the price front as a healthy adjustment rather than a definite change in direction.

Fire Damages Stirling Home

STIRLING, Feb. 6 — (Special). — Mrs. H. Morton's large residence, which had been made over into four apartments, caught on fire and drove all tenants out late Thursday afternoon. The back wing of the apartment was completely destroyed but a thick brick wall which separated the two wings and the promptness of the Stirling fire brigade saved the main section of the house. Willing helpers soon carried out the furniture from the apartments (even the bathroom fixtures) and piled it in the street.

The damage from the fire was quite heavy, not only to the building but two cars were completely destroyed in a garage attached to the north wing of the house.

It was thought fire originated from a overheated stovepipe in the back part of the house.

Senate Requests Tourist Data

OTTAWA, Feb. 6—(CP)—The Senate's tourist committee decided yesterday it wanted to know how many United States tourists actually stayed in Canada for any length of time.

It agreed to ask the bureau of statistics to prepare a breakdown of the figures on American visitors, by which it would be possible to tell how many came only for days or week-ends and how many spent some weeks in Canada.

The point was brought up by Senator W. A. Buchanan (L-Alberta) committee chairman, and Senator James Murdock (L-Ontario).

Senator Murdock believed this year will show an improvement over last year. Senator W. Rupert Davies (L-Ontario) said his observations were that American visitors last year were not as free in spending their money as they were the year before.

47 Homeless In 4 Fires Say Damage $100,000

OTTAWA, Feb. 6. (CP)—The Ottawa Valley, shivering in sub-zero weather, today totalled the fire loss during the last 24 hours—more than $100,000 damage and 47 homeless.

This involved ravaged sections of two rural communities within a 75-mile radius of the capital, a gutted residence inside the city and—a fire station.

The score card:

Iroquois, 75 miles south of Ottawa—two business premises and a warehouse destroyed; 27 homeless; damage $50,000.

North Gower, 25 miles southwest— a bank, bakery, barber shop and residence destroyed; 10 homeless; damage about $30,000 to $40,000.

In Ottawa—A booth street residence gutted; 10 homeless; damage $3,000.

Also gutted in Ottawa was the No. 1 fire station on Duke street which brought the day's only fire casualty. Trapped on the upper floor by the quick-spreading blaze while the station equipment was fighting another minor fire, fireman Donald Fraser kicked out a window and jumped to the ground. He was taken to hospital with an ankle injury.

At Iroquois fire gutted the 100-year-old, three-storey McInnis block, destroyed an egg-grading station owned by Ollie Somers; the business and editorial offices of the Iroquois Post, a weekly; five apartments and a warehouse. Among the 27 homeless was John Keller, aged boat-builder whom firemen carried down a ladder to safety.

Two Jews Killed In Sniping Battle

JERUSALEM, Feb. 6—(AP)—Police said two Jews were killed today in the sniping battle between Tel Aviv and Jaffa. An Arab was wounded.

The total killed since the United Nations voted 70 days ago to partition Palestine thus rose to 1,073.

A British soldier and a Jew were wounded in the Jewish commercial centre in Jerusalem. Police said an explosion demolished a Jewish house and that three Jewish buses enroute to Hadassah hospital were fired on without casualties.

US Navy Building Largest Aircraft Carrier

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 — (AP). — The United States Navy plans to build the largest warship ever —a mammoth aircraft carrier of 80,000 tons.

Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan disclosed this today as he revealed a radical change in the navy's construction program during the next five years.

Instead of spending $306,000,000 on converting the battleship Kentucky and the large cruiser Hawaii into guided-missile ships, the navy proposes a $230,000,000 outlay on the following:

1. The super-carrier almost double the size of the present giants — the 45,000-ton Midway, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Coral Sea. Bigger and faster planes will be built for service on the super-carrier.

2. Four extremely fast submarines. These perhaps would be patterned after the German U-boats credited with three times the submerged speed of United States undersea craft.

3. One "hunter-killer" ship, somewhat similar to a destroyer, but larger and equipped with elaborate electronic gadgets to hunt down and destroy fast submarines.

The program also provides for the conversion of a 27,000-ton carrier and two submarines. Details of these changes were not revealed. Sullivan did say that one submarine would be an oil tanker to fuel other subs. But he did not indicate whether this would be a converted one or a new vessel.

Sullivan said the reason for the changed construction program was that the development of guided missiles had not progressed as fast as the navy expected.

Th navy, however, is not discarding plans for future use of guided missile ships, he indicated.

GAS SHORTAGE? PHOOEY! — To balance the paralyzing natural gas shortage in Western Ontario's industries and homes, by some freak of nature, well driller Peter McNeely struck natural gas while putting down a well on the farm of Hugh Stewart, four miles southeast of the city on the Keene Road Tuesday noon. The drilling had reached 70 feet at that time and with the gas still flowing Thursday evening from 125 feet, there appeared to be no letup. Top photo shows Hugh Stewart's farm on the left side of the road looking north, the drill rig, Left foreground. Lower picture shows brother Jack Stewart, Right, and Peter McNeely, lighting their "smokes" from the two-foot gas flame.

Second General Kills Himself

PARIS, Feb. 6—(AP)—A war ministry spokesman announced today that Gen. Otto Von Stuelpnagel, wartime commander of German troops in occupied France hanged himself this morning in Cherche-Midi prison.

Stuelpnagel, a 69-year-old bachelor, was under indictment on charges of "crimes against international law," including the execution of hostages.

His defence counsel, Marcel Heraud, said:

"I saw him a few days ago and he seemed depressed. I tried to convince him that his case was not so desperate as he thought."

4-Year-Old Boy Hurt By Car

COBOURG, Feb. 6 (ENS). — Four-year-old Edward Simpson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Smith, residents near Alderville, was badly injured Thursday afternoon near his home. The boy was running across the highway between the houses of his father and grandfather, when he ran into the side of a north-bound car driven by Bernard McCracken, 268 McDonnel Street, Peterborough. He was brought to Cobourg General Hospital, with serious head injuries. PPC Don Nicol, Cobourg, investigated.

Industrials Continue Retreat On Exchange

TORONTO, Feb. 6 — (CP). — Industrials continued to retreat to lower levels in substantially reduced volume on the stock exchange today. Golds held about unchanged but base metals and western oils were easier. Fractional losses were scattered throughout the industrial lists with the odd stocks down a point or more. Eldona traded close to 100,000 shares for a moderate gain in the junior golds.

Volume for the first three hours was 515,000 shares, about 20,000 less than yesterday's similar period.

New Phone Threat

TORONTO, Feb. 6—(CP). —Michael Blidner, Toronto merchant, said he received another telephone call last night in an attempt to frighten him into payment of $10,000 from the same person that called Jan. 27. It was the fifth such attempt. The speaker asked how he liked the last experience when a bullet was fired through a front bedroom window of his home, imbedding in the wall a foot above the bed in which his wife was sleeping. "That was just the beginning," said the voice.

Radiantly Happy

Miss Scott was radiantly happy in her dressing room after the historic victory.

Signing autographs and chatting gaily with her trainer, Sheldon Galbraith, Barbara Ann gave a flat "No" to questions whether she plans to turn professional. Her mother, Mrs. Clyde Scott, chimed in: "We have no such aspirations."

Barbara Ann told reporters that if she was asked to turn professional, her answer would be "I think I want to stay amateur."

"I want to learn to cook."

The blonde skating stylist added that so far she has received no professional offers.

In winning, Barbara Ann took the Olympic title from European hands for the first time. Norway's Sonja Henie was queen of the ice lanes from 1927 to 1936.

North America Stars

The victory, capping the most brilliant post-war career of any figure skater, broke Europe's monopoly on figure - skating events and gave North America a sweep of major skating titles at the fifth winter Olympics. Only 24 hours ago, Dick Button of Englewood, N.J., won the men's competition.

The Olympic bauble had been Barbara Ann's most cherished ambition almost from the time she first donned skates at the age of seven. Since then she has become an international celebrity, winning amateur title after title, but she had no chance to take the Olympic title until this year.

Even then, it appeared for a while that her bid for the Olympic crown might be frustrated. The school figures were postponed Tuesday and again Wednesday because of soft ice, raising the possibility that the competition might be cancelled. But brisker weather followed Thursday, enabling the contestants to continue.

Miss Merrill, United States champion and one of Barbara Ann's closest rivals earlier in their careers, took the ice 15 minutes after the Canadian girl but fell twice.

Barbara Ann's next goal will be to defend the world championship which she won for the first time last winter at Stockholm. The world competition will be held in mid-February.

Not Much Time

After her performance Barbara Ann reappeared on the ice arm in arm with Galbraith and went through a routine for photographers. The eyes of the 5,000 spectators turned on this sideshow even as the next 11 competitors continued the free skating.

"I'm so happy, this is what Barbara Ann has been working for so long," Mrs. Scott said later.

Barbara Ann then joined the conversation. Asked about marriage prospects, she admitted "I haven't even thought about it."

"I practise eight hours a day and as you can see I haven't much time."

Then she turned with a grin to Jimmy Grogan, United States figure skater, and chuckled: "I'm waiting for him." But she hastened to remind reporters:

"You'd better put this in. Jimmy is 16."

Munching chocolate given her by an admirer, Barbara Ann said the ice was "very soft."

"I've never been so tired in my life. It's a combination of high altitude and mushy ice."

Galbraith was enthusiastic.

"Brother, it's wonderful!" he shouted.

Miss Scott held a 16-point advantage over her nearest competitor when the five compulsory figures events were completed yesterday. The judges gave her 858.1 to 842.1 for Jeannette Altwegg of Britain. Suzanne Morrow of Toronto was 10th in the field of 25 and Marilyn Ruth Take 13th.

Magistrate Fines Ovaltine $100

TORONTO, Feb. 6 (CP)—Magistrate F. C. Gullen today convicted A. Wander, Limited, of Peterborough on a charge of false advertising of its product, Ovaltine, and imposed a fine of $100 and costs with the right of distress.

The magistrate said in his 12-page written judgment that "the average reader would interpret the advertisement so that the accused did unlawfully advertise Ovaltine in a manner likely to create erroneous impressions."

The judgment followed a lengthy court hearing featured by expert evidence about Ovaltine, a powder mixed with water or milk for drinking.

'48 Tax Rate Likely Near 40 Mills

A deficit of $30,000, more or less, from 1947 is one of the expectations looming before the new Council as it approaches the details of budgeting and setting the tax rate for 1948.

Ald. Max Swanston, chairman of the finance committee, said the information he was receiving from Mr. Edward Humpage, city auditor, was pointing to something like a mill, the most of one at any rate, in the minus column. This is money already spent, but will have to be inserted into the 1948 tax rate.

"That's what it looks like any way," he said, "from the figures Mr. Humpage is compiling in his audit."

The chairman may have been in a pessimistic mood as he went on to suggest that this year's tax rate was going to get close to 40 mills.

"There are lots of people around town with suggestions of how to spend the tax money, but it is another job trying to meet all the demands and trying to keep Peterborough's tax rate at a reasonable level," Ald. Swanston said.

Cubs Display Unusual Skill

Boy Scout Field Secretary Art Jackson was the main speaker at a special meeting of scouting leaders of Peterborough Thursday night, including members of the group committee. He stressed the need for inter-relation of the work of the church, the school and the Scouting movement.

"The interpretation of the Scout to the church and the community at large through service," was his definition of the principal duty of a group committee.

At the opening of the meeting, the St. John's Cub Pack, led by Pat Martyn, gave a demonstration on cubbing in action. Several of the members of the committee matched skill with the cubs, leading the field in such games as book balancing and compass games. However, they fell far short of their young rivals in the flag game.

A group committee must endeavour to keep up with the work of the Troops and Packs, said Dr. Parry, speaking on the work of a committee in action.

Other speakers were Past President Frank Buckland, President B. I. Burgess and Commissioner E. Wolff.

The Mothers' Auxiliary of the K of C Troop, headed by Mrs. Beresford, served lunch following the meeting.

Sportsmen Approve Minister's Decision

Strong approval of the recent decision of Lands and Forests Minister, Hon. Harold A. Scott, in not advancing the opening date of the bass and lunge fishing season was voiced at the regular meeting of Kawartha Conservation Association held Thursday night.

The feeling expressed was that present wild life resources are being commercialized to an extent not justified by their numbers.

Referring to the contention that advancing the season would increase tourist trade and bring in American dollars, the association deprecated the policy of increasing the numbers of tourists regardless of the existing fish and game supply.

It was stated that the ordinary citizen not directly engaged in the tourist trade finds it difficult to see where he profits when the result is depletion of resources that belong to him as much as to the resort owner or merchant.

Opinion of members was that the number of beaver in this area did not justify an open season.

Dates for the opening of the hunting season last Fall were declared quite satisfactory. Game Warden Stanley Windsor concurred. Fred Marshall presided.

Russia Is In No Position To Start War—Eisenhower

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6— (AP) — General Dwight Eisenhower declared today that no great power, including Russia, would "deliberately provoke a war at this time."

At the same time he described the United States Army as "woefully weak—100,000 below minimum requirements" — and called on every one to become a "volunteer recruiting sergant."

Eisenhower gave an informal valedictory speech to the National Press Club, then submitted to questioning. Saturday he is going on terminal leave as United States Army chief of staff to take up the presidency of Columbia University in June.

On politics Gen. Eisenhower said he "resented implications" that he may have had Gen. Douglas MacArthur in mind when he said professional soldiers should not seek the presidency unless there is some "overriding reason."

Eisnhower said "Russia is not in a position to fight a global war."

"You can be sure that, until her differential of strength becomes such as to lead her to think she might win quickly, Russia won't start any war deliberately. But little sparks can start a great conflagration."

Decide Widow To Stand Trial In Gun Slaying

HALIFAX, Feb. 6. — (CP).— Mrs. Kathleen Saccary, 34, widowed mother of five children, was committed to stand trial for murder in the shotgun slaying last Dec. 27 of Philip Douglas Shiers, a former soldier.

Magistrate R. E. Inglis ruled for commital of the widow despite an earlier declaration at the preliminary hearing by her son, 13-year-old Johnny Saccary, that he had shot Shiers to protect his mother.

Crown Prosecutor R. M. Fielding asked for commital of Mrs. Saccary on the grounds that the boy's story was "not only improbable, but impossible." The boy had testified that he shot Shiers, a boarder in the Saccary home, in the back when the 33-year-old ex-soldier threatened his mother.

Four witnesses previously had testified that the widow confessed to the crime in a statement to police shortly after the shooting just outside her cottage doorstep.

"It's not for me to decide," said Magistrate Inglis. "I have no comment on the evidence."

He had ruled for committal, he said, because in a preliminary hearing, "unlike a trial," the benefit of the doubt was given to the Crown.

It is expected the case would come up at the March sessions of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court.

Watermain Breaks On Stirling Street

STIRLING, Feb. 6—(Special)— On Tuesday night a large hole broke in one of the chief water mains running along Charlotte and Church streets. As a result, after several cellars were flooded, the water was shut off on these two streets and all houses including the High and Public schools were without water. The pupils however didn't seem too unhappy about it as they are now enjoying unexpected holidays that may last for several days longer. The workmen are finding it extremely difficulty to mend the break on account of the hard frozen ground and the water which keeps bubbling out.

Millbrook Lions Get Charter At Gay Party

Another club was added to the Lions International—the largest service club in the world, with branches in 19 countries —when Millbrook held charter night on Thursday at the Kawartha Club. More than 160 persons attended the dinner-dance and charter presentation, including the district governor, deputy district governor, district secretary, and representatives from Lakefield, Port Hope, Newcastle, Bowmanville, Port Perry, Toronto and Peterborough.

In his speech of acceptance, Gordon Powell, Millbrook president, speaking for the 47 charter members that constitute initial membership in the branch, pledged that the community "will be a better place in which to live, work and play by virtue of its Lions Club.

"The advent of Lionism into our community marks a mile-post on the road to progress towards a better community life for the individual," he said. "We appreciate that joining a Lions Club does not make a man a prince or a king overnight; but it gives him a priceless opportunity to become a good neighbor."

Need Good Neighbors

Explaining the need for such a service club, he said: "If my good neighbor were only the fellow next door, or the fellow two doors down the street. Lions Clubs would not be necessary. But in this complex civilizaton of ours our neighbors are too many to approach the problem from a purely individual standpoint.

President Millbrook Lions
GORDON POWELL

He stressed the ever-increasing interdependency of people today. "How much less effective would the work of the physician and surgeon be if he did not have the work of the skilled mechanic to keep his car in order?" he asked.

"How much less efficient would our great law courts, our institutions of learning be without the skill of the printers, and the book binders to perpetuate the reference works?"

Continuing this theme of social co-operation, he said: "And so when we find that the house we live in, the clothes we wear, the food we eat, the music we enjoy, are all products of the fellows next door — we accept the responsibility to be a good neighbor, the responsibility to tolerate him, understand him, and develop him."

Amid enthusiastic applause he brought his maiden speech to a close: "When we have a nation of good neighbors we will not have to worry about its future; and if we through Lionism can typify our association's motto of Liberty, Intelligence, Our Nation's Safety, we will have found the ideal vehicle with which to carry it to practical application."

Officers and directors were installed by Charles Carter, Bowmanville, international councillor, assisted by district secretary Bruce Malcolm. Preliminary addresses were made by Harold D. Bigelow, reeve of Millbrook, who welcomed the new club to the community and village; by Mr. Malcolm, and deputy district governor Douglas Weaver.

Given Charter

District Governor Gordon Belyea presented the charter to President Gordon Powell and congratulated tthe newly-created branch on its first step. In a brief address he spoke of the good work being done in the district by Lions, and he then instructed new members on their duties.

Given Donations

Club equipment was donated by neighboring Lions Clubs. Douglas Walden, Port Hope president, presented the Millbrook club with a picture of the king; W. E. Riddolls, president of Bowmanville, gave a frame of the code of ethics; P. Hare, president of Newcastle, handed Mr. Powell a frame of the aims and objects of the organization; Mr. Weaver said he was deputizing for Bancroft whose representatives were absent, and he gave a Union Jack in their name; James Crane, acting-president of Port Perry, donated an American flag; Patrick D. Scollard, president of Peterborough Lions, contributed a bell and a gavel. Eric Anderson, Lakefield president, gave a fine box.

During the banquet a presentation was made to Mr. Belyea in his offcial capacity as district governor, by Mr. Scollard.

Dancing provided entertainment for the remainder of the evening.

Doctors Rebel Against Bevan Health Plan

LONDON, Feb. 6 — (AP). — The next six months in Britain may some day be known to history as the time of the "doctors' rebellion."

The issue is whether to take the country's new national health service plan as it stands, or "strike" for concessions to the doctors' pocketbooks.

A strike vote now is being taken among Britain's 20,500 general practitioners. If two- thirds of the working doctors say they are willing to refuse service in the country-wide health system, the British Medical Association believes it can force Health Minister Aneurin Bevan to meet its terms.

Bevan, a determined Welshman insists the new health service, overwhelmingly approved by parliament, will begin as scheduled July 5. The new law is his pride and joy and the realization of a long-time socialist goal, equal and ample medical treatment for everyone, with no limitations imposed by a thin pocketbook.

B. M. A. leaders want to abolish the new's guarantee of a basic salary of £300 ($1,200) a year to every practitioner who joins the health system, and substitute payment only by a fee for each separate patient.

The law provides a state-paid fee of at least 12s 2d ($.04) for each call, in addition to the basic salary.

Dr. H. Guy Dain, chairman of the B .M. A.'s general council, protests that the basic salary is an entering wedge for the creation of a corps of doctors working for state salaries only and responsible only to a state ministry.

Basic Salary.

Bevan's view is that the basic salary makes doctors in the new health service independent by freeing the younger ones from any frets about rent and other fixed expenses.

The B. M A. is also adament against abolition of a doctor's privilege of selling his practice, usually for a sum around $20,000 when he retires.

Bevan has stuck by this provision as another way of promising independence of young doctors whom he does not want to saddle with a heavy debt at the beginning of their careers.

The third thing the medical officials want is the "right to appeal to the courts" against dismissal of a doctor from public service. They say that "the minister has too much power."

Bevan answers that the Health Minister cannot dismiss a doctor. That is done by recommendation of an executive council and action by an independent tribunal of a doctor, lawyer and layman. If the tribunal decides a doctor should be dismissed, he can appeal to the minister.

If the ballot turns out as the B. M. A. hopes, it will leave less than 8,000 physicians to try to operate a health service open to every Briton who needs medical treatment.

Newfoundland Inhabited By Giant Redmen Years Ago

ROSENEATH, Feb. 6 (ENS). — An address on Newfoundland, its past and present system of government, its story of a vanished race; a display of antiques from 75 to 100 years old; a decision to send food parcels to Britain, and a review of Barbara Ann Scott's achievements were among the special features of the Women's Institute meeting Thursday afternoon.

Rev. R. C. White addressed the meeting on Newfoundland. Now, he said, the country is passing through a critical stage in the history of its government. The island, he said, was first governed by a "Fish Admiral." The admiral arriving first for the fishing assumed the governorship of the island for one year. Following this system a two-party government with a premier was set up. In more recent years the government got into serious financial difficulties, possibly through mismanagement, and the British government advanced assistance and set up a government with three men from England two two from the island. This government has fulfilled its time and three issues are pending (1) to remain with the British government; (2) to join the Canadian federation; (3) to enter the United States union.

Perhaps, said Mr. White, a change of citizenship is the main issue, or a wholesome dread of direct taxation. At the present time taxation is subtle and indirect and is derived from all imports.

Of great interest was the story of a vanished race.

"The original natives of Newfoundland as discovered by Cabot and Sir Humphrey Mitchell, were a race of strong, big people known as the Red Indians, now vanished from the island. There were two tribes, the Micmacs and Beothics. The English traded with both tribes, then allied themselves with the former tribe, and warred with the Beothics.

Found Three Graves

Thomas Payton, magistrate, was sent out to investigate in Red Indian Lake to try to make peace, buut no Indians were found, excepting three people. Two escaped, one, a woman, was taken back to St. John's. She was named Mary March. Later she was returned to the mouth of the Red Indian River. Returning later, evidences were found of three graves, two men embalmed and wrapped in deer skins and a woman wrapped in linen, and from trinkets found beside her, supposed to be Mary March. Later three Indian women were brought to the city, two returned to the river. One of these, "Shanondidit," paddled back down the river. Later she died and the cairn marking this grave is the last one of the vanished race. Where did they disappear to, did they cross in their canoes to Labrador and lose their identity or did sickness wipe out this race.

Sang National Anthem

Mrs. White sang Newfoundland's National Anthem written by Sir Cavendish Boyle, 1849-1916, with musical arrangement by Charles Hubert Hastings Parry, 1848-1918.

The meeting was held in the town hall. Mrs. F. Derry was hostess and Mrs. G. Mouncey, president, presided. Mrs. B. Thackeray, secretary - treasurer, reported $54.68 in the treasury. Miss Jessie Johnston, sunshine convener, reported. It was decided to send food parcels to Britain, donations open to the community, and to be left at the Post Office or Mrs. Fred Doris' home on or before February 21.

I was decided to apply for a film of the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the WI held at Guelph, to be shown at the open meeting in March. Mrs. C. Grigg and Mrs. J. W. Pacey in charge of the program.

It was decided to make a quilt for sale and a quilt top was donated by Mrs. A. Nill.

Mrs. C. Grigg, program convener, presided over that period. In a Valentine contest, the poem written by Miss Jessie Johnston won the prize. Mrs. C. Sandercock read a quintuplet story and circulated pictures of the quints. She told, too, of the latest report of Barbara Ann Scott's standing at the Olympic games.

William Atcheson, principal of Roseneath school, brought three pupils, Phyllis O'Connel, June Linton and Carole McMillan, to the meeting, playing the accompaniment while they sang two numbers.

Miss Mary Maunder, assistant teacher, told the story of Philip Mountbatten's historical and social background.

Votes of thanks were tendered the speaker and all contributing to the program, and to the hostess.

Lawyer, Mayor's Son Pay Meter Fines

COBOURG, Feb. 6 — (ENS). — The meters still take their toll of parking violators. Last week the Crown Attorney handed over one dollar for parking overtime. Yesterday Cecil Smith, son of Mayor Joe Smith, forked over another greenback for parking too long. The mayor feeds the nickels regularly to the meter outside his office and so far has kept within the margin of safety.

Cobourg Sharpshooters

COBOURG, Feb. 6.—(ENS).—Marksmen of the Northumberland Fish and Game Revolver Club are beginning to think they have championship material. Latest top scorers are Pete Swan with 49 (just one from a possible); Leo Markle, 47; Harry Deyman, 45; Murray Smith, 45; K. Cockburne, 44; Joe Gallagher, 43, and Jack Gallagher, 42.

Schools Crowded Board Decides To Take Census

LINDSAY, Ont., Feb. 6. (ENS) —"We in Lindsay are face to face with an increase in school population that we aren't prepared to cope with," Mr. J. F. Wood, Principal of Victoria Public School, told the Lindsay Board of Education at a meeting Wednesday night. "There is not enough space in the public schools, yet the matter of building new additions has never been brought up at these meetings," Mr. Wood continued. "I predict that if the birth rate in Lindsay remains as high as at present, there won't be enough room in the schools to accommodate children by 1952," he declared.

Mr. E. C. Dettman, Principal of the North Ward Public School, was of the same opinion. "I can't emphasize too strongly that something should be done very soon," he said. "I believe that by next September my school will have 100 pupils in the First and Second Grades alone, and there's no room to accommodate them. The situation is getting desperate, he concluded.

"In this case we must do something immediately," said Board Chairman D. McQuarrie, "because new industries may locate here soon, and that will mean an even greater number of school children."

The Board agreed to approach Town Council to ask that a census be taken of all children in Lindsay under public school age. In this way, Mr. McQuarrie pointed out, the Board would know what to plan for in any school extension program they might undertake. It was also decided that manual training and home economics courses be taught at the Central Public School, the training to begin as soon as equipment is available. Principal W. S. Battersby estimated the cost of training equipment at $1,000. At present no school in Lindsay teaches these subjects.

Police Cruiser Due At Cobourg

COBOURG, Feb. 6—(ENS)—Ordered by the police committee last month, the new police cruiser is expected to arrive within the next two weeks. Police have been using their personal cars plus taxis during the course of their duties and a regular police cruiser is regarded as a big improvement over the present system. When the provincial police short wave radio is installed in Cobourg, the town will have a completely modernized police communications and transportation system.

The Parliamentary Committee On Price Spreads

Last week the Conservative and C.C.F. opposition were heckling the Government for not getting down to the business of organizing the cost-of-living and price investigating committee promised earlier. Last Friday as the House adjourned Mr. King announced that the first business on Monday would be the setting-up of this committee. He tabled the names of the 16 all-party members who had been selected and announced their terms of reference. These were to report on the cause of the recent rise in the cost of living, on prices unjustifiably high, and on profiteering.

* * *

For the last three days both C.C.F. and Conservatives have been wailing, gnashing their teeth and exercising their tongues in opposition to the proposed committee. For three days its formation has been delayed. Yesterday the cost-of-living index for December was announced: 148, a rise of 21.3 in the last year. It is high time that the members of Parliament stopped playing political football and sent the committee on its probing way.

* * *

The Conservatives have objected that the Committee's terms of reference are too restricted. They want it to inquire into the effect government policy has had on the cost of living — in other words, they want the Government made the goat, if possible. They also demand that the Committee be empowered to make recommendations. In Canada government is carried on under the party system and not by Commissions. The party in power is required to pass on and accept responsibility for legislation. If the Liberal Government has to pay the piper, it should call the tune. The Committee should be charged with fact-finding, not policy-making.

* * *

The C.C.F. objectors are in accord with the Conservatives, and in addition want all sorts of price ceilings restored. They, being in Opposition, do not have to pay the political price if their recommendations do not work. There is a general criticism that Mr. King's policy about the price inquiry will lead to nothing—that it is merely a sop to the people, and that the Committee's findings will be ignored as were those of the Stevens Royal Commission set up in the '30's by the Bennett administration.

* * *

These criticisms seem to us to be poorly founded. The terms of reference which Mr. King announced last Friday are comprehensive. It is difficult to avoid a suspicion that the C.C.F. and Conservative opposition is designed to try to force the Government into disclosing its budget plans and generally to gain political ammunition at no cost to themselves. Meanwhile, they are delaying the investigation while prices soar.

The End Of Dutch Colonialism?

The Dutch Empire is the second largest in existence, if the British Empire can still be said to exist. On February 3rd Queen Wilhelmina came out of retirement to broadcast that "colonialism is dead" in the Dutch Empire and that a "free federated Indonesia is about to take her place among the democratic nations of the world".

The nub of this announcement is that East Indian planters, the Colonial Government and the home government have become reconciled to self-rule in Indonesia. For nine months Dutch "police action", armistices and parleys have been recurring in Java and Sumatra. Now the Royal Netherlands army is in possession of the richest sections, and a presumably final settlement with the Indonesian Republic (officially recognized in November, 1946, by the Dutch Government) has been reached, with the mediation of U.N. delegates.

The Republic of Indonesia is to be a state within a United States of Indonesia which will include Borneo and the rest of the Dutch Archipelago, and U.S.I. is to be part of a federation of the kingdom of the Netherlands, Dutch Guiana (South America) and the Lesser Antilles (West Indies), each with independent status under the Dutch crown. The pattern is obviously the British Commonwealth. Negotiations are now proceeding for the formation of U.S.I. by January 1st, 1949. Soldiers in the Dutch Expeditionary Force, sent out to the East Indies in 1946-47 for a year and a half, do not expect to be home for another two years.

More Expressive Epitaphs

The Bishop of Chelmsford has suggested that what he calls "a great deal more freedom of expression on memorial tablets" would be welcome. We heartily agree with his lordship. The modern tombstone rarely bears an inscription worth the carving, and men are becoming colourless in death as well as in life. If there is any information on the stone apart from a name and two dates, it is too often a hackneyed Scriptural text—and not uncommonly a text which impresses those who knew the dead man best as desperately inappropriate.

What is a good epitaph? Literature abounds in them. Consider this famous one by Ben Jonson:

Underneath this stone doth lie
As much beauty as could die;
Which in life did harbour give
To more virtue than doth live.

And here is another, equally famous, written by the same poet for the Countess of Pembroke:

Underneath this sable hearse
Lies the subject of all verse,
Sydney's sister, Pembroke's mother;
Death, ere thou hast slain another
Learn'd and fair, and good as she,
Time shall throw a dart at thee.

Nor were great ladies alone the subjects of noble and touching epitaphs. Here is one on an infant's grave, written by Robert Herrick:

Here a pretty baby lies
Sung asleep with lullabies:
Pray be silent, and not stir
Th' easy earth that covers her.

The humbly born also used to boast original epitaphs, at times. Here is one from Newbury in England, dated 1742:

Tom Smith is dead, and here he lies,
Nobody laughs and nobody cries:
Where his soul's gone, or how it fares,
Nobody knows, and nobody cares.

This is not great poetry, but it is probably true. And here is an epitaph which gives us a better idea of the subject of it than any finer work of art could do:

Here lies the body of Lady O'Looney
Great-niece of Burke, commonly called the Sublime.
She was
Bland, passionate and deeply religious;
Also she painted in water colours,
And sent several pictures to the Exhibition.
She was first cousin to Lady Jones
And of such is the Kingdom of Heaven.

This astounding epitaph may still be seen, carved in imperishable stone, at Pewsey, in Bedfordshire in England.

The Bishop is right; we need more original and expressive epitaphs. If they cannot be noble, like some we have quoted, they can be funny, like the last one. After all, death is a gloomy business, and anything which can cheer it up deserves encouragement.

The Lengthening Days

Even the most unkind of frosty February weather cannot hide the promise of spring that is in the bright sun and the early evening skies. Indeed, on a delightfully gentle day like last Thursday, spring seems to be within our grasp and one imagines that the hyacinths and crocuses now flowering in Victoria have given our air their fragrance. So in mid-day as we walk about the streets, we choose the sunny side and let the brightness of sun on snow rejoice our hearts as if it were a true harbinger of spring.

In the evening we can return home from work while the day is still with us. Even at six o'clock the light, diffused and delicate, is reluctant to depart. Overhead it is grey-blue and the evening star is visible. But see how soft is the blue in the west as it blends into pale greens and mauves behind the fringe of trees. At the horizon itself there is no longer the cold ruthless red of a sharp December sunset, but the crimson of roses and the richness of velvet. Spring is in the sky, if not in the air.

Mr. Churchill has not lost his wit. In Parliament the other day he said that peacemaking should not be interfered with by factional clatter about the past: "For my part, I think it will be much better for all parties to leave the past to history—especially as I propose writing the history myself!"

Franco-British Unity?

By
PAUL SCOTT MOWRER

(Ed. Note: Mr. Mowrer is an American writing from Paris. His critical opinion of British policy should be considered with that in mind.)

THE idea of a unified Western Europe is taking hold. For this constructive advance, both the Marshall Plan and circumstances themselves are responsible.

The Benelux group—Belgium, Holland and Luxemburg — are tightening their customs union. The Scandinavian countries are talking of a customs union. France and Italy are negotiating a customs union. And Britain has now suggested the possibility of a customs union to France.

In France, where the Western Europe idea made the most progress, it's now often referred to as an international third force. What is meant is that Western Europe would hold the balance and keep the peace between the United States and Russia.

✧ ✧ ✧

HOWEVER, there is a vast difference in this matter between the Russian and American positions. Russia is doing everything she can to prevent a Western European union, whereas the United States would like nothing better.

But in the last analysis, this union depends upon a full, frank and confident understanding between France and Britain. Both know this. They also know that no such understanding yet exists.

✧ ✧ ✧

GENERAL de Gaulle was willing to make an alliance with Britain, if an agreement could be reached first on outstanding questions. The British preferred to make an alliance first and argue afterwards. When de Gaulle retired and Socialist Leon Blum came to power, his enthusiasm for British socialism was such that he went to London and made an alliance unconditionally. But how much did it mean?

The French at least consulted Britain before taking their new monetary measures. Britain, when it hurt French economy by suspending British travel abroad, did not even consult. Nor did it consult when it suspended the convertibility of its money, leaving France stuck with some 50,000,000 pounds.

✧ ✧ ✧

BRITAIN'S opposition to the French monetary measures is merely fresh evidence that the Anglo-French alliance means little more than the Franco-Russian alliance, which means nothing.

I respect the opinion of the Bretton Woods Fund authorities, and also the British opinion. I think, nevertheless, that the French measures are a step in the right direction, if only because they tend to replace fiction by realities. European economy simply can't be rebuilt on fictions. If accompanied by drastic curtailment of expenditures and balancing of the budget, these measures should go far toward putting France on her feet financially as well as economically, within the framework of the Marshall Plan.

In London, in February, 1945, I remarked to an influential English friend that one of our first aims must be to restore France for the common good.

"Yes," he agreed, "but not too much."

✧ ✧ ✧

MY own view is that Britain needs a strong France, just as France needs a strong Britain. British hostility toward France after the other war was simply disastrous. Yet in Syria at the end of this war, in the matter of coal exports to France from England and the Ruhr, in the whole complicated problem of what to do with Germany, and in its hitherto hesitant attitude toward a Western European union, Britain has seeemd to me to be renewing its same old errors.

To persuade France to postpone its monetary measures, Britain suddenly offered France more coal and the possibility of a customs union in close relation with the Benelux countries. What people wonder is why, if Britain can do these things now, it could not before.

✧ ✧ ✧

I CAN sympathize with the British desire to defend its exports from the competition of a devalued franc. But France's exports, owing to a completely artificial exchange, had fallen to zero. Besides, Britain itself seems to me to be subsidizing exports by giving its workers food below cost. Subsidized food makes possible lower wages, hence lower export prices.

Another difficulty is that Britain is sticking tight to socialism, whereas France, like Italy, is moving again toward a free economy. France's present leaders believe that a controlled economy leads to economic isolation, hence tends to hamper a Western European union.

✧ ✧ ✧

NO present Franco-British differences seem to me insuperable. In the Near Eastern oil question, and especially in the German question, the good offices of the United States might be helpful in bringing France and Britain closer together. But to this end it is going to be essential to give more serious attention to the French views on the part the Ruhr should play in United Western Europe than has been accorded these views heretofore, either by the British or by the Americans.

'Literally'?

And it is equally too late to take any effective steps against the use of "literally" as a simple intensive. "Literally" used to mean, literally, "literally". But no more. Drew Pearson, describing on the radio, from Paris, the arrival at Le Havre of a ship filled with gifts of food from America, the cargoes of his own "Friendship Trains", declared that French officials and workers "turned themselves literally inside out" to get the stuff out of the hold. It must have been fascinating, if a little grisly, to watch, but it sounds like a hell of a way to unload a ship.—Saturday Review of Literature.

Letters To The Editor

ANOTHER VIEW OF THE EVICTION

Sir: Re eviction letter by Dr. Carleton, I wonder does he know all the facts of the case? To start with, all of the people on this street are buying their own homes and try to keep them looking as neat as possible. A woman like this moves in and starts destroying the house that has been rented to them.

This case was tried before a court and evidence presented showed she was destroying the house and resulted in an eviction order. If Dr. Carleton is so interested why don't he make room in his house for her? As for the children being a benefit to a nation, that is so, if they are properly raised; if not, they turn into criminals and we have to keep prisons and courts open in the country for the protection of honest people. Two of these children have been in the hospital recently, while periodically a taxi would bring 3 or 4 cases of beer to the house. The husband was committed to jail for 18 months around September of 1946, and was to be released around January of 1948.

She was supposed to be on relief but since husband was away she bought or had moved into the house a new combination radio and record player, a new all enamel stove, a new washing machine, a new breakfast suite and a living room suite. Still one child was adopted, two children in hospital. I don't care where she got the new furniture, but if relief gives it, people are better on relief than working. But if it were me I would have been more interested in seeing my family had plenty of good food.

The children were allowed to run wild. It go so a child could not lay any of his toys down but what they did not take them. The mother knew this was going on but made no attempt to stop them. The neighbours feeling sorry for the children never complained to police. These children will get better care and raising in the shelter.

Anyone doubting any of these facts should interview any of the people on Frank St.

Let us thank God that we have just laws and courts and honest judges to force people to move before making slums of a street.

A Resident of Frank St.

Deck The Walls

(THE BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR)

ON the principle that if winter come, spring cannot be far behind, the optimistic Peterborough Examiner is talking about early planting, and a special kind, at that.

Peterborough, the newspaper points out, has some good brick walls and some good stone walls. It has many, however, that are ugly, because "either the building is an architectural monstrosity or a decent plan has been despoiled by Victorian baubles of cement or stone set in the brick to make the building look pretty."

What's to be done? With the present shortage of accommodation, it is obvious that the buildings cannot be removed. So, recommends the Examiner, cover them up with vines, ivy and Virginia creeper. Of course, if the Examiner were really expert, horticulturally, it would specify Boston ivy. Any old ivy won't do. The beautiful English ivy, for instance, doesn't take kindly to these parts.

But leaving the details, the Peterborough paper makes a point when it says, "Our city clock tower, which is likely to remain with us until the third and fourth generation and after, would be wonderfully improved if ivy were to cover its painted brick and soften its ungainly form. So would the Customs Building. So would 50 others of which we cannot now think calmly. The suggestion is not impracticable."

Indeed it is not. It is so sensible, in fact, that it ought to be noised abroad in Brantford, and a thoroughgoing job could be done on the City Hall which, like Peterborough's terrible tower, is likely to offend the aesthetic eye for a considerable time to come. As a matter of fact a praiseworthy start has been made by nature or human design and some verdure does adorn the front of the building. The best solution, of course, would be the removal of the municipal offices and market to more appropriate locations and the utilization of the square for business houses.

As for creepers of the sort mentioned, some of them already climb up brick walls hereabouts to their distinct and artistic improvement. Even some excellent architectural examples have lost nothing by the graceful and green addition of an expanse of ivy (Boston, of course). Let's have more of it. To paraphrase the old Welsh Christmas carol of recent popularity:

"Deck the walls with leaves of ivy,
Fa la la la la, la la la la."

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory.... And before him shall be gathered all nations.

Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed or my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: for I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger and you took me in: I was naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison, and ye came unto me.

Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink?.... Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee?

And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me. (Matt. 25: 31, 32, 34-37, 39, 40.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children....

For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light: (for the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth;) Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. (Eph. 5: 1, 8-10.)

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER 23

For a long time the nearest I ever got to the fighting was Divisional Headquarters.

My days were taken up with paper work and the carrying of despatches—made work. I presently realised, designed to conceal my non-combatant role under a show of activity.

The concept of duty was part of my inheritance. Is it surprising, then, that I should have rebelled against being held in idleness while my friends bore the shock of battle.

My letter to my father had one theme: Let me take a more active part.

No doubt to quiet these complaints, I was sent for a spell of duty to Second Division Headquarters at Bethune only five miles from the front lines. From here, after my first trip to the front, I in obvious excitement wrote:

March 1, 1915.

"Dear Papa,

. . . Here the Germans are rather close so I didn't go into the front trench proper, though I managed to see the enemy's (sic) trenches as well as a lot of their dead. . . . I spent a grand ten minutes spotting through my stalking glass for an officer who had his rifle aimed on a certain spot in a German trench where men could be seen frequently passing and standing.

"Whenever I saw a man I told him, and he fired I never saw him drop, but the bullets must have gone fairly close for the men used to disappear v. hurriedly! . . .

"So I spent a most wonderful two hours this morning; two hours that I shall never forget. . . . "

Hardly had I removed my eyes, figuratively speaking, from the fascinating panorama framed within the lens of my stalking glass before I was whisked back, by Sir John French's order, to the safety of St. Omer.

The battle of Neuve Chapelle was about to begin; it was, in the Headquarters view, no place for the Prince of Wales.

It was not until May 1915 that I managed to shed Sir John French's cronies and join the staff of Lieut.-General Sir Charles Munro, commanding the First Corps in the Bethune sector.

An army corps headquarters was closed to the front lines than the Supreme Headquarters, but, as I complained to my father, it still fell short of a young soldier's ideal.

May 19, 1915.

". . . As regards myself it's always office work of various kinds, and I never see anything or go near the front. . . .

"I feel that in later years I shall ever regret the fact that I was out so long in N. France and yet saw practically nothing of the fighting or get any proper idea of what our troops had to go through.

"I shall have to remember the war by the various towns and places far back which were headquarters of generals I was attached to, of meals, etc.! But I have said enough! . . . "

Now, I have never been much of a philosopher, and perhaps on that account I was a long time in identifying the true nature of my frustration.

The original reason why I was not allowed to fight—that I might be captured and thus provide the enemy with a valuable hostage—had by this time ceased to have validity.

Manifesty I was being kept, so to speak, on ice, against the day that death would claim my good father.

But in the midst of all the slaughter of the Western Front, I found it hard to reconcile myself to this unique dispensation.

My generation had, a rendezvous with history, and my whole being insisted that I share the common destiny whatever it might be.

During this period I had been in the practice of slipping up to the front lines on my own, visiting my friends in the various Guards regiments, and snatching quick glimpses of the war.

But these surreptitious visits proved unnecessary after September 1915, when I was appointed to the staff of Major General (later Field-Marshal) Lord Cavan, commanding the newly formed Guards Division.

Frederick Rudolph Lambart, 10th Earl of Cavan—or "Fatty" to his brother officers—was a Grenadier of my father's generation, a gentleman in the best sense of the word, deeply proud of having fulfilled the two ambitions of his life, commanding the 1st Battalion of his regiment, and being Master of the Hertfordshire Hounds.

I joined the Guards Division in the midst of the preparations for the famous battle for the high ground beyond Loos.

And even this modest position close to the battlefield was almost lost to me by an unfortunate accident.

During the battle when my driver was killed by a burst of shrapnel over the car, Sir John French preemportorily ordered me back to headquarters.

Only after I had assured him that I was not in the car when the shell struck, but had, in fact, left it some minutes before did he rescind the order.

At one stage during the battle I had the job of directing traffic at a crossroads in a forgotten village just behind the front.

Ankle-deep in mud, I watched two green divisions go past during the night, clanking and sloshing in the rain.

Next day these two divisions broke under murderous German fire and streamed back in confusion, throwing away their rifles and greatcoats.

Then up came the Guards, in one of the finest exhibitions of discipline

Topping the flaming ridge, company by company, in extended order, rifles slung, they moved into the attack down the shrapnel-raked hill before Loos as unconcerned as if on training manoeuvres at Pirbright.

In December General Sir Douglas Haig succeeded Sir John French as Commander-in-Chief of the British forces.

Whether this cold and high-minded Scot became too absorbed in his strategic planning to worry over the safety of a mere Prince, or whether it was because of my continuous "needling," I shall never know, but thereafter, except for a hard-and-fast directive that I was under no circumstances to rejoin the Grenadiers as a combat officer, the policing of my movements in the forward areas was relaxed.

I was happy with the Guards—as happy, anyway, as it was possible to be in war. Many of the young officers were my friends. I knew them from the children's parties at Marlborough House, or from Oxford, the Bath Club, and West end parties:

As I wrote my father:—

" . . . I am very pleased to join this magnificent Div. where are all my friends and what is more the friends of my friends at home. You know what I mean! . . . "

SENT TO THE FRONT—In 1915 the Duke of Windsor was finally granted a post in the front lines, a desire he had repeatedly expressed to his superior officers and in letters to his father the King. He is shown here outside a French mess wearing the Helmet of a French "Poilu."

QUITE A CHANGE—It is now possible to buy a head of cabbage without writing a cheque for it, and the price of the popular vegetable held by Doreen Harrington of Toronto sells at 7 cents.

Bigamist Sentenced

KIRKLAND LAKE, Feb. 6 — (CP).—William Ingwersen, 30, was sentenced today to a one-year term with hard labor after he pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy. Evidence was that Ingwersen, a Diesel mechanic, had married Mildred Malorney Oct. 24, 1939, in Edmonton while he was serving in the Canadian army. After discharge, Ingwersen moved to Toronto and again joined the service. Posted to Camp Petawawa, near Renfrew, Ont., he met and married Hazel Beulah Wright. The wedding took place Sept. 28, 1946.

Doctor Sends Gift

MONTREAL, Feb. 6 — (CP). — A package contained 30 grams of life-saving streptomcyin, the gift of a Montreal doctor, yesterday was flown across the Atlantic in a race with death. The drug is being rushed to Mrs. G. Hans of Nancy, France, who is critically ill in hospital.

Urge Licenses At Windsor For Juke Boxes

WINDSOR, Feb. 6 — (CP) — Looking for new sources of revenue, Windsor Board of Control cast a covetous eye at the juke boxes which have hitherto escaped the eye of the tax collector in Canada.

Revenue of the juke boxes has been estimated at $600,000 annually in Windsor.

"Why don't we license them," asked Controller B. Ellis. "They are a source of great wealth. A fee of $5 or so wouldn't increase the cost of amusement."

"Five dollars," interpolated Controller Clarence DeFields. "It ought to be $100 and there ought to be a slot where you can put in a nickel to silence them."

Another suggestion came from Controller W. Ernest Atkinson.

"Let us," he said, "put pinball machines in all our buildings and we'll get some revenue if we take 50 per cent. At the police station we'd get half their wages back."

Canadian Drinking Up

OTTAWA, Feb. 6 — (CP). — Canadians drank almost as much whisky and other liquor in 1946 as was put in bond to age. The Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday that 12,887,712 proof gallons valued at $61,210,822 were sold that year while 16,344,309 proof gallons valued at $10,286,868 were bonded. This compares with 10,105,042 proof gallons valued at $48,001,549 sold in 1945 and 16,708,576 proof gallons valued at $9,865,805 bonded.

NEW ROLE FOR MAX SCHMELING — Herr Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight boxing champ, is still a favorite to German sports fans and especially the German children. He seems to have more trouble catching a football than warding off a fist during a boxing match.

Switzerland Leads Hockey Race As Canada, Czechs End In Tie

By JACK SULLIVAN

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 6—(CP).—Switzerland drubbed Poland 14-0 today to jump into the lead of the hockey tournament played in conjunction with the winter Olympics. The victory came a short time after the two other top contenders, Canada and Czechoslovakia, battled to a scoreless tie.

The Swiss victory, in a game not previously scheduled for today, gave Switzerland 12 points for six straight victories. Canada and Czechoslovakia each have 11 points for five victories and today's tie.

Both Canada's R.C.A.F. Flyers and the Czechs must play Switzerland before the championship is decided in the Round Robin affair.

If the tournament ends in a tie for the leadership the teams' goal averages will decide the winner. The victor will be the team with the highest quotient of goals scored over goals against.

Canada, with 54 goals scored compared with five against, has the best goal average in the tournament to date. Today's victory gave the Swiss a 66-11 average while the Czechs have 69 for 14.

Canada May Win

Coach Mike Buckna of the Czechs said after today's game: "It's real playoff hockey." Jaroslav Drobny, Czech winger and Davis Cup star, said: "I'm afraid Canada will now win because they have a better goal average."

Other key games remaining on the schedule, which ends Sunday, bring Switzerland and Czechoslovakia together Saturday and the RCAF Flyers against Switzerland Sunday. Switzerland can win the tournament with victories in both games but if Canada and Czechoslovakia both win they would end in a tie for the leadership with the goal quotient telling the tale.

On the other hand, a split by Switzerland would send either the Canadians or the Czechs to final victory.

The three top teams are the only ones left in competition for the tournament crown. The 12-3 trouncing handed out by the Flyers yesterday knocked the United States Amateur Hockey Association team out of the running.

The AHA team defeated Austria 13-2 today to boost their total to eight, still three behind Canada and Czechoslovakia. It was Austria's sixth defeat in seven starts.

Armstrong Ahead In OHA Junior Scoring

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—(CP). — The see-saw race between Stratford's George Armstrong and Barrie's Gil St. Pierre for scornig leadership in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop continues with Armstrong ahead at present with 26 goals and 32 assists for 58 points, two more than St. Pierre. Jimmy Uniac of Windsor Spitfires is in third spot with 55 points, O.H.A. statistics showed today.

King George Is High In City Loop

King George were the big team in the Men's City Five Pin League Thursday night when they whitewashed the De Laval to the tune of 6 to 0, rolling up the high pinnage of 3759, high single game of 1406 while George Walton took top three honors with 949 and top single with 352. The separator boys rolled a neat 3590 total and nary a point. The win puts the King George team tied with Ramblers for third place. Fashion Craft took six points from Legion to bring their point total to 100 out of a possible 126 for a fine average.

Plazas blanked Empress Old Timers to move into a second place tie with Shockey's as the latter outfit were losing two games to Freeman's. Kawarthas remained in the running with a four-point victory from Spartons. Generals blanked Grant's, while Sunocos and McGillis took four point wins from Ramblers and Clapper's. Holly Mowry continued to smash the pins at a terrific clip, rolling 912 with singles of 350 and 346 to finish second to George Walton in both events. There were only two other 800 bowlers "Tic" Caccavella rolling 818 and Jack Murray 811. Other good single games following Walton and Mowry were rolled as follows: Norm Gordon 340, Ross Hopkins and Jack Murray 336, Ray Clifford 329, Jack Playford 322, A. Pepe and D. Vitarelli 313, Bill Harris 312, Tic Caccavella 309, Doug Abraham 306, Dick Pearson 303 and Vince Anthony 300.

The standing—Fashion Craft 100; Shockeys 80; Plazas 80; Ramblers 76; King George 76; Kawarthas 69; Empress Old Timers 62; Freeman's 62; Clapper's 60; McGillis 58; DeLaval 57; Legion 55; General 53; Sunocos 50; Grant's 44; Spartons 26.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Reminiscent of similar colorful events of pre-war days around Peter's borough is the Southern Ontario zone ski meet here on the morrow. Half of the meet is run off here Saturday and the other half —the slalom and downhill—in Collingwood on Sunday. Events locally are the cross-country race starting at Jackson Park at 9.30 a.m., a five-mile event, and the jumping competitions at 2.00 p.m. out at the class "A" Nassau jump. There are 31 entries in from seven clubs throughout the province, including most of the outstanding skiers in Ontario, and with half a dozen local chaps in. Public is invited to take in these events and they should be well worth seeing.

Girls', boys' and men's basketball on tap here this weekend on three fronts. Tonight in the YWCA, St. Paul's play Lock Co. at eight in a playoff lasses' tussle while CGE meets Normals there at eight Monday, also a playoff. And this e'en at the Collegiate gym, Oshawa teams play the junior "A" and the senior "A" squads in important COSSA fixtures. At the YMCA tomorrow night at 8.15, the Moss Park crew of Toronto tackles Marines "A" outfit and it'll be preceded by a tilt between Towne Togs' girls and the "Y" boys' junior gang. Moss Park lineup is: Steve Levantis at centre, Reg Acomb and George McDowall (forwards), Ray Murphy and Jack Wedley (guards), subs being Dave Samme, Ritchie Letcher, Joe Wagman and Bill White. It'll be something to see these big teams going in the small gym.

Legion And Petes

Big puck joust tonight is the one in Lindsay at 8.30 betwixt the Petes and Legionnaires, last OHA senior "B" clash of these teams this season unless they meet in group playoffs. And they might not, at that. So it's a natural all the way between the two local scrappy squads, with the Petes having a margin on play so far this semester on Legionnaires. No love lost between the clubs on the ice at all, and they'll really be hustling. Legion pretty nearly have to win this one as the schedule is rapidly coming to a close and Kingston and Belleville are right on the Legion heels in the scramble for a playoff spot. Ought to be a hefty crowd on deck for this ice duel.

* * * * * *

'Tis hoped that curfew does not ring down tonight on these Legion-Petes' clashes. Not that a Legion loss this eve would put 'em out—not at all. But it could be that Legion might meet, say, Belleville in group semi-finals and lose out. (We don't expect so, but it's quite possible.) In such case it would be Belleville vs. the Petes in finals. We thoroughly enjoy those hot scraps between Legion and Petes, and so do the players themselves. And the fans really do. Hot rivalry, something of a civil war in a way, with brother battling brother, and all that. Yeah, we'd like to see the finals between the hustling hockeyists coached by Ned Vitarelli and Red Creighton. And we'd like to see it go the limit, at that!

* * * * * *

But Nary A Cop

Scribe Mike Rodden remarks that Kingston Saints earned their 6-3 win but says the Legionnaires gave them a stiff fight all the way. He states there was no police present in the 500 crowd and some of the fans got into the players' free-for-all near the finish. And he implies criticism of Speedy St. Louis, the referee, for the way he handled the big scrap. Bud Goodfellow was cut by a high stick in Lindsay last game and he must have thought Bill Crowley—who wears a fairly high stick usually—had done the carving. But it wasn't Bill that time. Anyway, big Bud laid it on Crowley and that started the whole mess. Goodfellow drew a major and a misconduct.

* * * * * *

Quinte columnist comments: "The plot thickens. Things do not look so good for our senior 'B' Veterans since a bolstered Kingston squad, flung back on its playoff haunches, defeated the Petes' Legionnaires in Kingston Wednesday by a 6-3 score. That gives the Saints third position and, if they knock off our laddies in Kingston on Saturday night, the situation will be desperate indeed. If Kingston wins on Saturday, our boys will have to defeat both Petes' squads, with the Saints losing its last game, in order to get a tie. That's a big chore with the Saints getting hotter with their last-minute reinforcements." Yes, chum, 'tis kind of grim.

King George High

Some mighty pin-mauling again last evening in the men's City Bowling League down Duffus' way. The King George crew were big shots in all departments this time. They had top pinnage of 3759, high single of 1406, and George Walton of this team led all individuals. He hammered out a 949 triple and singled for 352, as his side blanked De Laval 6-0. A large p.m. for the King George bunch, eh? Holly Howry continued to cuff 'em at a hot clip with a 912 threesome which included two dandy single efforts of 350 and 346. Fashion-Crafts are still holding a commanding lead with Shockey's and Plazas in a keen dogfight for the second slot.

Lakefield Boys Gain Win Against Orono

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 6—(ENS)—The Lakefield Sea Scouts swept to a 7-2 victory here last night over the Orono boys in the first game of their OMHA bantam playdown series. After an even first period, with each side counting once, the Sea Scouts got going and rapped in three without a reply in the middle chukker. They added three more in the third to one in return by Orono.

Armstrong opened the scoring for the visitors in the initial stanza, but Twist got it back the same period. It was fast, clean hockey with no penalties. Sloan scored two goals and had one penalty for Lakefield in the second period. Twist got the other marker and had an assist, while Coyle also earned an assist during this chapter when Lakefield dominated play. Coyle counted three in a row in the third in a fine showing, as Armstrong got the last one for Orono. Neither side drew a penalty. The teams:

Orono: Goal, Hooey; defence, Ceamer and Gilmour; centre, K. West; wings, Hall and Armstrong; alternates, Spencer, Boyd, Harris, Hudson, R. West and Foster.

Lakefield: Goal, Wingette; defence, Pue and Pearson; centre, Twist; wings, Coyle and Sloan; alternates, Heffernan, Hunter, Brown, Mathews, Wasson and Wilson.

Referee, A. West; linesman, T. Junkin.

Trojan Results

Canadiens took the first Bantam game from Detroit 4 to 0 in a neat number, as the boys stuck strictly to hockey. Curtis in Canadiens goal was star No. 1. Reid Armstrong, Guthrie and Gordon were the snipers up front. Stewart Jennings and Gar White did a good chore on defence.

Canadiens —Goal, Curtis; defence, Jennings and Stewart; centre, Reid; wings, Armstrong and Guthrie; subs, Gordon and White.

Detroit—Goal, Evans; defence, Burfield and LaRoche; centre, Floyd; wings, Allen, Collins; subs, Pullyblank, Downer.

Leafs handed Rangers a 2 to 0 setback in the best game of the winter. The teams were evenly matched, but Leafs scored first and they were in command the rest of the way. Brioux, Williams and Kent worked smoothly in front and Gramham and Clements went well on defence for Leafs. Deck and Dauncey played best for Rangers. Teams:

Leafs— Goal, Panter; defence, D. Gramham and Clements; centre, Brioux; wings, Williams and Kent; subs, Clarke, G. Gramham and Foster.

Rangers — Goal, Church; defence, O'Dette and Micheals; centre, White; wings, Deck and Dauncey; sub, Holbrook. Doug Dwyer did a swell job refereeing and did not have any dull moments.

St. John's Lose

Sacred Heart juniors of the Separate School Hockey League eked out a 2-1 victory over St. John's on the former's rink earlier in the week. Cournyea and Armitage each tallied for the winners in a neat tussle throughout. Teams:

St. John's: Goal, Woodhouse; defence, Forbes, Drummond; centre, Doris; wings, Kane, Giardino; alternates, Clarke, Demario, Blodgett.

Sacred Heart: Goal, Moher; defence, Johnston, B. Jenkinson; centre, Cournyea; wings, Armitage, Whatman; alternates, P. Jenkinson, Quesnel, Longo, Kearns.

Referee, E. Crough; linesman, C. Fitzgerald.

PAPYRUS BOATS

CANADIAN LIGHTWEIGHT CROWN AT STAKE — Danny Webb of Montreal, right, Canada's lightweight boxing champion, will fight Li'l Arthur King, of Toronto, left, at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto on Monday. Webb who has "pulled out" of a couple of previous fights said he would fight only when he wished to. And, for him at 131 pounds, there was to be no stepping into the 150-pound class. "I want to keep my brains in one place," says Danny. "And I want to walk out of this game with money in the bank."

CURLING NEWS

By HERB MARTIN

The lady curlers held their annual "all star' bonspiel on Thursday afternoon. It is not generally known, but this bonspiel is the tid-bit of the season as far the ladies are concerned. It compares with the world series baseball or the Rose Bowl rugby classic. It's tops and that's all there is to it. The ladies played their games and then adjourned to the club's parlors for light refreshments. They sure enjoyed themselves.

Pesky Tail-end Hawks Smash Canadiens By 7-2

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Those Chicago Black Hawks are getting to be an awful nuisance to other National Hockey League clubs concentrating on play-offs and prizes. The Chicago Hawks are well and truly in the cellar, but they just won't roll over and play dead. The Hawks, long the doormats of the other five teams, acquired a new coach at the start of the year in big Charlie Conacher, former Toronto Maple Leaf star. Since then the Hawks have played 16 games, and they've won six, tied two, and lost eight.

The resurgence of the Hawks reached a new high last night when they walloped the Montreal Canadiens 7-2 right in the Montreal Forum. It not only spoiled the Canadiens' cherished dream of taking over fourth place — Canadiens are still tied with Boston for that last play-off spot —but it must have set Coach Dick Irvin and the Canadiens' bosses to adjusting their spectacles for rearward as well as forward views. Because the Hawks now are just seven points behind Montreal and Boston.

The Canadiens had been doing pretty well of late but last night they were behind the eight-ball all the way. The Chicago forwards were rushing and checking all the time, the Chicago defence was working like a clock and young Emile Francis from Regina was a big league star in every sense in the Chicago nets.

Francis, however, had to handle only 15 saves, plus the two he lost, while veteran Bill Durnan in the Canadien goal stopped 28 drives besides the seven that got by.

Roy Conacher scored three of the Hawk goals and Gaye Stewart got two. But Poile and Doug Bentley scored the others. Joe Carveth and rookie Norm Dussault got the Canadien counters that clears the decks for the week-end melee, but only four games are carded this week-end. The Detroit Red Wings, leading the league by three points over Toronto, play at Montreal Saturday and entertain Boston Sunday. Leafs take on the New York Rangers Saturday night at Toronto, and Sunday the Rangers are at Chicago.

EXHIBITION POSTPONED

Jersey Joe Walcott's four-round boxing exhibition, scheduled for next Thursday at Chicago, was postponed yesterday until an indefinite March date because his opponent was not approved.

Peterboro Rink Loses Extra End

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Feb. 6.—(CP).—Ontario curlers dominated first round play in the Sewell bonspiel for ladies here yesterday.

A close match featured the game between Mrs. C. Chapman, Montebello, and Miss H. Munro, Peterborough. The latter established an early eight-point lead but Mrs. Chapman and her rink came through to tie at the tenth end 10-10, necessitationg an extra end which was won by the Montebello players.

Second matches are scheduled for today and the third round on Saturday. Finals will be held Sunday.

Mrs. D. D. Findlay, Carleton Place, Ont., defeated Mrs. H. W. Mackenzie, Outremont 8-7.

Won't Concede "Relic" Tops For Year

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (AP)—Although Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moore's Relic, winner of two good races in Florida so far this season, looks like one of the year's outstanding three - year - old race horses, Samuel D. Riddle won't concede that the colt is tops. . . . Riddle, owner of Relic's sire, War Relic, insists that his own colt, Faraway, is the best of War Relic's first crop of offspring. . . . Toronto's Ted Atkinson, who rode Relic to an easy triumph in the Bahamas Handicap Wednesday, has a simple explanation of success at Hialeah: "Fast horses and a hard-working agent."... Jack Sharkey, former heavyweight champ, and Ted Williams, heavyweight hitter, have become buddies because of their common interest in fishing.

Hard Words

Ray Dumont, president and gag man of the National Baseball Congress, cooked up a stunt for his speech at the Sporting Goods Dealers convention here the other day by planting a small army of stooges in the audience.... Every few minutes a fake wire would arrive order large numbers of the Congress Year Book or a guy would gallop up to get Ray's autograph.... Finally one of the stooges presented Dumont a huge trophy saying: "This is presented for your great promotional ability. Softball has really benefitted."... All Ray needed was his patented home plate duster to blow him right out of the joint.

One Minute Sports Page

Busiest guy doing nothing around town the last few days has been Pacific Coast League President Pants Rowland. Besides conferring with various major league bigwigs, Pants was seen in a huddle with publicist Buck O'Neill, former president of the Baseball Writers Association. Could that mean the Coast League is starting a publicity campaign to back its bid for major status? ....Former heavyweight Add Warren, one of Gene Tunney's sparring partners back in 1938, is campaigning for more pay for school teachers. ...Warren, now a teacher and coach of all sports at a rural school in North Carolina, figures he and his colleagues have enough to do without dodging bill collectors.

State Secretary Marshall yesterday drew the pairings for the challengers in the Davis Cup tennis competition. In the so-called American zone round Canada drew Mexico and Austria, the finalist last year, will play Cuba.

Teams from 29 countries have challenged for the cup now held by the United States. They will fight it out for the right to meet the United States.

W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association announced yesterday that Feb. 10 would be the final day for player registration in all series. The O.H.A. sub-committee will meet in Toronto next Monday and the agenda will include arrangements for the senior and junior A playoffs.

Al Parkhill's Oshawa Curling Club rink yesterday won the right to represent Oshawa district in the Ontario Single Rink championship competition at Hamilton Thistles Club Feb. 12, by defeating Bill Gifford's crew 13-6 in the final round of the district playoffs.

A record of 454 rinks have filed entries for the Diamond Jubilee Bonspiel of the Manitoba Curling Association starting next Tuesday at Winnipeg. The previous record of 400 was established in the 1947 'spiel. One Ontario rink will be skipped by Brig.-Gen. Colin A. Campbell, president of the Dominion Curling Association.

President James Dooley of the Thoroughbred Racing Association yesterday announced at Miami that at the request of the Incorporated Canadian Racing Association the T.R.A. will lip-tattoo Canadian racing thoroughbreds starting this spring.

Connie Mack is relinquishing active business management of the Philadelphia Athletics in the American Baseball League. While nominally still head of the organization, it was said yesterday, he has turned over all matters outside player selection and playing management to a five-man board of directors.

The St. Lawrence University's Winter Carnival opened last night at Canton, N.Y., as skiers from 12 United States and Canadian colleges gathered for two championship meets. Competition for the New York State and Western Intercollegiate Ski Union championships will begin today and continue through Saturday.

Queen's University and Ottawa University are co-favorites for the I.S.U. crown, won last year by Toronto University. Toronto is not competing this year.

PRINCESS SKIIS — Princess Anne of Bourbon - Parma, fiancee of Prince Michael of Romania, shows good form skiing on the hills at Davos, Switzerland. The princess and Michael are an added attraction to the Olympic games at the Swiss winter resort.

Boxing Crown Not Too Popular

TORONTO, Feb. 6 — (CP). — To listen to them, neither champion nor challenger in the Canadian lightweight championship bout here next Monday is interested particularly in walking out of the ring the Dominion 135-lb king.

Both Li'l Arthur King and champion Danny Webb are quick to talk down the importance of the crown at stake, and both apparently find the same thing wrong with the bauble — it's not worth a bowl of soup.

Sure Webb's champ, but King says, "what of it? It hasn't made him any money."

Enthusiastic or no, the boys are training to razor-sharpness for this one. The little Montreal champion will scale about 131 pounds against King's 134.

Webb will make at least $3,000 for Monday night's effort, while King is assured $2,000. Webb also has an option on 22½ per cent of the gate.

Stars Think Academy Awards Too One-Sided In Selection

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6—(AP).—Are academy awards accurate selections of the best film work of the year? This question is often heatedly debated in Hollywood, particularly now that the 1947 awards are not far off. I have asked a number of performers for their opinions and nearly all had positive beliefs on the topic. This Hollywood forum is now open—

Dick Powell—"Too much credit goes to top-budget, star-studded films. There's no excuse for not creating a good picture when a couple or three million bucks is spent on it. The academy should consider low - budget pictures which turn out to be good."

Joan Bennett—"It might be fairer to split up the awards more and give them for such things as the best musical and the best comedy. But that would detract from the impressiveness of the dramatic picture winner."

Not To The Deserving

Ronald Reagan—"Awards don't go to the most deserving work. The academy membership falls for the tremendous publicity build-ups studios give their contenders. Sometimes there are secret agreements and block voting. I think an impartial board, made up of a cross-section of the industry, might give fairer decisions."

Lionel Barrymore—"I most emphatically believe the present system is the best possible. Who could be better qualified to choose the industry's best work than professional actors and technical people. Most academy choices represent the considered judgment of the most competent authorities — the movie makers themselves."

Alexis Smith — "Too often awards go to performers who just missed an Oscar the previous year. Even though they turned in a lesser acting job the next year, they get the Oscar as a consolation prize."

Not Capable.

Jack Carson—"I don't believe the academy membership is capable of the best critical judgment. Fairer awards could be made by a group like the New York Critics' Circle, professional critics aloof from studio pressure."

Fredric March—"The present academy system is the best possible method, as far as the Pulitzer or Nobel awards. Deciding the picture is not too difficult. But naming the best performance is treading on shaky ground. Acting should not be competitive."

You've heard the stars; now what do YOU think?

RESCUE THREE—A friend, standing on shore, waves to three teen age boys, adrift in New York's Hudson river on a chunk of ice. The boys, high school students, ventured out too far on the ice and it broke under their weight. For a harrowing half-hour, the tide carried the boys upstream. A fireboat finally reached the boys and after repeated attempts got a line to the boys and hauled them to the ship, where they climbed a ladder to safety. Today, the lads, Andrew Wray, Anthony Vida and Fielding Warren, regalled their high school classmates with a sea-faring tale rivaling those of Sinbad the Sailor.

Ask Government To Pay Property Tax

TORONTO, Feb. 6 (CP).—Provincial and Federal governments will be asked to pay property tax to support municipal services such as police and fire protection, sewers and sidewalks, the Association of Ontario mayors and reeves decided today. Provincial and Federal property is tax exempt at present.

The association agreed to put its request before Premier Drew tomorrow and approach the Federal government later.

"Last week in Montreal a group of the Canadian Federation (of mayors and reeves) proposed that the Federal government pay a grant in lieu of the taxes," Mayor Robert Saunders of Toronto told today's meeting. "We received a wire from Hon. D. C. Abbott saying it was being considered but nothing definite could be done for two weeks.

Mayor Stanley Lewis of Ottawa suggested the Ontario government be approached first.

Sizeable Amount

In 1947 the federal exemptions as assessed in the city of Toronto amounted to $13,142,637 on both land and buildings. Provincial exemptions for the same year totalled $9,929,541.

In another submission to be made to Premier Drew, it was estimated that $25,000,000 was spent by Ontario Municipalities in the years 1944, 1945, and 1946 to defray costs of social services which had increased by approximately one-half in the three-year period.

The association brief states: "These costs have been one of the three factors contributing to the burden on the municipal tax payer for services not properly municipal services."

Reeve Ann Shipley of Kirkland Lake said she was in favor of asking the Provincial Government for a larger school allowance to take care of higher living costs and new schools and teachers.

JAP SHIP DISASTER — The dead and the living are scattered along the beach at Kurojima, Japan, following the sinking of the ferryboat Jyoo Maru, in which 260 Japanese were drowned. Bodies, dragged in from the icy waters of the Inland Sea, not far from Osaka, lie in rows, while survivors huddle over a beach fire. A group of rescue workers stand by. Many Jitters As Commodity Prices Slump

By The Canadian Press

The present drove in grain and commodity prices is something like a man taking a cold shower which he thinks will freshen him up, but which he is a little afraid may knock him out.

Everyone says prices must stop going up and most everyone says they should come down. So why the jitters?

Mainly that people are afraid it you desire a reverse boom you dive into a bust. They remember the last post-war recession, they remember 1929, and are depression-conscious.

It's true that the world economic set-up is a precarious structure and a lot of things are shaking it, but there are some factors that give hope that there will be no immediate repeat recession performance.

One is that not only is there a world demand for goods, but a way is being hammered out to meet it; another is that people in North America have become accustomed to a higher standard of living, which, they hope, has become part of the social fabric and a continuing stimulus to production; and another is that some of the artificial factors of the boom of the 20's are lacking; it is not, for instance, a stock market boom—decidedly otherwise at present low stock prices.

On the other hand there are some things to cause concern. One is that much of the activity in Canada and the United States has been concerned with capital expansion; that is fine if you can sell your goods after you have expanded your capacity to make them, but otherwise it is embarrassing.

"WE RAN THE BLOCKADE"—Seventy-five American World War II veterans of varied faiths are shown carrying placards and picketing the British information service bureau on New York's Fifth Avenue. McNaughton Takes On Job As Indian Issue Reviewed

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

LAKE SUCCESS, NY, Feb. 6 — (CP). — General Andrew George Latta McNaughton of Canada took his seat at the toe of the horseshoe table, brought his gavel down with a crash that echoed through the near-empty chamber, and the February sessions of the United Nations Security Council —the 239th session to be exact— got under way. The major peace-keeping and disciplining organ of the United Nations resumed consideration of appeals from Pakistan and India to take on the task of bringing peace and democratic settlement of their status to the former independent states of Jumma and Kashmir.

Down at the end of the table at McNaughton's left a swarthy, sad-faced Indian spokesman, Gopalaswi Ayyangar, talked in a low passionate voice for an hour accusing the new Sister Nation, Pakistan, of participating in Kashmir disorders designed to influence that country's decision as to joining Pakistan or India.

India is not on the council and Ayyangar had been invited to state his country's case. Opposite him sat the elegant, bearder Sir Zafrullah Khan, Pakistan's foreign minister, to do the same job for his people.

Their stories were about tribal murders, killings, and attacks in the towns and villages, organized warfare and defiance of law and order. In precise and perfect English the two native statesmen charged each other's countries with reponsibility and culpability.

Want Arbitration

They asked that the United Nations step in as arbiter. Delegates of the member countries of the 11-member security council seemed little interested or, if interested, futilely wondering what they could do about it.

But the security council has no armed forces at its command. It has no armed units to send to Palestine where it is attempting to supervise partition of the strife-torn Holy Land. It has no force to protect the commission it sent out to the Greek-Balkan area to investigate border fighting there.

For more than a year the military staff commission of the Big Five members of the U.N. has talked intermittently about organizing an armed force for the United Nations. It has made no progress and the apparent reason is that Russia will not play ball with the rest.

For more than a year the Atomic Energy Commission composed of the Security Council and Canada (which this year became a member of the Security Council), and on which McNaughton has been Canadian member, has tried in vain to bring in an acceptable plan. Russia again has been the stumbling block.

Far back in the last row of the visitors' gallery in the Security Council Mrs. McNaughton sits and watches her husband and goes on with her knitting.

Wallace Urges Broader Outlook

OTTAWA, Feb. 6 — (CP). — R. C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, said yesterday that specialists often concentrate on their own particular field and forget there are others in which their outlook may be broadened.

In an address to a luncheon of the Ottawa Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, Dr. Wallace said the engineer of today impinged more and more into the field of human relations because the materials he used to build with were handled by human beings.

The fields that counted most in life were those of imagination and intuition as opposed to reason and facts built into a material structure.

"What I think of when an engineer speaks of humanities is not what he will find in college but those things he finds in his interests and aspirations in the years following his (formal) education," he said.

"Personality is what we all try to acquire and personality grows with the width of a man's interests and aspirations outside his field. The man will have more influence as an engineer because he will have more influence as a man."

Asks 510 Million For Aid To China

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. (AP) — The Truman Administration has nearly completed plans to ask Congress for $510,000,000 to finance a 15-month relief program in China beginning April 1.

This was learned from government officials after the United States State Department had instructed its own press officer and other departmental officials not to discuss Chinese aid with newsmen.

The program as now drawn provides for strictly civilian aid. Opponents object to this arguing that the Chinese Government armies should be helped too if the civilian aid is to prove effective.

Back Attlee Plan

LONDON, Feb. 6 — (AP). — A trades union congress committee expressed "general agreement" last night with Prime Minister Attlee's call for a general wage and profit freeze. The TUC, which represents 8,000,000 unionists and is the backbone of the Labor government.

Romania, Soviet Sign Treaty

MOSCOW, Feb. 6—(AP)—Romania and the Soviet Union allied themselves yesterday in a 20-year treaty of mutual aid and friendship.

Foreign Minister Molotov, speaking at signing ceremonies in the Kremlin last night, said the pact acquired a special import "now that the incendiaries of a new war from the imperialist camp are making efforts to form military and political blocs directed against the democratic states."

(The Russians customarily reserve use of the word democracy for the Communist states.)

Premier Petru Groza of Romania replied that the treaty was "an expression of the gravitation of our peoples toward perpetual collaboration."

Prime Minister Stalin and Foreign Minister Anna Pauker of Romania also participated in the signing ceremonies.

Buried Under Ice

TORONTO, Feb. 6 — (CP). — Buried under tons of ice when the upper floor of a north-central ice plant gave way yesterday, five-year-old Douglas Martimore was rescued by two workmen, who used a large crane to remove the blocks of ice. The boy was still conscious and crying when rescued and there were no visible signs of injuries.

Cattle Prices Drop 25 Cents During Week

TORONTO, Feb. 6 — (CP).— Cattle prices opened 25c to 50c a hundredweight higher, but lost 25 cents by the close in the Livestock Market here this week. Calves ruled strong, while sheep and lambs were steady. Hogs gained 25 cents, while sows lost $1.50.

A cattle run of some 5,900 was 1,500 more than for the same week a year ago. Opening trade was strong on a light run of cattle, but slowed considerably under the following receipts which proved too heavy for requirements. Closing trade was dull, with several hundred killers unsold.

Top price for weighty steers was $17.35 for one load, with a few head selling from $17.50. Other steers brought $17.25 down to $14.50. Butcher steers were $12.50-$15.50. Butcher cows were $9.75-$12.50, with canners selling down to $6. Bulls ranged in price from $9 for light bolognas up to $12.50 for good butchers. Fed yearlings sold from $15-$17.50 with two at $17 cwt. A few lots of medium to good stockers and feeders sold at $11-$13.50. Ordinary quality milkers and springers were $85-$145 each.

Some 900 head of calves sold strong at $21-$23 for choice with plain to medium vealers $13-$18. Heavy grassers brought $9-$11.50.

Hog prices gained 25 cents a hundredweight to close at $28.75 for Grade A and $28.35 for Grade B1. Sows, however, were $1.50 lower at $19 dressed. Hog receipts totalled some 2,800 head.

A few lots of good lambs sold at $18.50, with others from $13-$18. Sheep sold slowly at $5-$9 according to quality. Sheep and larms receipts were some 900 head.

Wait For Reduction

TORONTO, Feb. 6 — (CP).— Ontario wine drinkers may have to wait two or three months before they benefit from lower prices, now enjoyed by Quebec drinkers, as a result of devaluation of the franc, J. G. Spragge, comptroller of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, said last night. He said negotiations had started and the board was "hoping for a reduction."

Tax Reduction Hint Welcome

OTTAWA, Feb. 6. — (CP).— Senator Gustave Lacasse (L-Ontario) yesterday welcomed a hint from Prime Minister Mackenzie King that there was going to be a reduction of the Federal taxation load which he considered dangerously heavy.

Speaking in the Throne speech debate, Senator Lacasse said large families on low incomes particularly were caught between taxation and the high cost of living, their impatience was growing in view of the large federal budget surplus.

There should be taxation exemptions for university students in the same way as for nurses in training.

The system of allowing certain incomes to be assessed over a three-year period for income tax should be extended to small industries.

Senator Lacasse said the interest rate on unpaid taxes was too high, there should be a revision.

Prolonged excessive taxes could have serious results. Sky-high taxation would bring back bad conditions that would lead to a general economic breakdown. Such a danger was so imminent that the clamor was growing. The government could not ignore it much longer.

Demand Grows For Horses Breeders Are Told

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—The horse is gradually creeping back into the limelight on Canadian farms, in spite of mechanization and the processing of horses for human consumption, members of the Clydesdale Horse Association of Canada decided at the annual meeting yesterday.

There was no suggestion that the horse would ever achieve again the position he held before the arrival of the tractor and the automobile, but members felt farmers were beginning to realize that there is still a place for the horse in the economy of mechanized farms. The animals are particularly valuable for winter farm work.

Shortage of good horses at the present time has created a demand for geldings for advertising purpose, particularly by breweries, bakeries and dairies. This demand has already started to pep up breeding, particularly in the Western Provinces where it is expected there will be a much larger number of horses raised during the next year.

T. P. Devlin of Winnipeg, secretary of the association, told members that processing plants at Swift Current, Sask., and Edmonton, had turned out $7,000,000 in products in two years and that 100,000 horses had been slaughtered. Operation of the plants had now reached a point where young horses were being killed for meat and lumber companies in the West had to import draft horses from the United States.

Lawrence M. Rye of Edmonton was re-elected president of the association, and Wreford Hewson of Malton, vice-president. Ontario directors are: Clifford Hagerty of Ottawa, John Batty of Brooklin, Mr. Hewson and Albert Berry of Oakville.

Stoddard of Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa; Ray T. Hall, Oshawa; Clifford Hagerty, Oshawa; Heber Down, Brooklin; James Alessor, Whitby; Albert Francis, Mt. Forest; William J. Only 23 Percent of Citizens Belong To Library; J. C. Rutherford Re-elected

J. C. Rutherford was re-elected chairman of the Public Library Board at the annual meeting of the Board held on Thursday night. Other officers re-elected were: Chairman of Finance Committee, W. A. Richardson, members of his committee being W. C. Ackerman and J. R. Marshall; Library Committee, K. S. Wightman, with A. E. Borland and Rev. E. C. Moore; Property Committee, Chairman Frank Hickey, with A. E. Borland and K. S. Wightman. Mayor W. G. Ovens was appointed ex-officio member of the Board and William L. Graff was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

The secretary's report mirrored the literary reflection of the book borrowers in an interesting light. His report showed a circulation decrease during the year 1947 of 7,598 books. This was largely due to the fact that the library was closed for nearly three weeks for stocktaking, and also that less books were taken out during the summer months than usual. Approximately more than a decrease of 2,000 books can also be accounted for due to the closing of the Dixon Centre branch. This decrease, the report read, must not be taken as a sign of a general decline in reading. During the past year 146,118 books were circulated.

The chief decrease was in fiction, where a drop of 6,457 was noted, showing a trend towards current novels and best sellers. Very few novels were placed on a long reserve list, and the publishers themselves admitted a dearth of novels of real literary value during the current year.

The decrease in non-fiction novels was considerably less, being only 2,451.

A decided increase was noted for books under the classification of fine arts, music, art and theatre. Books on sport and handicraft were also on the increase and a notable increase was recorded in books on useful arts. Part of this interest was due to a general trend of inferest in house planning, carpentry, furniture making and radio.

History Not Popular

Sociology showed an increase, and books on economics and education were in much demand. History books showed a decrease of 25 per cent. Few travel books have been published since the end of the last war, hence there has bee na decrease in that section. More than 20 per cent fewer books on biographies were read though biographies still remain very popular.

Classification in order of popularity was given as follows: Fine Arts, Useful Arts, Biographies, Literature (drama, essays and poety), Travel, History, Sociology, Natural Science, Philosophy and Religion.

An average of 19 books per person in Peterborough shows the figure as being among the highest in the province. Per capita the average is among the lowest because of the small registration. Registration figures for 1947 are rather encouraging, but still the library has a long way to go to reach the desired 30 per cent to 40 per cent of population. In Peterborough the registration is 23 per cent, the report shows.

During 1947 there were 750 more borrowers, 204 adults and 546 children, the latter figure due to the school visits. There are 28,556 books in the library, and of this number there are 5087 in the Boys' and Girls' Section. There were 1818 new books added during the past year, for the adult section, and 2205 for the Boys' and Girls' section.

More than 7,000 reference books were used during 1947. The Library Exhibits during the year were largely attended. The main exhibits were, Art Exhibits of the Public Schools and the PCVS. Photographic Exhibition of the Peterborough Camera Club, Exhibit of Etchings and Prints of a group of American women in New York. Exhibition of work done on the playgrounds under supervision of the Recreation Commission. Exhibition of Mrs. Winifred Lampman (paintings). Exhibit by a group of Peterborough painters.

During the past year the library circulated 1148 films, and there were 629 showings, which were seen by audiences of 88,412 people.

More groups are using the Library auditorium and the Board room for meetings. It is also hoped that the Dixon Centre will soon be re-opened. In the 5 months it was used in 1947, a total of 4,414 books were circulated.

904 books and 461 magazines were circulated to patients in the Civic Hospital; these books, though purchased by the Civic Hospital Ladies Auxiliary.

WELCOME MILDER SPELL

It's hardly time to start looking for the daffodils yet, but even so most Peterborough citizens welcome the milder weather. It was only three below zero on Thursday night, compared to 18 below on Wednesday. By nine o'clock on Friday morning the temperature was 10 above zero with prospects of it soaring much higher. Perhaps the long-awaited January thaw has been postponed to February.

VETERAN SKIERS COMPETE—Two of Peterborough's outstanding performers will compete Saturday at the zone ski meet. Kirsten B. Olsen, 622 Park St., Left, holds his home-made eight-foot jumping skis and wears a beautiful wool sweater, a present from his mother in Ringbu, Norway, who carded, spun and knit it for him. On the Right, original sparkplug of the city's skiing possibilities, Otto Laderach, 62 Lansdowne St., past-president of Peterborough Ski Club.

Former Champ To Jump For Ski Club

For a man to say without boasting that he has been skiing for over 35 years when he has now only reached the 40 mark, is an accomplishment and certainly a novelty even in Peterborough, one of the most ski-conscious cities in Canada. But such is the case of Kristen Bardslokken Olsen, 622 Park St., who has been a resident of the city since last March and has worked in Canada for the past 20 years.

Mr. Olsen was born near the town of Ringbu in the Gudbrandsdalen Valley of Central Norway, one of a family of nine. His people were farmers, engaged chiefly in dairying and sheep-raising and, like all Norwegians, the children took to their skis at an age when Canadian toddlers try "belly busting" down the mild slopes near their homes. It would be a novelty in Norway if one was not a proficient skier at an early age.

Canada seems to act as a sort of magnet for Norwegian people, the climate, scenery and democratic way of life attract many of them to settle here. Mr. Olsen left his homeland 20 years ago, and being a carpenter by trade, was able to make a decent living in various parts of the country. He followed the big construction jobs after spending his acclimatizing period in Grand Falls and New Denmark in New Brunswick. Then followed the large projects where carpenters were in much demand, La Tuque and Baie Comeau, Que., two paper mills and townsites in New Brunswick, and again and later in Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. Olsen's first experience in the Peterborough district came during the war when he was attached to the medical corps in the boot camp at the Exhibition Park. He transferred later to infantry, and finally to the engineers, two years in all. After hostilities and discharge, construction again brought Kristen Olsen to the city on a housing construction program, and over nine months he has had ample time to study the district and found it good. His wife, the former Bernice Liggett from Saskatchewan, has made a complete Canadian of him and they are building a home at Fowler's Corners.

He is reluctant to speak of his skiing abilities, but being a past member of five prominent clubs, and now with the Peterborough Ski Club, is testimony of his keenness for the sport at least. Mr. Olsen uses six-foot six-inch skiis for slalom and eight-foot hickories for jumping, which he made himself. He held the Maritime championship for all-round skiing for two years, 1937-38. His longest jump in competition was 185 feet and he guessed that another time he did abqut 200 feet at a small friendly meet.

The zone meet Saturday will give Mr. Olsen a chance to limber up, for he claims he has not been on the "slats" for about eight years until last Sunday. He thinks from watching the performance of a visiting club at the Nassau jump that his fellow countryman, Harale Bakke, University of Toronto Ski Club, Ajax, put on the most outstanding performance by far and books him as a winner for the jumping events on Saturday.

Cupid Goes On Holiday At Campbellford No Weddings During All Of Frigid January

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 6 — (ENS)—Remember that old song, "The love bug will bite you if you don't watch out"? Well, it seems that along about the end of last year, someone bit the love bug—there have been no weddings here since.

Perhaps January was too cold for the little fellow with the bow and arrow. Artists and poets have always portrayed him clad only in a little pink cloud and a quiver of arrows. Who could be so practical as to have him step out of character, in a fur coat, for instance? Not the Campbellford boys, they're cold too.

Cabbage Toppled From Highbrow Ranks Price Ceiling Of 9 Cents Boosts Sales

The recently enthroned — and more recently dethroned — monarch of the price plutocrats, "King Cabbage" may have at least partially returned to his humble station in life. The spree in the upper regions with caviar and raw oysters seems to have had an effect on the simple vegetable's popularity rating. Or perhaps the ceiling put on by the government last week had something to do with it.

At any rate, Peterborough grocers report that his-now-defunct majesty is being bought by housewives with almost loving regularity. Sales have jumped anywhere from 10 to 50 per cent over the figures reached in the 20c-per-pound period.

One city retailer pointed out a perennial reason for the high sales, although he said it could not account for the present high level. That is the fact that cabbage is about the only vegetable available fresh at this time of year—at least the only one not confined to the tables of bank presidents.

Selling price now is eight or nine cents per pound. Nine cents is the ceiling placed. One of the dealers selling at eight cents, questioned on dropping the extra cent's profit, said that he was paying five and one-half cents wholesale and felt that a two and one-half cent margin was fair enough.

Most of the city outlets reported that during the high-priced periods, they had drastically cut their orders, as customers would not buy at the prevailing prices. Several said they cancelled all orders for the slow-moving food. Today, most of the customers are buying the cabbages.

There is an adequate supply available to meet the present demand, grocers state.

Rude Remarks On City Bus Brings $15 Fine

Creating a public disturbance in a crowded city bus by insulting women and making noisy, derogatory comments about the cacial origin of other passengers cost Philip J. Thorne, 612A Armour Road a fine of $15 and costs of $2.50 when he pleaded guilty to the charge in magistrate's court this morning.

PC Vern O'Donahue outlined the actions of the accused on an Ashburnham bus on Jan. 26. The bus had been crowded with men and women, he said.

Thorne, stated the witness, was objectionable in criticizing the abilities, character and nationalities of some of the passengers. He had been shouting these insults, the witness said.

The officer mentioned in particular "abusive language" used to a young Italian man and woman, which included the remark:

"You Wops should go back where you belong."

He had also made insulting comments to several of the women as they left the bus, O'Donahue said.

The accused told the magistrate that "I don't remember any of it at all."

"Were you drunk?" asked Magistrate Philp.

"Yes, I had been drinking."

31 Topnotch Skiers Ready For Jumps and Race; Zone Meet Here Saturday

Thirty-one skiers, representing seven ski clubs in Ontario, have already entered the cross-country and jumping events to be held here Saturday. These events are part of the Southern Ontario Zone Ski Meet being held under the auspices of the Peterborough Ski Club. The cross country event will start at 9.30 Saturday morning at Jackson Park, and the jump events are scheduled for two o'clock Saturday afternoon at Nassau. On Sunday slalom and downhill events will be run off at Co.lingwood.

Officials of the Peterboorugh Ski Club report snow conditions are ideal with upwards of three feet of snow in open country. The jump at Nassau has been given a thorough overhauling and is in first-class condition. This is the only Class "A" jump in Southern Ontario.

Most interest is focussed on the jumping events, at which Harale Bakke, present Ontario jumping champion, will defend his title. Bakke is a student at University of Toronto, and a member of the University Ski Club. The one likely to press him for top honors is another Norwegian, Arn Bjerkseth, Ajax, also a student at the University of Toronto. Kristen Olsen, a newcomer to the Peterborough Ski Club from the Maritimes, is a dark horse, but has a long list of victories to his credit and he may upset the predictions of local prophets.

Six From Local Club

In the cross-country event anything can happen. Usually this race is over an 18 kilometre course, but this year the race has been shortened with official approval. The reason for such action is to permit the runners to also compete in the jumps on the same day.

Peterborough Ski Club is banking its hopes on six competitors, veteran Otto Laderach heads the list and will probably compete in both events. Then there is Kristen Olsen, who specializes in jumping as well as cross country. The others are "Spike" Matthews, Bob Currie, "Duke" Logan and Ab White.

Here are the entries.—Midland Ski Club: P. Pettersen, O. Ball, D. Toole. Oshawa Ski Club: Jim Harris, Bud Pipher, Bunt Marsh. Huntsville Ski Club: Denis Hutcheson, Lorne Rayfield, Jack Woodcock, Alf Hansan, Johnny Krapek, Harold Middleton. Northumberland Forest Ski Club: Squadron Leader Tache. University of Toronto Ski Club: Harale Bakke, Arn Bjerkseth, Hugh Popham. Toronto Ski Club: Russell Smith, Hugh Gallie, Gordon Peterson, George Collett, Bernard Clarke, Alf. Brenner, John Robinson, John McCamus, Peter Kingsmill.

Arrangements have been completed by Peterborough Ski Club to serve hot drinks to competitors in the cross country event in the Kiwanis building in Jackson Park, where officials will also use as a headquarers. At Nassau field, excellent co-operation by the city and county officials has solved the snowplowing problem. The field was well-plowed on Wednesday and will be plowed agai ntoday. Thus only a heavy fall of snow can cause embarrassment, and should this happen, it is believed emergency plowing can be done in time to have a road and parking space clear for cars.

Arrangements have also been made to sell tickets to those who prefer to park on the east bank of the Otonabee river along River Road, and officials are hoping for liberal public support in this venture because they are under heavy expense in financing the meet.

Following are the cross country race officials:—

In charge, Hal Barker; Starter, Cliff Boate; Timer, Jim Craig; Control Point, Myles Allison and Ken Nuttall; Course Setter, Don Dennison; Allocating Numbers and Taking Entries, Jack Sackville, Rod Reid. Refreshments, Mark Barker, Vi Boate.

Finds Public Apathetic Toward Health Services

This fourth annual NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK can only be successful if it helps arouse the average Canadian citizen from his apathetic acceptance of the health services of his municipality, the Canadian Public Health Association says.

The CPHA is the national organization of professional public health workers. Here is the statement:

National Health Week focuses public attention upon the fact that the health of Canadians is a matter of vital importance as well as individual responsibility. National Health Week will be successful if it helps arouse the average Canadian citizen from his apathetic acceptance of the health services of his municipality. These services will be as good or as bad as the amount of interest that is evinced by the people of the community. It is hoped that all Canadians will take this opportunity to become better acquainted with, and lend their active support to the work of their local health department.

Canadian comunities in ever-increasing numbers are being provided with health services designed to help them maintain a high standard of health. As rapidly as properly trained physicians, nurses and other health workers become available, more and more communities are demanding the formation of full-time health departments.

In rural and other more densely populated areas where these services now exist in the form of "Health Units" or "Health Districts," young Canadians are receiving carefully planned guidance in health matters from infancy on through their school career. Mothers are offered prenatal and post-natal guidance and the whole community benefits from the work of the trained health workers who direct their efforts at whatever the community health problems may be.

Unfortunately, the serious shortage of public health nurses which is part of the shortage of all types of professional nurses, is delaying formation of new health units and curtailing activities of some existing districts. This problem, as well as others that affect the professional health worker and the Canadian people, is being studied as part of the activities of the Canadian Public Health Association through the voluntary efforts of its members.

Elderly Widows Still Profit From Kindly Act Of Senator, 65 Years Ago

By W. M. CLIPSTONE

A kindly act put into practice more than 65 years ago, is still bearing fruit in the heart of Peterborough, and through it, four elderly ladies are enjoying the evening of their years in quiet and harmony.

The late Senator George A. Cox, the president and general manager of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, had a soft spot in his heart for elderly widows, who having reached the autumn of the years, found the world less kindly than in the hey-day of their youth. On the third floor above the premises occupied in those days by the Toronto Savings and Loan Company were several large rooms that the Senator decided should be set aside as dwellings for such ladies in need of a home.

With the passing of the Senator in 1914, this program was continued as the policy of the Company, and to this present day after more than 65 years, the third floor of the building now occupied by the Grey & Bruce Trust Building has been a haven of refuge.

The baby of the quartette, Mrs. Ethel Christmas, is in her 71st year, while an 84th birthday will soon be celebrated by Mrs. J. J. Read, the eldest of the party.

Each member of "The Lady's Retreat," as they like to call their home, has her own room, and the spotless state of each room, with its orderly array of ornaments, treasures of a long past buried yesterday; photographs on the walls and sideboards, mute reminders of a day long dead, dainty doilies, hand crocheted in some hour of ease, and spotless tablecloths, are all silent testimonies of the pride that each has for her own little kingdom.

Each one supplies her own furniture, and provide for her heat and light, . . . but let us pay a visit to this interesting third floor, and spend an hour with the members of "The Lady's Retreat." Knocking on the door of the first room, one is greeted with a kindly "Come in." It does not need much imagination to note that the early days of the owner of this voice were spent in London. We find the baby of the quartette, Mrs. Ethel Christmas, sitting in an arm chair by the window, busy knitting a pair of socks. The seventy years sit lightly upon her shoulders. Not a single grey hair, and a smile that makes one feel at home immediately, is proof that peace and quiet, with a state of contentment are hourly companions in this room.

Mrs. Christmas was born in Kensington, London, in 1878. She was educated at Hampstead and married in 1899. In the year 1907 she went to Karachi, India, with her husband and two young children Fred 2 years old and Winifred 11 months of age. Her husband went to India as an engineer, and they returned to England in January, 1914. In May of that year Mr. and Mrs. Christmas and their children came to Peterborough, and Mrs. Christmas has lived here ever since. In 1933 her husband died and was buried in Little Lake Cemetery.

African violets arranged in orderly rows on the window sill lend a pleasant touch of spring to the room. A colored picture of Queen Victoria, with her son who later was King Edward VII, reveals the pride of being British in this Londoner, now living quietly in a land far from her native heath. A sampler, carefully embroidered many years ago, proclaims His love, and neatly arranged on the mahogany dresser are photographs of loved ones. China ornaments, and trinkets that undoubtedly had their origin in England, are again mute reminders of days that are gone.

An English Touch.

Another English touch found, is the ever-ready kettle simmering on the stove, for a welcome cup of tea is a ritual in this cosy room. Clean linen on the bed, spotless pillow cases, a hand-made quilt made up of hundreds of tiny squares; neatly embroidered table and dresser covers, all reveal the woman's touch. Each evening the four sit around the warm stove and reminisce over a cup of tea.

Mrs. Christmas, although the youngest of the quartette has lived in the Retreat longer than any of them. She has enjoyed the quiet of this room for more than 14 years, and when interviewed was loud in her gratitude for the benefits she is now enjoying. "We only pay a 'pepper-corn' rent and there is not a night passes but what I thank God for His kindness to me, and for the comfort of this cosy room," she said. "We have so very much to be thankful for, and the four of us consider ourselves most fortunate in being able to live our lives here in peace and quiet."

Another member of the "Retreat" comes from England. Mrs. M. E. Chambers, 74, was born in Manchester. She came to Peterborough with her first husband (Mr. W. Read) in 1911. During the First World War, she was Matron of the Children's Shelter. Her husband died in 1912. In 1920 she went to Alberta and married her second husband.

Mrs. Chambers has two sons living, William lives in Oregon, and Arthur in New York state. "I think this a wonderful place and I am so very grateful for the chance of getting this room, for the small rent that we are asked to pay allows my old age pension to go much further," she said. In this room again there are many reminders of the land of her birth. Toby jugs, English pottery, pictures of Windsor Castle, all dear to the heart of one now left with little more than happy memories, and a deep gratitude for benefits a kindly Senator's wish has granted her.

Born at Centreville.

Mrs. Margaret Campbell is another of the four who enoys her nightly cup of tea around the stove. Mrs. Campbell is 83, and was born in Centreville, near Peterborough. She was Miss M. Batteer before her marriage and was educated at Donaldson School. She has lived in Peterborough 40 years, and she too feels that she is most fortunate to spend her remaining years in such quiet and comfort. This is her seventh year in the "Retreat" and having no family she finds happiness in the companionship of her three fellow retreaters. Her room would please the most exacting sergeant-major for neatness. Spotless linen on the table, the dresser, and sideboard, neatly laundered and folded towels show the meticulous care with which Mrs. Campbell plans her room. Not a speck of dust, not an ornament out of place. Pots, pans, dishes, and packets of soap stand in orderly array on shelves.

The last of the quartette we shall visit is Mrs. J. J. Read. She will soon celebrate her 84th birthday, and is another who feels that life has been kind. Born in North Monaghan, she moved to Nassau when three years of age. As Miss Campbell she was educated at Douro. Mrs. Read was happy to recall her schooldays, and said that Miss Nicholls who died in 1947 at the age of 103 taught her at that school. She was married at the Methodist parsonage of George Street Church, Peterborough. One of her sons served through the First World War, her two sons being Walter R. Read (Peterborough) and Reuben Read (Lindsay). She has been in the Retreat for four years but unfortunately has not left it since August, 1946, when she fell and broke her hip. "We are all very happy here," she said, "and consider ourselves so very fortunate in having such rooms. There is nothing that we want for, we have our radios, nice coal stoves to warm our rooms, in fact in this little 'Lady's Retreat' we are perhaps the most contented quartette in the province.

Besides having their own rooms, there is a large attic fitted with clothes lines, where the weekly wash can dry and air. A large and well equipped community kitchen, with gas stove, sinks, large cupboards and shelves is where this happy four can cook and bake, and where those good old fashioned recipes "that mother used" find favor with the quartette.

Another room is set aside for the storing of their coal supplies. Large wooden bins have been supplied and each one has her own particular bin, for wood, coke or coal.

Looking out from their windows on to the busy street below, the four members of this little retreat find a certain contentment in the fact that they have now reached that time in life when participation in the mad scramble many regard as important in their existence, as something to be spared suffering. Theirs is a tranquil existence. They can sit and chat over their cup of tea. When alone in the quiet of their room they can enjoy an hour or two of quiet retrospect, and from each one is offered a prayer of thankfulness to the kindly Senator, whose benevolence provided so many ladies with a haven of rest.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott

A new lease on life...

At one time the Prong-horned Antelope ranged from Alberta to Mexico in numbers comparable with those of the Bison. But over-hunting threatened the survival of the "Prong Horns" until vast sanctuaries were established for their protection in Alberta and Manitoba. In these refuges their numbers increased and they have since spread into Saskatchewan—a tribute to far-sighted conservation authorities, showing how effective conservational measures can be in preserving a species from extinction. To promote public understanding of the need for conservation, interesting authoritative literature and full-colour reprints of our wildlife pictures, without advertising, are available free by writing to The Carling Conservation Club, Waterloo, Ontario.

On the other hand, protection was not established in time to save the Cuban Tricolour Macaw from fading into oblivion. It was hunted mainly for food and became extinct around 1864.

Study Composer's Life

George St. YPU meeting this week was under leadership of Miss Rita Harrison who read a short story illustrating her theme, "Go, and the Lord be with you." Marion Pound read the scripture lesson and Betty Mather led in prayer. A poem entitled "Be the Best of Whatever You Are" was read by Frances McGee. Taking as her subject "The life of Felix Mendelssohn", Miss Harrison gave interesting facts about the famed musician. Throughout her talk, recordings of some of his compositions were played and she explained how he came to compose them. Included were "Midsummer Night's Dream" and the "Wedding March".

Doug Burns presided for the business period in absence of the president. It was decided that each group would take turns assisting the refreshment committee at social gatherings. Rita Harrison's group was chosen to help after the sleigh riding party on Monday evening, February 9. Those going on the ride are requested to be at the church before eight o'clock.

Describes Life In New Zealand

Members of '38 Club enjoyed a talk by Miss Jean Campbell, World Fellowship secretary for National YWCA, at their meeting Wednesday evening in the Y. Describing her impression of New Zealand after eight years there in Y work which kept her travelling around the country, Miss Campbell said she found the mild climate was not easy to live in. The only heat is from the sun so that it is quite warm outside, but when one goes into the houses they have to put on extra clothes.

She was particularly impressed with the serious way in which the people consider their government. Being somewhat isolated, they seem to feel more responsible than the other Dominions. The country works under the social security plan in which wealth is fairly evenly distributed and there are no poor and no rich people.

Lengthy business discussions were held with president, Miss Ailwen Jones presiding. Plans were made for a St. Patrick's bridge to be held Tuesday, March 16, at the YWCA. Highlight of the evening will be a "glance" at the fashion designers' interpretation of the "new look" for this spring. Tickets for the event will be available from any member or at the YW office.

Refreshments were served at the closes by Misses Aileen Patton and Hazel Wilson.

Next meeting will be Monday, February 23, at the YWCA.

THE IRISH PIPE UP ELECTION ENTHUSIASM—The emerald girls pipe band parades through a Dublin street, in support of the Fine Gael part in the February 4th general elections in Eire. It was mostly hotly contested general election since end of Civil War days in 1916.

Dr. Kelly Urges Good Homes To Defeat Mental Illness

"Health is three-fold: physical, social and mental" Dr. R. A. Kelly Medical Officer of Health, told a group of more than 80 gym girls in the YWCA Thursday evening. For physical good health, all the body organs must be in order. For social health a proper food diet must be followed, there must be adequate clothing and housing provided, and all wants and needs satisfied. In short, social health means "security."

Mental health, however, is the serious problem of today. The speaker said that the number of persons being confined to mental hospitals is increasing out of all proportion to the population. Everyone has certain quirks and maladjustments which are not healthy, but with proper outlook and treatment they need not become alarming. "Mental health starts in the home," said Dr. Kelly. "If a child has a good home and all that means he feels assured and confident, and is not likely to become mentally ill."

Dr. Kelly defines a "good home" as a place where everyone feels "at home." There a child finds security and stability. He knows he is wanted and he is treated as an individual with his likes and dislikes respected—up to a point. He warned that many mothers are over-ambitious for their children and push them into too deep water, sometimes insisting that they follow a profession for which they are entirely unsuited.

"If we are in good mental health we can meet our problems and solve them ourselves" Dr. Kelly told the girls. "Certain maladjustments which we have affect our health and if allowed to continue can drive us into a little dream world of our own. Seventy-five per cent of all physical disorders are mental, and probably brought about in an effort to avoid doing a task which we dislike." As a remedy he advised facing the facts squarely and in most cases they turn out to be only half as difficult as had been imagined. "Dodging only increases the problem and takes you again into the dream world."

Summing up, Dr. Kelly said "We can make good or bad health in ourselves." Healthy people often take health for granted and never evaluate it until it is lost. To maintain a state of complete well-being, the rules being emphasized during health week should be followed throughout the year.

Miss C. Littlefield, physical instructor, thanked the speaker for his address. Moving pictures showing the rythmic exercises which are practised to develop grace and poise for gym-dance routines were most interesting to the group who represented gym and ballet classes. A health-giving work-out on the gym floor preceded this program.

Light refreshments were served by girls of the Y Auxiliary.

Choir Members Guests of WA

In appreciation of faithful service to St. James' United Church, choir members were tendered a banquet by the executive of the Women's Association Wednesday evening.

Guests were received by the president, Mrs. G. Harris, and vice presidents Mrs. M. Drysdale and Mrs. R. Ritchie. Table decorations were artistically arranged in keeping with the Valentine season. Guests at the head table included Rev. and Mrs. A. M. Partridge, Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Craik, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Dolman, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Prest, and Mrs. J. Monks.

A lively sing song was enjoyed led by Mrs. H. F. Doig with Ashton Fife at the piano. The toast to the church was proposed by Miss M. Bowers and responded to by Rev. F. W. Craik. The toast to the choir was given by Mr. Arnold Prest and the response given by Mr. W. Naish. A duet was sung by Mrs. N. Turner and Mrs. E. Johnston.

Mr. E. C. Dolman and Mr. N Turner expressed appreciation of the fine gesture on the part of the WA and paid special tribute to the president for her efforts.

Mrs. C. Olaveson introduced the guest speaker, Rev. A. M. Partridge, who opened his brief address in humorous vein, but concluded by telling choir members it was their privilege by their ministry of music, to serve as an uplift and lighten the burdens of life.

A recreational period conducted by Mrs. G. Samson brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

Branch Notes

District Council of the AYPA held a social evening Wednesday in St. John's Church Parish Hall. Sixty-five members were present from groups at Lakefield, Emily, Bethany and St. Luke's, St. George's, All Saints' and St. John's churches. Rev. W. J. Gilling of St. Luke's opened the meeting with prayer. Welcome was extended to all by council president, Walter Dyer. He urged the branches to enlarge their membership and to help in forming new groups wherever possible. A social evening of games and dancing was in charge of Mary Curtis and Joyce Wyatt of St. Luke's Church and John Gerow of St. John's.

THE STARS SAY

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, February 7

CONTINUED dangers from hidden sources, arresting the most concentrated marshalling of forces in an effort to launch a project of supreme importance are forecast. While built upon practical lines and techniques and incited by sound ideas or brilliant insight into exceptional opportunities for expansion and enhanced production, and error of judgment, over - shooting the mark, or a pernicious entanglement, may bring on a critical situation or a sudden reversal of prospects. An alert attitude with preparedness for crafty, subtle, or intriguing affiliations might avert devastation. Safeguard funds, reputation, emotions; in all ventures and in personal ties as well.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a period of exceptional pressure, with all the energies and faculties concentrated on the development and launching of very ingenious and bright, as well as sound, ideas. Enterprise, initiative and strenuous effort seem to progress on broad and far-reaching scope, when a stroke of prodigality, over indulgence, and error of judgment or misplaced confidence, might precipitate major disaster, with reactions on the domestic, social or emotional life. The determined effort to be reasonable, thrifty, wary and alert might avert such denouement.

A child born on this day is endowed with much versatility, talent, skill and constructive ability, but may fall victim to its own enthusiasm, prodigality, trustfulness or good nature.

He demonstrated for the photographer that he wasn't kidding, when he remained in St. Mary's Current, of the St. Lawrence river, in Montreal, for 20 minutes recently. Barbeau only learned to swim two years ago under Malcolm Ross, instructor of the Central YMCA. In below-zero temperatures last Sunday he swam a half-mile in the Lake of Two Mountains, Hudson, Que.

Turnip's Most Popular Place Remains Beside Meat Course

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Feb. 6 — (CP). — Rutabaga — turnip, to you — is just another lowly vegetable that has climbed the social ladder and changed its name.

But while it now graces the canape tray, home economists say that turnip's most popular place still remains alongside the meat course at dinner.

Over-cooking may often be the cause of strongly-flavored turnip. Just as with other vegetables, turnips should be cooked from 25 to 30 minutes in a small amount of water in a covered kettle until just tender-crisp.

If shaved thinly, or coarsely grated, with little boiling water added, turnips will cook to perfection in seven minutes.

Baked turnips Slice raw turnips and place in layers in a greased casserole. Sprinkle each layer with salt, pepper and a little nutmeg. Add milk to half fill the dish. Top with crumbs and dot with fat, or use crumbs and grated cheese. Bake in a moderately hot oven—375 degrees Fahrenheit — until tender (about one hour).

Baked turnips: Slice raw turnips 1½ inches thick and cut into oblongs two inches by three inches. Scoop out centres leaving shells one-quarter inch thick. Cook until tender in boiling, salted water. Serve filled with mixed, creamed vegetables.

✧ ✧ ✧

The wise cook will follow an oven temperature in a recipe right to the last degree. And in addition she also will know that good baking depend a lot on the way the pans are arranged in the oven.

Home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, say that the size and shape of a baking pan also makes a difference in cooking. A cookie sheet should not be so large as to interfere with good circulation of heat. And cookies baked in a pan with deep sides may brown too much on the bottom, and not at all on top.

Housewives should guard against over-crowded ovens. Should baking pans touch each other, or the side of the oven, uneven circulation of heat will cause uneven baking.

A loaf cake should be placed on the rack in the oven so that it is as near the exact centre of the oven as possible. Two layer cakes should be placed on the shelf so that they do not touch each other or the sides of the oven.

Use of correct oven temperature for various types of food is imperative if the cooked food is to be at its best.

The recognized oven temperatures 300 degrees Fahrenheit — slow oven; 325—moderately slow; 350—moderate; 375—moderately hot; 400—hot; 425—very hot.

Cereals, meringues, baked custards and soup will cook slowly in the heat remaining in an oven that has been turned off.

Melba toast, celery leaves, or parsley may be dried as the temperature decreases, thus utilizing all the heat.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

UNFAITHFUL HUSBAND
Wife Acts Courageously And Wisely By Refusal To Break Up Home

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I married a very handsome and fascinating man with whom I was desperately in love, but he was one of the men who are born philanderers and who cannot be faithful to any woman. But I did not try to divorce him. After grief and heartbreak beyond description I decided to live solely for my dear children. I felt it was not fair to punish them for their father's sins, as I would have done if I had broken up our home because I could not possibly support them and give them the advantages that their father did.

Dorothy Dix

So I have maintained the home in which the children are well provided for and happy. We have a divided home so far as my husband and I are concerned, but I keep it comfortable and well-ordered and, as my husband and I are gentleman and lady, there is no brawling, fault-finding, reproaches. Everything is peaceful and pleasant, at least outwardly.

This has not been easy for me, but I would not have been happy had we separated and wrecked the children's home and deprived them of the pleasures and luxuries their father has been able to give them. This is the way I solved the wandering husband problem. What do you think of my plan? E. B. F.

✧ ✧ ✧

Wife Shows Wisdom, Strength

ANSWER: I think you have been a very courageous and wise woman, and that it is a pity that many other wives, faced with the same situation that you have, have no had the intelligence and the strength to follow your example. For when a wife who loves her husband finds out that he is an unstable playboy, who will never be true to her or any other woman, her love idyl is ended.

But she also knows that the born philandered really doesn't want to tie himself down to any other woman by marrying her. He gets his little kick out of affairs, and then he wants to kiss and ride away to some other charmer. Furthermore, such men are very often amiable, kindly, generous and pleasant companions. And their children almost invariably adore them, because Dad is such a good sport and understands youth so well.

So the woman whose husband has a wandering foot chooses the better part when she keeps her home together and makes it a pleasant, cheerful place in which her children can grow up. In this way, she assures her boys and girls advantages of education, social prestige and a start in life that she could not have given them herself.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a young wife with two little girls. They keep me pretty busy all day, but when my husband comes home from work I feel that he should give me a little companionship. Yet I cannot inveigle him into any conversation whatever. He simply says "yes" or "no" or merely grunts when I speak to him. Can you tell me what makes some husbands so dumb at home? LONELY.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: My dear lady, you do not suffer alone. There are tens of thousands of other women whose husbands seem to be automatically bereft of the power of speech as they cross their own thresholds, and who spend their evenings giving a lifelike and convincing imitation of a store dummy with an evening paper in its hand.

It is only husbands who have the silence-complex, and perhaps they don't realize what a bitter disappointment they are to their wives, for the chief thing a woman marries for is companionship. The woman who has little children to take care of has her hands full, but her mind is empty. Her day is dull, and the least her husband can do when he comes home at night is to try to be as interesting as he was in the days of courtship.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I have worked hard all of our lives and spent practically all we could rake and scrape on giving our only son an education. Now he is working and making a fine salary and he refuses to give us a cent. Won't even pay board. What do you think we should do?
DISAPPOINTED FATHER AND MOTHER.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The only thing to do is to tell your ungrateful son that he must either pay board or leave home. That is only fair to you and will be his salvation.

Evidently you never inculcated the spirit of unselfishness and consideration for others in your boy. You gave him the best of everything. You have made the sacrifices and now you are reaping the harvest of the tares that you sowed.

Soviet Pressure Keeps Turkey On War Footing

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. (AP)—The State Department reported tonight that "persistent" Russian pressure on Turkey may require that Middle Eastern country to maintain its armed forces on a virtual wartime footing indefinitely.

For general public information, the department published a report on the state of the $100,000,000 United States Aid program. While this did not specifically state that United States assistance to Turkey should be exended for another year, it made clear that in the State Department's opinion the situation which caused the assistance to be given in the first place almost certainly will continue.

As the report was published, Maj.-Gen. Horace McBride was called back here for consultations. From McBride, chief of the ground forces division of the aid mission in Turkey, State Secretary Marshall expects to get facts on the state of Turkish defences and the possible need of new Turkish aid.

The current program is supposed to be wound up by June 30.

The State Department report said "persistent pressure" is coming from Russia in two years—one for joint Soviet-Turkish control and defence of the Dardaneses and the other for annexation of "large areas" in Eastern Turkey, including the districts of Kars and Ardahan.

"This demand by the Soviets, which, if accompanied by a 'border incident', could easily lead to armed conflict, is adamantly opposed by the Turks," the report said.

It added that because of "continuous military and political pressure" Turkey, for the last eight years, has found it necessary to maintain her army on a wartime or semi-wartime footing.

The State Department said that Russia is entering pressure on Turkey "through diplomatic channels, press and radio vilification, and public utterances of Soviet officials."

Parents Get $4,250 For Shooting Of Son

TORONTO, Feb. 6 — (CP). — A Supreme Court jury yesterday awarded Mr. and Mrs. Allan S. Robertson $4,250 damages against Toronto police constable George Victor Joyce who shot their son, Donald, 14, July 30, 1946. The boy died on the way to hospital. The jury considered for three hours the suit for $25,000 and costs before arriving at a verdict.

Need 80,000 Teachers

STRATFORD, Feb. 6 (CP). — Dr. W. P. Percival, National President of the Canadian Home and School Association, last night told the Rotary Club that Canada should be "scoured for the 80,000 most potentially competent teachers that are needed to fill the schools of the Dominion." He added: "If this number were found and employed, they would revolutionize the children, even as the best do now...."

"OPERATION SNOWDROP"—The greatest over-snow mass jump in U.S. history was staged in sub-zero weather by 600 members of the 505th airborne combat team at Pine Camp, N.Y., near the Canadian border. Each man was weighted down with 150 pounds of combat equipment. The jump marked the final phase of a three-month experimental army program which was begun for preparedness when waging war in rigorous climates. Some of the 18 army C-82 "flying boxcars" may be seen in top photo as they disgorge their human cargo. Certainly looking alert below is a member of the 505th airborne combat team as he prepares to leave one of the 18 C-82 ' Flying Boxcars."

28 Fishermen and Puppy Escape From Sinking Ship

HALIFAX, Feb. 6 — (CP). — The Three Blind Sisters, a reef off Halifax, tore the bottom out of the schooner Ethel M. Petite early today, but her 28-man crew of hardy Newfoundland fishermen escaped without injury in dories.

Salvage crews standing by the shipwreck three miles from Chebucto Head, near the harbor mouth, later watched the Halifax-owned Petite disintegrate and disappear beneath the pounding waves, but were unable to get close enough to save her or her 100,000 pounds of fish from the banks.

The crew, most of whom were asleep when the 130-foot vessel struck at 3 a.m. abandoned ship in less than 20 minutes. Capt. Archie Evans of English Harbor, Nfld., was the last to leave, carrying a bewildered puppy.

It was all in a day's work for Leo Bartin of Harbor Breton, torpedoed three times during the First Great War and a prisoner for a time on a German submarine, who managed to "salvage a couple of aprons" before leaping into a dory.

They took to the boats in inky blackness in temperatures so cold that a vapor rose from the sea, and within 3½ hours all were safe ashore.

Sixteen of the shivering Newfoundlanders made their way to Ketch Harbor in four dories, while another ice-covered craft, carrying the skipper and the mascot Mickie, were picked up by a harbor pilot boat.

Red-haired, 18-year-old Charles Abbott, described as "the baby of the crew," had been asleep aft when he heard "somebody hollering."

"I forgot my suitcase," he added, "but it wasn't so bad. I'm not through with the sea yet."

MacDonald Arrives

OTTAWA, Feb. 6 — (CP) — Malcolm MacDonald, Governor-General of Malaya and former British High Commissioner to Canada, arrived in Ottawa last night on a two-month vacation in Canada and said he and his wife probably would visit various Canadian provinces before he returned to his Malaya post. However, he had worked out no itinerary as yet.

Detroit Plans To Oppose Gas Increase

DETROIT, Feb. 6 — (CP) — With Detroit's gas shortage continuing acute, the city joined the Michigan Consolidated Gas Company to-day to oppose vigarously a move by the Union Gas Company of Canada to obtain more natural gas from the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company.

Both the city and the Detroit Gas Company contend that if the Federal Power Commission in Washington grants the recent petition of the Canadian company for a steady flow, the supply of natural gas to this area from Panhandle would be seriously threatened in the future.

Panhandle of Texas is the major supplier of Michigan Consolidated, delivering 125,000,000 cubic feet a day under a firm contract.

The Canadian company, which supplies Western Ontario, says that if the petition is denied it will be "unable to survive and provide adequate service as a public utility."

Last week Col. Thomas Weir, president of Union Gas Company, said the long-standing petition to the FPC was being reopened with hopes that a part of the contract between his company and Panhandle could be fulfilled.

He pointed out that the contract called for 3,500,000,000 cubic feet of gas but that only 35,000,000 cubic feet had been delivered.

As a result of the gas shortage to Northern States some 200,000 workers remained idle in Detroit's auto industry to-day and it remained indefinite when they would return to work.

SUICIDES ERE TRIAL — Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz, who surrendered to the Canadian army in Holland, May, 1945, committed suicide in Nuremberg prison shortly before he was to go on trial for war crimes. He eluded his guards, leaped 30 feet from the top tier of cells to the tiled floor of the prison rotunda. Taken to hospital, he died shortly after.

Prime Minister King Attacks Opposition Methods In House

OTTAWA, Feb. 6—(CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said last night in the Commons that he wished there was only one Opposition party instead of three, each with a different view. He made the statement at the adjournment hour in continuation of a discussion started at the House opening over the order of business.

Mr. King said that in view of an apparent misunderstanding he was ready to follow any order today suggested by the Opposition.

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, said that in view of the heat shown by Mr. King when procedure was discussed earlier he was not going to make a suggestion.

"Let's all have a holiday," interjected an Opposition member.

Mr. Bracken said that whatever order of business the Government announced his party would follow.

Mr. King said he believed he could say he had done his best to have the work done with as much co-operation as possible. However, it took two to co-operate.

When he gave precedence to a matter at the request of the Opposition and then was accused of violating an agreement, it was a little difficult to know how to proceed.

"It is my view that we ought to have one Opposition and one Government," he said, "instead of three Opposition groups each with its own view on different things that come up."

So that he could not be accused of violating an undertaking the debate on the address in reply to the Throne speech would be resumed today and he hoped that Monday members would return to debate on a resolution establishing a prices committee.

Protect Rights

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said he presumed the lecture from Mr. King resulted from the point of order he had raised earlier in the day. Mr. Low said in raising the point he had merely wanted to protect the rights of members. No group in the House had given more co-operation to the government than the Social Credit party. If Mr. King had been as considerate last night in arranging the day's business the whole trouble would not have arisen.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) said his party was prepared to continue the prices debate today.

Mr. Bracken said his party was prepared to go on with the Throne speech debate Friday.

Mr. King then said the Throne speech debate would be the order of business.

Last Request

In the earlier debate, Mr. King said if Progressive Conservative members raised objections as to the order of business, after a matter had been given precedence at their request, then "they have made such a request for the last time so far as I am concerned."

Tapping his desk with his finger tips to emphasize his point, Mr. King made the blunt statement after Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) supported Mr. Low in claiming that the rules of the House were not being followed as far as the order of business was concerned.

Mr. King said it was announced Wednesday that the prices committee debate would be continued Thursday and no objection had been taken. He had obtained consent from Opposition party leaders for continuation of the prices debate Wednesday and he had assumed the leaders wanted to give it precedence until finished.

Taft Steers Views Against Seaway Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP).—Senator Robert Taft (Rep.-Ohio) yesterday came out against the St. Lawrence seaway project.

Taft, chairman of the Senate Republican policy committee, told the Senate he had made his decision 'after full consideration of the issues involved."

Arrayed against Taft on the issue is Senator Arthur Vandenburg (Rep.-Mich.), the Senate's presiding officer. Thus the Republican leadership divided on the proposal.

The Senate will vote on the seaway Feb. 27. Debate on the proposal will continue next week.

Taft termed the power development "important and desirable," but said the navigation features were of "questionable economic value at this time."

Heads Jersey Club

TORONTO, Feb. 6 — (CP) — Harry Collins of Woodstock yesterday was elected president of the Ontario Jersey Club at its annual meeting here. Vice-presidents are Waldo Arbuthnot of Perth, Ron MacFie of Appin, and Harold Butcher of Toronto.

Senators Condemn Chamber As Draughty

OTTAWA, Feb. 6 — (CP). — The Senate got a load off its chest yesterday with condemnations of its lush, red-carpeted chamber as draughty, even breezy, and ill-lighted.

Senator Norman Paterson (L—Ontario) found instant approval of his suggestion that the methods of air conditioning, ventilation and heating be studied by the committee on public buildings. Draughts, he said, were definitely present.

Senator W. D. Euler (L—Ontario) chipped in with the statement that a number of the Senators' offices also were chilly.

Senator R. B. Horner (PC—Saskatchewan) can the suggestion that the rather ornate chandeliers which hang in the chamber are out of date and prone to glare. "If we sat properly," he said, "we'd all face the wall."

COVER MORE THAN ALL

PERFECT PLAY for some contracts entails even more than providing for all the variations of play by the defenders from the cards they actually do hold. It also must cover the possibilities of every kind of holding they might conceivably have. To do this with certain intricate deals requires a type of mind which can keep quite a number of different factors under clear-cut consideration at the same time. Not all ordinary mortals possess such a mental power plant.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

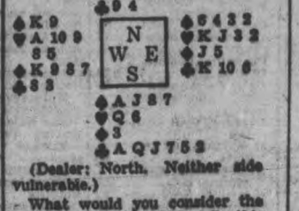
West led the heart J and put the declarer to work on a real task. He was equal to it, however, Morrie Ells, who has won most of the national championship events. He figured East for the heart K from the lead, so put in the A. He finessed the club Q and laid down the A. When West ruffed this, he saw his work was cut out for him. The spade 4 was returned, the 7 winning, and then came some cross-ruffing.



The club 3 was ruffed by the spade 10, West tossing a diamond, the heart 3 by the spade 9, then the club 5 by the spade Q. West shedding another diamond. The stage was set now for the really fancy play. The heart Q was covered by the K and ruffed by the spade J, whereupon the spade A and K were laid down.

The latter card squeezed East. If he threw the club K, the 7 would be good, followed by two high diamonds. So he discarded one of his three diamonds. Thereupon the diamond A, K and 4 took the final three tricks.

If you now figure out the other possible holdings of East and West at the ultimate crucial stage, you will see that this form of play protected the contract against anything they could have possessed.

Gets Seven Days For Drunking Driving

Gerald Healey, 174 Hunter St. East, was sentenced to seven days in jail, his car impounded and driver's and owner's permits suspended when he pleaded guilty to drunken driving before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in court this morning.

The charge was laid following an accident Thursday evening about six o'clock close to the home of the accused on Hunter street east. Extensive damage was caused a parked bread truck which was crashed into by the car of the accused. Healey's car was also badly smashed. PC's Keliele and Edward Niziol investigated.

Leonard Brown, Port Hope, was fined $12 and costs of $2.50 on a charge of being drunk in public.

Rising Cost Of Living Debate Adjourned Until Next Week

By GEORGE KITCHEN

OTTAWA, Feb. 6—(CP).—A mammoth Commons debate on the rising cost of living was adjourned last night until Monday after four days of continuous Opposition criticism of the Government's motives in seeking to establish a special 16-man committee to search out the causes of the country's high price structure.

The discussion was discontinued at the adjournment hour last night when Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced that the Throne Speech debate will be resumed at today's sitting.

Thirteen speakers, including a cabinet minister, took the floor yesterday as opposition members continued their demands that the government broaden the powers of the proposed committee by vesting it with authority to recommend a course of action which would deflate living costs.

Two Liberal Government members—David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina) and Lionel Bertrand (L—Terrebonne) — joined those who urged that the government re-impose price ceilings and subsidies, with Mr. Croll adding the suggestion that the excess profits tax, which disappeared Dec. 31, be revived as a curb to profiteering.

Investigate Companies

Justice Minister Ilsley reported that more than 50 companies, large and small, are under inquiry by the Combines Investigation Commission and suggested the committee, as a fact-finding body, would determine the truth of reports that trade combines and monopolies are operating.

Other speakers included Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton), Hon. Earl Rowe (PC—Rufferin-Simcoe), John Probe (CCF—Regina City), Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—MacLeod), A. M. Nicholson (CCF—Mackenzie), Claire Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South), Norman Jaques (SC—Wetaskiwin), and Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L—Portneuf).

Decision to adjourn the debate until next week resulted from a disagreement between Mr. King and opposition party leaders.

Mr. Ilsley said evidence produced by the committee might possibly lead to action being taken by the Combines Commission and the Prices Board and might even bring about legislative steps by the government on the prices question.

Asks Tax Cut

Mr. Bertrand called for tax reduction, urging cuts in income taxes, postal rates and indirect levies applying to soft drinks and tobacco and the removal of the eight-per-cent sales tax on necessities of life. At the same time, family allowances and old age pensions might be increased.

He said that while it was true the government needed money to make ends meet it was equally true that taxpayers needed money to meet their obligations and the higher cost of living.

Mr. Fleming said the rise of 21.3 points in the official cost-of-living index during the last year constituted nothing more than "sabotage" on the part of the government because the advance was linked with the administration's policies.

Queries Commitments

Mr. Howe said he wondered whether Canada had made commitments at the Geneva trade conference which would "fashion" the country's subsidy policy, and suggested it may be that the government was restricting the powers of the committee because it did not want the subsidy question discussed.

Mr. Probe said there was an "over-whelming" feeling among the people, who were finding that they had to use more and more of their dollars to get less and less of essential commodities, that the establishment of a committee would do nothing to reduce prices.

Mr. Probe said Mr. King in completing an illustrious political career would be "flaunting the will of the people" if he did not act now to solve the cost-of-living problem.

Mr. Ross contended the government was forcing the farmers to subsidize the rest of Canada and the United Kingdom throughout its system of fixed and depressed prices for farm products.

Plumbing Jobs Total 478 Still Unfinished

In his annual report as plumbing inspector, Arthur G. Metheral mentions that at Dec. 31 last there were 478 plumbing jobs unfinished in the city.

At the end of Dec. 1946 there were 255 unfinished jobs. During 1947 there were 565 permits issued, making a total of 820 plumbing jobs in Peterborough last year.

The total number completed during the year was 342, leaving 478 jobs still to be wound up. Mr. Metheral reported 1,726 inspections during the year, as follows: 658 water tests, 436 smoke tests, layouts 106, miscellaneous 526.

Mr. Metheral approved 307 new housing units plus 57 conversions, generally crowding a single house into a duplex, a total of 364 new dwelling for families to live in.

Of the 565 permits for plumbing jobs, 402 were for baths, 250 for laundry tubs, 37 for septic tanks, 10 drinking fountains, one foot bath and two dental cuspidors. There were 358 connections to the city's sewers of which 291 were from dwellings, one a duplex, two schools, two service stations, two factories; 44 dwellings where previously there were no conveniences; seven dwellings where cesspools were done away with.

1,080 Killed In Palestine Since Nov. 29

Trans-Jordan, Britain Sign New Treaty For Mutual Defence

JERUSALEM, Feb. 7 — (AP). —Nine new deaths in Arab-Jewish fighting in Palestine put the unofficial toll to-day at 1,080 since partition was voted by the United Nations November 29.

Latest to die were seven Jews and two Arabs who lost their lives in scattered areas yesterday. Much of the Palestine battling has occurred in small communities.

Police reported two men presumed to be Arabs shot and killed a 50-year-old Jewish messenger of Haifa's Ottoman Bank. They escaped with 2,400 in currency.

In Damascus, Syria, Jamal Effendi Huseini declared last night use of an international military force in Palestine would bring armies of all Arab countries into the battle.

In New York, Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, just returned from Palestine, said a British desire shared by "some members" of the United States government to refrain from antagonizing Arab states is stopping the Palestine partition plan.

Agree on Treaty.

LONDON, Feb. 7 — (AP). — Britain and Trans-Jordan have agreed tentatively on a new treaty of mutual aid setting up a Joint Defence Board, diplomatic sources said to-day. The agreement was reached after two weeks of negotiation.

In many respects the terms are said to follow the British-Iraqi pact which was repudiated at Baghdad. Diplomatic sources said that in addition to the Joint Defence Board other points include:

Limitation of Britain's right to maintain military bases in Trans-Jordan.

Establishment of a British air base which ultimately would be turned over to Trans-Jordan.

Maintenance of the Arab Legion, the Middle East's most effective desert fighting force, under Trans-Jordan control.

Agreement on the part of Britain to arm and train Trans-Jordan's military forces.

School Grants To Be Increased Drew Announces

TORONTO, Feb. 7 — (CP). — The executive of the Ontario Mayors and Reeves Association has decided to go to Ottawa, if an appointment can be arranged with the Federal Government, to press for renewal of conferences between representatives of the Dominion and of the provinces. The last conference was held in 1946.

The decision was reached yesterday at a meeting of the Association executive following a meeting with Premier Drew and his cabinet. Mr. Drew told the group that provincial grants to schools this year will amount to approximately $32,000,000, as compared with $28,775,000 last year.

Mr. Drew and his ministers retired before Mayor Gordon Rife of Guelph moved that a resolution be sent to Ottawa urging the Federal Government to reconvene the conference so that the problem of taxation, particularly as it affects social services, could be ironed out. He amended it to read that the executive should submit its petition in person after Reeve Ann Shipley of Kirkland Lake commented that a resolution was not worth the paper on which it was written.

Earlier Premier Drew told the Association executive that if the Federal government does not reconvene the conference, his government will establish a committee to consider the entire problem of taxation.

Can't Wait Longer

"If by the time our (Legislative) session opens March 3 we've had no indication that the Dominion government is prepared to meet us, I think we had better carry on some examination along this line without waiting any longer."

The proposed committee, representative of the province and of the municipal governments, would obtain evidence and the

See Imminent Showdown In UN Palestine Discussion

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 7—(AP).—Officials here believe that United Nations' discussions on Palestine will move into a more definite stage within a week. The situation gradually was reaching the point where the big and small powers alike would have to lay their cards on the table.

The five-power Palestine partition commission today plunges into the major task of completing a report to the Security Council on the need for armed force to carry out the division of the Holy Land into Jewish and Arab countries.

A rough 15-page draft already was in the hands of the commission. Some observers believed the report may reach the council early next week.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada, Council president, has promised prompt consideration. The big powers are expected to have to say something about the question of an innternational army but so far there has been only silence on this from every Council delegation.

Routine Report

The Commission already has submitted a routine monthly report to the Council. This was due to appear first on the Council's provisional agenda for a meeting Monday. The Council is expected merely to take note of the report, which calls for no action.

However, the possibility remained that Syria, the one Arab state on the Council, might seize the opportunity to restate opposition of the Arab world to partition.

The Partition Commission also planned to make up a report from one of its delegates, Senator Vicente Francisco of the Philippines, on his negotiations with Britain over organizing a militia in Palestne now.

The Security Council also hopes for a report Monday on direct negotiations between India and Pakistan over fighting in Kashmir. The talks were re-opened last night after breaking down twice.

Flyers Dump Austria 12-0

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 7 —(CP)— With goaltender Murray Dowey recording his fourth shutout in seven games, Canada's R.C.A.F. Flyers defeated Austria 12-0 today in a swirling snowstorm. A victory in the final day of the tournament tomorrow would give Canada the Olympic hockey championship.

The Canadians, with six victories and a tie in seven starts, moved into a first-place tie with Czechoslovakia, who defeated Switzerland 7-1 in a morning game.

If the Flyers win against Switzerland tomorrow and Czechoslovakia defeats the United States, as the form indicates, Czechoslovakia and Canada would be tied for first place with 15 points.

But under the rules of the International Ice Hockey Federation, the championship in event of a tie for first place goes to the team with the highest quotient of goals scored over goals against.

Canada, with 66 goals to her credit compared with only five scored against her, thus would get the palm over Czechoslovakia. Czechoslovakia's totals are 76 goals for 15 against.

The achievement of this charter is a blueprint for multilateral world trading has been the basic goal at the conference attended by 57 countries and Canada has been one of the principal countries advocating its acceptance.

42 Sq. Miles Seized Near Border

Indian Government Orders Maharajah To Leave Territory

NEW DELHI, Feb. 7.—(AP).—Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru told parliament today Pakistan armed police have seized 42 square miles of Indian territory in Assam.

India has protested by telegram, he said, and warned that "the India government may have to consider other action" if the police are not withdrawn.

Nehru said the invading force took over Jan. 26. Subsequently India sent her first warning note. Last Monday she sent another She had received no reply to either.

He declared that of "many border incidents between India and Pakistan," this was the firts major one.

Assam lies northwest of Burma and north of the eastern section of Moslem Pakistan, which is divided into two parts by Hinduled India.

Nomadic tribesmen from western Pakistan raided Jaisalner, India, the third week in January, killed 31 persons and burned 150 houses, Nehru said. The place is about 265 miles northeast of Karachi, Pakistan's capital.

"Our information showed they were neither Pakistan soldiers nor even residents of Pakistan's border areas," he said. "They were part of the Tribals who are roaming through western Pakistan and whom Pakistan can not easily control nor is capable of controlling."

Ban Maharajah

The Indian government has ordered the Maharajah of Alwar State (Rajputana) and his prime minister, Dr. N. B. Khare, to leave the territory of the state, it was learned today.

Alwar State is a stronghold of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh, the Hindu militant organization banned by the Indian government following the assassination of Mohandas K. Gandhi.

Try Sabotage Against U.N.

SEOUL, Korea, Feb. 7 — (AP) — Widespread sabotage of rail traffic and telegraph communication lines was reported today — incidents regarded by United States authorities as pressure to force the United Nations Commission to leave Korea.

Handbills circulated throughout South Korea called for a general strike. Two notices delivered to Lt.-Gen. John R. Hodge, United States occupation commander, warned of a three-day strike to force the Commission's departure.

The Commission voted yesterday to refer back to the U.N. little assembly the problem of conducting elections preliminary to Korean independence. Russia's refusal to permit entry into North Korea has thwarted the Commission.

The United States Army, which occupies South Korea, reported a 12-car train was derailed and that tracks and locomotives were damaged in five places. The army announced 22 persons had been arrested.

"All along," said Hodge, "I've been expecting physical efforts to sabotage the work of the Commission."

Gets 6-Month Term

William Allenby Green, 19, 304 George St., Toronto, who pleaded guilty before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, when charged Jan. 31 with breaking and entering and was sentenced in police court today. Green received a sentence of six months definite and six months indefinite at Guelph Reformatory.

Accused admitted breaking and entering the Blow Foundry, McDonnel St., Peterborough, Jan. 30 and stealing the weekly pay roll totalling $760.60. The payroll was later recovered.

RIDES PHANTOM PLANE —Stan Fraser, of Oshawa, pilot of the "phantom plane" which took off from Lake Simcoe yesterday without him and flew for 70 miles before crashing in a swamp. Fraser rode the plane's tail for 100 feet before it flipped him off. He also chased it in another aircraft.

Ghost Plane Crashes Near Grafton

OSHAWA, Feb. 7 — (CP). — Here's the "gen" on the ghost plane that flew 70 miles, as the crow flies, from Beaverton, Lake Simcoe, to crash-land at Grafton, minus a pilot.

As Pilot Stan Fraser of the Ontario County Flying Club says:

"It's all so strange I can hardly believe it happened."

Yesterday, he and Merlin Mackie flew from Oshawa to Beaverton in a two-seater Aeronca to bring back a Cub plane abandoned a week ago because it froze up during a fishing trip.

"We got the Cub's engine started," said Fraser, "and Mackie was in it. I swung the prop on my machine. Soon as I did, it shot ahead."

"I ducked. If I hadn't I would have been killed by the prop. Soon as I was clear of that I jumped up and grabbed the door handle. I tried to hang on but the handle ripped free. I dived for the wing but missed.

"Then I jucked under the strut and jumped on the tail. By this time the plane was really zooming along. I hung on, hoping to hold the tail down but the plane gave a little flip and threw me off.

Rides 100 Feet

"When I fell this time it was just getting airborne. The skis were perhaps five inches off the ice. It had carried me perhaps 100 feet; I'm not sure. But I know this: It made a beautiful take-off. The controls were set for a perfect landing, you see, and that's why.

"As it zoomed off the lake I ran to Mackie's plane and we took off after it. It circled slowly and we caught up to it. We wanted to see if we couldn't head it off somehow. But it went into a climb.

"We couldn't keep chasing it. There was't too much gas in the Cub, and after less than half an hour we had to come down. Last I saw of the Aeronca she was almost out of sight, circling southeast in the direction of Lindsay."

At Beaverton, Fraser and Mackie notified Provincial Constable Frank Linklater, himself an RCAF veteran who had been forced down over Germany. By telephone and by the provincial police radio system Linklater broad-

Re-elect Butler, Milburn Chief Officials Of Whole Milk Producers

Charge Attempt Being Made To Destroy Produce Organizations; Expect Amendment To Provide Protection

Peterborough Whole Milk Producers retained their original president and secretary in the elections at their annual meeting Friday night. Eddie Butler and Vivian S. Milburn, now of Toronto, have been the chief officers of the executive since the dairy farmers of this area who supply fluid milk to the consumers of Peterborough formed their organization some 20 years ago.

Among the directors elected were: Ray Wood, Harold Cathcart, Wellington Sutton, Everett Tully, Roy Mullen, Gordon McIntosh, Henry Sharpe, Fred McIndoo, Wallace Brealey, Stanley Wood, Harry Faulkner, Aubrey Wood.

Mr. Milburn expressed his opinion to the large attendance of dairy farmers that attempt was being made to destroy milk producers organizations. "Opposing groups think you have got too strong. They know you are easy to deal with, on their terms, when you are divided and each man is only for himself, but you can't be shoved around when you are united and standing together. I'm not say the distributors are the ones to blame. It is more the business men, the industrialists, those who are associated with what is talked about as free enterprise. Nor am I blaming governments so much. They are being pressured by three special groups, the kind of men I have mentioned, labor with their organizations stronger than they used to be, and consumers. All that our farmers are trying to do is to defend themselves and their rights, their organizations and the prices they need and are entitled to."

Plan Protection

Mr. Milburn said there was a woman prominently identified with consumer league action, herself the wife of an oil man whose prices had been boosted, but without any loud consumer complaint. He discussed at length the immediate position of the Milk Control Act and the present expectancy of a promised legislative amendment that would give producers the protection which they were demanding and which they had received up to the investigation by the Royal Commission last year. Certain phases of that situation were discussed at length in the course of the meeting that did not adjourn until after midnight.

"Some of the people we are mad at," Mr. Milburn said were city lawyers who presumed to draft bills pertaining to farm matters without any understanding of the effect and pertinence of what they were doing.

Mr. Butler said the work of the association had been steadily increasing, and requiring more time and attention from year to year.

Farmers Have Part

Apart from the business of the meeting, Mr. Milburn explained the Canadian Appeal for Children beginning Monday and continuing to the end of thiis month. It was sponsored by the United Nations and was being directed to all the nations to assist children in the war-torn countries of Europe.

Canada was being asked for $10,000,000, of which $1,500,000 was sought from the farmers of Canada. Rural Ontario had been asigned $500,000, and the Federation of Agriculture had been

Snow Conditions Ideal For Ski Event

Ski clubs in southern Ontario sent the cream of their competitive athletes to the Southern Ontario Zone ski meet being held here today. With such stalwarts as Harale Bakke, provincial jumping champion, and Arn Bjerkseth, both of Toronto, and both competing in the cross country run and the jumping, there seemed little hope of any of the six local entrants hitting top positions. Upwards of thirty from the more than forty competitiors were in action this morning.

Skiers representing at least seven ski clubs in Southern Ontario took off from Jackson Park over the five-mile cross-country course. Snow conditions were first-class except that competitors would have liked the weather a little snappier. However, the snow didn't stick to the runners, and the skiers considered the race was run off under ideal conditions.

Girls of the Peterborough Ski Club served hot chocolate to the competitors following the race, and were assisted by Scouts from the Parkhill troop who had the Kiwanis building cosy and warm.

Belgian Couple Best Skaters

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 7. (AP) — The world's champion figure skating couple, Micheline Lannoy and Pierre Baugniet of Belgium, won the Olympic figure skating pair championship today on the basis of unofficial scoring.

The score sheet put the Canadian pair, Suzanne Morrow and Wallace Distelmeyer of Toronto, in third place.

Second was the Hungarian couple, Andrea Kekesy and Ede Kiraly.

In fourth place were Winifred and Dennis Silverthorne of Britain, followed by the United States two tandems—Yvonne Sherman and Robert Swenning of New York and, in sixth place, Carol and Peter Kennedy of Seattle.

3 Holdup Men Wounded In Battle

NEW YORK, Feb. 7. (AP) — Charges of assault and robbery were filed against three wounded men today following a blazing gun battle between police and holdup men last night in a Manhattan liquor store.

One of the men, booked as James Noble, 17, was in critical condition with bullet wounds in the back and arms. Police identified his companions as Alfred de Villacian, 24, and Patsy Gianbattista, 20.

Detective Robert Feeney and Patrolman Joseph Fay saw the three enter a liquor store operated by Pat Reda who was alone in the shop. One of them pulled a pistol.

The gunman, identified by police as Noble, opened fire on the officers as they darted into the store. They returned the fire, Noble and de Villacian fell. Their companion, though wounded, remained on his feet but surrendered immediately.

Present Medal To Barbara Ann

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 7 — (CP). Barbara Ann Scott, a slim, self-assured figure on a rostrum set up in the centre of the rink where she scored her figure-skating triumph yesterday, was presented to-day with an Olympic gold medal.

After a crowd stood for the singing of "O Canada," the Ottawa star who won the Oylmpic women's figure skating title yesterday was besieged, as always, by camera men and autograph hunters.

The presentation took place between periods of a hockey game.

Barbara Ann, wearing dark ski pants and boots and a brown army jacket with a fur collar, stood with her blonde hair covered against the heavy snowfall by a white scarf.

Gunman Gives Self Up Rubs Off Moustache

TORONTO, Feb. 7—(CP).—Six days after he pencilled a moustache on his lip and with a toy pistol held up a local theatre, 19-year-old Patrick Gates came back to Toronto to confess.

He was minus the moustache and the $87 loot as he surrendered to a midtown traffic policeman, a short distance from the scene of the crime. "I want to get this off my mind," Gates told the constable.

Right after the robbery, he said, he caught a train for Windsor, after washing off the moustache at Toronto's Union Station. He gave himself up, he said, in the hope of getting back on the right track. Charged with robbery, he told police he had no home.

Crerar Important Figure In Netherlands History

TORONTO, Feb. 7—(CP)—Called to introduce the Netherlands Ambassador to a Toronto gathering of art lovers, Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, battle commander of the First Canadian Army, last night found himself installed as a figure in Netherlands history.

Said Dr. H. J. Van Roijen, the ambassador, who later formally opened a collection of Dutch paintings recovered from the Nazis:

"There are few persons in the long history of my country to whom our people owe more than to Gen. Crerar.

"This exhibition has been brought to Canada as a token of our gratitude for the part played by Canadian troops under him in the liberation of our country—and the recovery of the paintings.

"We recognize that the recuperation of our national forces is due in large part to what your country has done for ours."

The collection embraces 46 masterpieces of the 16th and 17 centuries. Most were recovered from the underground salt mine at Alt Assec, Germany, where they had been hidden by efficiently-organized German art looters.

Dr. Van Roijen said the paintings' dominant quality of "patient realism" is applicable to problems of 1948 and points at a technique of devising a just and durable peace.

Gen. Crerar recalled that three years ago last night the First Canadian Army stood poised on the threshold of the Sigfried Line, ready to plunge, 36 hours later, through the month of battle through the Reichswald and Hochwald forests that led to the Rhine crossing and the final liberation of Holland.

GHOST PLANE TRIP—Tossing the pilot off its tail, a runaway plane took off from Lake Simcoe Friday afternoon. After a terrifying cross-country hop, it crashed half an hour later in a farm swamp near Grafton.

Liberals To Hear W. E. Harris, KC Next Monday

Walter E. Harris, KC, MP, who is addressing the annual meeting of the Peterborough Provincial Liberal Association in the Legion Hall on Monday night next, is parliamentary assistant to the secretary of state for external affairs, the Hon. Louis S. St. Laurent.

Mr. Harris attended the United Nations Assembly at Lake Success, New York, in 1947 in the role of parliamentary advisor to the five official Canadian delegates.

Member for Grey-Bruce in Ontario, he was elected in 1940 at the age of 36. In that year he enlisted in the Canadian Armoured Corps and was wounded in 1944 shortly after the D Day landing in France. He was discharged from the army unfit for service and returned to take his place in the House of Commons late in November, 1944.

Prior to his appointment as parliamentary assistant to the secretary of state for external affairs, he acted as chairman of the joint parliamentary committee appointed to settle a distinctive Canadian flag. He also acted as vice-chairman of the redistribution committee in 1947.

His riding embraces a part of the same riding as that repeesented for the last 22 years in the Ontario House by the Hon. Farquhar Oliver, the Ontario Liberal leader.

A widespread interest has developed in the Liberal organization and many young men and women not previously active and many new residents of the city and county are expected to be in attendance at the rally on Monday night when a complete slate of officers will be elected. Dr. Ralph C. Honey will be chairman of the Monday night meeting.

A feature of the meeting will be the entertainment to be provided by the Liftlock City Four, a male quartet which will make its first public appearance on Monday night and comprises Ashton Fife, first tenor, Adam Sands, second tenor, William Collison, first bass and James Ridyard, second bass.

Miss Woodsford saved $800 and put most of it into ship passage and railroad tickets and visited Canadian and American friends she met while working in an English aircraft factory during the war. Upon completion of trip she still had a little money left and plans upon her return to start saving for another trip to this side.

Explains Value Of News Writing

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 7—(CP)—The first responsibility of news-writing is to picture the face of the age, Charles Bruce, general superintendent of The Canadian Press said yesterday. He addressed a group of journalism and honor English students at the University of Western Ontario.

Speaking on the relationship between reporting and other forms of writing, Mr. Bruce suggested that, in carrying out its primary function, news-writing contributed incidentally but largely to all forms of writing art.

No novel or play could excite and stir unless it had the ring of reality, unless it was true to the customs and emotions and the idiom of the age. These were not obtainable in the imagination. They came only from the life of the period itself and the one medium through which this was consistently portrayed was the daily newspaper.

Urges Power Project To Replace Seaway

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Feb. 7—(AP)—Senator Irving Ives, opposed to the St. Lawrence seaway project, suggested last night that the power phase of the proposed development might be undertaken by the State of New York and the Province of Ontario.

The Republican senator told members of the New York Press Association in a prepared address that he thought development of the power project separately would be the only practical course insofar as the St. Lawrence River is concerned.

"Infact," he added, "it would seem to me that a treaty between the United States of America and the Dominion of Canada, which would authorize the State of New York and the Province of Ontario to develop the St. Lawrence power by joint agreement and as a joint project, is wholly feasible."

The seaway proposal comes before the Senate for a vote Feb. 27.

Ontario Faces Stiff Competition

NIAGARA FALLS, Feb. 7 (CP)—Ontario faces growing tourist trade competition from the United States and unless it is counteracted, it may prove detrimental to the province's own travel business A. W. S. Bennett, managing director of the Greater Niagara Chamber of Commerce, said today.

Many United States centres are launching big money campaign to encourage travel at home, he said. Ontario would have to be alert to maintain a flow of American dollars into the province this year in the fact of American competition.

Mr. Bennett said municipalities must foster their own promotional campaigns.

"Too many tourist centres have been living from year to year on their heritage. The time has come now when they must get into business for themselves and spend money to foster American travel into the province."

Ontario Farmers Borrow $725,855

OTTAWA, Feb. 7 — Ontario farmers borrowed $725,855.00 through 475 loans under the provisions of the Farm Improvement Loans Act during 1947 for the purpose of construction or repairs to farm buildings.

The Ontario branches of the chartered banks made the loans under a partial Government guarantee against loss which is a provision of the Act.

Loaning for the construction of a new farm home or utility building or the carrying out of repairs, alterations and additions to existing buildings was 7.11 per cent greater in Ontario during 1947 than in the previous year.

In 1946 451 loans were made to an amount of $677,630.05 under the section of FILA which provides for this phase of farm improvements.

Ontario leads all other provinces for 1947 with the amount borrowed by its farmers for this purpose.

Acquit Boatman Of 3 Drownings

VALLEYFIELD, Que., Feb. 7 — (CP). — James Scott, 36, of Cornwall, yesterday was acquitted on a charge of manslaughter arising out of the drowning of three Cornwall residents in 1943.

The three died when their rowboat capsized and the Crown claimed that Scott had caused the accident by circling the small craft with his yacht and rocking the rowboat with high waves.

Those killed were Louis Miron, Noe Mondoux and James Gallagher all of Cornwall. The accident occurred on Aug. 12, 1943, at Hopkins Point, Que., across Lake St. Francis from Cornwall.

There were seven persons in the rowboat when it capsized while Scot had three companions in his yacht.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Feb. 7 — (CP). — Oats and barley futures gave an erratic display on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, reflecting wide fluctuations in Chicago grains. The coarse grains opened sharply lower, then rallied when the Chicago market regained its equilibrium. Shippers and eastern processors were good buyers at this stage. Later, the Chicago market turned reactionary and the Canadian market followed with liberal selling in all pits.

Rye prices dropped the full 10-cent limit in early trading, rallied with the Chicago market to post gains as high as more than five cents, but eased again on renewal of selling and sank to the maximum 10-cent limit.

Class two wheat prices declined 10 cents from Thursday. In export business reported, the United Kingdom was allocated 350,000 bushels of wheat under the Canadian wheat agreement.

cast a warning about the phantom aircraft and its rampage.

The 1,000 villagers of Beaverton craned their necks in vain for a trace of the craft. In Cannington and Lindsay alarmed residents did the same.

Two, three, four hours passed and still they had no word.

In distraction the pilot remained at Beaverton.

But at 7 p.m. from Grafton came word that the ship had crashed in a swamp on the farm of William Gillespie, fives miles north of that village.

Heard Crash

Over a country telephone line, C. H. Gillespie, a brother who lives nearby said, "Yes, it's here, all right. We saw the plane circling around about 3.30 o'clock. It looked as if it were trying to land. Nothing seemed wrong. You wouldn't suspect that it had no pilot. After a few circles it sort of headed straight out and then it dropped in the bush. We could hear the crash.

Kay Stickney, who resides about a half mile from where the plane came down, saw it circle around the vicinity of her farm and come down.

"I didn't hear the engine popping or anything. It just circled and then came down in a steep glide. Then there was a crash and I headed for where I thought it landed. Cleora Gillespie and I found it all smashed up in the swamp."

Donald Gillespie, son of Clifford Gillespie, on whose swamp the plane came down, also located the crashed plane. In the wreckage was a pea jacket bearing the label, "J. S. Hare" and also found was a case of freshly-caught fish. Provincial Constable Don Nicol of Cobourg brought the belongings in to Cobourg.

On learning the details at Beaverton, Pilot Fraser let out a great sigh of relief.

"I knew it would come down in a glide," he said. "If it had stayed over Lake Simcoe, it might not have wrecked itself. But that's the risk you run in taking off alone in a ski-plane. If I'd been on wheels, I could have set the brake and they would have held it when I flipped the prop.

"I don't know whether the throttle had been set too far forward or whether it jolted ahead from the vibration. This is a silly thing to happen to an air force instructor. That's what I was. . ."

assistance of experts. If it required statutory authority to carry out its duties, the Provincial government would provide that authority.

Premier Drew added:

"I still hope our problems can be solved in the broader way (through Dominion - Provincial co-operation) but if they cannot, then we must tackle the problem ourselves and I feel that in some way me must find a solution for them."

Total major municipal grants in 1947 amounted to $40,217,000, compared with $6,404,000 in 1943, and the 1948 total would be still higher. School grants in 1948 would approximate $32,000,000 as against $28,775,000 last year and $6,315,000 in the fiscal year before the Progressive government came to power in 1943.

Fuel Oil Explosion Causes $500,000 Fire

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7. (AP) —A fuel oil, chemical and gasoline depot at the Globe Solvent Company was rocked by a series of explosions followed by fire last night. Damage was estimated at more than $500,000.

The blaze—fed by the oil and high octane gasoline — burned with intense heat that set fire to a hose line and fire engine. More than 50 pieces of apparatus and nearly 300 firemen fought the flames for more than four hours before bringing them under control.

Evacuated from 40 houses near the scene were some 250 people.

Steel Shortage Cripples Ships

OTTAWA, Feb. 7. (CP)—Its young muscles strengthened by war, Canada's shipbuilding industry has its life threatened by peace. The throttling hand of a steel shortage is cutting off its growth.

Many months behind on its $110,000,000 backlog of orders because it can't get steel to fill them, the industry is skidding back from its pre-eminent spot among world nations as a builder of ships.

In the last year, even war-torn France and Italy have slipped ahead of Canada to lower her rating among the nations to sixth Canada was fourth a year ago —behind Britain, Sweden and Norway—before the steel scarcity hit. As it is, she is still ahead of the United States on the world rating of Lloyd's, based on keels actually laid.

The Dominion's shipyards have a far greater potential than they have been employing, and they have been turning down orders for several months because they can't find steel to build the ships.

Almost without exception the stocks in Canadian shipbuilding yards are filled with hulls—all the way from the keel up to the deckplates—waiting for steel.

asked to take charge of that part of this campaign.

"Our county federations are being asked to head up committees which for convenience should be broken down into school section groups with two or three canvassers in each one. It has been estimated that to raise $500,000 each farm family in this province should give $4. In the cities the amount is one day's income."

Mr. Milburn said he had recently read the awesome statement that one-half the children born in European countries since the war were dead. "I could not help but think of ourselves if we were in the position of those countries and the children you and I know, one-half of whom would have died since the war ended because of hunger and want.

"We have had some worries of our own this last year, but they were insignificant compared with the Continent of Europe. This province came through the war in as strong a position as any other country in the world. We have a great deal to be thankful for, and as this appeal proceeds I think our farmers are going to show that they have as warm hearts as any other part of our community in Ontario."

Mr. Milburn advised the Federation to enlist the support of the Women's Institute, because it was a fact that women had a deep maternal interest in the welfare of children, no matter where they were.

LOSES MAJORITY — Prime Minister Eamon de Valera, who has headed Ireland's government for 16 years, lost his (dail) parliament majority by a slim margin in Dublin's general election. However, he will be able to form a new government with the support of labor and independents.

De Valera Keeps Eire Leadership

DUNBLIN, Feb. 7—(AP)—Eamon De Valera, Eirie's prime minister for 16 years, has lost his party majority in parliament but is expected to keep his job just the same.

His Fiana Fail (Government Party) won only 66 of the 147 seats in the new Dail (Parliament) in last Wednesday's general election, complete returns showed today.

The combined opposition, including parties that had sought a coalition government, won 76. The remaining five seats will be filled next Tuesday in a postponed election in Carlow and Kilkenny counties.

The Government Party had 77 of 138 deputies in the old Dail dissolved last fall.

The new Dail meets Feb. 18 to elect a Prime Minister. Opponents and supporters agree De Valera stands a good chance of re-election by pulling the votes of some Independent and National Labor Party deputies. He needs 77 votes to win. Independents have 12, National Labor 4.

Five In Armed Forces Die In Fiery Crash

JASPER, Ark., Feb. 7 — (AP). — Five armed forces personnel perished in the fiery crash of their plane last night in this Ozark mountain country — the second such mishap in Arkansas within three months.

The plane, a B-25 Mitchell, from Wright Field, O., struck the side of Roundtop Mountain, two miles south of this isolated village, and burst into flames.

(At Dayton, O., Wright Field authorities said the plane left there yesterday with five men aboard — one of them believed to be a navy "hitch-hiker" — and that all five were dead.)

Parts of two bodies had been recovered at last reports.

The province has been divided into 20 districts with a Red Cross branch at the centre of each district.

Says Mass Adult Education Now Imperative

TORONTO, Feb. 7—(CP)—Chancellor Robert M. Hitchins of the University of Chicago in an address last night called for a reformation in educational methods "so drastic as to be a revolution" to enable Canadians and United States citizens to cope intelligently with international problems that affect them.

He told the Secondary School Teachers' Federation that the task of the present generation is to establish a peace which could no longer be regarded as an "interval between wars." The kind of things which must be understood today could only be comprehended by educated adults. Yet the present educational system offered "essentially a vocational training program."

Peace was necessary for human survival. But survival should not be the sole objective of life.

"It is imperative today that we enter now, with the aid of all the devices which technology has given us, upon a program of mass adult education such as we have never dreamed of. One such program is the Great Books program by which schools, colleges, universities and libraries are forcing adults to consider fundamental issues through the study and discussion of the great books of the western world."

More than 32,000 persons already were organized in this program which Chancellor Hutchins helped to start. He said he expected that within five years some 15,000,000 would be associated with the study groups which read and discuss the classics, especially the books of the great philosophers of the past.

Dr. Hutchins said he had "no illusion" this program would avert war but he felt it would provide an alternative to "liquor, the movies, the radio and running around in second-hand cars to catch a glimpse of the country between billboards."

Mr. King Waiting For U.K. Answer On Hong Kong

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.— (CP). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the Commons yesterday that he had not received a reply from the United Kingdom to his inquiry whether it would be proper at this time to make public the 1942 correspondence of Premier George Drew of Ontario in connection with the Hong Kong inquiry of that year.

This correspondence, addressed to the leaders of the four political parties, criticized the findings of the report.

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, has been pressing the Prime Minister to table the letter but the latter had insisted that Britain's consent first be obtained as the letter referred to some confidential telegrams.

After Mr. King replied to Mr. Bracken, Hon. Earl Rowe (PC-Dufferin-Simcoe) declared: "Now that the war has been over more than two years, why do we have to listen to his master's voice of Britain in this matter?"

Provokes Outburst

This provoked an outburst of protests from the government side of the House. There seemed to be some astonishment, too, among the Progressive Conservatives.

The Prime Minister rose again to say that "it is not a matter of his master's voice; it is a question of what is the proper thing to do."

Mr. Rowe came back to say: "Did the British government ask the Canadian government for approval before the war office issued the Maltby report?"

He was referring to the report by Gen. G. M. Maltby, former commander of the British forces in China, on the Hong Kong battle, in which two Canadian battalions were lost. The General had been critical of the training of the Canadians.

Mr. King replied that there had been no communication on this report.

SEAMEN PROTEST SHIP TRANSFER — Picketing the office of the Maritime Commission in San Francisco, U.S. seamen carry placards protesting the proposed transfer of 500 American ships to European nations. The vessels would be used to carry Marshall Plan foodstuffs to Europe. More than 600 members of maritime unions joined the picket line to denounce the plan which, they declared, would mean a job loss to 25,000 seamen.

Labrador Drawn Into Debate As Quebec M.P. Claims Land

By GEORGE KITCHEN

OTTAWA, Feb. 7—(CP).—Labrador, the great bleak territory shouldering out from Canada's northeastern coast, was drawn into the Commons Throne Speech debate yesterday with the contention of a Quebec member that it legally belongs to Quebec Province. The claim was made by Frederic Dorion (Ind.—Charlevoix-Saguenay), who argued that a 1927 Privy Council judgment which was taken as granting the territory to Newfoundland was nothing more than a report on a badly-drafted and incomplete reference submitted to it by the Federal Government and Newfoundland.

External Affairs Minister St. Laurent agreed that both the goernments of the Dominion and the province were disappointed at the Privy Council decision but said the Dominion, nonetheless, felt it was bound by the ruling.

The brief, two-man debate on Labrador featured a diversified Throne speech discussion which also touched on housing, veterans' pensions and the rising cost of living.

Other speakers included T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview), Max Campbell (CCF-The Battlefords), David Gourd (L-Chapleau), D. King Hazen (PC-St. John-Albert), Patrick Ashby (SC-Edmonton East), R. R. Knight (CCF-Saskatoon City), John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre), Harold Timmins (PC-Toronto Parkdale) and Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (PC-Nanaimo).

Ask ension Increase

Gen. Pearkes and Mr. Diefenbaker joined in criticizing government policy on veterans' pensions.

Mr. Diefenbaker called for increases in the pensions and allowances of veterans and their widows to help them meet higher living costs and urged also a boost in pensions of retired low wage earners of the Canadian National Railways.

Gen. Pearkes agreed that the pension increases announced before Christmas were inadequate and urged that the government take steps to make them payable now rather than wait until the enabling legislation is passed by the House. Once approved, the increases will be retroactive to last Oct. 1.

He suggested, too, that Imperial veterans of the First World in Canada be granted pensions.

Meanwhile, it was learied outside the Commons that the govrernment within the next two weeks will place before the chamber legislation which will go beyond the bounds of the increases announced Dec. 5.

In the Labrador debate, Dr. Dorion said the privy council never had given a judgment on the ownership of the land and recalled that the Newfoundland delegates who discussed union with Canada last summer had asked about the status of Labrador if Newfoundland entered Confederation.

This, he contended, indicated the Newfoundland delegates were doubtful whether the ownership of the territory had been settled.

"My complaint is that the Federal government has not the right to dispose of the territory belonging to Quebec," he said.

Wrong Facts

Mr. St. Laurent said Mr. Dorion was wrong in contending that reference of Labrador ownership to the Privy Council had been made without consultation with Quebec and added that the reference had resulted from an exchange of correspondence started by Quebec in 1902.

Mr. Campbell said the government should establish a reserve "bank" of coarse grains which would ensure eastern farmers of a continuing supply of western feed grains instead of suffering periodic shortages when the western crop had failed

William Powell Has Entry For Liars Club

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7 (AP). — Here are some of the stories a reporter picks up on the Hollywood beat:

William Powell, a whimsical gent, has an entry for the Burlington, Wis., Liars Club contest. It concerns Ann Blyth, who is playing the mermaid in "Mr. Peabody and the Mermaid."

"Yep," yepped Bill, "the poor girl swallowed a dogfish while she was swimming in the pool. When we went into a close-up, it started growling. It ruined 28 takes before we got the scene."

Okay, if you don't like that, we'll move along to Lionel Barrymore, who appears to be an admirer of Nature. He was asked if he had hogs on his ranch.

"Of course not," he snorted, "I have never kept any animal that I'd have to kill."

The actor's nature loving extends beyond animals. He was complaining about the cutting down of two big pepper trees in front of Republic studio.

"I was so mad about it that I drove by to ask them why they were doing it," he related. "But the foreman on the job turned out to be such a big guy that I just asked him for the time of day."

Joan has announced her oldest daughter's engagement and I suggested that some actresses might not be happy to have it noised around about a daughter old enough for marriage.

"Nonsense," she said blandly, "any woman with a grown daughters should be glad to have her married."

Labor Federation Gives Daley Brief

TORONTO, Feb. 7 — (CP). — The Canadian Federation of Labor, which claims 52,000 duespaying members across Canada, yesterday presented a brief to Labor Minister Daley of Ontario urging re-organization of the Ontario Labor Relations Board which administers collective bargaining legislation in the province.

The brief, presented by Ernest Smith, general representative, and James Young, first vice-chairman, asked that the Federation be given representation on the board or that it be re-organized as a three-man body. The brief argued that the existing set-up was unfair in that labor representatives were drawn wholly from international labor organizations.

Gov't Pursues Wife-Dodging Husbands

By ARCH MACKENZIE

WINNIPEG, Feb. 7 — (CP). — Manitoba is hopeful all Canadian provinces eventually will fall in line with legislation designed to curb the "skip away" activities of wife-dodging husband where maintenance is concerned, Attorney-General J. O. McLenaghen disclosed today.

The Attorney-General recalled in an interview that Manitoba had passed a maintenance act in April, 1946 and that similar legislation now is on the books in British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan. He added that it had been with a two-fold intention that Manitoba had taken its step:

1. To assist women who had married Canadian, possibly servicemen, and who had been deserted overseas;

2. Because it was hoped that other Canadian legislatures would take similar action and thus reduce the difficulties which arose in prosecuting the husband who left a wife and took up residence in another province.

Mr. McLenaghen said a claim for non-support could be filed in Manitoba and, if justifiable, could be served in a province which had the all-covering legislation. Evidence could be forwarded to the courts in the second province and the action tried. If the husband was found guilty and had assets, he could be compelled to support his wife.

Too Much Bother

The Attorney-General said that "under former conditions, when maintenance orders acts did not exist, a claim filed in Manitoba on a husband living in another province could be acted upon only after the husband had been subpoenaed and returned to Manitoba." He added that this was "expensive and cause a lot of bother."

"Usually, the most that could be exacted under the criminal code was a jail sentence to the husband which produced little monetary satisfaction for the wife," he said.

Second Set Of Triplets Born To Mother, 40

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Feb. 7 — (AP). — A 40-year-old mother gave birth to her second set of triplets yesterday in eight minutes flat.

Mrs. Margaret Walker felt a bit "groggy" but otherwise all right, Syracuse hospital officials reported, and the triplets appeared healthy. They had been expected.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the A.M.A. Journal, said the birth was "unusual," but added that medical literature contains histories of other mothers bearing more than one set of living triplets.

Leaps To Death Off Big Bridge

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7—(AP)—A man with three small parachutes leaped from the Golden Gate bridge to his death yesterday 265 feet below while a cameraman took pictures. The man, wearing football padding, was identified tentatively as Dusty Rhodes of Honolulu.

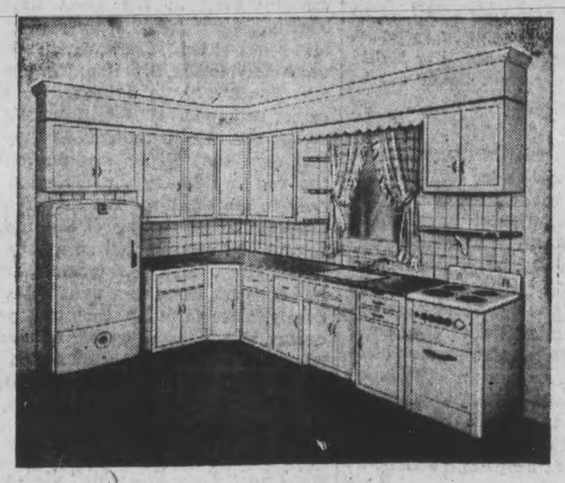
The parachutes apparently were too small. He fell like a stone although the 'chutes opened.

A man who gave his name as Jose Guzman and identified himself as a commercial photographer from Los Angeles took the pictures.

Rhodes was the 90th to jump from the bridge and the 88th to die. Less than a year ago a circus performer, padded and carrying a life raft jumped and lived.

The photographer said he didn't know Rhodes and didn't know in advance of the jump.

"I was just here taking scenic shots when the man came up in that rig," Guzman said. "I just turned the camera on him."



Seek More Bonuses

OTTAWA, Feb. 7 — (CP) — Fred Knowles, national secretary of the Amalgamated Civil Servants, today disclosed plans for a concerted drive by the organization for re-institution of cost-of-living bonuses for civil servants retroactive to October.

FIRES RAGE DAY AND NIGHT—Between Jewish Tel Aviv and Arab Jaffa lies the no-man's land of Palestine that is most under fire. It is surrounded by snipers of both sides and when shops are fired volunteer fire fighting units fear to enter. As a result men of the British army such as the Bren gunner (left) stand guard against the snipers while Jewish and Arab fire fighting services attack the flames. In this case it is a Jewish shop that has been fired by Arabs and the tongues of flames are shooting from the ruins. The streets like most in this area are lined with rubble.

Hydro, Past, Present And Future

In a broadcast address last week, one of a series which the Provincial Government is undertaking to acquaint listeners with the activities of government departments, Premier Drew spoke on the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario, its growth from 1906 under Adam Beck when it had an initial power load of less than 1,000 horse-power to the present when it is distributing a power load of 3,000,000 horse-power. The total capital investment of the Commission has increased from $17,698,000 to $600,000,000 today. The development has been very great and very rapid — so much so that the Commission cannot supply the demand, as our shop lighting and the 15 per cent. power cut in the north unhappily reveal.

* * *

Premier Drew spoke of plans for the future. Plants now under construction, or planned, at a cost of $300,000,000 will make 1,100,000 additional horse-power available. There will be a great expansion in rural service. The program of rural construction for 1948 is expected to provide for 25,000 new rural subscribers. These will bring the total of rural subscribers to 220,000. To provide electric power to farms is a costly business for the farmer, and particularly for the Commission, but farmers have, in a sense, each a factory and need electricity as much as shops and offices.

* * *

On the whole, the Ontario Hydro-Electric system is an impressive example of a successful publicly owned enterprise; as a power system it is one of the best in the world. We can only regret that horses cannot provide the lacking horse-power, and hope that the bright future is not blinding Mr. Drew to the present dim-out. It seems a bit fey to be talking about increasing the number of consumers at a time when there is hardly enough juice in the power lines to spark a radio (tuned in to his broadcast) to a healthy wail. Perhaps Mr. Drew is relying heavily on the dynamic power of Mayor Robert Saunders of Toronto, a capable administrator, whom he has just appointed to the chairmanship of the Commission.

Cordell Hull On Croquet

We are glad that Mr. Cordell Hull, whose memoirs are now being published, has a good word to say for croquet. He describes it as "a really scientific game" and "more strenuous than most people think"; of his own game he says that "four or five times a season I could go completely around the croquet ground without stopping". Experienced players will judge Mr. Hull's form from this admission. Obviously he is a fellow to be taken seriously on the croquet lawn as well as in the conference room.

The people who look down on croquet are usually those who have never played it—or at least not since they grew up. The game which children play with light mallets and wooden balls (usually lop-sided) has not much resemblance to the real thing. Real croquet is played on a very large course, or lawn, with boxwood mallets which are so weighted as to give them a total weight of between six and eight pounds; the balls are of hard composition, and are carefully balanced. The hoops are wide enough for a ball to pass through, but no more; the hoops are generally made of iron, so that they cannot be spread.

The great feature of croquet is the "roquet", in which a stroke is gained by striking another player's ball with your own. Before the rules were revised a play called a "tight roquet" was permitted; in this play the ball of the person who scored the roquet was placed cheek by jowl with that of his opponent, and struck smartly with the mallet; the result was that the opponent's ball was driven far out of his field of play, and it usually took him two strokes or more to get back to where he had been. The "tight roquet" was an elective play. Under the same rules it was possible for a player who had finished the course except for striking the final peg to become a "rover", straying all over the lawn and assisting his partner by interfering with the play of opponents. Both the tight roquet and the rover have now been dropped from official croquet rules, much to the detriment of the game.

Croquet, like chess or billiards, demands a deliberative mind, and a fine head for tactics. It is a game for diplomats, and we are not surprised that Mr. Hull found it greatly to his liking.

Kill Your Tyrant Quickly

During the war assurances reached us from time to time that there were great numbers of influential people in Germany who disapproved of the Nazi regime, and who would be quick to supplant it with a better form of government at the earliest opportunity. We are able now to verify the fact that a good many Germans of the better sort were disgusted with Nazism and saw where it would lead; Ulrich von Hassell was one of these and Dr. H. B. Gisevius was another, and documentary proof of their struggle against Nazism is now available in English. But Hassell, a diplomat, was executed in 1944 for his complicity in the plot to kill Hitler; Gisevius, a civil servant, was lucky to escape with his life. Hassell's diary is now in print for his countrymen to read, and a book by Gisevius has also been published recently. Let us hope that the Germans will read these books, digest them and reflect upon them, for they are first-rate evidence of the persistence of the better sort of German thinking even in the great days of Nazism.

If books of this kind have any easily-understood lesson, it is this: The time to assassinate tyrants is early in their career of power. If Hassell or Gisevius or the others who thought as they did had seen that Hitler was put out of the way in 1935—by which time it was easy to see what he was and in what direction he was going — the modern history of Europe would be a very different story. Killing a tyrant after he has done his worst is a useless gesture. Surely, after so many thousand years, during which the character of tyranny has been so thoroughly exhibited and explored, it should be easy for patriots to know a tyrant when they see one, and to act accordingly?

The "Two Europes" Bogey

People cannot detach themselves easily from the welter of radio news comment and journalistic analyses of the events of the hour. They are harrowed by the "two-world split" and East-West antagonism, but if they saw these spectres in perspective they would find not One World or even Two Worlds but half a dozen: The Anglo-American world, the Latin-American world, the Soviet world, the Far Eastern world, the South Asiatic world of India, Burma, Indonesia. We could add the Moslem world. Then there is Europe.

Europe, and what of it? Is it horribly frightening that two Europes seem to be emerging? More than twenty long-divided nations have been impoverished by two great wars and are compelled to co-operate in groupings larger than single units. They are having to abandon ancient rivalries and economic barriers. Is this a devilish development? Is is not better than the chaos of the post-Napoleonic wars? We may not like the way the Soviets and Communists have bound seven different Eastern European nations together but they are together and cannot war against each other. Russia does not like Britain's revolutionary policy of a Union of Western Europe. Despite Eastern or Western prejudices, the unifying process seems essential and inevitable. Is it not better to have "Two Europes" than ten? Can One Europe emerge before there are two?

The consolidation of Europe into two groups will probably not be achieved in this generation. Dimitrov, Bulgaria's Communist premier, has forecast an Eastern European Federation of Bulgaria, Albania, Yugoslavia, Romania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Poland. The Kremlin has not yet approved. In the West, the Scandinavian countries are remaining aloof from Mr. Bevin's plans. Even France has lately declared a monetary independence from Britain which could result in a currency war.

Should "Two Europes" evolve, conflict between them is not inevitable any more than in business when smaller mergers are forerunners of one huge merger. A crucial factor—for peace or war—is contained in Dimitrov's statement that an Eastern European Federation would "want to trade with the Western powers...on the principle of complete equality". An equally important factor would be the shaded middle ground between the two groups of nations.

A Frenchman is puzzling medical men because he hears through his nose. People who talk through that organ, of course, are two a penny.

Diary Of The Queen City

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: To Toronto, the Ontario Babylon, in order to take part in a broadcast which the C.B.C. has arranged concerning this Diary. After washing my outward person and purifying my soul with prayer I make my way to the C.B.C.'s establishment on Jarvis St., where it lurks among the churches, beverage rooms and private hotels which adorn that ambiguous thoroughfare; the C.B.C. is in a building which used to be a school for girls, and a heavy scent of blue serge, cold cures and running shoes still hangs in the atmosphere. After some preliminary wrangling the broadcast took place, accompanied by much nervous tapping with pencils, clearing of throats and desperate swigging of ice water. I find that in these impromptu broadcasts all the old hands do a good deal of laughing, to make it sound jolly on the air. Maybe this is the effect on the listener, but for the novice in the studio the impression is that of being imprisoned among chewers of loco weed.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: Was talking to a lady who was somewhat shaken by an experience she had had with a bed in her guest room. One night recently her spouse was sick of a salt rheum, and in order to avoid infection and escape the sound of his coughs and moans she betook herself to the guest chamber, and tried to sleep upon one of the beds which her guests had been using for years. But to her horror the bed was too short, and too narrow, and was inclined to buck and throw the sleeper, so that she landed on the floor twice in the night. She was up at dawn, writing letters of apology to all her guests, and as soon as the shops opened she rushed forth to buy a new bed. Personally I think that everybody should sleep in their guest bed once a year, to test it, and I am seriously thinking of giving the wretched palliasse at Marchbanks Towers a tryout one of these nights. Perhaps that bagginess of eye which I have observed in my guests at breakfast is in some way related to its deficiencies. Perhaps I should shove some more hay into the tick.

✧ ✧ ✧

TUESDAY: Visited a famous Toronto confectioner's this afternoon and found all the salesgirls wearing their coats and shivering with cold. One large window was out and was being replaced with a new sheet of plate glass. It appears that last night two men had an argument in front of the shop and one of them was thrown through the window, wrecking the pane and bringing about the ruin of two dozen Maids of Honour. Outside a young man walked by with his arm in a sling. "That's the fellow who was hurt the other day by the young girl", said one of the coated waitresses, but did not say how, or why. What violent creatures these Torontonians are! What passions smoulder beneath those flat bosoms, what rage lurks behind those lacklustre eyes! There is a Sicilian strain in the people of Toronto, ready at any moment to shatter their exterior of blancmange-like calm....This evening to see the Dublin actors in "John Bull's Other Island", which was good, but not as well acted as I had hoped.

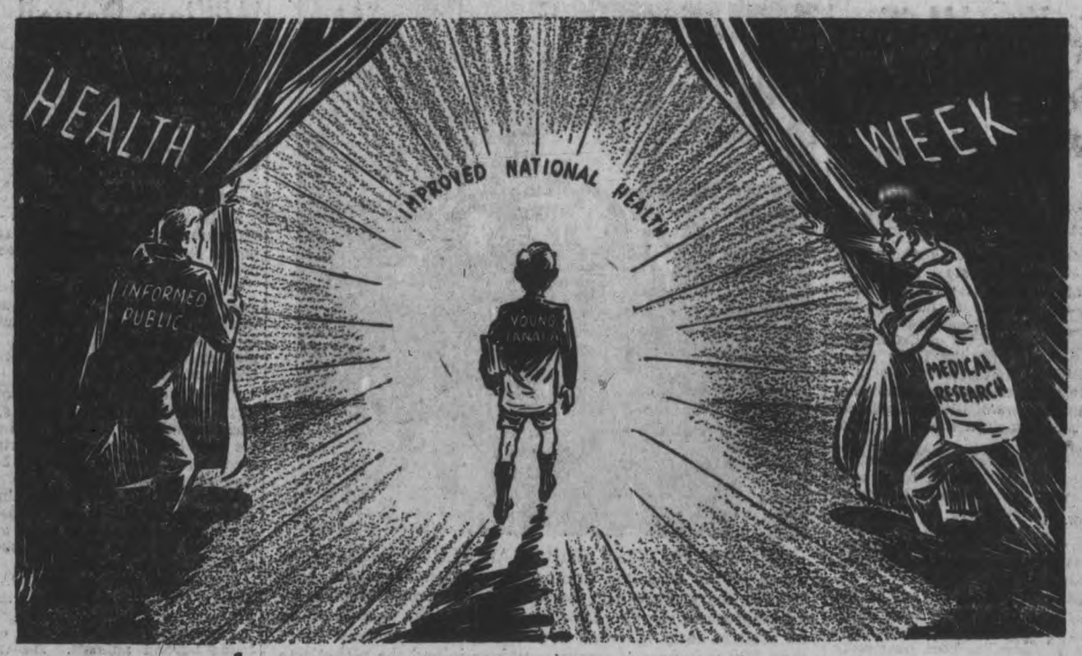
✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: Press of duty keeps me in the Queen City. Am astounded by the quantity of mud which is to be found on the floors of the streetcars here....Pondered at lunch today on the fact that all waiters in good hotels are clean-shaven. Is this a reminiscence of the time—about a century ago—when all menservants wore powder in their hair on great occasions (although their masters had long given it up) and were forbidden to grow their whiskers as a mark of their servitude? At the turn of the century the only clean-shaven men to be seen in the streets were actors, clergymen, servants and a few lawyers....A women's luncheon was going on near me. It looked deadly dull. Gatherings at which only one sex is represented are rarely enlivening. The only thing drearier than a pack of men eating together is a pack of women doing the same....Saw a girl in one of the new long skirts with a taffeta petticoat. Very fine. The petticoat made that delightful swish-swish which the French call 'susurrement'—a sound peculiarly feminine.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: Banged my thumb yesterday while fastening some luggage, and today it is swollen, discoloured, and is secreting an unwholesome yellow goo. The possession of a thumb which can be opposed to the other fingers is one of the ways in which man differs from the other large apes, I understand. I had not previously realised how many things the thumb is used for, and how troublesome it can be when it is out of order.

✧ ✧ ✧



FRIDAY: At a gathering tonight where I ate cookies made by one man, discussed the chemistry of cooking with another, and examined a gingerbread house made by a third. The gingerbread house was particularly fancy and appeared to me to carry the pastrycook's art to considerable lengths....More men can cook than is commonly thought, and I think that these male cooks are more concerned with the philosophy and mystery of cooking than are women. Women say, of course, that if men had all the cooking to do they would not like it so much. This is comparable to the frequent feminine comment that if men had to have babies there would soon be no babies in the world. Both remarks are equally untrue....I have sometimes wished that some clever man would actually have a baby in a new, labour-saving way; then all men could take it up, and one of the oldest taunts in the world would be stilled forever....I see that Shirley Temple has had a baby. Dear me, how time flies! Next thing we know that sweet little Mickey Rooney will be getting married.

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: Needing more wood for my fireplace, I have to bring it in from outdoors. This means prying frozen wood off the pile with a crowbar, clutching the frozen chunks to my shrinking bosom, and scuttling into the cellar with it, where it melts and makes a mess. This is the price I pay for not having piled it in the cellar last autumn. Lazy people do most work in the end, as my Aunt Berengaria always says. But an ugly fuel shortage threatens the Towers, and I must bring in wood, whatever the personal sacrifice....I see that the city of Toronto is sobbing because an English immigrant has said that it is a dull and nasty place. Toronto, as I think I have said before, is a fat, simple-minded rich girl, rather plain in the face and sadly afflicted with B.O., who can't understand why the other Ontario girls don't like her. It's because you are so rich, Toronto darling, and because you make such a hullabaloo about your piety. But your piety doesn't make you nice, dearie; it merely throws your nasty little ways into relief, just as your wealth emphasizes your tendency toward squalor. But you'll learn, popsy; you'll learn.

TO A BRIGHT FUTURE

Peculiarities Of The Directory

(Ed. Note: The new edition of the telephone book is now being distributed. It is not as complete a list of the names of Peterborough people as the City Directory, but it does give a representative selection for comparison with Peterborough names of two generations ago. The selection below is from The Examiner of February 22, 1905. Incidentally, the Halls are down and the Johnsons or Johnstons up.)

THE Peterborough directory of 1905 has made its appearance, and contains some very valuable, as well as amusing information. Few people will look on a directory as a statistical authority, and fewer, perhaps, will view it as a comical compendium. But a careful study of it will reveal both facts and funnyisms.

TRIUMVIRATE OF NAMES

The volume contains the names of 54 Halls, who head the list, and 52 Smiths, not including two Smyths. There are 43 Browns, of whom 13 are John Browns. The Johnsons come next with 32. Jones as a name seems to be declining, there being but 16 this year. The Taylors make a very good showing with a total of 23, while among the other leaders are: Thompson, with 45; Williams, 21; Clarks, 26; Adams, 6; Scotts, 25; Butlers, 7; Robertsons, 20, and so on down the list.

So far as Peterborough family names are concerned, the leading triumvirate seems to be Hall, Smith, Thompson, Brown and Johnson, of which there are nearly 300 representatives.

MEANINGS OF NAMES

The ancient theory as to the origin of surnames furnishes three sources of nomenclature, one derived from a man's occupation, another from his personal appearance, and a third from some quality which he was supposed to possess.

Divided as to the occupations represented by the spelling of the names, the directory of 1905 in this city furnishes the following classification: One Barber, 13 Bakers, 29 Millers, 1 Shoemaker, 23 Taylors, 3 Potters, 7 Coopers, 13 Carters, 26 Clarks (or clerks), 1 Dyer, 4 Fishers, 8 Gardiners, 7 Butlers, and 12 Butchers.

As an instance of how illogical the civilized human race has become through the division of labour, it may be said that none of the Bakers bake, none of the Fishers fish, and all of the Taylors follow a different occupation.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

As to the colours, there are in the year's spectrum: 22 Greens, 21 Grays, 43 Browns, 30 Whites. This of course, does not include the new tint known as Greenless, and in addition there are also several other different Hughes.

Peterborough has no Banks, and no Cash, not even a Dollar, nor a single Penny. A tinge of value, however, is given by the presence of one Fortune and 25 Nicholls.

SOME PECULIAR CLASSES

The attention of Chief Roszel is directed to the fact that there are no Crooks who claim Peterborough as their home.

The horticultural interests are well represented by the presence of Hay, Ivey and Rose.

Given names have a big class by themselves, including the Burts, Andrews, Williams, Thomases, Henrys, James, Phillips, Allans, Franks, Graces and Hannas.

The water commissioners will be delighted to learn that there are now in this vicinity 3 Lakes, 3 Fordes, 5 Pooles and 7 Brooks, not including the Westlakes.

As yet we cannot lay claim to having a mountain such as the one at Hamilton, but Ambitious City people will be green with envy to know that we pride ourselves on possessing 8 Hills. The Parks number 2. Most peculiarly there are no Streets, but this deficiency is eliminated by 6 Lanes.

The animal kingdom is represented by 2 Lyons, 36 Martins, several Pigeons, and 8 Foxes.

A most extraordinary state of affairs appears in the fact that there is only 1 Church and 1 Parson.

Patriots will learn with pride that Peterborough is large enough to contain 12 Hollands.

The sprightly maidens of the city will rejoice in the fact that we have 16 Kings and 4 Nobles. Small boys should also take notice that there are 3 Squires to deal out justice to offenders.

Lovers of music will be glad to know that the town possesses 12 Harpers but only 2 Singers, although it is noticeable that there are 5 Howells in chorus work.

In the way of measurements we have 4 Footes and 3 Miles. By time calculation we have 1 Day and 1 Week.

SOME OTHER FEATURES

Other classes of names not capable of classification; 26 are Long, 16 are Wright, and none Wrong. After all that has been said and done about abolishing the Ward system 4 Wards still remain. And why all this talk about license reduction, when there are no Bars. Only 10 citizens are Goodfellows, and none are bad. In the whole town there is only 1 Friend. The girls will be disappointed in learning that there are no Dears. There are Bowes but no Arrows. We have not Faith, Hope and Charity but we have Grace and Hope. The attention of the labour unions is called to the fact that there are several Manns but not a single Master. So good is the local street railway service becoming, that there are now but 12 Walkers in the town. Police will be interested in knowing that mention is made of "Rounds," although the directory officials have not caught on to the term "Beat." Likewise it seems incredible that a place of this size should have not a single House.

CHOICE BILL OF FARE

The directory by the way provides a very novel menu for a banquet. First of all there is only 1 Kitchen, and 10 Cooks, (who are likely to spoil the broth) but lots of Wood and Cole for the preparation of the edibles. The Meats consist of Ham, Lambe, Bullock and Hart. Those who prefer fish may have a Salmond. Then there would be Oats for Scotchmen, Berrys for those who desire them, Crawfords in the Peachy line and Hornings and Baldwins as species of the Apple.

How Time Flies

1928 Fred L. Roy is re-elected president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association.

Herbert Roseborough, a well-known farmer in Smith township, dies.

Board of Education estimates total $227,000, an increase of $6,900 over last year.

1938 Dr. H. E. Moore is named as medical officer of health for Lakefield.

Mayor Hamilton and council are hosts to zone ski officials at local banquet.

UNCONSIDERED TRIFLE

A BRITISH OPINION

"My missus took one look at these 'ere peace plans, then started cleaning me old Home Guard uniform."

Outdoors

With PETE McGILLEN

MASKINONGE AND BASS SEASON will open this year on Thursday, July 1, yellow pickerel (walleyes) open season starts Saturday, May 15, and the speckled trout fishing opens May 1, also a Saturday. This is the final word as given by the Hon. Harold R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests in an address to the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters last Monday. Requests had been made for an earlier opening of the bass and maskinonge season, but these were refused because as the Minister said speaking of bass: "July 1 is a good average date for completion of guarding their nests and we should not jeopardize the safety of the bass by advancing opening dates a single day". This decision may not please some resort owners, but there is not a single conservationist and sportsman in the province who will not applaud the verdict.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

IT GOES FURTHER than this, because it fits in with previous actions and decisions of the Minister in shaping a policy of setting open season dates and letting them alone. Last autumn Mr. Scott set the opening date for deer hunting on the Monday nearest November 8. Last year the deer season opened on Monday, November 10. This year it will open on Monday, November 8. This is presuming that no change will be made and from what has happened in the past, this is a safe presumption. Such a policy has far more advantages than disadvantages. In the first place, it permits policemen, firemen, civil servants and many others to plot their holidays in advance. Most of these people have to state their vacation dates as early or earlier than March. It also encourages resort owners to launch their advertising campaigns early, and without fear of last-minute changes in dates that can be a terrific headache. Best of all, it lends stability to the whole picture of outdoor recreation because everyone gets the feeling there won't be any change.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

AT THE ONTARIO FEDERATION of Anglers' and Hunters' meeting held this week there was an undertone of anger noticeable in the deliberations. Briefly, the feeling was this: that government leaders should pay more attention to the needs and wishes of the native sportsman and not be influenced wholly by the dollar. This belief that fish and game is the heritage of Canadians and should be protected, managed and perpetuated for future generations is the essence of true conservation. On the other hand sportsmen should give consideration to another very practical side of the picture and that is the badly-needed revenue from the resort business. I feel sure that if existing fish and game laws were rigidly enforced, if sufficient competent games wardens were employed, and if penalties were stepped up, then with the existing long-range managed program, the game and fish populations would materially improve.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

IT SEEMS TO ME the time has come for resort owners and sportsmen to get together in a crusade to improve the fish and game resources of this province. Certainly they would be on common ground because both are keenly interested in these resources, but for different reasons. Isn't it reasonable to expect a resort owner whose business depends on good fishing to take an active and energetic part in sustaining this fishing? Why should the sportsmen carry the ball? They are not motivated by any desire for profit in dollars and cents. They are anxious to protect fishing because it affords them pleasure. I hope to see the Anglers and Hunters as the largest and most influential body of sportsmen in Ontario extend an invitation to representatives of the Resorts of Ontario to sit in at their next annual meeting. This group of resort owners while the largest in Ontario has only 140 members, so it is obvious there are a great many resort owners who are quite indifferent to many problems.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

FEDERATION OF ANGLERS and Hunters had one of the most successful conventions in its history. The delegates showed a desire to tackle problems embracing the entire province, rather than to take up time with problems that are purely local, and can be readily solved by the various fish and game organizations. One thing I noticed was that this convention representing 60,000 sportsmen in the province did not get the news coverage it rates. Last year the Peterborough Examiner and the Globe and Mail were represented. This year these two papers and the Hamilton Spectator sent staff reporters, and Bob Turnbull of the Globe and Mail did a fine job. The Ontario coverage supplied by the paper in Niagara Falls was in my opinion inadequate. Perhaps if this convention were held in Toronto it would get more attention from the newspapers, and such a move would be a boon to many delegates who have to spend six or seven hours on the train to reach the Falls. It is likely affiliated clubs will be restricted to two or three resolutions next year.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

AMERICAN TOURISTS will not have any trouble crossing the border into Canada this year, despite the so-called austerity regulations. They can bring their outboard motors and other equipment just the same as in other years. They can bring as much money as they wish, and can take back whatever U.S. funds they brought in minus their vacation expenses. In Canada, if they so desire, they can demand their change in American money if they tender an American bill. Import duties do not apply in any way to personal belongings nor to automobiles, and they will still find commodities in Canada, a great deal cheaper than in their home States. If there are any American readers who wish more specific information, I will glady supply it on receipt of a letter.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

FIRST EXECUTIVE LUNCHEON of the Resort Association will be held at 12.30, Feb. 19 at the King Edward Hotel. Dr. J. Harkness, chief of the fish and wildlife division, Dept. of Lands and Forests will be the speaker. It is expected he will outline the Government's program to maintain the fishing at a high level. Officers for 1948 in the Resort Section are as follows: President, Gilbert Watson, Gil-Mar, Sturgeon lake; vice presidents, Jack Tresidder, Torpitt Lodge, Sparrow lake; C. O. Phillips, Cedar Villa, Fenelon Falls; past president, George Martin, Wigwasson Lodge, Muskoka. Executive—S. A. Minnett, Cleveland House, Minnett; Bob Harvey, Tall Pines, Carnarvon; Cecil Darker, Grandview Lodge, Sparrow lake; Len Carey, Havington Inn, Port Carling; Mrs. Ella K. Cork, Birch Island Lodge, Little Current; Reg. A. Handscomb, Deer Lodge, Haliburton; Roy Hicks, Rockland House, Babcaygeon; G. B. Rumble, Fern Cottage, Atherley; Lloyd S. RECALLS VICE-REGAL VISIT—Back in 1910 the Peterborough Operatic Company was commanded by Earl Grey then Governor-General to present a performance of "The Geisha" in the Grand Opera House. Mr. R. J. Devey was the director and also choirmaster and organist of St. John's Anglican Church. Mr. Devey is shown above sitting beside his radio with the Royal Coat of Arms placed on top. This replica was taken from the "Royal Box" of the theatre before it was pulled down.

Peterborough's Command Performance For Canada's Governor-General Earl Grey

By T. J. ALLEN

When Governors-General come to Peterborough it is usually to pay a routine official visit. But one Governor-General made a special trip to Peterborough to see a musical play put on by Peterborough amateurs and the city had its only Vice-Regal command performance. Because of it the centre box on the right hand side of the old Grand Opera House (next to Turner's, but lately torn down to make way for a new movie house now being constructed) was adorned with a Royal Coat-of-Arms. The Governor-General was Earl Grey. The year was 1910. The play was Sidney Jones' light opera "The Geisha."

The man chiefly responsible for all this was Mr. R. J. Devey and his "Peterborough Operatic Company." Mr. Devey is well known in Peterborough, having been organist and choirmaster of St. John's church for 20 years and of Knox church for three. He is now living in retirement with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Devey, of Murray Street. He retired fewer than three years ago after an active musical career which began when he became organist of a parish church in Northamptonshire, England, in 1886 and ended when he gave up his organ in Perth, Ontario, in 1945, after 17 years there.

Began In Toronto

The story of the command performance of "The Geisha" is lively, as told to the Examiner by Mr. Devey. It began in Toronto in May, 1910. Mr. Devey had already had at that time 15 years' experience in England and Canada in producing and directing light operas like Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado," and Sidney Jones' "A Greek Slave," "San Toy," "Utopia Limited" and "The Geisha." The latter is a musical play about the adventures of English naval officers and a party of English ladies in Japan. In April, 1910, the Peterborough Operatic Company had put on "The Geisha" for two nights. It was decided to enter the company in Earl Grey's fourth annual Musical and Dramatic Trophy Competition, which was that year being held in Toronto. During his term of office Earl Grey and his daughter Lady Sybil Grey were keenly interested in promoting music and drama in Canada.

Mr. Devey showed us a copy of the programme. There were choirs from London and Toronto, the Madrigal Conservatory Club of Peterborough, under the direction of Mr. Rupert Gliddon (which performed Gounod's motet "By Babylon's Wave"); there were orchestras from Ottawa and London, and players' groups from Toronto, Montreal and London. The Peterborough Operatic Company was being given time on Tuesday evening, April 5, to put on only one act. The rest of the evening was set apart for "The Dickens Fellowship Company of Players" of Toronto, who were presenting a dramatic adaptation of "The Cricket on the Hearth."

As Mr. Devey told us: "The Toronto people didn't expect anything good to come out of Peterborough. We were hay-seeds to them."

The Peterborough group—50 of them, including a small orchestra, arrived in Toronto on the morning train. They had an afternoon rehearsal on the stage of the Royal Alexandra Theatre, and were supposed to perform at 8.30.

Autocratic Mayor

"The Mayor was very autocratic," Mr. Devey said. "You be ready to put on your act at 8.30 sharp, so we can get you off the stage and out of the way for the Dickens' play. If you are not ready at 8.30 I shall not let you go on with your Geisha," we were told. I told him that I would be ready, and that I wanted to get my company off in good time, so as to catch the train back to Peterborough."

The Mayor of Toronto had roused Mr. Devey's English ire. Early in the evening there seemed to be some uncertainty about timing. They asked Mr. Devey if he could postpone the curtain time, but didn't bother to tell him why they wanted it put back. Mr. Devey said "If that curtain doesn't go up at 8.30. I'll take my company home without playing at all."

Eight-thirty came. Mr. Devey and his company behind the curtain were all ready. The orchestra began the prelude. It played the prelude through. The curtain didn't go up. It played it through again. Still the curtain was not raised. Mr. Devey and his group were horrified. What was the matter? Then he found out. Word had come that vice-regal party had been delayed, but the Toronto committee had not told him for fear the Peterborough company would promptly leave the stage and head for the station. When they learned the reason for the delay, they of course stayed. But they would now miss their train.

"Where was I going to put them in Toronto?" said Mr. Devey. "We were not making any money out of the performance."

Mr. Devey Presented

The Governor-General and his party arrived at 9.00. "The Geisha"—only Act One—went splendidly, and Mr. Devey was presented to His Excellency.

"A very good performance," said Earl Grey, "I would like to have seen you do the whole play." That, of course, was the polite kind of comment a benevolent Earl might make. The Peterborough players did not win a prize, because the competition had no Light Opera section. But the Peterborough group were well pleased with their reception.

How did they get home? The Governor-General heard about their difficulties, and a special train was made up—one engine and one carriage. They did not have to undergo the expense of having to stay overnight in Toronto. Nevertheless the enterprise lost them $300—a large sum for an amateur group in 1910.

That seemed to be the end of it all. But no.

Two weeks or so later, on a Monday morning, Mr. Devey received a telegram from Captain O'Hara, a private secretary to the Governor-General.

"Will it be possible for 'The Geisha' to be produced next Saturday, as His Excellency proposes to come to Peterborough that day?"

Would it be possible!! Mr. Devey scurried around, to make sure his players and choristers would be available; he went down to Mr. Turner and in his own name rented the Opera House for the night, and he sent word back to Ottawa that "The Geisha" would be ready. On Wednesday Mayor W. G. Morrow of Peterborough received a telegram from Ottawa saying that the Governor-General proposed visiting Peterborough on Saturday to see the Lift Lock and to attend a gala performance of "The Geisha."

Then the Mayor started to scurry. A civic dinner was arranged at the Oriental Hotel (now a new furniture store on Hunter street) and everybody flocked to buy tickets to "The Geisha."

So it seemed that Earl Grey really did mean it when he said that he would like to see the whole play.

Opera House Crowded

The performance was indeed gala. The Opera House was crowded, all Peterborough was

Ontario's Vast Sections of Waste Land Suitable For Recreational Development

By FRED MARSHALL

The Province of Ontario has a surface area of more than 232,000,000 acres. Slightly more than 31,500,000 acres of this is water, lakes and streams. Twenty-three million acres are supporting agriculture and it is estimated that a further 43,000,000 acres may in time be brought under the plough, making a total of 66,000,000 acres. This leaves roughly 166,000,000 acres of land and water for producing timber and wild life, fish, fur and game. Minerals being a non renewable resource cannot be reproduced.

If this huge area did not produce anything of value it would be a liability to the citizens. We must have facilities for communication across it, railways, highways, telephone, telegraph and air service and it no doubt costs more to build, maintain and use these across barren areas than those that are productive. It is logical therefore that it is good business on our part to keep all parts of our country producing whatever of value they are adapted to produce. As a potential source of wealth this area in proportion to its size and in its present condition, is not great, has steadily declined and will continue to do so as we strip it of the only things it can produce, its timber and wild life and make no provision for their re-production. Coming generations will have little reason to be grateful to their ancestors for their heritage unless there is a rapid and drastic change in this respect.

It is the purpose of this article to suggest one use to which a portion of this vast area may be profitably applied and which should result in an improvement of any part so used. Would it be detrimental to public interest in anyway if suitable portions of this publicly owned land were used for recreational purposes, parks—wild life sanctuaries—municipal forests camping sites, roadside playgrounds, etc?

The hours of work in all classes of employment, professional, business — industrial and agriculture have noticeably shortened in recent year. This trend will likely continue. If part of the vast area of this Province that is unsuited to agriculture were developed as public recreational areas wherein our citizens could find healthful pastime in their leisure hours would this not be an improvement over present uses?

Does someone say there is nothing to prevent the public from making such use of these lands and waters now. This is no doubt true of those who are prepared to travel far enough to reach such areas still owned by the Crown and are financially able to purchase property and erect suitable shelter or are prepared to pay some summer resort operator for his outing. For the thousands of people who cannot do one of these things, and they more than any other group or class need the outdoor recreation, no provision exists. All accessible lake shore property suitable for such purposes on such lakes as Stony, Clear, Ketchecum, Gull and others is privately owned and on all such waters within 50 miles of this city, are rapidly passing from the Crown to private ownership, in many cases to citizens of another country. At the same time our own citizens in search of a place to picnic, bathe or otherwise enjoy the outdoors are all too frequently barried by the familiar sign "Private, No Trespassing." In recent years large groups of citizens desiring to picnic for a day in some suitable outdoor spot have had to do to such places as Cobourg or Orillia, there being no accessible and suitable public spot near Peterborough, the gateway to the famed Kawarthas. At the rate lake shore property is passing from the Crown to private ownership it is only a matter of two to five years until there will not be an area large enough and otherwise suited to this purpose that is not privately owned, between the Georgian Bay and Ottawa.

Where is the logical place to establish these public playgrounds? I can think of no locality that would not eventually be improved by such a development. If consideration be given to the rule of the greatest good to the greatest number I would say there should be a chain of them, located at intervals and stretching from the Georgian Bay, to the Quebec-Ontario boundary as close to the densely populated farming and industrial belt as feasible. Here is where the need for action to preserve the fauna and flora of Southern Ontario is greatest, here the density of population and living conditions assure widespread public use and benefit.

In Peterboro County only prompt action will assure a chance for future citizens to enjoy what should be their birthright.

Legionnaires Defeat Petes In Fine 6-4 Contest

OHA Senior "B" Standing

	P.	W.	L.	Pts.
Petes	10	7	3	14
Legion	11	6	5	12
Kingston	10	4	6	8
Belleville	9	3	6	6

Legionnaires defeated the Petes 6-4 last night before over 1,200 fans in Lindsay to take a firm grip on second place in their OHA Senior "B" group standing as the schedule nears its finish. In a fast and fairly clean game on good ice—with the crowd yelling most of the way at the hot action—they earned the win, their first in four starts this season against the Petes.

LED THE WAY—Coach Ned Vitarelli led the way for Legion in Lindsay last night as they beat the Petes 6-4 before more than 1,200 customers. Ned played a fine defensive game and was also in on four goals.

The victory practically assured Legion of a playoff spot as the worst that can now happen them is a three-way tie with Kingston and Belleville as the schedule ends. They have one more game away while Kingston and Belleville plays tonight, and then Belleville and the Petes have a postponed tilt to wind it up. Only three teams get into the group playoffs.

Led Attack

Coach Ned Vitarelli sparked the Legion attack, being in on four goals as well as shining defensively, with Godfrey quite prominent in a defensive role. He was also in on two goals as was Ernie Nicholls and Dootch Vitarelli and Doug Mortimer. Ross Nicholls turned in his usual steady chore in the net. Coach Red Creighton of the Petes was in on a brace of markers, as well as Tompkins and Blewett. Harding had a busy night and was tough to beat all the way—turning aside a raft of hot ones in close.

Legion out-fought the Petes the first two periods, not by a large margin, but they were pressing most of the time. It was good hockey, and fairly clean—though Referee Walsh was tough and handed out 14 penalties, seven apiece—and quite fast all the way. The Petes roared back strongly in the third to whittle it down and nearly sew it up, but Legion earned the win by the two-goal margin they had at the finish.

Force Issue

Right from the faceoff, the battling Legionnaires forced the issue and started Ray Harding off on one of his busiest nights of the season. The line of Ernie and Ace Nicholls along with Burns were hot and came close repeatedly. Tompkins tallied the first one for the Petes on a nice try, going in fast to bat home his own rebound. Horton went off for hooking and a Rochetta-Greenlaw thrust was turned aside before his return. Godfrey got it for interference but Ernie Nicholls scored in his absence from Doug Mortimer on a fast rushing rebound. Parnell was penalized for holding and Harding, who slashed at him, was given the nod, also, but another player served it for the goalie. Kingdon came close and, with all back, it was hot and fairly even near the finish. Blewett got a cut on the forehead just as the gong went.

Early in the second, Ernie Nicholls scored from Ace Nicholls on a smart drop pass in close. Dootch Vitarelli tore in to make it 3-1 in a scramble with assists going to Parnell and Ned Vitarelli, as Legion pressed hard. A Rochetta-Crowley try was robbed by Harding, but Garvey came close on a breakaway. Ernie and Ace again built up a fine try. Then Fred Mortimer was gated for falling on the puck as Godfrey threatened. Dootch Vitarelli went off for charging the goalie, with Kingdon following for tripping. Fred got back when Tompkins was chased for tripping in the hot going, and Bob Greenlaw scored in close, aided by Godfrey and Ned Vitarelli. Rochetta got another right in on Ray's doorstep with Godfrey and Ned Vitarelli again building up the play, and Legion continued to press till the bell.

Petes Press

Crowley was waved over for interference in the third and the Petes poured in with Tompkins scoring a smart one after a pass from Red Creighton. Tompkins got it for tripping after Ned drew one for interference but both were back when Blewett banged one home from Garvey and Horton. The Petes pressed and, when Godfrey went off for playing with a broken stick, they really roared in and Fred Mortimer back-handed home a dandy, assists going to Red Creighton and Blewett. Dootch Vitarelli put Legion back in there when he tore up the ice fast with Doug Mortimer and Ned Vitarelli starting the play. It was a nice job by Dootch. Bob Greenlaw and Horton mixed it briefly and were chased. The Petes pulled their goalie the last half minute but it was too late.

Marmora Beats Mill Town In TV League

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 7 — (ENS). — Campbellford's hopes for first-place standing in the Trent Valley League dwindled last night when Marmora ran up a 15-4 score over them on home ice before a capacity crowd.

Of the three defeats the locals have suffered this season, two of them have been at the hands of Marmora, which is developing into a definite threat against Campbellford retaining last season's championship.

Not until near the end of the first period did the locals get in the scoring summary when Blake picked the puck out of a scramble inside the Campbellford blue line, rushed down the ice alone, neatly tricked Koski out of position and scored. That was all for the home team until the last half of the third, with the score 12-1 they tried for a comeback but the visitors were not to be stopped.

Marmora: Goal, Koski; defence, E. Leonard and G. Leonard; centre, Cousins; wings, Goodchild and K. Trumble; alternates, McInroy, E. Trumble, Loveless, Forestell, Brooks.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

No girls' basketball last p.m., Lock Co. being unable to floor a team, and no tussle Monday as Normals are tied up. PCVS results should be listed elsewhere in today's gazette. Moss Park men cagers of Toronto are here tonight to take on Marines "A" outfit at 8.15 in the YMCA gym, and that should be a hot exhibition. A husky and smart squad, the Moss Parkers have a couple of Argos' grid stars—Wedley and Levantis—aboard, but they'll have to be good to beat Marines on the smaller floor. They did win by a couple of points last year and the Clark crew will be seeking vengeance. The game is preceded by one betwixt Towne Togs' lasses and the "Y" junior boys, and the twin bill should draw well.

Ski jumping is a feature this afternoon out at Nassau, where they have one of the few class "A" jumps in the province. The Southern Ontario zone ski competition starts at two and runs most of the afternoon, and the public is invited. Lots of parking facilities, as well as coffee and sandwiches on the grounds. The cross-country five-mile event was staged this morn, while the slalom and downhill competitions move tomorrow to Collingwood. A bunch of outstanding Ontario skiers expected for the big week-end meet, and 'tis a feather in the caps of local Ski Club officials to get half of it here.

A Dandy Puck Edition

Someone sent in for our inspection a Canadian Hockey Year Book, which came out about 1923. We saw it before, having had one years ago—but lost it quite a spell back. Haven't seen any in recent years at all, and miss the publication. It was a most complete historical thing on hockey, pro and amateur, and full of group pictures of amateur and professional champions down the year. Petes' pictures appeared four times in that issue, the OHA junior champs of 1895, 1901 and 1902, along with the intermediate Ontario winners of 1906. The book was out before we won a senior title in '25.

* * * * * *

The St. Kitts' junior "A" puckists are going over for a few days to Cleveland where they will be guests of the parent club, Tapcos, playing and seeing some hockey on the huge Ohio ice surface, and being shown around the town, etc. A nice jaunt for the boys, including Peterborough's George (Red) Sullivan. Red is playing good hockey in recent weeks for the Teepees and should last in the fast "A" company, as property of Boston Bruins. Local junior officials are seeking repayment for losing him on a pro negotiation list, according to the NHL-CAHA agreement.

Almost End Of Trail

In the OHA senior "B" setup in this section, Belleville has a most important fixture tonight in Kingston. Next Friday, Kingston plays the Petes in Omemee, while Legionnaires trek to Belleville. All these games are quite important, and the schedule ends Friday, though the Petes have a postponed game yet to work in on Quinte ice. There's a real scramble for two playoff spots by Legion, Kingston and Belleville, with one being in the discard a week hence. Then best-of-five semi-finals, followed by four-in-seven finals, and the survivor hits into provincial playoffs. They're not fooling now.

* * * * * *

Well, Legionnaires finally clicked against the Petes for a 6-4 win in Lindsay last e'en as more than 1,200 paid customers hollered plenty. A hot tilt all the way, though they didn't mix it too much. It was 1-1 in the first, but Legion fought furiously for a 4-0 edge in the second, and then the Petes came back hard in the third for a 3-1 margin, but time ran out on them. Some fine hockey was served up on fast ice, and we liked especially the passing pays of Ernie and Ace Nicholls. However, Ned Vitarelli led the scorers with a fine effort, being in on four. He and Godfrey were sound on defence and dangerous on the attack all the way.

* * * * * *

Ray Was Right Busy

Both goalies were good, and Harding had to hustle as his opponents were out to clinch a playoff spot. Doug Mortimer got back in the game and showed his brothers (with the Petes) that he can play hockey, too. He was in on two goals and checked well. Others in on a brace of markers were Tompkins, Blewett, Red Creighton, Ernie Nicholls, Dootch Vitarelli and Godfrey. A bit of hard feelings showed in spots but Referee Walsh of Toronto told us at the start that he would be tough and he never let it get away from him. All these refs from other cities know the rivalry betwixt the Petes and Legion and they act accordingly. If the Petes had played in the second heat as they did in the third, it would have been closerthanthis.

Hamilton Tigers Blank Flying Dutchmen 2-0

By The Canadian Press

It was their sixth straight victory over the twin cities squad as the league-leading Hamilton Tigers blanked Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 2-0 in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A fixture at Waterloo last night. Tigers moved six points ahead of the Toronto Marlboros in second position.

Jack Cain of the third-place Stratford Indians scored the winning shot with five minutes left to give Indians a 3-2 victory over Toronto Marlboros at Stratford in last night's second senior game. It left Stratford four points behind Toronto.

Packing their scoring punch into the first and third periods, Owen Sound Mercurys defeated the sixth-place Hamilton Patricias 8-5 in a senior game at Owen Sound to move into a fourth-place tie with Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen.

In the junior loop, Oshawa Generals won a 5-4 victory over Barrie Flyers at Barrie and broke their first-place tie with Windsor. It was their 26th win in 32 tries. Barrie remains in a third-place tie with Stratford Kroehlers.

Teepees Edge Galt

With three straight goals in second period Topper Toppazzini spurred the sixth-place St. Catharines Teepees to a 4-3 win over Galt. Teepees' victory at St. Catharines left Galt in fifth place, one point behind Barrie and Stratford, and St. Catharines three points behind Galt. It was their second win in three starts against the Rockets.

Tigers' goalie Art Childs was the hero of the Waterloo tilt as he stopped 44 shots compared to the 27 shots handled by Dutchmen netminder Keith Woodall.

Both Hamilton goals came in the second period from Johnny Conick and Clare Shillington.

Even with Johnny McCormack back the Marlboros were the weaker outfit at Stratford. Toronto held a 2-1 edge for the first half of the game although Indians had more shots on Toronto's nets.

Playing up in Lindsay on Friday in the first ladies' bonspiel ever held in Lindsay, Mrs. E. Metcalfe's local rink took the prize for high single game. The rink was: Mrs. R. Payne, Mrs H. Hamblin, Mrs. E. Lowe, Mrs. E. Metcalfe, skip.

Over in Oshawa yesterday afternoon our boys playing in the district competition did not do so well. According to the morning papers they just couldn't get away on the right foot.

Tonight's mixed rink bonspiel is set for 7.30 o'clock.

McCready Claims He Can Remove Marvel's Mask With Extra Time

Earl McCready meets the Masked Marvel here next Wednesday night in a full two-out-of-three falls, 60-minute time limit bout. The match stems directly out of the wild and woolly doings here this week when the Mask attempted to hold out against two men on the same night. McCready not only kept the mystery man from gaining a fall on him but also achieved the hithento impossible task of lifting the mask right off the Marvel's head. He claims with the extra time he will not only unmask the Unknown but will also pin him.

In the 30-odd minutes which Earl had for his part of the bout, the Aurora Farmer did everything but actually pin the Masked Marvel's shoulders. He dehooded him and gave the mystery man a thorough beating on points.

Bobo Newsom Looking For Job

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 — (AP).—It's moving time again for Pitcher Bobo Newsom—New York aYnkees say they can't find a place for the 38-year-old veteran this season.

The talkative Bobo, who has pitched for eight different major league teams during his 20 years with organized baseball, has been offered to any club for the price of $1.

Actually, this is an unconditional release, but Newsom is a 10-year man in the majors and waivers must be asked. The $1 payment would make it legal, but if Bobo refused to join the claiming club he would be a free agent.

In Washington, Newsom said he requested the release.

"Newsom did a great job for me when I needed him most," said Manager Bucky Harris of the Yankees. "However, I have decided to give several promising youngsters a shot at starting roles next season, and Newsom, at his age, simply does not fit into my plans."

Toronto Rinks Get Second Wins

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Feb. 7 — (CP). — Three Toronto rinks, two each from Montreal and Ottawa, and an entry from Morrisburg, Ont., established second victories here yesterday in the second round of the Sewell Trophy ladies' bonspiel in which 36 rinks are competing.

Mrs. W. H. Smith of Ottawa was credited with the largest plus margin of score, 18 in two wins. She defeated Mrs. G. S. Baldwin, Brookline, Mass., 13-5 yesterday, and in her game on Thursday accounted for Mrs. G. S. Wood, of Peterborough 14-3.

Mrs. L. E. Woolley, Toronto Granite, continued her winning stride when she defeated Mrs. D. A. F. Robinson, Toronto Ladies, 13-3.

The defending Toronto Granite rink skipped by Mrs. R. J. McCleary marked up a second triumph over Mrs. D. D. Findlay of Carleton Place, 87.

Results included:

Mrs. J. Medland, Toronto Granite, 16; Mrs. S. J. Kirkland, Perth, 2.

Mrs. G. S. Wood, Peterborough 10; Miss O. Rogers, Montreal Outremont, 8.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Jack Sharkey's second comeback attempt ended with the former "gob" loser on points to Tony Shucco, 12 years ago tonight at Boston. World's heavyweight champion three years before, Sharkey slowed up near the finish when Shucco forged ahead. Sharkey hung up his gloves not long after when he was knocked out by Joe Louis in three rounds.

FORM THAT CHAMPS ARE MADE OF—Youthful and Agile, Richard Button, 18-year-old Englewood, New Jersey boy, shows the form that champs are made of, as he leaps into the air, without the aid of wings, on the ice in Zurich. Dick won the men's European figure skating championship in Prague, Czechoslovakia, as well as the coveted Olympic title.

Czechs Whip Switzerland Loss Break For Canadians

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 7.—(CP).—Switzerland's one-point lead in the Olympic hockey tournament vanished today under a 7-1 trouncing handed out by the powerful Czechoslovakian team who in turn jumped into a one-point lead. Canada was to play Austria at 8 a.m. E.S.T. in a game that can move the RCAF Flyers into a tie with the Czechs for the leadership.

Today's defeat was a blow at Switzerland's chances for victory in the tournament and placed the Canadian team in the most favorable position so far to take the title. Most observers believed the Flyers would have no trouble defeating the Austrian team which has only one victory so far in the tournament.

A victory this afternoon for Canada would give both the Dominion contenders and the Czechs 13 points for six victories and a tie each. Switzerland now has six victories and a loss for 12 points.

Canada and Czechoslovakia battled to a scoreless tie yesterday. Canada's superior goal average may decide the issue if there is a tie for first place in the final standings. The quotient of goals scored divided by goals against will decide the leader.

Canada has scored 54 goals with only five against. After today's victory the Czech average is 76 for 15 against.

Crucial Game

The crucial match for the Dominion, however, will be tomorrow against Switzerland. A victory for the Flyers will give them either a clear victory or a tie with Czechoslovakia. The Czechs play the United States tomorrow and should pull down another victory, however.

Today's games were the first of the tournament to be played with the official recognition of the Olympic heads. Hockey was relegated to unofficial status just before the opening of the fifth winter games after a controversy over the United States entry.

The United States Amateur Hockey Association team had been recognized as the official United States entry by the Swiss organizing committee and over the protests of the United States Olympic committee, which sent across its own team.

The United States committee contended the A.H.A. was "commercially tainted."

Back In Olympics

The ruling, announced last night, means that the winner of the hockey tournament will be recognized as the Olympic champion and points will be awarded other top finishers with the exception of the United States team.

The United States team, already twice beaten, apparently has little chance of bettering its present fourth-place position.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be presented the top three finishers in the hockey tournament.

In an out-of-the-hockey contest today, Sweden followed the lead of several other teams and defeated Italy 23-0.

Doc Cramer Ready To Start 20th Season In Big-Time Ball

By FRANK KENESSON

DETROIT, Feb. 7 (AP).—Roger M. (Doc) Cramer, the Detroit Tigers' fancy Dan of centre field who the record books show to be 42 years old (give or take a few), isn't ready to hang up his glove and pack his slingshot throwing arm in moth balls — not yet.

Cramer, the Manahawkin, N.J., wonder who annually is the best-conditioned player, man and boy, to report to the Tigers' spring training camp at Lakeland, Fla., wants just one more season of running and throwing before the Detroit bosses turn him in from Briggs Stadium's centre field pasture.

One more year would make Doc a 20-year man in the big leagues and in Cramer's calculation that's a record he doesn't want to miss.

When Manager Steve O'Neil approached him this winter regarding assignment as coach to replace Frank Shellenback, now manager of Minneapolis in the American Association, Doc considered it something of an honor, but . . .

"Cramer told me he's had his eye on coaching," O'Neill said, "and he'd like the job, but he wanted to get in that one more season in the outfield before retiring to the coaching lines.

"So we decided we could fix it so everybody would be satisfied and he'd be listed as 'player-coach' on the Tigers 1948 roster."

Seven Years at Detroit

That means that Cramer will be available for playing duty for his seventh year with Detroit, his fourth American League club since he broke in with the Philadelphia Athetics in 1929.

Younger blood held down the regular Tiger outfield posts last season, but Doc was in there for 35 games, handling 85 chances with only three errors. His batting average was .268.

Cramer has agreed to retire to his coaching job if the Tigers need the room on the active roster for additional talent.

There's not much chance that new talent will show up either. The 39-man roster includes only three names that weren't on the Tiger training list a year ago. Twenty already are signed.

They are first baseman Paulie Campbell, 30 years old, up from Louisville of the American Association after a previous trial with the Boston Red Sox; shortstop Hal Daugherty, a raw recruit from Ohio State University, and outfielder John Creel, 22-year-old rookie from Dallas of the Texas League.

All the others from a list of 13 pitchers, four catchers, 12 infielders and 10 outfielders are Detroit holdovers or players who were sassigned out to the minors in 1947.

CITY CARPETBALL

The Wardens were extended to three games to take hold of their chances on the President's Cup when they met King Billie and the Orange Squeezers. The first game went to the losers by the score of 10-7, the Warderis retaliating with 7-4; then in the final game the Orange boys were leading 5-3 in the seventh end only to let those Wardens catch them with a 5-end to make the count 8-5.

In the other games as reported by Thursday noon the Old Sweats and Big Bens divided the spoils 8-20 and 11-10, a first-round game.

King Billie sat on the Scotch Thistles, squashing those flowery boys two straight, 19-11 and 12-11 to even the round 2-all.

The Busy Bees really got stinging the Posties on their beat, sending them on their way on the short end of 12-8 and 10-9 scores, the Bees holding a one-game margin on the round.

The Fighting Parsons were slow on the punch against the Wardens and could only garner one point from the scores of 9-9 and 5-10, quite a change from the double shellacking they handed out on the first round.

The Thistles were apparently feeling all bristled up about their recent loss to King Billie and sat on the Old Sweats, taking those boys for a clean sweep on the season with scores 15-11 and 12-9, making a grand total of 50-32.

In the other game played, the Wanderers and Bee Keepers divided the honey 18-5 and 9-11, with the Wanderers holding a margin on the round.

Trinity College School Divides Cage Honors

PORT HOPE, Feb. 7— Trinity College School basketballers divided honors with University of Toronto Schools teams here on Friday. TCS seniors turned back the Toronto representatives, 38-18, while UTS Juniors chalked up a 43-33 victory.

TCS jumped into a 10-0 lead in the opening minutes of the senior tilt and was never seriously threatened. The homesters ran the count to 20-5 by half-time, and carried the play throughout the second half. The complete starting line-up for TCS played standout games with Rogers 10, Wismer 15, and Williams 8, particularly effective. Draper was best for UTS.

UTS Juniors showed too much ball handling ability for the TCS gamesters, and led 22-16 at half-time. Fawcett, Flick and Patton were top men for the winners.

UTS — Draper, Kerr, Abbot, Conyers, Turnbull, Coates, Robertson, Romboro, Handley, and Crighton.

TCS — Gaunt, Sweney, Rogers, Wismer, Williams, Bascom, Vernan, Spencer, Watts, Emeray and Snowden.

Warsaw Rides High

NORWOOD, Feb. 7.—(ENS).—Warsaw swamped Norwood by 13 goals in the Rural League game in Norwood arena Thursday evening before a fair crowd of fans, and on speedy ice. The Norwood boys played fair hockey, but were no match for the fast-skating Warsaw team, who are undefeated today in the Rural League. Warsaw's score would have been higher but Ralph Parcels stopped a lot of shots. Patterson had a comparatively easy time of it.

It was 3-0 at the end of the first period. Joe Watts opened the scoring about the half-way mark, l. Watts and Paterson getting assists; then Paterson from Joe Watts and G. Payne from Paterson.

S. Lonsberry got the first two in the second stanza. Simpson and Joe Watts also scored.

Six goals counted in the last period, Simpson from L. Lonsberry, Paterson from Simpson, E. Payne alone, S. Lonsberry from Simpson, Simpson alone, and Stan Lonsberry in the last few seconds of play. Highlight of the game—no penalties. Line-up:

Warsaw—Goal, Patterson; defence, L. Lonsberry, M. Simpson; centre, I. Watts; wings, Joe Watts, M. Paterson; alternates, S. Lonsberry, G. Payne, E. Payne, D. Evans.

Norwood—Goal, R. Parcels; defence, A. Spring, A. Fairfield; centre, Bedore; wings, D. Andrews, Bob Edwards; alternates, H. Scott, T. Parker, Metcalfe.

LIGHTS THAT SHONE AND FAILED—Three leading lights for Black Hawks in Montreal recently, were Roy Conacher, centre, who did the hat trick with three goals against Canadiens. Doug Bentley who scored one goal, at left, and Gaye Stewart who had two. Conacher wears a fedora to signify his "hat trick."

Three of the six provinces participating in the Canadian High School curling championship at Winnipeg on February 16-17 have declared their representatives, J. D. Cameron, chairman of the Playoff Committee announced last night.

The Quebec Academy of Quebec City will represent Quebec. Red Goldberg of Hornepayne captured the North-west Ontario championship and Stan Gowling of Morden is Manitoba's titleholder.

Smashing all previous entry records, 454 rinks will compete in the Manitoba Curling Association's Diamond Jubilee bonspiel which opens at Winnipeg next Tuesday and now is the world's largest curling classic. The previous entry record was set last year when 400 rinks participated—a far cry from the 62 entries in the association's first 'spiel in 1889.

The Canadian amateur boxing championships and Olympic trials will be held at Montreal May 27-28, Denis White, chairman of the Canadian Olympic Boxing Committee, announced last night. Entries will be restricted to two nominees in each weight division from each affiliated branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

Boby Newton, a Montrealer playing with Saint John Beavers, was believed to have established a record last night when he scored two goals within two seconds in a Maritime Senior Hockey League game against the Truro Bearcats at Truro, NS. The scores came at 8:58 and 19:00 in the second period. Saint John won 9-8.

Four of the lesser lights of the winter golf tour — Ky Laffoon, Jim Ferrier, Eric Monti and Norman Von Nida—led the greatest par-shattering rampage in the history of the Texas open yesterday at San Antonio as they laid down a blazing 658 in the rain and mud to tie for the first-round lead.

Ford Frick, president of the National League, said yesterday he and club owners in the circuit had discussed possibilities of a peace settlement between organized baseball and the Mexican League, but declined to say what conclusion thy reached.

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER 24

The Guards Division was a great club; and if tinged with snobbishness, it was the snobbishness of tradition, discipline, perfection and sacrifice.

We—I feel that I was one of them—were the shock troops of the British Army; our prestige was purchased in blood.

Clearly, the well-established traditions of the story-book prince would require me to write at this point: It was on the Flers-Lesboeufs road; the company on my left had fallen back, exposing our left flank, a nasty business! I myself was wounded! But seizing the hunting horn which I always kept strapped to my belt, I blew a blast which rallied my men and . . . But alas, nothing so dramatic ever happened to me.

Yet even an insignificant staff officer can have his memories. I was in Egypt in 1916; on the Somme (once more under Lord Cavan, who had meanwhile been given command of the XIVth Corps) all through the infamous 1916-17 winter, and through Passchendaele; then in Italy for the last year of the war.

I saw the routed Italian Second Army streaming back from Caporetto, and at Treviso, standing near Lord Cavan, I listened with fascination as General Cadorna cursed Socialism as the force which had rotted his army.

My first flight in an airplane was over the lines near Ypres. And in an observation post atop the rubble of Langemarck Church I had my closest call, being suddenly bracketed early one quiet morning by two near misses and diving to safety as the third hit "en plein".

In a field near the Houthulst Forest I crouched for an hour with the Welsh Guards whilst a French battery shelled us enthusiastically in the belief that we were the enemy — a misunderstanding which was happily removed over a fine dinner at the battery commander's mess that night.

And, needless to say, I got my first lesson in crap-shooting from the Americans—on the floor of the mess at General Pershing's headquarters at Chaumont though not from the general himself.

I have no desire to emphasize my obscure and no doubt superfluous role in a great war; yet in a manner of speaking my education was completed in war, if not exactly as my tutors had intended.

It was completed not by book or theory, but through the experience of living under all kinds of conditions with all sorts of men.

But I learned about war chiefly on a bicycle. I was constantly back and forth between various headquarters, and although entitled to a staff car, I seldom used one within our area.

The motor-cars of the brass hats honked infantrymen off the road into ditches, splashed mud, and, even under the best of circumstances, were an irritating reminder of the relative comforts of staff life.

My green army bicycle was a heavy, cumbersome machine, which was tough to trundle through the mud.

But on it I pedalled hundreds, even thousands of miles, collecting material for reports inspecting camps and meeting thousands of people.

My brother officers laughed at me for preferring this hard way of getting around, but they missed the point. Just as had my first bicycle at Sandringham, my army bicycle opened up for me an unexpected new world.

Even now, after three decades, I still meet men who will suddenly say: "The last time I saw you, you were on your bicycle on the road to Poperinghe," or Montauban, or any one of a hundred French villages.

I am amazed when I hear the young veterans of this last war talk so casually about global war with its whirlwind sweeps and rushes across oceans and continents.

The war which my generation fought, and in which more than 1,000,000 Britishers perished, was a different proposition—a relentless slugging match, contested with savagery and in animal-like congestion.

Some 57,000 British fell the first day on the Somme; the slaughter went on at Arras and Passchendaele.

I have only to close my eyes to see once more those awful charred battlefields; miles and miles of duckboard winding across a sea of mud; columns of heavily laden men trudging up to the front; columns of men trudging back, their vitality gone, their eyes dead.

I remember the blood-stained shreds of khaki and tartan; the ground grey with corpses; mired horses struggling as they drowned in shellholes.

My being a staff officer did not make me immune to the combat soldier's fatalism. On the Somme in 1916, watching the Guards move up to the attack, I had buried with desire to be with them:

"Oh! to be fighting with those grand fellows and not sitting back there doing so little as compared to them who are sacrificing their lives; There could be no finer death and if one was spared how proud one would feel to have been through it . . ."

But after seeing the great offensives begin with optimism and valour, then fizzle out into nothingness fro msheer loss of life and human exhaustion, I in time shared the weariness and cynicism of the front line.

By Passchendaele, a year later, the general disillusionment, the endlessly repeated scenes of carnage—not to mention several narrow escapes of my own—had done their work.

"Dear Papa,

"A big push is on toward the Steenbeck River and Langemarck village . . . What the ground must be like tonight I shudder to think, and we have completely obliterated all roads west of Pilckem by shell fire.

"I'm writing this in the office as I'm on watch, or night-duty, as they call it, and it's very cold and damp and still pouring in sheets, the rain making a depressing 'pattering' noise on the tin roof of the hut!

"The telephone is ringing fairly often, so I don't suppose I shall get much sleep tonight.

"But how thankful I am to think I am not living forward tonight and am sitting back here in comfort; one does appreciate their comfort when one has been forward and seen what it's like in the line now! The nearest thing possible to hell, whatever that is!"

Classics Return To Broadway As Hits Scarce

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (CP). — When new playwrights fail to shine, the harried producer can always duck into his library and pull out one of the classics.

The roster of current Broadway stage shows a pointer indicating the rarity of new talent, at least in the serious field, and forthcoming productions will bring more of the time-tested celebrities off the bookshelves.

Theatre-goers now can choose between Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra," an adaptation of Euripides' "Medea," an adaptation of Dostoievsky's "Crime and Punishment" and Shaw's "Man and Superman." Billed for early presentation are four one-act comedies of Chekhov, "Ghosts" and "Hedda Gabler" by Ibsen, and "John Bull's Other Island," also by Shaw.

The only major new play to appear this season is Tennessee Williams' sombre drama of decayed gentility, "A Streetcar Named Desire." In the lighter field, there are various treats, including "Angel In The Wings," "Make Mine Manhattan" and old standbys like "Happy Birthday," "Oklahoma!" and "Finian's Rainbow."

But the serious writers are making little showing, perhaps because the producers, plagued by high costs, prefer to stick to reviving sure-fire hits of former days.

Close to Tops

"Look, Ma, I'm Dancing" is a breezy spoof of the ballet business which comes close to excellence but trips over its book and ends being attractive only in spots. One number, describing the plight of a chorus girl in a ballet troupe, achieves what The Herald-Tribune critic called "a perfect blend of words, movement and music satirizing a ballet theme."

Farce Plus Symbolism.

In "Kathleen," author Michael Sayers has triven to dramatize the Irish temperament in a play which is an odd mixture of race and symbolism. Andree Wallace, a newcomer to Broadway, is extremely pretty and extremely Irish in the name role — that of a wild, variable girl with a lying tongue and a gift for mischief. She plays it with aggressive spirit. But the symbolism, in which Kathleen is intended to represent Ireland herself, somehow never is made clear to the audience at the Mansfield Theatre.

Archbishop Disagrees

LONDON, Feb. 7 — (AP). — The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, last night challenged a legal decision that a marriage has been consumated even though contraceptives have been used to prevent procreation. He said that "the insistence of the churh upon the obligation of parenthood as a chief end of matrimony remains untouched."

NOTED BRITISH AGENT ARRIVES—Col. James Riley Holt Hutchison, DSO, British war hero and Conservative Member of Parliament from Glasgow, sits on his luggage on a New York City pier following his arrival aboard the British liner Queen Mary. Hutchison, who trained French resistance groups in England as "Colonel Hastings," had his face drastically changed by plastic surgeons to escape Gestapo recognition as a known British agent before parachuting into France to help organize the Maquis. He arrived for a six-weeks lecture tour of the U.S.

Money Immediate Need In Canada's Cancer Fight

Each year cancer costs Canadians a total of 50,000,000, while annually 50,000 Canadians become its victims with a death toll of 14,000. Each cancer case, according to best available estimates, costs an average of $1,000 a year — while the loss in earning power, with other expenses arising from each cancer death, is estimated at $5,000.

Canada's cancer fighters — the surgeons, radiologists and research experts — are doing a job that can be proudly compared with that of any other country in the world, it is stated by the Canadian Cancer Society. But they need help. Younger men must be brought into the fight to take an increasing share of the burden from the soulders of the older men. Yet today it is not economically practical for a young medical graduate to serve the long apprenticeship needed to train a competent cancer surgeon, radiologist or research worker.

Thanks to the generosity of thae Canadian public, the Canadian Cancer Society and many of Canada's provincial cancer foundations and institutes have been able to make a start at providing graduate scholarship and research fellowships. But the cancer problem is far-reaching, and the needs of the cancer patient so pressing, that the question of training the cancer fighters of the future still remains largely unanswered.

Dr. W. R. Franks, research director at Toronto's Banting Institute, tells of one of his most promising young research workers who recently told Franks, regretfully, that his family responsibilities forced him to drop his research work, and go into general practice. Says Franks, "I don't blame him—holding M.A. and M.DD. degrees, we could only employ him one year at a time and pay him $200 a month, somewhat less than our head janitor receives."

Dr. Franks, with most other cancer research authorities, believes that a central fund totalling several millions of dollars will have to be raised before the training of cancer research projects can be carried out on the necessary long-range basis that the problem warrants.

Musical Program Delights Kiwanians

Peterborough Kiwanis Club changed its usual program at the weekly luncheon Friday. Instead of having a dinner speaker, a musical program was enjoyed by the members.

Miss Mignon Maynard entertained the club with her whistling solos, "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise" and "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses," being especially well received. Mrs. Mildred Hubble accompanied Miss Maynard on the piano.

Dr. Ralph Honey's recitation of "Albert at the Zoo" also brought sustained applause.

Charles Allen with Stan Northrop gave several pianoforte duets, that called for encores.

In passing a vote of thanks to the artists, Ralph Standish said that he thought this kind of program was a very good thing for the club, and commended the chairman of the program committee for this departure from the usual form of club meeting.

Repeat Holdup In BC

VANCOUVER, Feb. 7 — (CP) — Two overall-clad and goggled gunmen, who yesterday robbed an Imperial Bank branch of $900, are believed to be the same men who robbed the same branch of $1,500 New Year's Eve. Bank manager Reg Astley, who fired two quick shots at the bandits as they fled the bank, said he was "positive" they were the same ones who pulled the previous holdup.

Smith Council Sets Road Rate

Smith Council set the township road rate at 5.8 mills at their Monday meeting. The rate is 3/10 of a mill more than last year.

The following appointments were made:—C. E. Moore, Albert Armstrong and Ralph Garbutt as live stock valuators and fence viewers. William Telford, assessor and building inspector; Alex Edmison, relief officer and school attendance officer.

Mr. Telford was directed to enforce strictly the provisions of the township's building bylaw this year, and if necessary to take court action.

Cecil Pelton and Gerald Tedford asked for the township's assistance in improving the shore line south of the county road at Young's Point. The council promised to inspect this property in the course of their road survey in April.

The following accounts were passed for payment: Roads, $1,935.84; relief accounts, $89.66; County of Peterborough indigents account, 1947, $49.05. Association of assessing officers, membership fee, $10. Reeve Gilbert McIlmoyle presided, with all the members present.

JOHN BROWN'S BODY

The song "John Brown's Body" is about a leader of anti-slavery force in the United States who attempted to free slaves by violence in 1859, two years before the Civil War.

What We Know About Jesus

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—John 6:35-40; 13:3-17; Colossians 1:9-20

By Alfred J. Buescher

Eating with His disciples, Jesus rose from the table, laid aside His garments, "and took a towel, and girded Himself."

After that He poureth water into a basin, and began to wash His disciples' feet and to wipe them with the towel.

Peter said, "Thou shalt never wash my feet," but Jesus said, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part of Me."

"I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you."

MEMORY VERSE—John 13:34.

Christ Feeding Multitude Tested His Disciples

By REV. E. R. JAMES.

THE HUNGRY MULTITUDE

Jsus, seeing that a great multitude cometh unto Him, saith unto Philip: Whence shall be buy bread that these may eat? St. John 6, 5.

What a moving Scripture for this time when multitudes are hungry. Have you ever been really hungry so that a piece of dry bread will be devoured gladly and with relish? The Master knew what hunger meant. He had fasted 40 days in the wilderness.

Thoughtful students of this Gospel wonder at the omission of those temptations. Yet a modern scholar points out that they are implied in his passage. Perhaps the Lord had been telling His Apostles of those tests when this took place. He was tempted to turn stone into bread and He offers to perform a still greater miracle by turning the unstable Simon into the Rock man, Peter.

The Lord would not cast Himself down from the pinnacle of Temple but in feeding the five thousand the men were forced to exclaim: "This is of a truth that Prophet that should come into the world."

The Master would not accept the thrones of this world from the Devil but the feeding of the multitude caused the men to "Take Him by force and make Him a king."

It is interesting to remember that the disciples were with the Master two years. They were called that they might be with Him and catch His Spirit and be fit messengers of the good news.

The Master tests their sympathy. "Jesus had compassion on the multitude." "Compassion" is full of meaning in the Greek. It means moving toward with the outstretched hand. Are you moved with compassion? Do you allow the emotion to evaporate? If so, you are on the way to Hell, which is paved with good intentions.

The Master tests their faith. Their close friendship with Him taught them that "He trusted in God." Both friend and foe recognized this. They bring Him the loaves in simple faith, but exclaim: "What are these among so many?" Have you a spark of faith and bring your one or two talents to Him with the plea: "Lo, I come to do Thy will, O my God."

The Master tests their energy. They seek and find the lad, name unknown. He brings his little basket into the presence of the Pure One. He looks into His eyes and will take away an impression for life.

Let us not forget that the Master takes the barley loaves plain black bread, and gives thanks to the Father. Do you give thanks for the food you are able to place before your children? If not, why not?

The Master breaks and gives to His disciples, who give to the people. He needs your help to feed the people, His brethren What an inspiration that we helpers with God in His work of compassion.

The Master tests their reverence. "Gather up the fragments that remain that nothing be lost. In your father's day the scraps were taken care of. "Waste not, want not" was their pro erb.

"Gather up the fragment that remain." There are broken lives in our midst — men and women broken physically, mentally and spiritually in these terrible days. Are you praying for them. Are you doing your little bit to help them. They are members of God's family.

The Lord Jesus saith: Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren ye have done it unto Me.

Tender and Compassionate Was Nature of Christ

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Lesson on the above topic for February 8 is John 6:35-40, 13:3-17, Colossians 1:9-20, the Memory Verse being John 13:34, "Love one another, even as I have loved you.")

What do we know about Jesus—His life while He was on earth, associating with men for a few brief years? We know little of His boyhood, just one or two incidents. Of His manhood we know more and when we think about it, we know Him well because He never changed. He was always doing good, speaking truths fearlessly Condemning the wrong, upholding the fight. He was tender and compassionate, whether it was with little children, or with sinning human beings, like the rich young ruler or Mary Magdalene.

What does He say of Himself? John quotes Him: "I am the bread of life, he that cometh to Me shall never hunger, and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst." Those words remind us of a recent lesson where He was talking with the Samaritan woman at the well.

"But I said unto you, that ye also have seen Me, and believe not." To us it seems impossible that those working with Jesus, living with Him day after day, seeing what He did, hearing what He said, never really knew Him until after His crucifixion and resurrection.

When He was gone from them, they probably remembered what He had said, such words as: "This is the will of Him that sent Me, and every one that seeth the Son, and believeth on Him, may have everlasting life; and I will raise him up at the last day."

What He Did in Perea

These words Jesus spoke in Capernaum, but those He spoke in John 13, and the scene following took place in Perea, east of the Jordan river. Jesus and His disciples—all of them— were at supper on a Thursday night—the Last Supper before He was betrayed by Judas Iscariot. After supper Jesus rose, divested Himself of His outer garments and took a towel "and girded Himself."

Then the Lord poured water into a basin and, kneeling before first one and then another of His disciples, He washed their feet and dried them on the towel which was about His waist. Imagine the disciples' amazement! What must they have thought? Yet none protested until Jesus came to Simon Peter, who said, Lord, dost Thou wash my feet?"

Jesus' answer is a little confusing to us, possibly, and to Peter at the moment "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter."

Peter said firmly, "Thou shalt never wash my feet," and Jesus answered, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with Me." Peter evidently thought it was not right for their leader to perform such an humble task, but Jesus wanted to teach them a lesson on this last night He was to spend with them. Peter protested that if the Lord insisted on washing his feet, He should also wash his hands and his head, but Jesus said that was not necessary "ye are clean, but not all." He said, knowing that in such a short time Peter would deny he ever knew Him, and all would forsake Him.

Then Jesus made His lesson clear to them. "If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, we also ought to wash one another's feet.

"For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his Lord; neither he that is sent greater than He that sent him."

"If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."

No task should be too lowly for Christ's followers. He came to serve; so should we.

Paul Writes From Prison

In his last imprisonment in Rome, Paul wrote to the church in Colosse, once an important Greek city in the province of Asia. Paul was worried about these Colossians because there a philosophy was being taught that denied the divinity of Christ, and he was afraid the Colossians might be tempted to adopt it.

"For this cause," he writes, "we also, since the day we heard it, do not cease to pray for you, and to desire that ye might be filled with the knowledge of His will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding;

"That ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God."

"And, having made peace through the blood of His cross, by Him to reconcile all things unto Himself: by Him, I say, whether they be things in earth, or things in heaven."

MATTRESS ON FIRE

Firemen were called to the residence of F. Munroe, 413 Bethune St. early Saturday morning when a mattress was reported on fire. Very little damage was reported.

GETTING UP STEAM

The new heating unit in the Lakefield Memorial Hall will get its "trial run" Sunday. Recently installed to replace the old unit, the new furnace is the most modern type.

FORMER RESIDENT IN TOWN

Fred Cripps, former Peterborough resident and one-time president of the Lions Club, is paying his yearly visit to the city. He was well-known locally as a photographer, and is now in business in Vancouver.

STOCK MARKET RE-OPENS

Peterborough stock market (Oddfellows Hall Building) will be open for Saturday morning trading from 10 a.m. to noon, commencing February 7. The stock market has not been open for business transactions on Saturday mornings ince 1945.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES

Thomas Breckenridge, 75, former Peterborough resident and brother of M. T. Breckenridge and Mrs. Annie Irwin, both of Peterborough, died in Calgary General Hospital on Wednesday of injuries received when he was truck by a car while boarding a street car several days previously. Mr. Breckenridge was a tailor in this city, and continued in that business when he went to Calgary.

FEBRUARY HAS FIVE SUNDAYS

A glance at the calendar reveals a couple of unusual things about February. Next Friday is Friday the 13th, the day superstitious people dread like the plague. Also February has five Sundays in its brief 29-day span. This only happens about three times in a hundred years; and it will not occur again till 1976. The month started on a Sunday and ends on a Sunday.

WHAT GOES ON HERE?—Although it looks as if the two men above were playing winter croquet and on the Right, some car had a super colossal frozen radiator, neither is correct. Bill Boyer, Left, and Don Raynor, Right, are searching a lane off Water St., for buried telephone cable with sensitive cable locator machines. When they have found it, the city's portable steam plant pipes live steam to the spot, thaws out the frozen ground so that workmen can dig down and unearth the wiring.

Milk Producers Name Fred McIndoo

Mr. Fred McIndoo, of Cavan, was elected vice-president of the Peterborough Milk Producers' Association at their annual meeting. He succeeds Harry Jackson of Omemee who requested that "as a favor to me you do not nominate me for the position this year." Mr. McIndoo was pressed into the service when others said they did not wish to become in line for the presidency and the demands that office made on the time of its incumbent.

The meeting finally adjourned at 12.40 a.m. Some of the members had left around mdnight, including a group of visitors from Lakefield.

P. Killingbeck Alf Griffin Named Foremen

Percy S. Killingbeck, Wolfe St., and Alfred J. Griffin, Margaret Ave., have been promoted to the rank of general foreman at C.G.E.

Mr. Killingbeck, a member of the Quarter Century Club, joined firm in 1915 and has worked in several departments. In 1940 he was appointed foreman of the Industrial Control Department. His latest promotion to general foreman of that department was effective January 19.

Mr. Griffin, also a member of the Quarter Century Club, has worked in the Peterborough plant since 1920. In 1937 he was appointed assistant foreman of the Punch Press Department, and became general foreman on January 5.

Both men are keenly interested in sports and both have taken part in many activities of the Social and Athletic Club down through the years.

Mr. Killingbeck in particular is a booster of sports among youngsters, and during the past five years he has become a familiar figure on the corner lots where boys' ball games were in progress. He managed several teams, and carried his interest into the winter months when he switched to hockey teams. Both he and Mr. Griffin were athletes in their younger days.

COAL GAS

Coal gas from soft coal being burned in a furnace at the Reliable Welding Co., 437 Water St., is believed to have caused the collapse of furnace pipes Friday morning. Firemen were called in when the premises were filled with smoke.

Aberdeen Scot Decorating Interior of St. Paul's Church

To be employed as a church decorator seems a precarious way of earning your bread and butter. Yet A. W. R. "Alex." McDougall, at present supervising the interior decorating of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, has worked steadily at this unusual vocation since 1924 and is able to point to more than 200 churches as evidence of his handiwork.

Mr. McDougall, whose home is now in Toronto, is an Aberdonian by birth. He learned figure work and principles of designing at Gray's School of Art in Aberdeen, then emigrated to Canada in 1923.

When he first came to this country he worked on stained glass windows, and through this means of livelihood he became acquainted with the art of decorating a church. In an interview with the Examiner he said that from 1924 on he had never worked inside a house, but has specialized in beautifying churches of all denominations.

A craftsman who takes a delight in his work, he said it could not be improved on from the point of view of the interior decorator. He pointed out that it afforded one of the few opportunities left of creative design.

(In these days when the accent is on speed rather than workmanship a Michelangelo who took four years to paint the incomparable frescoes on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel in Rome, would soon be bankrupt. More probably, however, his contract would be terminated and he would join the ranks of the unemployed.)

Has Done Murals

He is particularly fond of doing Roman Catholic churches where there is extra scope for murals and art work of all kinds. His best work he believes was in St. Paul's Cathedral, London (Anglican) and St. Martin's, London, and St. Joseph's, Sarnia—both Roman Catholic.

Although his business is located in Toronto, Mr. McDougall has worked mainly in Western Ontario churches. Similar to a commercial traveller he is seldom at home, his year-round contracts allow him free only on weekends. During the summer months, however, his wife usually joins him and this is what passes for a holiday.

Mr. McDougall described Peterborough as a friendly city but the schedule of restaurant closings has him baffled somewhat. Like a man peering at a strange railway schedule he feels that he will come to understand it in time.

One of his tales concerns an experience in Stratford. An electrician hired to re-wire a chandelier hanging from a dome some 45 feet in the air surveyed his task and said lightly: "Well, that'll be easy." He ascended the ladder with a confident air and started to work. Suddenly he lost his nerve, braced his fingers against the lofty ceiling and shrieked for aid. His body was rigid with fright. A work crew had to ascend a scaffold and carry him down as the man refused to budge. Either that or he was incapable of doing so.

While chuckling over the plight of the over-confident electrician, Mr. McDougall pointed out that many men cannot work on a scaffold, particularly if it begins to sway at a considerable height.

St. Paul's is undergoing a complete redecorating job, vestibule, Sunday School rooms, and the church proper. It is not expected to be completed until the end of May.

During March and part-way into April it is expected that the church proper will be closed to all services.

Meanwhile Mr. McDougall is supervising the job and casting his expert eye about for business.

May Be Given Vote

VICTORIA, Feb. 7—(CP)—British Columbia Mennonites, most of them living in the rich Fraser Valley farmlands, may have their names added to the electoral rolls at the next session of the provincial legislature. When the Elections Act was amended last year, proving the vote for Chinese and Hindus "with an adequate knowledge of either the English or French language," the Mennonites remained on the banned list.

Under the auspices of the Peterborough Rangers, the funeral of Harold Robson, former newspaper man of Peterborough, took place Friday afternoon from the Belleghem funeral home to St. George's Anglican Church. The service was conducted by Rev. E. C. Moore. Military and civilian associates of the late Mr. Robson attended, among them Col. John A. Dewart, Lt.-Col. V. M. Eastwood, Lt.-Col. Rev. Mr. Moore offered his personal sympathy and that of many other Peterborough friends to Mrs. Robson of Toronto and Miss Mae Robson who had come by plane from England to be with her brother in the last month of his illness. Although they might seem to be strangers in Peterborough, actually they were among friends who had known Harold Robson through his years of residence and work here and who esteemed him for his fine personal and Christian qualities.

The Examiner was represented by Mr. G. W. Craw and Mr. T. H. Theobald, and among others attending who had been in close friendship with Mr. Robson were Mr. Reg. Doubt of Lakefield, former telegraph editor of The Examiner and Mrs. Doubt. Rev. Mr. Moore read the service at the cemetery.

Attlee Sure Britain Still Great Power

LONDON, Feb. 7 — (CP). — Prime Minister Attlee said last night in a radio address to Canadians that no one who really knew Great Britain would have any fear that she is no longer a great power.

He summed up Britain's position in an interview recorded earlier by Andrew Cowan of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and broadcast last night over a CBC network as the first item in a weekly series, "These English."

Except for coal and textiles, production by all British industries surpasses that of pre-war days, but severe difficulties still lie ahead, he said.

The friends of Dr. Worton especially among the farmers of this district will wish to congratulate him and regret his departure. He has been for some years attached to the city's Board of Health as inspector of dairies supplying whole milk to the city, and has been a successful missionary of sanitation. He is a prominent member of the Kinsmen Club and was especially active in the arrangements for its horse show last spring. He has built up a wide practice here and was joined by Dr. Harry Hamilton in a veterinary partnership.

Air Cadets Cancel Ottawa Conference

OTTAWA, Feb. 7 (CP). — Foreign exchange developments have brought a cancellation of a proposed Commonwealth Air Cadet conference in Ottawa, it was disclosed today by the Air Cadet League of Canada. Because of currency restrictions, it was found impossible for delegates to come to Ottawa from the United Kingdon and the British Dominions.

A Commonwealth plan for Air Cadets will be considered, however, at the annual meeting of the Air Cadet League of Canada which is scheduled for Feb. 25-26 at the Seigniory Club, Montebello, Que., when it is expected government representatives of Great Britain and some of the Dominions will be present.

FULL HOUSE

Most of the city's hotels report "full house" Friday night and today in connection with today's Ski Meet. Restaurants open at an early hour this morning did a roaring business as visiting athletes, crawled out of beds early to be in time for some practising before the big events.

Blame Polluted Water For Liquor Popularity But That Was Back In 1875

Eggs at ten cents a dozen and a trans-Atlantic trip in "luxurious cabin accommodations" for $55 are two items guaranteed to start the usual bombardment of heart-rending sighs for "the-good-old-days." They are just two of many fascinating glimpses into living conditions of Peterborough less than three-quarters of a century ago, as mirrored in the yellowed pages of The Peterborough Times issues of January, 1875.

The Times, a most determined journal with the defiant motto "Either Live Or Die With Honour," featured a snappy serial episode on more than half the front page — a dramatic bit of literary effort entitled: "The French Maiden and Prussian Officer — A Story of the Franco-German War." The rest of page one is taken up with advertisements (with dream - quality prices) and an earnest attempt at poetry by a Lindsay gentleman who made up what he lacked in poetic ability with an overdose of poetic zeal.

Evidently the most active livery operator in Peterborough in 1875 was D. G. Henthorn. Three separate notices appear in one issue advising the public that their convenience has again been assured by extension of his public cab chain to another hotel. "Good horses and comfortable conveyances, with or without drivers" was the promise.

The ten hotels of the city listed in the "classified section" on the front page feature in their notices the quality, quantity and variety of liquor available at their respective — and, it is presumed, respectable — bars. The hotels were not backwards in describing themselves, either, mentioning "lavish appointment," "elegant accommodations," "choicest luxuries." Price, for one day including meals, room and free bus fare to and from the hotel: $1.

The saloons of Peterborough, also accorded a place of honor in the columns of The Times, went into painstaking detail in describing their bills-of-fare.

Board $3 a Week.

The issue of January 30, 1875, entreats readers to patronize a new "public eating house" which quoted its rates at 20 cents "for a substantial meal." Board was available there for $3 a week, too.

Suspicious hints of dark price-cutting are present in a candid advertisement of a city dentist: "A competition for cheapness and not for excellence of workmanship is detrimental to both patient and operator . . ."

The City Council of today would probably give their collective eye-teeth for just one of the many building lots advertised at give-away prices.

The editorial of that issue, worrying over current problems of the day, presented a unique appeal to the "Town" Council to rush the matter of purifying the water supply: "The contamination of the victim's mind and body . . . makes him incapable of exerting his full will power . . . and stimulating a craving for alcoholic drink." The editor continues, logically, that "it is comparatively useless to caution men against the use of strong drinks when we have no pure beverage to offer them as a substitute."

Another editorial note seems quite in keeping with today, however, as it dolefully remarks: "The peace of Europe and Asia seems to be in a very precarious state at present . . ."

The social event of the week was emblazoned on Page Two: Miss Annie DeMontford, performing at the Music Hall. Modestly proclaimed as "The Unexplained Mystery of the 19th Century, the Famous English Mesmerist, the Great European Sensation, the Envy of the Scientists, the Wonder of the Educated, the Incomprehensible Mystery of the Masses," this extravaganza was available at 25 and 50 cents per seat.

The Victoria Railway was abuilding near Kinmount in 1875, and advertised for "300 good men."

Plain Talking

Advertising writers were almost as extravagant in their phraseology as some claim they are today. There were, apparently, many "genuine sacrifice sales" and as many "we-will-sell-at-cost" ads as found today. One fur dealer, deciding that honesty is the best policy, told his patrons frankly that he was reducing at cost price — only. His notice drily remarks: "He (himself) below cost, as he would have either to steal the furs or humbug the public."

The Times was its own best advertising customer, in one issue at least, taking up the largest space of any ad. In concludes a column-long eulogy on the benefits of advertising in The Times with the haughty words: "Whoever you are, do not imagine that the announcement of your business in a respectable newspaper will lower you in the public estimation. If you are too genteel to advertise, the sooner you abandon the trade, the better."

Items from a weekly service of market reports at Peterborough will arouse some sort of emotion today: butter, 20 cents; beef, five and six cents; pork, seven and eight cents; turkeys, 60 cents each; geese, 40 cents; ducks, 50c; chickens, 30 cents per pair; hay, $8 per ton; sawed hardwood, per load, $3; sheepskins, $1.

The issue also announced and reported in detail the organization of the Peterborough "Game and Fish Protective Society" with recorded arguments on problems of conservation and rebuilding of depleted natural resources much in line with present-day moves.

The Times took the opportunity to editorialize somewhat: "A large quantity of venison is still being brought into town, the greater portion of it as least being killed recently when the deep snow renders the deer almost helpless. It is full time that steps were taken to check this lawless slaughter."

City Vetoes Mock Funeral

FREDERICTON, Feb. 7 (CP).—Throughout the revelry of centennial week, the "Spirit of Gloom" will go marching on — by decision of the good burghers of Fredericton.

An ambitious planning committee preparing for the city's centennial celebrations to be held July 25-31 came up with the bright idea that the "Spirit of Gloom" should be buried forever with fuss and fanfare to usher in the week of good cheer.

But protests flowed into city hall, ministerial associations passed resolutions condemning the move and called for all-out backing in an effort to have it eliminated from the program. Several days later an announcement was made at city that the burial would not be held.

Instead, the week will be ushered in with the rumbling of mechanized army equipment through the streets and the smoke and noise of a mock battle.

As originally planned, the burial was to start at midnight "with the ringing of church bells, blowing of whistles, noise and merry-making in general."

The "giant casket" containing the remains of the "Spirit of Gloom" was to be carried down the steps of city hall and "mounted on a fire truck or other suitable vehicle."

As many "mourners" as possible were hoped for by the committee as the procession moved to a giant funeral pyre where the gloomy spirit was to be cremated.

Rifle Club Plans Made For Year

Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association Rifle Club held their first shoot at the Rifle Range in Exhibition Grounds on Thursday night.

The evening was spent mostly in discussing problems and plans for the season ahead, and in again getting the feel of the rifles and in sighting them.

Much work has been done in the past week by an active committee headed by Frank Barker, and supported by Dave Clement, and Ed Hill.

Nights for shooting were decided on as follows:—

February.—Monday and Wednesday of each week.

March.—Tuesday and Thursday of each week. It is hoped that this arrangement of nights will give all members an equal chance for shooting.

Membership fees to cover the year 1948, to include shooting on indoor range, and as soon as possible on the outdoor range, was set at $3.00 per member. All Rifle Club members must be members of the Peterboro Fish and Game Association.

Ammunition will be available to member for use on the range.

Teams Picked

Teams will be picked and competitions arranged with other clubs in the district.

The moving target used last year will again be used on certain nights.

The Rifle Club offers a splendid opportunity for practice, and for improved shooting of any many, young or old, who owns and uses a .22 rifle.

Instructions on proper shooting are freely given at any time by Dave Clement, who is one of the best small-bore marksmen in this district.

Shooting at moving targets is one of the best possible means of improving the score of all deer hunters who want to bring down the fast-moving deer in the woods in November.

A special prize will be given to any member who is able at any time during the indoor season to score 100 points with 10 shots on the moving target.

Doctor Smashes Glass Saves Three Lives

WINDSOR, Feb. 7 — (CP). — Smashing his way into a Bruce Avenue home here yesterday, Dr. Burwell Seymour saved the lives of Henry Cox, 73, his wife and daughter, who had been overcome by fumes from a furnace.

Dr. Seymour was summoned by Mrs. Cox who heard her husband moan about 6 a.m. She thought he had suffered another of his heart attacks. She hastily administered a stimulant, went to the telephone to call the doctor, and fainted before she could explain what was wrong.

The doctor hurried to the house found the outer door locked, and gained entry by breaking the glass. He found the three — including Miss Nellie Cox, 43—unconscious.

Don't Believe Recession Near

By The Canadian Press

For three successive days this week — Wednesday, Thursday, Friday—grains, and to a lesser degree other commodities in the United States broke sharply.

Traders in securities, nervous for weeks, launched a brisk selling wave which squeezed out an estimated $1,500,000,000 from stocks listed on the New York exchange. Toronto and Montreal trends were in sympathy.

The Toronto exchange's index for industrials dropped 5.56 for five days while Montreal recorded a comparable decline for non-mining stocks.

Market analysts generally agreed that indications pointed to a retreat froom peak commodity prices. Opinion differed widely on the possible extent of the retreat, but few thought that the levelling down of commodity and stock prices this week was the beginning of a general recession. Bearing out this view was the fact that the New York stock market yesterday was firmer, with selected issues on a mild recovery shift. Grains in Chicago, however, once again dropped the limit allowed for any one trading session.

Explaining the slump in grains was news from Europe of anticipated substantial improvement in the current grain season. In the domestic sphere, farmers in the United States suddenly decided to unload grain hoards on the market, and prices broke.

Mt. Pleasant Church Reviews Busy Year

MOUNT PLEASANT, Feb. 7 (Special).—The annual meeting of the United Church was held on Feb. 1, Rev. A. H. McConnachie presiding. Reports from the Church Treasurer, the Sunday School and the W.A., showed the church to be in good heart, with favorable balances on all accounts.

The church building has been redecorated, shingled and the Hydro-lighting introduced at a cost of $1,316. The entire sum was raised, mainly by personal subscriptions.

Loss Of Trade Hits Australia

By LESLIE BRODIE
Canadian Press Correspondent.

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 7 (CP).—The Australian waterside workers' ban on the handling of Netherlands ships in Australian waters has cost the Commonwealth at least $125,000,000 in lost trade according to the Chamber of Manufacurers.

The ban was imposed by the Waterside Workers' Federation more than two years ago on the grounds that Dutch ships were carrying arms for use against the Indonesian republican forces. It is being maintained despite the cease-fire agreement signed by both parties to the dispute.

Action was first taken by Brisbane dock workers who stopped work in September, 1945. Melbourne and Sydney workers quickly followed their lead.

Prime Minister Chifley assured the Dutch minister to Australia that his government would see to it that food and medical supplies, badly needed in Indonesia, would be loaded, but the waterside workers refused to have anything to do with them.

The Australian Council of Trade Unions backed Mr. Chifley and called upon the men to obey the prime minister's request to load "mercy" supplies intended for former internees and ex-prisoners of war, but the union ignored the appeal.

Order Cancelled.

In April, 1946, the Dutch were forced to cancel a $20,000,000 order for Australian goods. Other cancellations followed.

Dutch - Australian relations were further strained when the destroyer Piet Hein, leaking after a collision, arrived for repairs. The workers refused to touch the destroyer, regarded as "black" on account of the watersiders' ban all Dutch shipping.

External Affairs Minister Evatt succeeded last June in having the ban lifted after long discussions with the men and Senator Ashley, Minister for Supply and Shipping.

When the Dutch "police action" began a month later in Indonesia the ban was re-imposed —this time on all Dutch shipping including ships trading between Australia and Holland.

Recently the ban on ships to and from Holland was lifted, but it still applies to the Indonesian trade.

Distemper Epidemic Hits Kitchener

KITCHENER, Feb. 7.—The distemper epidemic among the city's dog population is continuing with only slightly less severity. A Works Department official said there have been pitiful sights at the Kithener incinerator as many fine dogs were laid out awaiting disposal.

It is worst when they are brought in alive, with poison administered on the premises.

In an effort to get the trouble under control, the K-W Kennel Club is bringing Dr. Frank Cote af the Ontario Veterinary College to address a meeting at the Canadian Legion Hall next Wednesday night. Dr. Cote is a specialist on diseases of small animals.

A Message to Every Canadian Family about LIFE INSURANCE

DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY, Life Insurance benefits Canadians from coast to coast . . . old and young . . . in every walk of life. This report tells how more than 50 Life Insurance companies operating in Canada made 1947 another year of service, expansion and preparation for the future.

1 Protects more people than ever!
Every year more Canadians realize that through life insurance they can co-operate with others to share their risks. Now there are over 4½ million policyholders, and their insurance in force totals nearly $12 billion—an average of about $3,500 per family.

2 Helps families meet emergencies!
In 1947, over $70 million was paid to beneficiaries for death claims! This money helped widows to maintain their homes, educate their children, and meet current expenses.

3 Thousands of happy endings!
More than half of all life insurance payments go to living policyholders! Last year, thousands of Canadians received the welcome funds that brought comfortable retirements, pleasant trips, homes, college educations for boys and girls.

4 These dollars really work!
Last year the life insurance companies invested many millions of dollars in harbours, railways, power plants and other industries, public works and government bonds . . . as well as in farms and homes. These investments create new jobs; help raise living standards for all.

5 Toward a healthier Canada!
Again, in 1947, the life insurance companies gave financial support to important medical research projects. More help for the vital task of lessening the menace of cancer, tuberculosis and polio. More help for building a healthier nation!

6 Meeting higher living costs!
As the cost of living rises, more life insurance protection is needed. So to help provide for today's greatly increased demands on family budgets, many people purchased additional life insurance during the past year.

It is good citizenship to own LIFE INSURANCE
